LINDSAY SOLDIERS

Make Plea for Armoury in That Town

Something Wanted to Hold the Members of Regiment Together

The need for an armories is ever before the public of Lindsay. Year after year the 45th regiment has mustered for camp in the back yard of the post office and the officers and men have been forced to endure many inconveniences. Many of the sturdy youths who don the scarlet uniform, do so for the first time, and many are amazed at the construction of the regulation rifle which they handle for the first time. Most of them are totally unaware that such a command as form fours or present arms exists and the troubles that a sergeant-major has during the first few days of camp teaching the new recruits, would drive an ordinary individual inside the four walls of an asylum.

Why should such conditions as these exist in the modern town of Lindsay How is it that the youth of Victoria county who have aspirations for a military life, must be shipped to Barriefield totally ignorant of military drill. A military camp should not be a school for recruits but a university for the education of well drilled soldiers in military tactics, to fit them for active service.

Officers of the regiment complain that men are brought down to Kingston for twelve days, given a good training and are brought back home the makings of a good soldier, but they go back to their work and to their old habits again and they lose that soldierly alertness which they gained at camp and often forget the drill.

Therefore, the value of the military camp is greatly depreciated for the above reason. To overcome this there is only one way and that is to either erect a suitable armories or rent some buildings until the armories is completed. At the present time there is nothing to hold the men together there is a very poor place to store arms and uniforms. The whole state of affairs is most unsatisfactory and the regiment cannot be of any use or ever become any better until something is done.—Lindsay Free Press.

SCORE OF WORKMEN KILLED BY FUMES FROM OIL WELL

New Orleans, La., Oct. 29.—Deadly fumes from Mexico's great oil well fire, 60 miles from Tampico have killed more than a score of workmen during the past few days, completely blackened the white paint on the side of the ships, endangered commerce and caused thousands of dollars damage to ranches and other neighboring interests, according to Capt. Michael Henrichsen of the steamship City of Mexico, which reached New Orleans on Monday night.

Battling to save what they could from the wreckage, American mine owners, after spending more than a million dollars, finally succeeded in extinguishing the blaze, but even greater terror than before prevailed then. The flames had consumed the noxious gases, but when the fire was stopped the gases burst forth. Laborers, inhaling a bit of the stuff, dropped in their tracks, dead.

Owners of the well have applied to the Mexican Government and several companies of soldiers have been sent to the scene to take the places of the laborers, who refused longer to remain there.

WEATHER FORECAST

By Rev. Prof. Ira R. Hicks

Stormy Period Predicted for Par of November---An Average Winter

A regular storm period covers the first six days of November. The moon is at first quarter on the 1st, at perigree on the 4th, and on the celestial quarter on the 5th. By the 1st the barometer will begin to fall in western sections, the temperature will rise and by the 2nd or 3rd, storms will gather and start on their eastward march from west to east. On touching Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the 3rd, 4th and 5th, rain, wind and thunderstorms will pass most parts of the country with rising barometer, westerly winds and change to much cooler pressing close behind the storm centres, the change to cool or colder appearing in the west-northwest about the 3rd, and passing quite over the country to the eastward by the 7th. Frosts, with some freezing northward, will result during the passage of this high-barometer and cool wave.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 8th, 9th and 10th. The full moon falls on the 8th, increasing the probabilities of storm conditions on that date. Low barometer, rising temperature and rain storms in transit from west to east, will be the natural order on and touching the th8 to 10th. The 8th to the tenth is a probable seismic period. We repeat our urgent request that all readers of this article watch the world's telegraphic news, and make clippings of all despatches reporting storms and

SEISMIC DISTURBANCES.

Do this habitually all the year round, tabulating them into dates and comparing them with our forecasts. In spite of the fact that the moon is moving to extreme north declinations a high barometer, west winds, and change to much colder will come down from the northwest and spread over the country generally from about the 9th to the 12th.

A regular storm period begins on the 13th and extends to the 18th, being central on the 15th. The moon is at last quarter on the 15th and in perigee on the 15th. Falling barometer, change to warmer, southerly winds and autumnal rains will pass over the country from west to east on and touching the 15th, 16th and 17th. There will be but little time for reaction to anti-storm conditions between this and the on-coming storm period. Possibly change to colder may break in about the 17th and and 18th.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 19th, 20th and 21st. The moon crosses the celestial equator veering southward on the 19th. Change to much warmer, falling barometer and autumnal thunder storms will appear about the 19th, and run their course eastward on the 20th and 21st. The influence of the approaching Venus disturbance, as seen in the November storm diagram, will be felt at this reactionary period, the period coming in with high temperature and

DISAGREE ON VERDICT IN KIMBALL SHOOTING CASE

Jury Does Not Make Finding.

Trial of Leamington Police Chief Who Killed Man Who Was Fleeing From Arrest.

Chatham, Oct. 29.—After several hours' deliberation the jury in the case of Elliott J. Kimball, formerly chief of police of Leamington, charged with the murder of Wm. J. Healey, before Justice Latchford, decided just before midnight yesterday, they could not agree. The case went to their hands at 5.30 p.m. Tuesday. Kimball shot Healey while the latter was running away to avoid arrest for jumping a board bill.

Kimball himself was the last witness examined. He stated that the shooting of Healey was purely accidental, the revolver being discharged through a jar on the fence he was climbing over. Other witnesses testified that after the shooting Kimball had remarked that he had shot the man, who was getting away from him. None of these witnesses could remember having heard him say that the shooting was accidental.

Both Prosecutor Arnoldi and the solicitor for the defence, O. L. Lewis, K.C., made long addresses to the jury, Mr. Lewis emphasizing the fact that both the crown and court had barred evidence pertaining to Kimball's good character.

His lordship Justice Latchford made a strong charge against the prisoner. He belittled the prisoner's statement that the shooting was accidental.

"The character of Healey has nothing to do with it," he continued. "The lowest character in this country is protected by law. The unfortunate woman, Mary Wellington, whose illegal actions caused the shooting of this wretched man, says that she warned Kimball that Healey was dangerous, but we do not hear of Kimball using his gun till Healey ran away from him. Many constables appear to be under the misapprehension that they can shoot down a fleeing man. There is no law in this or any other civilized country which allows them to do so, and the sooner constables get this erroneous idea out of their heads, the better it will be for them."

Justice Latchford said that there were three verdicts the jury could bring in—murder, manslaughter, or not guilty. If they believed Kimball's story in the face of all the other evidence they then might bring in the latter verdict.

On opening the case the attorney for the defence objected to the charge of murder, but the court overruled, stating that the grand jury had decided upon that charge and he would have to abide by its decision.

The prosecution argued that, notwithstanding that Kimball was an officer, his case should be considered in the evidence the same as an ordinary citizen.

Attorney for the defence elicted the fact that Miss Mary Wellington had lived with Healey as his wife. In this connection she said that she had known him about a year. She had been intimate with him about three weeks. They had lived together as man and wife in Leamington and Tilbury. Healey had led her to believe they were married by showing her a false marriage certificate which he said was signed by a minister.

The woman who made the complaint which had caused Kimball to attempt the arrest testified that she had told him that Healey was a desperate man and would likely resist arrest.

The court commented that this warning had probably had its effect on Kimball and led up to the shooting.

SEVENTY GAOLED

Night Riders Are Arrested in Tennessee.

Four May Hang---Ringleader Has Made a Confession---Judge Protects House With Mines.

Samburg, Tenn., Oct. 29.—The suspected ringleader of the night riders in this section is a prisoner at Camp Nemo. His name is Carrett Johnson.

Not less than 70 men alleged to have been connected actively with the night riders in this vicinity are under arrest, and the authorities believe enough evidence has already been collected to hang at least four men.

The confession of "Ted" Burton is the sensation of the day, both here and at Union City, and it is believed that he has not yet told all he knows about the killing of Capt. Rankin.

John F. Cockran, the man captured after a chase on the lake, has confessed that the night rider outrages have included the whipping of women. One woman was whipped for leaving her husband, another for being of ill-repute.

Burton, one of the alleged leaders of the Night Riders, who lynched Capt. Rankin, killed a detective who pursued them and sought to slay Col. Taylor, has made a complete confession.

"I was with a crowd of 100 men and boys who live around here," he said, "and the night we laid the plans to lynch Rankin and Taylor all of us gathered on the banks of Reelfoot Lake and talked over the plot.

"All of us had been told that Rankin and Taylor were responsible for the passing of the law stopping our fishing in the lake. That made us mad, because most of us hadn't any other way to live, and so we decided to get rid of them."

In order to avoid lynching by the night riders, who fear his testimony, Judge Harris of Tiptonville, whose life has often been threatened, has planted mines on the approaches to Tiptonville, which can be touched off by a system of electric wires at any point. No one dares approach his house without permission, for the mere turning of one of his electric switches will touch off a mine where he chooses.

Borden said he was not in the least discouraged by the result of the elections as the Conservatives had made substantial gains and the Government been forced to face some of the difficulties they have created. The Conservatives he said, have a splendid fighting force in this Parliament and the five colleagues from Nova Scotia will make their influence felt.—Toronto Star.

STOLE VALISE AND BATHING SUIT FROM BOARDING HOUSE

James Reid, a pedlar, was found guilty of stealing a valise and a bathing suit, the property of Mrs. M. English, George street, at the police court this morning. He elected summary trial. After hearing the evidence, His Worship remanded him for a week to allow Chief Rossel to make inquiries in the matter.

Mrs. English, in the witness box, said that she kept a boarding house at 361 George street. The prisoner came to her house to room last Friday night. Yesterday morning he was told that he would have to leave. He left between four and five o'clock yesterday evening. Witness was returning home when she met him with the valise. The prisoner turned on to King street. She called to him but he evidently did not hear her.

P.C. Newhall said that last night shortly before six o'clock, he was called to Lawson's restaurant, where he arrested the prisoner. He ascertained from a conversation that he was the man who stole the valise. The prisoner stated that he was a pedlar. Witness found valise about nine o'clock on King street.

DISPUTE OVER DAMAGE TO LAND ON BALSAM LAKE

Being Heard in the Non-Jury Assize Court in Toronto—Trouble Over the Making of a Road to Connect Two Properties

Toronto, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Margaret Mackenzie, wife of William Mackenzie, of Toronto Street Railway fame, is the defendant in an action being brought by Mrs. Eliza Taylor in the Non-Jury Assize Court before Mr. Justice Britton.

The dispute is over alleged damage to a small strip of land and the timber thereon bordering on Balsam Lake, near Peterborough. Mrs. Mackenzie is said to own the land running around the shore of an arm of the lake, with the exception of a narrow strip lying between her property and that of a relative, Mr. Mitchell. This is the piece of land in question, which is some 53 feet in width, and contains about a quarter acre.

BUILT A ROAD.

According to Mrs. Mackenzie's claim, she wished to construct a road from her property to that of Mr. Mitchell, and she entered into negotiations with Mrs. Taylor for the purchase of the disputed land at $300. Believing the deal was practically settled, she had a couple of men go on the land and clear away some trees, so that the road could be constructed.

The deal, however, was not concluded, and Mrs. Taylor is suing for trespass and damage, stating that Mrs. Mackenzie's men had "deposited on her land many large stones or boulders, gravel and rubbish," and had cut down trees.

In reply, Mrs. Mackenzie says there were only two men who worked; that they put in only one hour on the work, cutting down alder bushes and scrub, and that all they cut down was hauled away in one load. Further, the work was done in winter, with several inches of snow on the ground, and no stones were placed on the property whatever. The sum of $25 has been paid into court to cover the damage done. The action is to fix damages and to prevent further trespass.

Blake, Lash and Cassels appear for Mrs. Mackenize and DuVernet, Raymond, Jones, Ross and Ardagh representing Mrs. Taylor.

TWO EXCITING RUNAWAYS ON DALHOUSIE STREET

A couple of lively runaways took place on Dalhousie street yesterday afternoon at two o'clock when one of the Central Milling Company's teams and a horse belonging to Mr. Wm. Irwin, Ashburnham, became frightened from some cause or other and broke away at a lively gallop. They were standing alongside the mill before they commenced to run away.

The team started first and dashed across the road into Ackerman and Co's. yard and then circled around and came out again tearing along west on Dalhousie street. The team narrowly missed taking a plunge into the creek.

Mr. Irwin's horse also ran across the road and into the yard. The buggy it was attached to was badly smashed. The gate of the yard was closed to prevent the horse getting out onto the street again.

The Milling Company's rig was considerably damaged.

SAND REPORTED TO BE CURE FOR MANY HUMAN AILMENTS

New York, Oct. 27.—Skilled medical mechanics who have been charging large sums for tunneling in search of the veriform appendix will soon be joining the bread line if their patients get in communication with Clayton King, the popular carpenter of Orient, L. I.

Here is the way King put it in reply to a question as to how he kept in such good health himself:

"Eat sand. Eat it three times a day and then wait until the doctor goes by and then give him the laugh.

"Eat it six times a day, if you can get the right kind. The sand diet will cure appendicitis, dyspepsia, indigestion, lazy liver, ingrowing grouch, broiled kidneys or any other complaint. Eat sand and feel grand."

King's listener was puzzled until the cheerful carpenter dug a handful of sand out of his vest pocket, dropped it on his tongue and washed it down with a glass of water.

"It's kind of hard to get used to it," explained the doctor, "but after two weeks' practice you don't mind it. At first, after I took a dose and washed it down I felt like a mud puddle, but now I have no trouble.

"The yellow sand has the best curative properties," the "doctor" explained. "Carefully sort it over and pick out the shells. What does it do? Why, it reacts the liver, props up the heart and fills in the vacant spaces around the ribs. Just try it and you'll live one hundred years."

Mr. R. L. Borden has gone to Grand Pre to visit his mother.

THE ELECTIONS

Our exchanges indicate widespread corruption. Whether there was widespread corruption or not one thing is sure. The majority in Ontario had no very settled convictions on any of the chief issues or they would not have suffered themselves to be bought. At the next general election however, we shall have the same old race and religion cry to the effect that Ontario is against the French, etc. It begins to look as if this cry were being used as an excuse for combining in Quebec. There is an element of "slimness" about these cries, circulars, dark hints, etc. that do duty at each and every election that is not pleasing. It threatens to become an issue of itself some day.

THE PROTEST

The protest against the return of Mr. Stratton as member for West Peterborough is already under weigh. The Liberal-Conservative Association has retained Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., who has been its legal adviser during the campaign, to fyle the petition and prosecute the inquiry to a finish. The Liberal candidate's record had made it plain to his opponents that it might be necessary to continue the struggle beyond polling-day, and the struggle will be continued until the election judges make their pronouncement upon it. A capable body of Conservative scrutineers prevented much illegal voting, the deputy-returning officers being so far as we know able and willing to do their duty when called upon. The usual centres of corruption were for various reasons not available this time and being driven more into the open as well as to desperation the Liberal organization did some work that will bear rich fruit in the near future. The public which is making such a general and determined demand for prosecution and exposure, may rest assured that no legitimate means will be spared to drag the guilty parties to the light of day. Those desirous of subscribing to the fund for that end may do so. The plans of the Conservatives were well laid and there will be something "worth reading," in the newspapers when the time comes. Where corruption is rife it is impossible to hide it all. Already much is coming to light of a voluntary character. For one reason or another many of those who suffered themselves to be bought also suffer themselves to converse about it. The struggle in West Peterborough has just begun. The quaint little bluffs put up by the Liberal candidate and his friends continue to be amusing but may become dangerous to somebody. The public is entitled to know all that went on in this election here and it is likely to know it. Without the free use of money the return of the Conservative candidate was assured even up to 3 o'clock on polling-day. As it was, the result has been to shatter the vaunted security of Mr. Stratton, whose "vindication" has yet to come.

DOMINION OF S. AFRICA

The various little states in South Africa are about to weld themselves or become welded into one harmonious whole. That is if they can overcome their natural instinct long enough to get married. Unions will tend to do away with the constant friction of these states with each other on various pretexts economic, social, racial and religious. The economic prosperity of Johannesberg excites the cupidity of the Southern States and the agricultural products of the south attract the lenient gaze of the more prosperous north. The convention will assemble at Durban.

CANCER RESEARCH

The Imperial Cancer Research Fund has just issued a most valuable report.

It has long been known that cancer in mankind is specially prone to attack any part of the body which is subjected to frequent or long-continued irritation; a common illustration being furnished by the cancer of the lip which so often follows upon the constant presence of a clay pipe stem at the same point. The nature of the connection between the irritation and the disease has received much attention from the investigators acting for the fund; and a wide study of the incidence of cancer as determined by irritants in man is said by Dr. Bashford to demonstrate absolutely that the generalization of the idea of a congenital or embryonic organ is incorrect.

The chance that a man over thirty-five will die of cancer is about one in eleven; and the chance for a woman above the same age is one in eight. Investigation shows that of one hundred families, each of six members—three males and three females—only fifty-one families could be expected to escape. While in thirty-six families there would be one death, in eleven families two deaths, and in two families three or more.

The Times points out that on curative treatment the report is silent but in the meantime the early surgical removal of cancerous tumors is amply justified by the results of experiment.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Stratton's claim to have built the Benfort bridge resulted in a majority there of eleven votes for his opponent.

It is rumored that Bishop Dumoulin is to succeed the late Bishop Carmichael, of Montreal, in whose company he came to Canada from Ireland in the sixties.

In reply to many questions we can say that it is in the power of the Court to protect those who own up and help in making the necessary exposures. This is the usual course followed by courts of justice to induce evidence that might compromise the giver of it, to come forward.

Recent science would indicate that the glaciers of some parts of the world are like the troops at Bull Run, on the retreat. It need not be supposed from this circumstance that winters will soon be a thing of the past, but merely that the ebb and flow of superficial conditions chronicle this amongst other changes. The fact that winter in the southern hemisphere is the longer season of the two, and that in the northern hemisphere it is the reverse, accounts for the greater size of the ice-cap at the South Pole. The change in the earth's centre of gravity produces the different ages, and, of course, was responsible for the glacial epoch in the northern hemisphere.

"CANADA FAKIRS" AN INTERESTING REVIEW

A new order of fakers have been detected and their falsehoods nailed. They are called "Canada Fakers" by Mr. Arthur Stringer, who bristles with indignation and patriotic fervor over their misrepresentations of his native country. The culprits are possessed with "the passion to make the trails of the North either always picturesque or always tragic," are some who bear great names; Kipling is one, and Sir Gilbert Parker and William de Morgan others. They with Mr. Robert Service, who is sometimes called the "Canadian Kipling," have the added account of disloyalty to the Empire to say as well as that of disloyalty to truth. Outside the second obligation are the excursionists from "the States," who can at once be convicted of being bad reporters. They are Jack London, Caspar Whitney, Rex Beach, Richard Harding Davis, and Stewart Edward White.

The Canadian with a respectable knowledge of his own country soon awakens to the fact that there are two Canadas, says Mr. Stringer in Canada West, (London, Ont. October). "One is the Canada of fact. The other is the Canada that comes out of inkwells." Since much of Canada remains inaccessible to the casual traveller, the writer observes, "the up-to-date romancer, ever in search of pastures liberatingly new, has seized on it as a gamboling ground for his more special romancing." He straightway "sets to work to sentimentalize the North, to make it over for purely melodramatic purposes. The "Colossal Menace of the Eternal Frost," and the "White Terror of the Unspeakable which haunts the mind of men like the Shadow of Death itself,"—phrases the like of which are employed by Mr. Service—do not burden the minds of men "who really know the Far North, who understand and meets its conditions" and who "are practically unanimous in their verdict of its livability." Mr. Kipling's musings of a land where operates "never a law of man or God," lead Mr. Stringer to observe:

"It makes good music hall ballad material but if Mr. Kipling even so much as tried to tote a gun about Dawson City for instance, he would find the strong arm of British justice promptly squeezing the poetic license out of his overtheatrical actions".

Sir Gilbert Parker "who is Canadian born and was for so many years a school teacher in his native country" is thus dealt with:

"In his book, 'The Chief Factor,' he has two of his characters about to fight a duel with swords. It is natural, of course, that two such combatants would search for passably level ground. Sir Gilbert takes them from the Hudson's Bay Company's post and brings them to a moose-yard. Now it is my fixed conviction that the author in question has in some way confounded the word moose yard with barn yard. It is equally my conviction that Sir Gilbert has never looked upon a moose yard much less tried to travel through one in the winter time. For a moose yard is nothing more than an intricate network, a wandering maze, of deep tracks, or, rather of deep gutters, an irregular series of trapholes two feet and more to the bottom and a delightfully odd and uncertain place indeed in which to indulge in combat by sword. Still again, Sir Gilbert's tendency to sentimentalize the situation leads him to depict his characters as marching across the snow in the dead of winter while one member of the band blithely defies sub-zero weather and trippingly plays a flute. Now just how this placid-souled gentleman figured the stops is a very nice problem, when an unmittened hand will show signs of frost-bite before even the aria of "Annie Laurie" could be rendered."

Turning now to some of those who are not "to the manner born," but who go in search of wonders to serve up to those who stay at home, Jack London is placed "prominent among what may be called the Canada fakers." The sin that lies darkest to his door, however, is "not one of mere local color and detail."

"It is, rather, that general and persistent tendency to 'foreigneer' things, to translate everything Northern into the lurid. The map of the North must be all red or nothing. Everything above the forty-ninth parallel must be written down as blood and raw beef."

Mr. London, it is said, has been ably seconded by Mr. Rex Beach, "whose penchant seems to be the transplanting of a Christy Girl in a Nell-Brinkley creation of lace and ruffles to a polar background where The Boy—she must always be known as The Girl—tests his god-like sinew against a Frozen Twilight that puts the ninth hell of Dante to shame." Further:

"The light seems to be always uncertain in this Gehenna-smudged North, inasmuch as Mr. Beach's heroine in 'The Barrier,' ravishingly beautiful as he has painted her, is for years mistaken for and accepted for a Siwash half-breed. Equally plain is the deduction that Mr. Beach, in his years of arduous prospecting in Alaska, has discovered creek bottoms where placer gold can be plainly picked up with sugar tongs, for it is in this same volume that he records the finding of a color that would ring in the pan.' . . . Trivial is Mr. Beach's attempt to initiate us into the marvellous prophylactic and therapeutic value of the Northern potato, conclusively demonstrating as he does how a camp may be saved from the worst form of scurvy by a mere mess or two of 'spuds.' But less trivial is Mr. Beach's flat determination to emulate Mr. Jack London in his resolve to give us goose flesh while dwelling on the awfulness of the Northern cold—it must always be spelled with a capital "C."

Mr. Steward Edward White is "approached with timidity" because "so august a personage as the Washington enemy of the Nature Faker himself has placed on Mr. White the seal of his complete approval. Admitting that Mr. White "knows the life of the river-driver, Mr. Stringer addresses himself to what Mr. White fails to know about the life of the Canadian trapper and the ways of the Hudson's Bay Company. The book in question is called "The Silent Places." We read:

"The basic idea of the story is an especially dramatic one; that is to say, the prolonged and relentless pursuit of a defalcating Indian by two hired agents of 'The Honorable The Hudson's Bay Company' offers a very respectable bid for attention. But the story, unfortunately, is based on a fallacy. What is more, it is wrong in its important details and it is preposterous in execution. In the first place, it is not, and never was the custom of the Hudson's Bay Co. to expend good money for the active pursuit of delinquent trappers, Indian, breed, or white. They were, from the first, competent masters of the land over which they held commercial sway. Their system of posts was so complete, their influence was so wide-spread, their knowledge of ultimate reckonings was so assured, that the mere posting of any half-breed or Indian delinquent, at the different trading-places of the company, was all that was necessary. It was, of course, a sort of rogues' gallery on a small scale, and until Wet-Blanket or Rain-in-the-Face wiped out his debt no credit could be extended to him. The result was that the offender, having no outside source of trade or supplies, was as completely subjugated as a garrison cut off from its base. When the offender turned up, as turn up he must, he was made to pay, the company was great and could bide its time. Then, too, we are told that a bloodhound was used for portions of this great manhunt. Thrillingly as the mere sound of such a creature's name may fall on metropolitan ears, it must reluctantly be confessed that there are no bloodhounds in the country of which Mr. White so movingly writes. They are not found there, and it would be as foolish to import them as it would be to bring up an army of Uncle Toms to gather cotton from the Moose River bottoms. Then again, Mr. White makes a very serious mistake in intimating that the northern traveller can veer and tack about this country at his own sweet will. The tide of northland traffic always follows the line of its natural highway; that is, it goes by river and stream and lake. By summer the travel is in canoe, by winter, on snowshoes and sled. Vast detours are made to take advantage of these natural highways. Yet Mr. White sends his men 'cross country, over barriers that might well awe the gentle reader. The trick adds, possibly, to the sense of grim implacability in the hearts of the man-hunters, but the procedure is not feasible. Men do not romp between Lake Superior and Hudson Bay, ignoring all natural highways of travel, except in the pages of romance.

"Then Mr. White represents the Ojibways and the Chippewas as engaged in deadly strife. Yet they are one and the same people, and Mr. White might just as well speak of internecine strife between Canucks and Canadians or New Yorkers, and Gothamites. Early in the book a canoe is described as made from a winter cut of birch. Now birch-bark, as the woodsman knows, is not easily separated from the parent trunk until the sap begins to run, and it is in May that such bark can be cut for canoe-building. Nor does the Canadian tan northern hare-skins for his blankets. The skins are cut in strips and wound about slender thongs or strings, the fur outside, and then plaited loosely together. Like the phrase 'Mush on!' the word 'parka' is not used as Mr. White would have us believe, in the neighborhood of the Hudson Bay. Mr. White ought to know, that a desperately hurried man can travel farther, in winter, without dogs than with dogs. The exception to this, of course, is when the trail lies along a string of posts or camps or caches where dog-feed, which is embarrassingly bulky and heavy, can be picked up from day to day. Otherwise it pays the man to travel 'light' and alone. Then our author is surely thinking of a Jersey snowstorm when he speaks of the snow as coming down in clogging flakes, zigzagging earthward like pieces of paper. This is mild-weather snow—yet Mr. White has just spoken of the danger of going unmittened, for even three minutes. Snow does not fall this way in the north, even in March, which may there be regarded as a winter month. Northern snow is usually so fine that it is almost like rime in the air. Nor is it possible, as Mr. White repeatedly intimates, that the man on snowshoes (which, en passant, are used until April) betrays his presence by the crunching of such snow as this. Seldom indeed will the sound of a snowshoe carry twenty-five yards. According to 'The Silent Places' the Barren Grounds, of Canada contains one, and only one, vast herd of caribou. This solitary herd might prove to be 2,000 miles away and as hard to meet, our author explains, as a school of dolphins at sea. Yet Mr. J. W. Tyrrell, the Canadian explorer and naturalist, has recorded that during forty days of travel through this same territory by canoe, he was not out of sight of wandering caribou-herds for so much as one day at a time. There are, in fact, thousands of such bands, just as there are actually millions of caribou in this land so inappropriately called 'Barren.'"—Literary Digest.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Gets $2,000 for Arm.

Brantford, Oct. 29.—Lloyd Brown, who sued the C.P.R. for unstated damages, was awarded $2,000 by the jury. Brown was stealing a ride on a freight train near Galt last October and was put off by the conductor, falling under the wheels and losing his right arm.

The jury held that the company was to blame because the conductor put Brown off while the train was in motion.

Killed In Cement Works.

Belleville, Oct. 29.—Harold Burton, a young Englishman, employed at the Belleville cement works at Point Anne, three miles east of this city, met with instant death yesterday morning, while working.

He was engaged on a tramway when he slipped, falling a distance of about 40 feet. He fell on his head, which was terribly crushed. Coroner Yeomans deemed an inquest unnecessary. Deceased has two uncles here, and intended leaving for home in England next month.

To Face Two Charges.

Windsor, Oct. 29.—John Hardy, who is under arrest at St. Thomas on a burglary charge, is wanted in Windsor and if acquitted there will be brought here for trial. The local police have received Hardy's photograph and he has been identified at pawnshops, where he disposed of goods taken from the residence of Andrew Purocher here.

Acting In Harmony.

New York, Oct. 29.—The Times, in an editorial, sees a happy augury in the fact that five of the signatories of the Berlin treaty are acting in harmony for the first time since the crisis arose, especially as it is unlikely that Germany and Italy acted without Austria-Hungary's knowledge and consent.

British Coin Frees Russ Prisoner.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 29.—Nicholas Tschaikovsky, the aged Russian patriot, who has been imprisoned in this city for nearly a year, was released yesterday at 3.45 p.m. The fund subscribed in England to cover the bail demanded by the Russian Government for Tschaikovsky's release was received here Tuesday and was deposited in the Imperial Bank yesterday.

Nicholas Tschaikovsky was the first leader in the reform movement in Russia and was known as the "father of the Russian revolution." He was arrested on the Russian frontier Nov. 23, 1907, and at once confined in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul.

Incendiary Fire.

Cayuga, Ont., Oct. 29.—The barns and outbuildings of Patrick Fagan, a farmer in the Township of Oneida, were destroyed by fire yesterday. Everything was lost, but no horses or cattle had yet been stabled. The loss is a heavy one for Mr. Fagan.

The cause of the fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin and a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Bruce Lonedale, who has been recently employed by Mr. Fagan. It is said they had a quarrel and Lonsdale left, but is reported to have been seen recently in the neighborhood.

Embezzled $1,250,000.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 29.—William Montgomery, cashier of the Allegheny National Bank, until the discovery of a shortage in its funds of over $1,250,000 early last summer, necessitating closing the institution, was for the second time this week found guilty of embezzlement and abstraction of funds, his speculations in the two cases amounting to $613,000.

The case concluded yesterday involved the abstraction of $144,000 worth of the bank's bonds and as in the first case Montgomery offered no testimony in defence.

Cruelty to a Horse.

Lindsay, Oct. 29.—When Mr. Davidson of Glandine drove into town he put his horse in the Benson House sheds. When he was ready to go home his horse was gone. Making inquiries he learned that a horse was seen traveling at a high rate of speed west. Mr. Davidson tracked the thief and horse to Blackwater. He found the horse tied in a swamp and suffering from inflammation. The horse died after being taken a mile out of Blackwater. A young man by the name of Brooks has been arrested.

Suicides Over Elections.

INDIAN GETS TEN YEARS.

Ezekiel Hill Gets Stiff Sentence For Assaulting a Woman.

Brantford, Oct. 29.—Ezekiel Hill, charged with assaulting Mrs. Levi General on the Six Nation reserve, in July last, was sentenced yesterday afternoon to ten years in Kingston Penitentiary by Sir John Boyd.

The jury, after a few minutes' consideration, returned a verdict of guilty.

The Indian never moved a muscle during the passing of the sentence for the crime, which the judge said had been deliberately planned and carried out with cunning.

Mrs. General was attacked during the absence of her husband, and was menaced by Hill, who shot at her and finally succeeded in his purpose.

After his commitment he shammed insanity and was removed to the Hamilton Asylum. The question of his sanity was first settled by a jury Tuesday.

CONFESSES TO BLACKMAIL.

One Man Admits Charge and a Second Is Accused.

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 29.—J. B. Rounds of Drumbo appeared in the Police Court yesterday, charged with having been a party with Robert Colwell, who has pleaded gulity to obtaining $300 by blackmail from Chas. Damm of this city on Christmas night, 1906.

Damm's story, supported in many particulars by Colwell, who was placed on the stand by the crown, was that Colwell and Rounds took him into a back hotel room and that Colwell told Damm he was under arrest for the murder of Fuller, Colwell's son-in-law, but that he could get off for $300. Damm said he paid Rounds $17 at once and paid Colwell $300 a few days after.

Rounds denied connection with any crooked transaction and denied any conspiracy to defraud Damm. Judgment was suspended until Friday, when Colwell will appear for sentence.

New Style Aeroplane.

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 29.—Frank J. Heinfelt has made a successful flight of 500 feet with an aeroplane materially different from that of the Wright Brothers, in that in this machine the single plane principle is used, the Wright machine having double plane surfaces.

Although hitherto unknown in the aeronautic world, Heinfelt has built three previous machines, paying his expenses out of his slender salary as a stenographer. His motor was given him by a friend, who took it out of an old automobile.

The flight was terminated by a lack of skill on the part of the manipulator, who brought the machine to the ground too suddenly, breaking one of the wings.

Bank Clerk Arrested.

Brockon, Mass., Oct. 29.—David E. Wilson, aged 22, of London, Ont., alleged to be a fugitive from justice from Chesterville, Ont., was arrested at a lodging house here yesterday by Inspector James H Grace. Wilson was taken to Boston yesterday afternoon for arraignment before the U. S. Circuit Court. The allegation is that Wilson who was a bank clerk at Chesterville, broke into a general store next door and stole a large amount of cloth, neckties and other furnishings. In his room, it is claimed, cloth and furnishing goods valued at about $200 were found. Under a corner of the carpet was $500 in bills.

Charged With Blackmail.

Hamilton, Oct. 29.—William Huckle, the self-styled chief of the International Detective Bureau, was committed for trial on three charges of blackmail and attempted extortion by Magistrate Jelfs yesterday morning, and John Tierney, who was jointly charged with Huckle, was also committed. The prisoners both entered a plea of not guilty.

Subsidized Steamers to Canada.

Wellington, N.Z., Oct. 29.—(C.A.P.)—Sir J. Ward strongly urges that New Zealand should subsidize a steamer service to Canada to prevent the Argentine Republic from seizing Canada's frozen mutton trade.

A large majority assured Ward in the elections that prohibition is expected to be carried in several new districts.

Killed Returning Home.

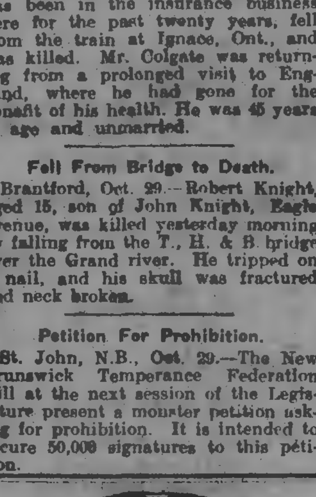
Winnipeg, Oct. 29.—Walter R. Colgate, a well-known Winnipeger who has been in the insurance business here for the past twenty years, fell from the train at Ignace, Ont., and was killed. Mr. Colgate was returning from a prolonged visit to England, where he had gone for the benefit of his health. He was 45 years of age and unmarried.

Fell From Bridge to Death.

Brantford, Oct. 29.—Robert Knight, aged 15, son of John Knight, Eagle avenue, was killed yesterday morning by falling from the T., H. & B. bridge over the Grand river. He tripped on a nail, and his skull was fractured and neck broken.

Petition For Prohibition.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 29.—The New Brunswick Temperance Federation will at the next session of the Legislature present a monster petition asking for prohibition. It is intended to secure 50,000 signatures to this petition.



BRYAN BREAKS RECORD.

Addresses Twenty Meetings In a Day In New York Tour.

New York, Oct. 29.—Wm. J. Bryan was in excellent spirits when he started on his trip up the state yesterday. "I've had a delightful and busy time during my stay in New York," said he, "and I have learned something. I have learned that we waste a great deal of time in sleep. Before I had always supposed that a man must have eight hours sleep a night, but I find that you New Yorkers thrive on five hours."

Midweek of the last week of the Presidential campaign finds the political battle at its height and the "heavy artillery" of the two leading parties at work, chiefly in New York city and state. Both Presidential candidates and the Republican vice-presidential candidate are in or near this city.

Both nominees for the Presidency and both the nominees for governor made speaking tours in and near the city Tuesday.

Mr. Bryan broke all campaigning records by delivering more than twenty addresses in New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City, and was listened to by nearly 200,000 persons.

Mr. Taft made a trip through the Hudson River Valley, speaking at several towns on the way and closing the day with great meetings in Schenectady, Troy and Cohoes.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL MEETS.

Earl Grey Presides at National Gathering In Ottawa.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—The National Council of Women opened its annual meeting in Ottawa last night with a public meeting in the Normal School auditorium, at which His Excellency Earl Grey presided. Nearly 100 delegates from local councils throughout Canada are in attendance.

Earl Grey in his address last night declared that the French-speaking populaton of Canada were better mannered than the English-speaking population and Protestant Canada could take many lessons in politeness from Catholic Quebec. He urged women of Canada to devote more attention to training children in habits of courtesy and good manners.

Dr. P. H. Bryce, chief medical officer of the Department of Immigration, in an address on public health, advocated joint municipal and the Government action to prevent the growth of congested slum districts in Canada by paying more attention to the housing problem among the poor and the settlement of immigrants on the land rather than in great centres of population.

Lord Milner on Tariff Reform.

Toronto, Oct. 29.—Professing the belief that within a few years at least Great Britain would adopt a policy of Imperial trade preference, Lord Milner, speaking as the guest of the British Empire League last night, urged that nothing should be done by those self-governing states, which had adopted the principle of preferential trade, to hamper the progress of the movement in the Motherland. Lord Milner also took occasion to deal shortly but emphatically with the attitude of the people of Great Britain towards Canada. It was not on account of any unfriendly feeling that the advances of the colonies with regard to preferential trade had not been accepted. The Opposition in Great Britain was an intellectual and logical one and did not proceed from any unfriendly spirit. Lord Milner left for Ottawa last night.

Made Easy Money.

Buffalo, Oct. 29.—Robert B. Otis, son of the president of the Atlas Manufacturing Co. of New Haven, Conn., according to his story, was arrested here on Tuesday for securing money under false pretences. He admits that he has made at least $50 a week for a year "working" cities in this country and Canada. He declares that in Toronto he found plenty of easy money. His game has been to call upon prominent families, learning first some of their family connections in other cities, and during the conversation state that his pay check had gone to another city, and he would like to obtain the loan of ten dollars for transportation.

Bulgaria Peaceable.

Sofia, Oct. 29.—The 14th National Hungarian Assembly was convened for its autumn session yesterday afternoon. The speech from the throne was read by Emepror Ferdinand, and was eminently pacific in character. He defended the recent course of his Government.

A typical passage of the message is as follows:

"Peace and prosperity are inscribed on the banner which was unfurled at Tirnovo, Oct. 5, and I count upon my valiant and progressive people to assist me in the defence of our righteous cause of securing peace and spreading the work of civilization in the Balkans."

Assaults Attorney-General.

Winnipeg, Oct. 29.—An aftermath of the bitter election contest here took place yesterday afternoon on Main street, when E. L. Howell, K.C., son of Chief Justice Howell, attacked Hon. Colin Campbell, Attorney-General, who has now sworn out a warrant for Howell's arrest.

The matter arose from a conversation over the 'phone between Howell and the Attorney-General last Saturday night, when the former demanded admittance to two Liberals arrested and placed in the provincial jail on bribery charges.

A Pioneer of Clinton.

Clinton, Oct. 29.—In his 93rd year Mr. Edward Dinsley, the oldest resident of the town, and one of the earliest settlers in Huron county, died at his home Tuesday. He was interested in several business enterprises in the pioneer days and helped to build up the town. He had been a continuous resident, and leaves a large family, several of the boys occupying prominent positions in the United States, and two daughters living in town.

Engineer Dorien, of the tug Glyde on Lake St. Francis was shot in the arm by a hunter's stray bullet.

TRAIN FOR BUSINESS

Most men train their brains and almost entirely neglect their bodies. They do not seem to realise that keenness of judgment and clearness of thought depend as much on the body as on the brain itself. Any man can prove this to his own satisfaction by attempting to decide a weighty business problem while suffering with an acute attack of indigestion or a violent spell of billousness.

The amount of work that the brain can do depends much on the healthfulness of liver, bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices in tablet form. They act directly on liver, bowels, kidneys and skin—and enable these vital organs to rid the system of all impurities. Thus the blood will be kept pure and rich, the brain active, digestion sound, and life made pleasant.

"Fruit-a-tives" are now put up in two sizes—the new 25c box as well as the regular 50c size. If your dealer does not carry them, write Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses, costing from $7.50 to $25 each. With this limited knowledg it is little wonder that so many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others who do not require them.

BOARD OF WORKS DEALT WITH NUMBER OF REQUESTS

Sewers and Sidewalks Wanted in Several Parts of the City—Cannot all be Constructed.

A meeting of the Board of Works was held last night, at which there were present Ald. Phelan, chairman; Mayor Rush, Aldermen Morgan, Buller and Tovey. A number of requests for short pieces of sidewalks and sewers were received and dealt with.

The Water Commissioners intend laying a water main on Aylmer st. north, and City Engineer T. A. S. Hay, submitted a profile of a grade which he has established. This he suggested should be confirmed by a by-law to protect the Council from damages to property in the future.

It was moved that the Engineer's suggestion be adopted, and a by-law be prepared.

Mr. Poussette presented a duly signed petition for the sewer on Patterson street, west of Park, and he asked that the sewer be laid at once, as he has a couple of tenants now who want to go into his new houses.

On motion it was decided that this sewer be gone on with.

A letter was received from Thomas Guerin, complaining about the condition of the road at the corner of Gilchrist and London streets. He claims that every time it rains the mud and water flows into his place.

ABERDEEN STREET SEWER.

Mr. Taylor was present and asked for a sewer on Aberdeen street to the new house he is building. He said the water commissioners would put the water in if the Board of Works would raise a portion of the road so that the commissioners would not have to dig so deep.

The Engineer pointed out that the road will have to be filled to a depth of 19 inches, and the city had not material. It was intended that the crest of the hill be cut down and that material used for filling in.

Mr. Taylor will, however, bring the water from the Normal school to his house this fall, and the Council will build the sewer from Aylmer street along Aberdeen avenue, to his house.

The request was granted on condition that Mr. Taylor gets the water in.

PRIVATE SEWER.

Mr. Leplante was present in reference to a sewer on Murray street, south, down a lane to the rear of lot 4. He asked permission to connect with the city sewer. There will be three double houses emptying into it. On motion the request was granted, and Mr. Leplante will pay for the whole cost.

James Graham guaranteed to deliver to the city 200 cords of field stone at a price to be agreed upon. The matter was left over.

A number of petitions for granolithic walks were read, but as the Board now has more than it can do, they were all laid over.

THE CITY AND VICINITY

Tag Day

Look out for TAG DAY. St. James' church is making an effort.

Ontario Medical Council

The meeting of the Ontario Medical Council which was to have been held tonight has been postponed until next Wednesday night.

Hotel National Sign

A handsome new sign was erected over the main entrance to the National Hotel to-day. It is an immense one and brilliantly illuminated. On one side of it are the words, Hotel National, in gold letters while on the other side the words are done in white. The sign was the work of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons.

Was Fined $5.85

A young man was fined two dollars and costs amounting to $5.85, to be paid forthwith or ten days in gaol, for being drunk and disorderly at the police court this morning. P. C. Newhall stated that last night about 12 o'clock the prisoner was coming down George street with two men, much older than he was who were also intoxicated. The two took the prisoner and threw him against a plate glass window. The officer then took him in charge.

He said he was noisy and impudent in his cell.

Chief Rosser suggested that the young man be put on the black list, but the Magistrate wanted more evidence that he was an habitual drunkard. He would give him another chance.

Passed Examinations

Among those who have passed the primary examinations of the Ontario Medical Council is Mr. J. B. Fraser, of Lakefield.

All the Comforts of Home

The rehearsal for "All the Comforts of Home" in the K. of P. Hall to-morrow (Friday) night and on Saturday and Monday nights in the Grand Opera House.

NOTICE

The committee in charge of the Sheffield Choir Concert, on Thursday, November 12th, beg to announce that in view of the possibility of cold weather on that date they have decided to have the choir appear in the Grand Opera House instead of the Brock street rink as originally stated. As a consequence the price of seats must be maintained at a somewhat higher figure on account of the smaller seating capacity of the Opera House than that of the rink.

The committee wish to say that the visit of the choir is undertaken not with a view to making money, as the immense expense in connection with the project precludes any such possibility; should there be any surplus it will be handed to the Children's Aid Society. The subscription list, which will entitle to first choice of seats, are in the hands of Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, F. Campbell, J. Crane, R. Gliddon, W. Stocker, W. F. Nelson, Geo. Ball, Herbert Gillespie and others. Already about 500 seats have been signed for and the outlook is for an audience which will tax the seating capacity of the Opera House.

OF INTEREST

We have read these letters with continuous delight. They fully satisfy such expectations as may have been aroused by Lear's long-famous "Book of Nonsense"; in other words, they justify Lear's reputation. Lear had success in his time as a painter, but his future fame seems likely to depend mainly on that book and on these letters rather than on his pictures. To Fortescue and Lady Waldegrave the letters were all addressed. No other correspondent of Lear's is represented here. So very few, however, are the letters addressed to Lady Waldegrave that Lady Fortescue alone seems to have been Lear's correspondent. Indeed, those which she received were written because she and Fortescue at the beginning of the correspondence were friends, and long before its close had become husband and wife.

Lear and Fortescue first met in Rome when young men, Lear living there as an artist student and Fortescue visiting the city as a traveller who was soon to return to England and there enter upon a career in public life. Life to Lear until the very end was a hard struggle as to ways and means. He spent many laborious years on the Island of Corfu, and many more at San Remo, painting pictures and writing books. Fortescue meanwhile became heir to a considerable landed estate and a title, that of Lord Carlingford; married one of the most famous and most beautiful women of her time, who also was rich, and achieved success in public life. The friendship between the two men seems at this time never to have had a break or an interruption. If Lear formed other friendships there is no hint of any in this correspondence. In a sense the friendship resembles that between Gibbon and Lord Sheffield, Gibbon's only friendship, which also survived the mutations of a lifetime.

Lear was of Danish descent. The family had not long been settled in England. He began to earn his living as a painter in early boyhood, when he had the good fortune to acquire something of his art from Holman Hunt. At one time he gave lessons in drawing to Queen Victoria. Two amusing stories, illustrative of Lear's quaint ways, are told in connection with this employment. After the engagement had been made he presented himself one day at Osborne rather roughly dressed and awkward as he always was in his appearance, and, having reached the door, simply stated that he desired to see the Queen. The perplexed servants showed him to a waiting room, where an equerry, going up to Lear, politely inquired what his business might be, to which Lear replied, "Oh, I'm Lear." Further inquiries had to be made before the fact was disclosed that he had called by appointment to give the queen a lesson in drawing. The other story relates to a day at Windsor Castle or Buckingham Palace, the editor of the letters being uncertain as to just where the incident occurred. One day the Queen was personally taking Lear about showing him some of the priceless art treasures preserved in the royal cabinets. Carried away by the surpassing beauty and number of these treasures Lear impulsively exclaimed, "Oh, how did you get all these beautiful things?" He afterwards explained that the Queen, in a manner kind and yet terse and full of dignity, responded, "I inherited them, Mr. Lear."

The letters abound in many examples of Lear's genius for new puns and quaint ways of spelling words. He would begin a letter to Fortescue "My dear 40escue," or would close one with "God bless you, dear 40escue." Having completed a certain task he said this was due to "after dinner application and stayathomeativeness." Of a picture on which he was working he writes, "My big Corfu will be a stunner, and I mean to try for 500 guineas for him, he be 9 feet 4 inches long & 6 feet 6." He said that if he could not sell it he would "instantly begin a picture 10 feet long, and if that don't sell, one 12 feet long." He begs Fortescue not to "pollygize at not writing. I gnoo how bizzy u were." He describes the weather as "highly beastly and squondangerlous." Having a stye on his eye, he writes, "Don't know if my being a pig has produced the sty, or whether the sty makes me a pig." He assures Fortescue that "a nempty stummick is a bad thing," and says he "went up two the Zoological Gardings." When a certain young woman was erroneously taken for his daughter," he said, "I wish she were, but I am glad she isn't my wife." Lear never married, and early in the correspondence declares that he never expects to marry. In one of his later letters he writes:

"When I go to heaven, if, indeed I go, and am surrounded by thousands of polite angels, I shall say courteously, please leave me alone. You are doubtless all delightful, but I do not wish to become acquainted with you; let me have a park and a beautiful view of sea and hills mountain and river, valley and plain, with no end of tropical foliage; a few well behaved small cherubs to cook and keep the place clean, and after I am quite established, say for a million or two of years, an angel of a wife.'"—Literary Digest.

THIS WEEK AT THE ROYAL ALEXANDRA

Imperial Opera Company Meeting with Great Success..."Chimes of Normany" to be Presented

The past week has clearly shown two facts regarding the Imperial Opera Company, which is appearing at the Royal Alexandria Theatre, Toronto. This organization is capable of staging any operatic production with the greatest skill and doing it in the shortest possible time. Without previous preparation or warning the management of the Imperial decided at the eleventh hour to produce "The Wedding Day," substituting that opera instead of the original selection for last week. This opera was given to the public a week ago with a finish and smoothness indicative of weeks of hard work on the part of principals and chorus, such as was devoted to this piece when originally produced in New York by the De Angelis Opera Company. That organization spent seven weeks in continual rehearsing before venturing on their initial performance, and at no time during their season rendered the opera with the smoothness observable at the Royal Alexandria during the past week. The accomplishment of the Imperials appears in its true light when it is noted that this company devoted exactly five days' time to "The Wedding Day."

No other organization would undertake the feats accomplished week in and week out by this noted home company, yet through it all the work of the artists and chorus alike are perfect, and the settings given in each of their productions are the finest ever presented in Toronto.

Saturday matinee the Imperials presented "The Chimes of Normandy," with even greater zest and finish than marked the offering of the previous week. This charming opera by Robert Planquette has been a great favorite and ranks high from the artistic and musical viewpoint.

The catchy story upon which this opera was constructed deals largely with Henri, Marquis of Corneville, who had been an exile since his childhood days. Henri returns to his ancestral home on the occasion of a great annual fair which was celebrated in the village bearing the name of his chateau. At the opening of the opera the village gossips are discovered discussing scandal and the topic of the conversation, Serpolette, a cross between Fanchon and Roulette, appears in time to turn the tables on the others, and converts their taunts into expression of rage. Gaspard, an old miser, wished to marry his niece, Germaine, to the Bailli, the principal magistrate of the district. The arrangement did not suit Germaine, nor a young fisherman named Jean Grenicheux, who pretended to have saved her from drowning on a certain occasion. To escape from the power of old Gaspard, Germaine took advantage of the privileges of the fair, and enlisted as a servant to the Marquis. Her example was followed by Grenicheux and Serpolette.

The ancestral castle of Henri was long held in dread owing to ghostly visitors, and Henri determined to investigate the cause. He discovered it was the work of old Gaspard, who concealed his trousers in the chateau. The discovery drives Gaspard mad, especially when he heard the chimes of the chateau ringing for the first time since the flight of the old Marquis. A grand fete was given in honor of the return of Henri to his ancestral home. Serpolette arrived as a marchioness, papers having been found in the chateau, indicating her as the lost heiress. The miser, however, regained his reason, and showed Germaine was the true heiress. The opera is brought to a close with a love duet between Henri and Germaine and a reconciliation between all of the parties.

The cast offered by the Imperials contains Miss Carrie Reynolds as Serpolette, Miss Louise LeBaron as Germaine, Miss Rubie Leslie as Jeanne, Miss Inez Conner, as Manette, Miss Flo. Ohalue as Suzanne, Harry Girard as Henri, Marquis of Corneville; Clarence Harvey, a notary; Carl Haydn as Jean Grenicheux, Geo. LeSoir as Gaspard, W. H. Pringle as Bailli.

GREAT PREPARATIONS BEING MADE TO ENTERTAIN CHOIR

English Vocalists Will be Given Warm Welcome in Canada —Some Information About the Sheffield Choir.

The active manner in which the question of entertaining the Sheffield Choir on the occasion of its forthcoming visit to this country is being taken up by the various cities and towns included in the itinerary, indicates that the welcome the chorus received on its visit to Germany, stands a good chance of being duplicated in Canada.

Toronto is entertaining the visitors in regal style, her musical and business organizations combining to extend to them the most cordial and hearty of welcomes. Similar steps are in progress in Montreal. In both cities, banquets and garden parties are being planned, and entertainments in other forms will be provided.

The smaller towns are no less enthusiastic, London and Hamilton are preparing a great reception; everybody of prominence in both places, taking the event up with enthusiasm that promises well for success. It is gradually being recognized that this visit is something more than a body of singers coming across the water to give a few concerts and then return; it is a movement toward the better understanding between musical people on both sides and business people on both sides and it has that double in view throughout.

The Germans recognized this important significance and welcomed the Choir doubly on that account. It may be taken for granted, that throughout Canada the same interest may be manifest, Ottawa may be relied upon to do its share, for it stands in a peculiar position as the Federal centre. The co-operation of musical and business interests is essential if the tour is to meet with that complete success which the magnitude of the undertaking, no less than its aims and objects deserves.

Details will shortly be forthcoming in regard to the soloists who will accompany the Choir. They include some of the foremost singers on the English concert platform today, and they met with unstinted praise in Germany. The chorus will employ a local orchestra in each town visited for certain works, singing others either entirely unaccompanied or merely with the organ and piano accompaniment, provided by its own official pianist and organist.

Dr. Coward anticipates a great success and much mutual benefit as a result of the visit of his choir. Dr. Vogt of the Mendelssohn Choir, speaks in most enthusiastic terms of the forthcoming tour and everywhere the project is meeting with such encouragement as would appear to presage certain success.

The warmest welcome that the Sheffield choir will receive on their visit to Canada early in November will be from the famous Mendelssohn Choir which has already arranged a banquet of five hundred people, to be held in Toronto on November 5th, after the first concert. In an open letter, Dr. A. S. Vogt, conductor of the Mendelssohn Choir writes the following tribute;

"I cannot but feel that the approaching visit of the Sheffield choir to Canada is a great joy and privilege to all those interested in the cause of music in this country. The Choir is superb, the conductor, Dr. Coward, is regarded in England, as the "Master Chorus-master," and the singing of his magnificent body of singers has been of such a high order as to exalt to an unprecedented level the character of choral work in England—the home of mixed chorus singing. The Choir sings with a magnificent abandon, charming sincerity of expression and splendid rythmical swing.

"In view of the many requests received by the Mendelssohn Choir to visit other cities in Canada, invitations which we have been regretfully forced to decline, it should be gratifying to our kind friends to know that in the Sheffield Choir they will hear a chorus of which the great leader Arthur Nikisch said:

"They are the finest body of singers in the world," and which is regarded both in Great Britain Europe as not merely a great but a wonderful Choir."

SPORTING NEWS

THE T.A.S.A.C. WILL HAVE ON A VERY STRONG LINE-UP

The TAC are quite confident of being able to defeat TAAC in the senior ORFU match next Saturday. The locals will have a much stronger line-up than the one which was defeated in Toronto a week ago Saturday.

The presence of Dr. MacPherson himself on the back division will make the team twenty-five per cent better, and his punting and general play should prove of the greatest value. The men are turning out well to practices and will be in fine shape for the match. TAAC will also be represented by a splendid fourteen and anticipate a victory on account of the big score ran against Peterborough in the last game.

HACKENSCHMIDT GAVE GREAT DEMONSTRATION OF THE GAME

Yesterday afternoon Young Hackenschmidt had a workout with Ned Fitzpatrick at the Brock street rink. A half dozen, including a representative from the Review, saw Hack go and when he lets himself loose he works with blinding speed. It is quite easy to believe that he had no difficulty in getting two straight falls on Fritz Mohl after one sees him perform. He is very light on his feet and strips in splendid proportion. He is evenly and smoothly built from head to foot, and is developed to perfection.

As far as a knowledge of the game goes it is at once perceptible that he knows just as much about it as Rogers, and could dictate a book of instruction on the catch-as-catch-can style to either Hassan Abdallah or Mohl.

While Hack believes in strenuous wrestling, he doesn't uphold unnecessarily rough tactics.

P. C. I. DEFEATED BY ROUGH RIDERS BY SCORE OF 6-5

The most exciting city league game of the season was played at Riverside park yesterday afternoon when the Rough Riders defeated PCI by the close score of 6-5. At half time it was 5-1 in favor of PCI, Hall getting a touch for the Collegiate while the Rough Riders only managed to make a point on a rouge. In the second half Giroux made a touchdown for Rough Riders and PCI did not score. The match was a most interesting one and the teams were very evenly matched. Both teams showed good form and the exhibition was the best seen in the city league this season. The last ten minutes were played in the dusk. On account of the rain the grounds were a little slippery.

Mr. J. D. Clarke refereed and Mr. Chris Graham acted as umpire.

PRELIMINARIES ARE ARRANGED

Two preliminaries have been arranged to precede the bout to-morrow night at Brock street rink between Rogers and Young Hackenschmidt. The first one will be a 10 minute go between A. C. Yokome and W. Landry. These two have never met before. Landry has several pounds in weight on his opponent.

Ned Fitzpatrick will endeavor to throw Jack Wilson twice in fifteen minutes. Wilson is a very strong boy and a hard one to throw. Fitzpatrick will have to work pretty hard to get the falls in the specified time. This bout should be an exciting one.

The programme for the evening will begin at eight o'clock and will be as follows:

Landry vs. Yokome, 10 minute bout.

Fitzpatrick vs. Wilson. Fitz. to throw his opponent twice in 15 minutes.

Main bout—Yankee Rogers vs. Young Hackenschmidt. Best two out of three falls, catch as catch can.

RUNNING

Fred Simpson is expected in Peterborough soon to commence his course of training for the Hamilton Herald race with Corney Burns looking after the Peterborough Indian. Simpson will stop at the Commercial hotel while he is here.

RUGBY

The YMCA rugby team will practise this evening at 7.15.

Toronto AAC will play a senior ORFU game at Peterborough on Saturday. They will put a strong team on the field, one that will take some beating for the Canadian championship.

TURF

The Peterborough Turf Club, with its usual efficient staff of officers, will work with energy to promote the interests of racing in Peterborough.

There is a possibility of securing good horses for races held in this section of the country, and the local club will do all in its power to get the best of them for the meets here.

NO ADMISSION TO GRANDSTAND

The grandstand at Riverside Park, which is a commodious one, accommodating six hundred people, will be free to those attending the senior O.R.F.U. game on Saturday between the T.A.S.A.C. and T.A.A.C. The match will commence at 2.15.

WRESTLING

The Review reporter found Young Hackenschmidt in good mood this morning and had quite a talk with him on wrestling matters. Among other things brought up was the Gotch-Hackenschmidt bout in Chicago.

Young Hackenschmidt said that when Gotch and the Russian Lion came together two men outclassing all others in the heavyweight game faced each other.

"Hackenschmidt," said Hack, the younger, "underrated Gotch. He did not know he was going to meet such a wonderful wrestler and was not as well trained as he might have been. But Gotch is a great man. He has not a sign of the yellow streak in him and would wrestle until he died. He had the Russian Lion's old trainer and he knew every move that wrestler had and when Gotch and Hack met the American had a block for everything his opponent tried to do and stalled him off until he got tired. Hackenschmidt became muscle bound for he hadn't looked upon Gotch as the world beater he really was and was in the condition he should have been in. But Frank Gotch is a very fine wrestler and even with Hack in the pink of condition George would have an awful time to beat him."

Young Hackenschmidt has often worked out with Gotch and considers him pretty nearly invincible. He says the heavyweight champion is just like a picture in the matter of physical development.

ATHLETICS

PORT HOPE'S MEET.

The big indoor meet of the Y.M.C.A. Harrier Club which will be held in the Skating Rink Friday evening, November 6th, will be a grand evening of sports for the people of Port Hope. Word has been received from Toronto Peterborough, Belleville, Kingston, Trenton and Toronto University that they are sending their best men for the races. Bobby Kerr, the world's champion runner, will run a 50 yards and 220 yards dash. This event will be worth the price of admission.

The east side of the rink has been reserved. No smoking allowed, so that ladies and children will be able to enjoy the events.—Port Hope Guide.

New York, Oct. 28—If the plans of certain promoters can successfully be brought to a head this city will be the scene during the coming winter of one of the greatest professional long distance running races ever held.

Roughly outlined, the project of those interested is to bring together four and possibly five of the greatest distance runners of the present epoch. While the backers of the scheme deny that they are at work on the project, it is, nevertheless, known that if they are successful in their arrangements Thomas Longboat, John Hayes, Alfred Shrubb, Saret and possibly Dorando, will meet at Madison Square Garden in a race from ten to fifteen miles.

The match, which, if held is expected to pack the big amphitheatre from door to dome, is the direct outcome of the proposed race between Shrubb and Longboat which was scheduled for October 27. This event fell through because Manager Flanagan refused to permit Longboat to turn professional at this time.

Notwithstanding the Indian's statement that he will soon retire from long distance racing he apparently is in as good condition as ever.

Longboat won the Ward Marathon race at Toronto recently in 1.51.30. The distance was nineteen and a quarter miles.

Now that Dorando is coming to America rumor again has it that Longboat will turn professional and meet him. Those who profess to know what the Indian and Manager Flanagan are going to do claim that Longboat will meet Hayes and Dorando and then run a series of races with Shrubb. They have even gone so far as to fix a place for the races—Madison Square Garden, New York. Flanagan will not say that the Indian is going to make the jump, but is evasive when questioned closely.

Longboat has about all the glory there is to be had in the running game and has a wider reputation than any long distance runner who ever lived. He is not the perennial sort like little Shrubb and will probably not last another year. If he takes a notion to hop over the amateur fence he will probably have to find a new manager. Tom Flanagan prefers to remain amateur himself, in the interests of the Irish-Canadian Athletic Club. If the Indian becomes a "pro" his friends will look after his financial interests and place his winnings in trust, so that when, as is inevitable, he goes back to the reserve whence he came he will not be without funds. There is already a considerable amount to his credit from grants, contributions, etc.

New York, Oct. 28—Dorando, the Italian Marathon runner will sail for New York on Saturday, November 7, and race against one or more of the greatest long distance professional runners in America. Dorando comes here under the management of Powers and Pollock and Madison Square Garden has been engaged for Wednesday evening, November 25th.

Just who Dorando's opponent will be is not known. John J. Hayes, winner of the Olympic Marathon race has received an offer but his theatrical engagement may prevent his accepting it. An effort will be made to match Dorando against Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian. The latter has heretofore refused to turn professional although he is under suspension by the AAAU of the United States for alleged professionalism. Should Longboat refuse, Alfred Shrubb, the champion long distance runner of England who was recently engaged as athletic coach at Harvard, will be asked to meet the Italian at Madison Square Garden.

Some weeks ago it was reported that Dorando had injured his leg and would not run again but the injury probably was not serious.

LACROSSE

London, Oct. 28.—Five thousand spectators to-day witnessed a fine game of lacrosse between the Canadians and the North of England, with the fine play mostly on England's side. The Canucks evidently after, if not before, Gorman scored a goal in the first minute and a half, thought they had a cinch to beat their opponents, for instead of following up rapidly and making goals they were in the position Foran thought the United Kingdom were in on Saturday, viz., "up in the air."

Despite loud exhortations from the bench whereon sat Foran, Murphy and Lally, to "Get there, Canada," "Let go that ball, Turnbull," "Now then, Brennan, put her in," the Canadians failed to respond by a display of any brilliant play. When the first twenty minutes of play ended the score stood, Canadians 2, England 1. England went to work in dead earnest, and showed some fine sprinting, outrunning the Canucks, and had their passing been on a par with their sprinting, they would have had more than six goals to their credit. The final score was 7 to 6 in favor of Canada.

At half time it was England 2 to Canuck's 3. Excitement was at a high pitch, and in the third 20 minutes England scored another goal. With the score equalled it looked as though the Canucks were all in, and the last ten minutes was well fought until Gorman scored, and a minute or two later the whistle blew, and Canada was saved. It was not exactly a ladylike game, but there was no kick coming from the referee. The Canadians play Cheshire at Stockport to-morrow.

SULLIVAN NEVER JEFFRIES' EQUAL

James J. Corbett Gives Expert Opinion on Respective Ability of Two Noted Ring Champions

A direct and decisive answer to that oft-propounded query regarding the respective superiority of John L. Sullivan and James J. Jeffries, pugilists, is given below by the one man in the world, who through having fought both men, is perhaps in a better position than any one else to speak authoritively on this subject.

The following query was received yesterday too late for insertion on the sporting page, but was turned over to James J. Corbett for an expert opinion;—

"Sporting Editor World,—While Jas. J. Corbett is in charge of your sporting department, will you please request him to answer the following questions;—If John L. Sullivan could be restored to his youth and vigor and given the advantage of modern ring science, how would he compare with James J. Jeffries? Was Sullivan equally as powerful a man as Jeffries and could he hit as hard? Could he have been trained to be equally as quick on foot or otherwise?

SUBSCRIBER."

(By James J. Corbett.)

Having known and studied John L. Sullivan when he was in his prime and having also met James J. Jeffries when he was certainly in his prime, as he demonstrated by defeating me twice, I have no hesitation in saying that if these two noted champions had met when each was at his best, Sullivan would never have stood a ghost of a show against Jeffries. Contrary to general and popular opinion, I may say positively that Sullivan could never hit as hard as Jeffries; nor could he hit as quick. Sullivan was not as quick on his feet as Jeffries; was not as stylish a boxer and did not have as good a defence as the California man. Jeffries has a stronger physique, too, and could stand much more punishment than ever Sullivan could assimilate. Sullivan had practically only three or four effective blows and I doubt even if he had the benefit of modern training and the later day science as has been suggested, if he had the physique or reach to use it effectively. That is what has made Jeffries so great. He has the ability to hit a hard blow from almost any position he assumes in the ring, and some of his unexpected short-arm punches have a terrific force behind them. I can certainly testify to the truth of this latter statement.

To sum it all up I may say it is but idle talk to even consider John L. Sullivan and Jim Jeffries as anywhere equal as ring champions. If both were at their best and met in the ring I firmly believe that Jeffries would dispose of Sullivan without much trouble in a four or six-round bout.

(Signed) JAMES J. CORBETT.

SPORTING TALK

At last the champions of the Midland Football League have been decided, Warsaw being winners of the Stratton Cup for 1908. The league was scheduled to finish about July 1st, but when the Quakers of Peterborough dropped out the officers of the league seemed to lose interest, and it was next to impossible to get a reply from the secretary for the arranging of a game. We think it will be time for a change next year. Who said Peterborough were good sports!—Bowmanville Statesman.

Hugh Abernethy on His Feet Again —Cure is Easy, Simple, Natural and Permanent.

Gananoque, Ont., Oct. 28. (Special)—That Rheumatism can be cured surely simply and permanently is the good news that Hugh Abernethy, a well-known resident of King Street, is spreading among his neighbors.

"I had suffered from Rheumatism and stiffness of the joints," Mr. Abernethy states. "My muscles would cramp. I could not sleep, and I had terrible headaches. I took many different medicines but nothing did me any good till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Six boxes put me on my feet again."

Others who have taken Mr. Abernethy's advice and used Dodd's Kidney Pills are also loud in their praises of the old reliable Canadian Kidney remedy. For Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Rheumatism and other blood diseases by curing the Kidneys. Sound Kidneys keep the blood free from impurities. And with no impurities, such as uric acid in the blood, you cannot have such painful and dangerous diseases as Pain in the Back, Rheumatism Lumbago, Neuralgia and Heart Disease.

Keep your Kidneys strong and well with Dodd's Kidney Pills and you can face the cold, wet day of fall without a fear of Rheumatism.

ONLY THREE TONS.

How His Thumb Nail Was Jarred Off by Dynamite.

When a man entered the car with the thumb of his right hand somewhat ostentatiously done up in a white rag it was a foregone conclusion that some one would want to know all about it. Some one did. He was a man who seemed to take life seriously, and there was anxiety in his tones as he leaned forward and said:

"Sir, I observe that you have your thumb tied up in a rag?"

"Yes, sir."

"Which leads me to infer that the said thumb has met with some sort of accident?"

"It has."

"Cut it with a chisel, for instance?"

"No, sir; the nail got jarred off."

"Jarred off? I can hardly understand how that could have happened."

"Easy as rolling off a log, sir. I stood close to three tons of dynamite when they exploded, and the shock jarred the nail off my right thumb."

"Three tons, did you say?"

"Just three tons."

"Let me congratulate you, sir, on being a prudent man. If you had been standing beside six tons the nail of the other thumb would have been shaken off, and you might have lost a tooth as well."—Chicago News.

THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

"Don't believe they'd appreciate the compliment," I laughed. "Better let them make first call. They're the longer established." This was lost on them, of course. But we all felt kindly to one another that evening.

I carried the glow of it with me over until the next morning and was therefore somewhat dashed to meet Captain Selover with clouded brows and an uncertain manner. He quite ignored my greeting.

"Eagen," he squeaked, "can you think of anything more to be done?"

I straightened my back and laughed.

"Haven't you worked us hard enough?" I inquired. "Unless you gild the cabins I don't see what else there can be to do."

Captain Selover stared me over.

"And you a naval man!" he marveled. "Don't you see that the only thing that keeps this crew from gettin' restless is keeping them busy? I've sweat more with my brain than you have with your back thinking up things to do. I can't see anything ahead, and then we'll have trouble. Oh, they're a sweet lot!"

I whistled, and my crest fell. Here was a new point of view and also a new Captain Ezra. Where was the confidence in the might of his two hands?

He seemed to read my thoughts and went on.

"I don't feel sure here on this cussed land. It ain't like a deck where a man has some show. They can scatter. They can hide. It ain't right to put a man ashore alone with such a crew. I'm doing my best, but it ain't goin' to be good enough. I wish we were safe in Frisco harbor"—

He would have maundered on, but I seized his arm and led him out of possible hearing of the men.

"Here, buck up!" I said to him sternly. "There's nothing to be scared of. If it comes to a row, there's three of us, and we've got guns. We could even sail the schooner at a pinch and leave them here. You've stood them off before."

"Not ashore," protested Captain Selover weakly.

"Well, they don't know that. Don't let them see you've lost your nerve this way." He did not even wince at the accusation. "Put up a front."

He shook his head. The sand had completely run out of him. Yet I am convinced that if he could have felt the heave and roll of the deck beneath him he would have faced three times the difficulties he now feared. However, I could see readily enough the wisdom of keeping the men at work.

"You can wreck the Golden Horn," I suggested. "I don't know whether there's anything left worth salvage, but it'll be something to do."

He clapped me on the shoulder.

"Good!" he cried. "I never thought of it."

"Another thing," said I, "you better give them a day off a week. That can't hurt them, and it'll waste just that much more time."

"All right," agreed Captain Selover.

"Another thing yet. You know I'm not lazy, so it ain't that I'm trying to dodge work. But you'd better lay me off. It'll be so much more for the others."

"That's true," said he.

I could not recognize the man for what I knew him to be. He groped, as one in the dark or as a sea animal taken out of its element and placed on the sands. Courage had given place to fear, decision to wavering and singleness of purpose to a divided counsel. He who had so thoroughly dominated the entire ship eagerly accepted advice of me, a man without experience.

That evening I sat apart considerably disturbed. I felt that the ground had dropped away beneath my feet. To be sure everything was tranquil at present, but now I understood the source of that tranquillity and how soon it must fail. With opportunity would come more scheming, more speculation, more cupidity. How was I to meet it, with none to back me but a scared man, an absorbed man and an indifferent man?

CHAPTER XV.

PERCY DARROW, unexpected, made his first visit to us the very next evening. He sauntered in with a Mexican corn husk cigarette between his lips, carrying a lantern, blew the light out and sat down with a careless greeting, as though he had seen us only the day before.

"Hullo, boys," said he, "been busy?"

"How are ye, sir?" replied Handy Solomon. "Good Lord, mates, look at that!"

Our eyes followed the direction of his forefinger. Against the dark blue of the evening sky to northward glowed a faint phosphorescence, arch shaped, from which shot, with pulsating regularity, long shafts of light. They beat almost to the zenith and back again a half dozen times; then the whole illumination disappeared with the suddenness of gas turned out.

"Now, I wonder what that might be?" marveled Thrackles.

"Northern lights," hazarded Pulz. "I've seen them almost like that in the Bering seas."

"Northern lights your eye!" sneered Handy Solomon. "You may have seen them in the Bering seas, but never this far south and in August, and you can kiss the book on that."

"What do you think, sir?" Thrackles inquired of the assistant.

"Devil's fire," replied Percy Darrow briefly. "The island's a little queer. I've noticed it before."

"Debbil fire," repeated the nigger.

Darrow turned directly to him.

"Yes, devil's fire, and devils, too, for all I know, and certainly vampires. Did you ever hear of vampires, doctor?"

"No," growled the nigger.

"Well, they are women, wonderful, beautiful women. A man on a long voyage would just smack his lips to see them. They have shiny gray eyes and lips red as raspberries. When you meet them they will talk with you and go home with you. And then when you're asleep they tear a little hole in your neck with their sharp claws, and they suck the blood with their red lips. When they aren't women they take the shape of big bats like birds." He turned to me with so beautifully casual an air that I wanted to clap him on the back with the joy of it.

"By the way, Eagen, have you noticed those big bats the last few evenings over by the cliff? I can't make out in the dusk whether they are vampires or just plain bats." He directed his remarks again to the nigger. "Next time you see any of those big bats, doctor, just you notice close. If they have just plain black eyes they're all right, but if they have gray eyes, with red rims around 'em, they're vampires. I wish you'd let me know if you do find out. It's interesting."

"Don' get me near no bats," growled the nigger.

"Where's Selover?" inquired Darrow.

"He stays aboard," I hastened to say. "Wants to keep an eye on the ship."

"That's laudable. What have you been doing?"

"We've been cleaning ship. Just finished yesterday evening."

"What next?"

"We were thinking of wrecking the Golden Horn."

"Quite right. Well, if you want any help with your engines or anything of the sort, call me."

He arose and began to light his lantern.

"I hope as how you're getting on well there above, sir?" ventured Handy Solomon insinuatingly.

"Very well, I thank you," replied Percy Darrow dryly. "Remember those vampires, doctor."

He swung the lantern and departed without further speech. We followed the spark of it until it disappeared in the arroyo.

Behind us bellowed the sea. Over against us in the sky was the dull threatening glow of the volcano. About us were mysterious noises of crying birds, barking seals, rustling or rushing winds. I felt the thronging ghosts of all the old world's superstition swirling madly behind us in the eddies that twisted the smoke of our fire.

We wrecked the Golden Horn. Forward was a rusted out donkey engine, which we took to pieces and put together again. It was no mean job, for all the running parts had to be cleaned smooth and with the exception of a rudimentary knowledge on the part of Pulz and Perdosa we were ignorant. In fact we should not have succeeded at all had it not been for Percy Darrow and his lantern. The first evening we took him over to the cliff's edge he laughed aloud.

"Jove, boys, how could you guess it all wrong?" he wondered.

With a few brief words he set us right, Puls, Perdosa and I listening intently, the others indifferent in the hopelessness of being able to comprehend. Of course we went wrong again in our next day's experiments, but Darrow was down two or three times a week and gradually we edged toward a practical result.

His explanations consumed but a few moments. After they were finished we adjourned to the fire.

Thus we came gradually to a better acquaintance with the doctor's assistant. In many respects he remained always a puzzle to me. Certainly the men never knew how to take him. He was evidently not only unafraid of them, but genuinely indifferent to them.

Yet he displayed a certain interest in their needs and affairs. His practical knowledge was enormous. I think I have told you of the completeness of his arrangements. Everything had been foreseen from grindstones to gas nippers. The same quality of concrete speculation showed him what we lacked in our own lives.

There was, as you remember, the matter of Handy Solomon's steel claw. He showed Thrackles a kind of lanyard knot that deep sea person had never used. He taught Captain Selover how to make soft soap out of one species of seaweed. Me he initiated in the art of fishing with a white bone lure. Our camp itself he reconstructed on scientific lines so that we enjoyed less aromatic smoke and more palatable dinner. And all of it he did amusedly, as though his ideas were almost too obvious to need communication.

We became in a manner intimate with him. He guyed the men in his indolent fashion, playing on their credulity, their good nature, even their forbearance. They alternately grinned and scowled. He left always a confused impression, so that no one really knew whether he cherished rancor against Percy Darrow or kindly feeling.

The nigger was Darrow's especial prey. The assistant had early discovered that the cook was given to signs, omens and superstitions.

From a curious scholar's lore he drew fantastics with which to torment his victim. We heard of all the witches, warlocks, incubi, succubae, harpies, devils, imps and haunters of Avitchi, from all the teachings of history, sacred and profane, Hindoo, Egyptian, Greek, mediaeval, Swedenborg, Rosicrucian, theosophy, theology, with every last ounce of horror, mystery, shivers and creeps squeezed out of them. They were gorgeous ghost stories, for they were told by a man fully informed as to all the legendary and grewsome details. At first I used to think he might have communicated it more effectively. Then I saw that the cool, drawling manner, the level voice, were in reality the highest art.

He told his stories in a half amused, detached manner, which imposed confidence more readily than any amount of earnest asseveration. The mere fact of his own belief in what he said came to matter little. He was the vehicle by which was brought accurate knowledge. He had read all these things and now reported them as he had read. Each man could decide for himself as to their credibility.

At last the donkey engine was cleared and reinstalled atop the cliff. The nigger built under her a fire of black walnut, Captain Selover handed out grog all around, and we started her up with a cheer just to see the wheels revolve.

Next we half buried some long hatches, end up, to serve as bitts for the lines, hitched our cables to them and joyfully commenced the task of pulling the Golden Horn piece by piece up the side of the cliff.

The stores were badly damaged by the wet, and there was no liquor, for which I was sincerely grateful. We broke into the boxes and arrayed ourselves in various garments—which speedily fell to pieces—and appropriated gimcracks of all sorts. There were some arms, but the ammunition had gone bad. Perdosa out of forty or fifty misfires got one feeble sputter and a tremendous bang which blew up his piece, leaving only the stock in his hand. A few tinned goods were edible, but all the rest was destroyed. A lot of hard woods, a thousand feet of chain cable and a fairly good anchor might be considered as prizes. As for the rest, it was foolishness, but we hauled it up just the same until nothing at all remained. Then we shut off the donkey engine and put on dry clothes. We had been quite happy for the eight months.

It was now well along toward spring. The winter had been like summer, and with the exception of a few rains of a week or so we had enjoyed beautiful skies. The seals had thinned out considerably, but were now returning in vast numbers ready for their annual domestic arrangements.

Our Sundays we had mostly spent in resting or in fishing. There were many deep sea fish to be had, of great palatability, but small gameness. They came like so many leaden weights. A few of us had climbed some of the hills in a half hearted curiosity, but from their summits saw nothing to tempt weariness. Practically we knew nothing beyond the mile or so of beach on which we lived.

Captain Selover had made a habit of coming ashore at least once during the day. He had contented himself with standing aloof, but I took pains to seem to confer with him, so that the men might suppose that I, as mate, was engaged in carrying out his directions. The dread of him was my most potent influence over them.

During the last few days of our wrecking Captain Selover had omitted his daily visit. The fact made me uneasy, so that at my first opportunity I sculled myself out to the schooner. I found him, moist eyed as usual, leaning against the mainmast doing nothing.

"We've finished, sir," said I.

He looked at me.

"Will you come ashore and have a look, sir?" I inquired.

"I ain't going ashore again," he muttered thickly.

"What!" I cried.

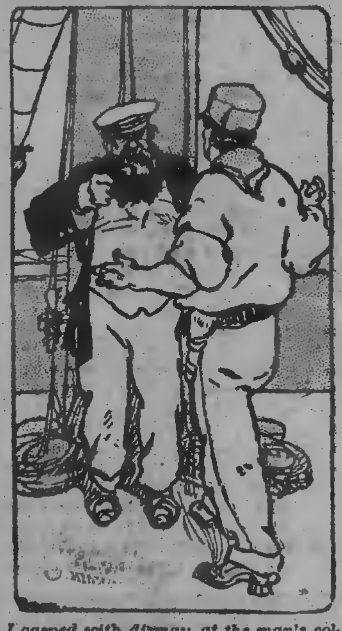
"I ain't going ashore again," he repeated obstinately, "and that's all there is to it. It's too much of a strain on any man. Suit yourself. You run them. I shipped as captain of a vessel. I'm no dock walloper. I won't do it—for no man!"

I gasped with dismay at the man's complete moral collapse. It seemed incredible. I caught myself wondering whether he would recover tone were he again to put to sea.

"Man, you must!" I cried at last.

"I won't, and that's flat," said he and turned deliberately on his heel and disappeared in the cabin.

I went ashore thoughtful and a little scared. But on reflection I regained a great part of my ease of mind. You see, I had been with these men now eight months, during which they had been as orderly as so many primary schoolboys. They had worked hard, without grumbling, and had even approached a sort of friendliness about the campfire. My first impression was overlaid. As I looked back on the voyage with what I took to be a clearer vision I could not but admit that the incidents were in themselves trivial enough—a natural excitement by a superstitious negro, a little tall talk that meant nothing. It must have been the glamour of the adventure that had deceived me—that and the unusual stage setting and costuming. Certainly few men would work hard for eight months without a murmur, without a chance to look about them.



I gasped with dismay at the man's collapse.

In that of course I was deceived by my inexperience. I realized later the wonderful effect Captain Selover threw away with his empty brandy bottles. The crew might grumble and plot during the watch below, but when Captain Ezra Selover said work they worked. He had been saying work for eight months. They had from force of experience obeyed him. It was all very simple.

CHAPTER XVI.

SO there I was at once deprived of my chief support. Although no danger seemed imminent, nevertheless the necessity of acting on my own initiative and responsibility oppressed me somewhat.

Truth to tell, after the first I was more relieved than dismayed at the captain's resolution to stay aboard. His drinking habit was growing on him, and afloat or ashore he was now little more than a figurehead, so that my chief asset as far as he was concerned was rather his reputation than his direct influence. In contact with the men I dreaded lest sooner or later he do something to lessen or destroy the awe in which they held him.

Of course Dr. Schermerhorn had been mistaken in his man. A real captain of men would have risen to circumstances wherever he found them. But who could have foretold? Captain Selover had been a rascal always, but a successful and courageous rascal. He had run desperate chances, dominated desperate crews. Who could know that a crumble of island beach and six months ashore would turn him into what he had become? Yet I believe such cases are not uncommon in other walks of life. A man and his work combine to mean something, yet both may be absolutely useless when separated. It was the weak link.

I put in some time praying earnestly that the eyes of the crew might be blinded and that the doctor would finish his experiments before the caldron could boil up again.

My first act as real commander was to announce holiday. My idea was that the island would keep the men busy for awhile. Then I would assign them more work to do. They proposed at once a tour into the interior.

A SECRET DIVULGED.

Whereby a Hint Is Given to Wives and a Warning to Husbands.

"Oh, dear," sighed the pretty caller as she viewed her friend's new bonnet, fresh from the store, "I wish my husband would allow me to buy such a love of a bonnet!"

"He would, my dear, if you knew how to handle him," answered the lady of the house.

"No; it is a waste of words to try to talk with him," said the pretty caller, with another sigh. "I saw a dream of a bonnet downtown the other day, and the price was just what you say you gave for yours—$25. But when I mentioned the price my husband flew into a rage and declared that $10 was every cent that he would advance me to buy a bonnet with and if I couldn't make that do I would have to do without."

"Exactly," commented the lady of the house dryly. "You can't expect any other treatment when you approach your husband like that. My husband acts just the same way whenever I ask him for money. But this creature called 'man' is very easily handled if you go about it in the right way. Now, when I saw this bonnet downtown I made up my mind that I would be the happy possessor of it, so that night at the dinner table I began going into raptures over a bonnet that I had seen while shopping, the price of which was only $50, and then I added as an afterthought that I had quite made up my mind to buy it.

"'What!' roared my husband. 'Fifty dollars for a bonnet? I guess not! You'll have to put up with $25, and not a cent more do you get!'

"As that was exactly the amount that I wanted I am afraid that the tears I shed were somewhat forced. But I gained my point, and that was what I was after."—Detroit Free Press.

A Brief Introduction.

"Long introductions when a man has a speech to make are a bore," says former Senator John C. Spooner. "I have had all kinds, but the most satisfactory one in my career was that of a German mayor of a small town in my state, Wisconsin.

"I was to make a political address, and the opera house was crowded. When it came time to begin, the mayor got up.

"'Mine friends,' he said, 'I haf asked been to introduce Senator Spooner, who is to make a speech, yes. Vell, I haf dit so, und he vil now do so.'"—Literary Digest.

Native—Ya-as, suh. But today some o' the boys got to feelin' cur'ous to know whethah he was innocent or guilty, suh. — Catholic Standard and Times.

The Editor Explains.

THE ELECTION IN EAST RIDING

As seen by a poetical contributor.

From Lakefield town there started out
A man of mighty fame,
To win a seat in Parliament—
And Tanner was his name.
"To take this riding just by storm
I'm sure is no great trick,
For I have staunch supporters—
Harry, Willie, Ned and Dick.
Now where's that Sexmith, wretched man,
This day he's sure to rue,
For I'm an educated man—
A Presbyterian Jew.
I'm not acquainted with the tribe
They call the working man;
Their cause is far too low for me,
I take a higher stand."
To Douro's poll the doctor's called—
A hopeless case is there,
And for his company takes along
A man with long, white hair.

"Harry! Hurrah!" I hear them cry,
"Bring out your chestnut mare,
Another voter you must bring,
For we are in despair.
Bryson, come down, they need your help."

The case is desperate now—
The Whigs are wiping off the whey
From each dark mournful brow.

But come, ye Tories, staunch and true,
Young Sexmith rally round.
That Tanner's not the man for us,
His pride shall kiss the ground.
We'll teach them politics to-day
A Tanner never knew!
We'll give the working man his rights,
Take off the duty, too.
We know our leader's staunch and true,
We've put him to the test;
He knows there's many a noble heart
Beats 'neath the ragged vest.

The poll is closed, the fight is won,
The Grits—oh, smell the taint!
An operation they must have
To cure their sad complaint.

And Willie Davis—where is he?
We've hunted all around,
We've searched the pond, but cannot tell
Whether he's shot or drowned.

winding up with a change to much cooler and in northern parts of the country. The probabilities of severe and dangerous gales over all the northern lake regions are decidedly strong at this and all the November periods, especially from the 15th to the end of the month. Navigators and shippers on the great lakes, will ignore these probabilities and will take desperate chances of paying expensive forfeits.

A regular storm period extends from the 23rd to the 28th, having its centre on the 26th. New moon falls on the 23rd within two days of extreme south declination on the 26th. This period is under the full perturbing influence of both Venus and Mercury, being intensified by the conjunction of the moon with earth and warmth, rapid fall of the barometer and clouds of threatening portent will mark the entrance of this period. From about Wednesday, the 25th to Saturday, 28th, autumnal storms of wide extent and of unusual energy will make their transit across the country from west to east. Rain, wind and thunder will dominate in southern parts of the country, while sleet, snow and an early cold wave may be expected northward. The high barometer, following the storms of this period will push very low temperatures for November far into southern parts of the country. The moon being at extreme south declination in the crisis of this period, will facilitate the flow of boreal currents from the northwest, bringing a real dash of winter to most parts of this and other countries in the northern hemisphere. All who fail to house or protect outdoor perishable products before the on-coming of this storm period will have missed golden opportunities and may count their losses and coddle their regrets.

The 23rd of November is the centre of a seismic period—say, from the 21st to the 25th. We mean by this that such phenomena are much more liable on and touching the 23rd. See if reports of earthquakes do not get into current telegraphic news at this period, although the Saturn and Jupiter periods have about spent their force. It will be found that the seismic disturbances take on milder forms and grow less frequent in the absence of these perturbing forces, at the same time a combination of the Mercury and Venus equinoxes, as is the case at this period, are known to quicken the seismic pulse of our terrestrial globe, especially when the conjunction of the moon and earth and sun adds its electric tension to the strain of a combined Venus and Mercury period. Let us all, especially northward, watch and see how far "Thanksgiving Thursday" will miss an old-fashioned sleet and snow storm in 1908. We wrote his forecast June the 3rd, 1907. Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the 26th, 27th and 28th, will tell the story in sleet and snow and cold. November rains. The month will merge into December in the midst of cold, mercurial cloudiness with wintry aspects prevailing over all the northern to central parts of the country. Be ready for it! A pre-word of caution about December will not be amiss.

The great drouth that has prevailed over most parts of the country for several months practically remains unbroken. A number of readers have written to us, expressing great surprise that "nothing concerning the drouth can be found in the almanac." If they will read our forecasts carefully over and over for the last thirty years concerning "drouths during the Jupiter period," and then if they will read our forecasts carefully for July, August and September, 1908, they will be surprised that they were taken unawares by the "shortage in general, diffused rains."

Wilmer's Escape.

By COLIN S. COLLINS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Lake Hammond penitentiary had been built on an island in the lake from which it took its name long before the campers discovered what a lovely place the lake was. At the time of its building Hammond had been fifty miles from the nearest town of any size, and only a spur track ran down to the shore of the lake, connecting with the flat bottomed boat that ferried the freight cars over to the island. Now the south shore fairly bristled with camps and huge hotels. Even on the north the beach and the numerous little islands were dotted with white tents and weather stained log huts.

The campers objected to the presence of the penitentiary, with its great gray barracks and its forbidding iron bars across the windows. That the penitentiary was there first did not alter the situation. The permanent campers wished the prison removed that they might enjoy their three months in camp unterrified by the thought of a possible jail delivery.

No stone walls surrounded the island. Only here and there a guard hut dotted the white expanse of the stone pier, which had been built entirely about the island, ready to shoot at any prisoner who might rashly try to escape. Few tried. It was a good two miles to the nearest shore, and in the winter the white expanse of ice made a background against which a convict would become a fair target for the guns.

Nancy Barlow liked to run her boat in close to the wall and wave her hand to the prisoners sullenly working on the new wing. They could not wave back, she knew, but she liked to believe that this sign from the world outside cheered them in their work. The guards all came to know her and the trim little racing motor boat. They presented arms with a grin as she sped past the wall, and Nancy had the feeling that they answered for the prisoners.

Her little motor was the fastest boat on the lake, and she spent her days speeding up and down the placid surface. She consumed vast quantities of petrol, but the outdoor life was bringing back the roses to her cheeks, and James Barlow would have run a pipe line to the lake if necessary to bring about that result. He had refused his consent to the marriage of Nancy and Fred Wilmer, but he felt vaguely troubled when he saw how the girl had drooped. She was all he had left in the world, and he could not lose her too. It was as much this as a tendency to wildness on Wilmer's part that had led to his refusal, and could he have found Wilmer he would have reconsidered his determination.

But Wilmer had dropped from sight, and none of his old acquaintances knew what had become of him.

Nancy had learned to handle a motor under his guidance on the lake the year before, and her devotion to the boat was in part due to that fact. As she guided the little craft among the channels he had shown her, she liked to dream day dreams of the time when they two should share a boat again. So real was the imagined presence at times that now, as Nancy puffed past the prison island and looked on the parade ground, she rubbed her eyes as she noticed the leader of a file of convicts making their way along the edge of the wall.

It did not seem possible that it could be Wilmer, but, as the little file came nearer, she was certain. Wilmer had never worn a mustache, and there was no mistaking the face. She even fancied that she caught a gleam of recognition in his eyes, as he passed with firm tread. She shut off the power and turned to look after the men in the striped suits. It came as a shock to her that Wilmer was wearing the stripes. She was certain that he had done nothing to deserve imprisonment. It must have been all a mistake, and he had been too proud to call upon his friends for aid. She turned her boat, determined to visit the prison office and find out something about the causes which had led to his incarceration.

As she did so there was a sudden commotion in the line. The even tread of the lockstep was broken, and Wilmer, with a sudden dash, had knocked down the keeper and sprung into the water.

A score of keepers rushed to the water wall and emptied their rifles after the escaping convict, while two of the prison boats which happened to be close at hand started in pursuit. Nancy was quicker yet. Throwing on full speed, she faced the fire from the shore and from the first of the two boats. In a moment she was beside Wilmer, helping him into the launch. Then she sprang to the wheel again and headed for the mainland.

"Why didn't you let us know that you were in trouble?" she demanded as the boat, once more under control, hummed toward the shore. "We would have helped you out. You know that, Fred."

"Only got here yesterday," he explained. "I was going to look you up after my escape, but it is a case of business first."

"You know the little cave up on the mountain?" she asked. "Make for that, and I will bring you other clothes this afternoon."

"Your father might object to loaning his clothes to a convict," suggested Wilmer, with a laugh.

"I don't care whether he does or not," said Nancy bravely. "You are in trouble, and he will have to see you out of it. He has a lot of political influence, and he can get you a pardon."

"Then you do care?" asked Wilmer eargerly. "He told me that you said that you no longer cared for me; that you had asked him to dismiss me."

"And that was why you stayed away?" she cried.

Wilmer nodded an assent. Nancy's pretty lips made a white line where they were compressed together. She had not a little of the Barlow stubbornness.

"I don't care if you are a convict," she said bravely. "I love you, and I am going to marry you. I didn't want a man who ran away from a negative and didn't hold on to fight for the girl he wanted, but this puts things in a different light. I don't care what you did."

The boat had reached the shore, and, without pausing to make reply, Wilmer leaped from the bow to the sand and rushed into the thicket. There was no word of farewell. Nancy's lips quivered in hurt surprise, but her face blanched as, a moment later, Wilmer strolled out of the thicket again just as the prison boats steamed up.

To Nancy's surprise men from the boats rushed toward Wilmer and began to talk excitedly. However, they made no effort to seize him, and the prison guards remained contentedly in the boat smoking cigarettes and joking among themselves. Wilmer detached himself from the group and came toward Nancy.

"I am afraid you will scold me for not explaining the trick, but I didn't want to waste a film and—I did want to be assured of your love. I am a convict only for today. Your father, among other pleasant things, reminded me of my idle life. To show that I could do something I put my abilities as an amateur actor to use as the stage manager for a motion picture concern."

"And this was all one of those plays that are reproduced?" demanded Nancy in disgust.

"All except the part in the boat," was his reply. "That was not a part of the film as written. I did not dare dream of such an addition to the plot."

"To think of me trying to save you, and all the time you were laughing at me!"

"I was not laughing," assured Wilmer as he took her hand. "It was the bravest thing a woman ever did for the man she loved. You are not angry at me, are you, Nancy?"

Nancy looked into the earnest, pleading eyes.

"Did I act as though I were?" she demanded. "You play the rest of your little play and then we'll have a chat with father. I'll be present to see that he gets things right this time, but you mustn't make a motion picture of it," she added playfully.

"I should say not," assented Wilmer. "We'll let Cupid manage the stage this time. I'll just play my part."

Labor Saving Style.

Mr. Perkins did not often comment on his wife's dress or make suggestions, but one day he looked at her so long and thoughtfully that she inquired if there was anything he did not like about her new gown.

"No, my dear," said Mr. Perkins hastily, "certainly not. I was only thinking. That waist of yours seems to be so elaborate, with the lace and all. Why not have a simpler mode of dress?"

"Why not, indeed?" said Mrs. Perkins sweetly. "I suppose you've seen one that just pleased you. What was it like?"

"It was white," said her husband, "all white and perfectly plain, my dear; not a particle of lace or ruffling or what I think I have heard you call tucks, nothing of the sort. All there was, my dear, was a simple little braid in flower patterns of some sort. It covered the entire waist.

"I sat beside the lady for half an hour in the car, and I can assure you it was quite neat and attractive. Simmons and I spoke of it on the way up from the train. He said he should mention it to his wife."

"You poor ignorant creatures!" said Mrs. Perkins tenderly. "The days and days it must have taken to make that 'neat, simple, plain little waist!'"—Youth's Companion.

SUFFRAGETTES ARE JAILED ANOTHER BATCH SENTENCED

The Fight Goes Merrily on in England.

Two Suffragettes Chain Themselves in Ladies' Gallery of House of Commons.

London, Oct. 30.—All the suffragettes, with the exception of two, who were arrested Wednesday night during the disorders in and around the House of Commons, were yesterday morning arraigned in court and fined $25 each. They refused to pay and were consequently sentenced each to one month's imprisonment. Of the two exceptions one was a girl under 21 years of age and the other a woman who secured an adjournment to lodge a charge of assault against the constable who arrested her.

The length to which suffragettes will go to attain an object and to strikingly bring their claims before the nation, was illustrated in the House of Commons when it was discovered in the midst of a consideration of a bill, that two women had chained themselves to the iron grill in the gallery. Their chains had to be filed and portions of the grill cut away before they could be ejected.

The House was considering the Licensing Bill, when a suffragette from the gallery shrilly demanded that women be allowed to vote, and thrust through the grill a placard on which were printed the precise demands of the suffragettes. Mr. Reinnant, speaking on the bill, attempted to continue when a man threw down a bundle of papers and cried, "I am a man, and I object to injustice to women."

Attendants made a scuffle in ejecting this disturber. Over the sounds of this incident rose greater disorder in the gallery. It was discovered that two suffragettes had chained themselves to the grill and were shrieking out: "We demand votes for women." Excitement rose, and the members left their seats to watch the gallery. An attempt to pull the women away was ineffectual, and a run was made for files. Parts of the grill were cut away and then Muriel Matters and Helen Fox, the suffragettes, were led away, their chains filed outside, and they were put out of the House, not being arrested, as their acts were not illegal.

At the same time the police made a sortie into a bunch of suffragettes that started a harangue before a crowd in front of the equestrian statue outside and arrested 18.

The galleries have been temporarily closed.

MAYOR RUSH WILL LIKELY HAVE SECOND TERM

It is understood that His Worship Mayor Rush can have another term as Chief Magistrate of the city if he desires it. It is generally recognized that Mr. Rush has done splendid work and there are many who want to see him at the head of affairs for another year. It is very probable that he will have a second year without opposition. Mr. Rush will accept the position for 1909 if no other candidate is brought out.

PIONEER IS GONE

Death of Mr. W. E. Roxburgh

East Peterborough Loses One of it's Best Citizens---Passed Away Yesterday Morning

East Peterborough lost one of its oldest and most highly respected residents yesterday morning at 9.30 o'clock, when Mr. W. E. Roburgh passed away. He was 74 years of age and had been in a decline for the past two or three years. He suffered no acute pain, but gradually grew weaker, and the end came very peacefully.

The late Mr. Roxburgh was born in Scotland and came to this country when a young man. Nearly fifty years of his life had been spent in Norwood, where he was held in universal esteem. For years he conducted a general store very successfully and afterwards went into the grain business. In this connection he was in partnership with Mr. Thos. Rork. The business is at present carried on by Mr. Roxburgh's son, Mr. John Roxburgh. The late Mr. Roxburgh and Mr. Rord were also engaged in the lumber business for three or four years.

Mr. Roxburgh took a prominent part in public affairs. He was Chairman of the Norwood School Board for over twenty years and also clerk of the township of Asphodel. He was a Liberal in politics and contested the riding of East Peterborough against the late John Burnham for the Dominion House, but was defeated.

For many years Mr. Roxburgh was Secretary-Treasurer of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society and did splendid work in this connection. It is generally recognized that the marked success of the society was largely due to the efforts of Mr. Roxburgh.

In religion Mr. Roxburgh was a staunch Presbyterian and was a member of Norwood Presbyterian Church. Deceased was twice married, his second wife, who was Mrs. Cameron, of Peterborough, surviving him. One daughter and three sons also survive. One daughter is the wife of Judge Stewart, of Calgary, Alta., and the sons are Rev. Frank Roxburgh, Presbyterian minister of Smithville; Mr. John Roxburgh, of Norwood, and Mr. Gerald Roxburgh, electrical engineer of Winnipeg.

The funeral will take place tomorrow, Saturday, at 2 o'clock to Norwood Cemetery. Rev. Mr. McLennan will conduct the funeral services.

FINED FOR ILL-TREATING CATTLE

Bancroft Man up Before Magistrate in Toronto

For cruelty to animals by overcrowding in shipment James O'Reilly, of Bancroft, was Thursday last in the afternoon police court fined $20 and costs by Magistrate Kingsford, Toronto.

The car had contained 28 cattle, 114 sheep, 4 calves and 6 hogs (152 animals in all, the smaller animals on an upper deck. The cattle were greatly cramped in a space only four feet high and were kept confined for 17 hours, one of the cattle dying.

In defence it was pleaded that O'Reilly had always instructed his men to be careful, and that he was in Toronto when the shipment was made. The car had also been lower than the standard.

"I only wish the guilty man could be fined. The only way you can get at men like that is to fine them," said the magistrate.

HAD LEG BROKEN

Brother of Local Man Injured in Football Game

Ottawa, October 28.—In a junior football game at Lansdowne Park this evening between the two city teams, Walter Stroud, son of ex-Ald. Stroud, a lad about 18 years of age, had a leg broken. Young Stroud was tackled by another boy and sent to the ground rather heavily. When he attempted to rise it was seen that he was disabled, and examination by a physician revealed the fact that the leg was broken. This is the first serious accident of the season in Ottawa.

The boy who was injured at Ottawa was a brother of Mr. W. H. Stroud, of this city.

LADIES EFFORTS

In Connection With Y. M. C. A.

Good Work Has Been Done by the Ladies Auxiliary During Past Year

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. was held Monday evening in the Association parlors.

Mrs. William Davidson, the vice-president, occupied the chair. The meeting opened with singing and scripture reading and prayer by Mr. Hassard. After the regular monthly meeting had been disposed of the annual reports of the secretary and treasurer were presented and adopted. It was decided to hold the meetings on the third Monday afternoon of the month.

The secretary's annual report for 1907-08 was as follows:

Though the meetings have been less in number during the year just closed and the average attendance smaller (this is noted with much regret), and while there have been no meetings of a social character and no entertainments given at all, still the work of the Ladies' Auxiliary has been quietly going on.

The chief cause of regret that we have been called upon to experience was the resignation of the president, Mrs. E. F. Mason, which was tendered in April last. Her regular attendance at the meetings, the keen interest shown by her in all of the work, and her general faithfulness were so much appreciated that the withdrawal has left a vacancy hard to fill, although Mrs. Davidson, the first vice-president, has performed her part very acceptably indeed, since then up to the present time. It is a cause of thankfulness that no removal or death among our members have been recorded, while some new members have been welcomed.

During the year there were seven regular meetings and three special meetings, held with an average attendance of ten members, showing a decrease of two when compared with the two previous years.

The work accomplished has consisted of the replenishing of dormitory supplies, many new curtains and the receiving of the table linen and replenishing of dishes, cutlery and kitchen utensils in the pantry.

Early in August last Mrs. Yeigh, of Brantford, the Provincial President, visited our city, and as she was desirous of meeting with the members of the Auxiliary a meeting was called, but as many were absent from town, it being the holiday season, there were only three members present to confer with her.

The above report is respectfully submitted by

ESTELLE MEDD,
Secy., L. A. of Y.M.C.A.

EXTEND AVENUE

Barnardo Ave Can Now Cross the Chemong Track

The Board of Railway Commissioners have made an order in favor of the township of Smith permitting Barnardo avenue to be opened on the right of way, on the old Chemong G. T.R. road.

This matter has been pending for the last six months and the Board have at last given their permission. As is generally known the old Chemong railroad has not been in use for many years, but as it is still the property of the G.T.R., their consent had to be gained before the street could be opened on their right of way.

HAD RIGHT ARM BROKEN AT THE WRIST

Ashburnham Man Fell Down Steep Enbankment---Returning From Work

John Eccles, an employee of the C.G.E. works and a resident of Ashburnham, was the victim of a painful accident the other evening when returning from work. Noticing a train fast approaching from the west in his hurry to get off the track he fell down the enbankment lighting with such great force on his right hand that his arm was badly broken at the wrist. The accident occurred between Rogers and Concession sts., where the bank is very steep.

DEATH OF HON. THOS. GREENWAY

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Oct. 30 — Hon. Thomas Greenway, ex-Premier of Manitoba, a recently appointed member of the Dominion Royal Commission died at seven o'clock this morning of asthma. He had been confined to his room at the Windsor Hotel for a fortnight. Medical aid could do nothing for him and sitting up in a chair for two weeks his condition gradually grew more acute until the end came.

Mr. Greenway was 70 years old, having been born in Cornwall, England, on March 25, 1838.

ENGLISH PRELATE IS CHOSEN AS NEW BISHOP OF MONTREAL

Montreal, Oct. 30.—By the unanimous vote of the diocesan synod last night the Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Bishop of Stepney and Suffragan to the Bishop of London since 1901, was declared elected to the Bishopric of Montreal.

This vote confirmed a seventh and final ballot in which the Bishop of Stepney had received a practically unanimous vote. The figures of the seventh ballot were as follows: Clerical vote—Right Rev. Bishop Lang, 89; Principal Rexford, 4; Dean Evans, 3; Dean Farthing, 4; Archdeacon Ker, 1; Rev. Osborne Troop, 1. The lay vote polled 70 for Lang and 7 for Farthing.

The following cablegram was sent to the Bishop of Stepney: "The Synod of Montreal, consisting of 107 clergy and 209 lay delegates have unanimously elected you bishop and earnestly hope you may accept." A reply from the bishop is expected tomorrow.

The name of the Bishop of Stepney was sprung as a surprise on the synod and came after the stubborn duel between Dean Evans and Dean Farthing. The supporters of both these clerics precipitated a deadlock and the laymen refused to support Dean Evans, while going solid for Farthing. On the other hand, the clerical vote supported Evans, although Farthing had a slowly increasing number of adherents.

The question as to whether Bishop Lang will accept is regarded dubiously in both cleric and lay circles here, as he is in direct line for preferment as coadjutor to the Bishop of London.

MUCH FEVER IN CAMPS

Along Transcontinental Line---Dr. Bell Has Returned From Tour of Inspection

Toronto, Oct. 29.—Dr. R. W. Bell, one of the inspectors of the Provincial Board of Health, who has returned from making an inspection of the construction camps of the Transcontinental Railway, confirms the report of the prevalence of typhoid fever among the workmen. He visited the portion of the road passing through the district around Kenora and found that there had been a tremendous amount of the disease. The season, however, is improving, and with the colder weather the number of cases is diminishing.

On about 160 miles of road being constructed under the McArthur contract, there have been several hundred fever cases. There are 100 patients in the Kenora Hospital. About nine camp hospitals are filled with sufferers, and many men have been taken to Winnipeg for treatment. Many deaths have resulted from the outbreak, but it is impossible to learn exactly the number.

The cause of the epidemic is unknown. The germs of disease may have been carried into the camps by some of the men. Again, the outbreak may have been caused by the carelessness of the men in regard to the water they have drunk. Many of them have been in the habit of slaking their thirst from the most convenient pool regardless of whether it may or may not have been polluted. At the same time lack of proper sanitation in the camps themselves may have given rise to disease. Many of the men, too, have shown a disinclination to go to the hospitals for treatment. When told to do so they have simply left their employment and gone elsewhere.

NORWOOD AFTER LOCAL OPTION

Petition will be Presented to Council at Next Meeting

The petition for local option which has been circulated by two of the resident clergymen of Havelock has been signed by the required number, 25 per cent of the electors. It will be handed to the Council at their next meeting and it is very likely that a by-law for local option will be submitted to the people at the municipal elections in January next.—Norwood Register.

WOLVES PREY UPON SHEEP

Twelve to Fourteen in Pack and They are Causing Much Destruction

During the first days of October the wolves have been very destructive around the Vansickle settlement in the northern part of the municipality of Marmora and Lake. The following have lost sheep; E. Cole 6; R. Cole 1; S. Vanvolkenberg 3; N. Vanvolkenberg 1; Stephen Sopha 2, young cattle killed and another came home with a piece bitten out of its flank. Thos. Quinlan had the luck to shoot one. Since then four more sheep have been killed. The pack contains about twelve to fourteen wolves and are very bold. —Marmora Herald.

EVANGELIST SPOKE ON PRISON WORK OF WORLD'S W.C.T.U.

Address of Absorbing Interest at George Street Methodist Church Last Night—Mrs. Barney, Prison Evangelist, Was Speaker—Much Being Done for Temperance.

The world's prison evangelist of the WCTU, Mrs. Barney, of Rhode Island, Conn., gave an inspiring address on prison work at the George street Methodist church last night. A large audience was in attendance and gave the speaker a most attentive hearing.

No one present had anticipated the great delight that was in store from the soul stirring address of the visitor. The Rev. E. A. Pearson was chairman and at the close of the address said that he had heard Miss Frances Willard and all knew of her great worth and excellence as a speaker and after hearing Mrs. Barney would always couple her name with the one who had done so much to stir the world in the cause of temperance.

To ask for a formal resolution, would be to place this great address on too common ground.

In consequence of the very large number present and the great interest awakened by the address the meeting which was to have been held in the YWCA parlor this afternoon at four o'clock will be held in George street church and a genuine surprise is in store for all who take advantage of the opportunity to hear and see this talented lady.

Words are inadequate to give our readers any idea of the continuous interest in which the entire audience was held, as Mrs. Barney told the story of her work as Prison Evangelist and how, after repeated refusals to undertake a visit around the world to the great prison centres Miss Francis Willard had at last prevailed upon her and how, through fourteen months she had accomplished what at first seemed to her to be an impossible task.

Crossing the American continent, from Rhode Island to San Francisco, she had the privilege of addressing 1100 men, 200 of whom signed the pledge, taking steamer from this port the journey was made to Japan then to New Zealand, Tasmania, Queensland, South Australia, West Australia, Ceylon, Port Said—then by storm driven to Syria— returning to Jaffa, then on to Jerusalem. In all these places the WCTU were revived or organised, prisons visted and personal work done.

In Tasmania, a notable visit was made to the poor house—called by the aristocratic name of "Invalid Depot," where a great revival was begun among the old women of that home.

Everywhere she had been greeted with the greatest kindness and courtesy. In many of the places dozens of white-ribboners hailed her and she was more convinced than ever of the power of the Gospel to save men and keep them from strong drink. After leaving Jerusalem, the journey homeward was begun touching at Port Said Naples, Florence, Rome, Paris, London and reaching Boston after a journey of 35,000 miles, holding 35,000 services and having given 5000 pledged to men and women by the way.

An interesting episode occurred at Boston when the customs officer examined her trunk. Covering the contents was a beautiful silk flag, which in the ordinary way was jostled. She called his attention to the fact, that all around the world not an officer had touched it so roughly, but, said she, "Take care how you touch what is beneath it." Carefully he lifted the flag to find the British Union Jack. These had carried her safely around the world and proved the her the tremendous privilege and power for the good of the world of the British speaking nations.

She joined the flags by the W.C.T.U., white ribbon, surmounted them on her parlor wall with a cross, and to her they always said, "By these signs conquer."

The meeting to have been held in the YWCA this afternoon has been changed to the George street Methodist church.

CHARGES THE REPUBLICANS WITH LEVYING OF GRAFT

Wall Street Dealers In On It.

Contributing to Bribery Fund, Which is Said to be Large One---Anything From $500 $5,000.

New York, Oct. 30.—The charge recently made by Nathan Straus, president of the Business Men's Democratic League, and subsequently denied by Treasurer Sheldon of the Republican National Committee, that Wall Street men are being assessed $500 each by the Republican committee, was reiterated by Mr. Straus in a speech before the Commercial Travelers' League yesterday. He declared that Republicans in New York this year "have the largest corruption fund they ever had." He said he was ready to prove that statement.

"I am ready to prove now that they not only have levied a tax of $500," said Mr. Straus, "but that they have a sliding scale which runs up to $5,000. I am ready to prove this and the newspapers won't dare print what I say here."

More than 100,000 members of trades' unions in this city have failed to respond to the appeal of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, to endorse the candidacy of Wm. J. Bryan. Some unions have repudiated the Gompers' circular of appeal officially. Other trades' unions have simply ignored it.

Speaking of the trusts at Cohoes yesterday, Mr. Bryan asserted that Mr. Taft had not attacked a single trust, because, he said, every trust magnate was supporting him, "and out of the funds the Republicans are prepared to buy every vote that can be bought."

Mr. Bryan vehemently declared that the Republican party was going backward instead of forward with respect to labor. He characterised the promise of a revision of the tariff as an attempt to perpetrate a fraud on the people.

His audience appeared to be practically unanimous for the guaranteeing of bank deposits as indicated by the number of hands raised when he put the matter to a vote.

Albany, N.Y., Oct. 30.—David Bennett Hill, for 12 years at odds with the Bryan wing of Democracy, quitted the quiet of Wolfert's Roost Wednesday night and arrayed himself with Wm. J. Bryan.

The meeting in public of Bryan and Hill was planned by a master of stagecraft. The hall was jammed. The American flag was everywhere, women were in the boxes, the crowd regaled itself with patriotic songs and the music of a band. Suddenly the band struck up the "Star Spangled Banner." Slowly the curtain rose and disclosed Hill and Bryan sitting side by side, smiling. For a moment there was a dead silence. Then pandemonium broke loose. Hill said that he stood for Mr. Bryan and what Mr. Bryan stood for.

REPORT DANGER

Baptists Are Against Socialism.

Report to This Effect Introduced at Ottawa Convention in in Home Mission Report.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—In the home mission report laid before the Baptist convention yesterday there were reference to Socialism.

"In its varied forms," said the report, "labor unions, trades unions, professional associations and farmers' clubs, Socialism represents an emergence of a world-consciousness and world-conviction that at the present day social and economic conditions are not right; that the race cannot reach its highest development under these conditions; that the principle that should regulate social and business life should be co-operation and non-competition."

Every one of the basic principles of the movements were embodied in the constitution of the church, but the dangers arising out of the work of the so-called Socialistic leaders in such a place as Toronto were emphasized.

"There are constantly forming in the very heart of the city new communities of foreign peoples," said the report. "These people are scarcely landed in the city before the Socialist leaders are after them. The new principles taught them are revolutionary rather than reformatory." It was emphasized that the church should endeavor more and more to cope with this evil.

The total income of the home mission board last year was $32,000 and for this year $38,790.

MACHINE DOES EXCELLENT WORK

JOHN BURNS SAYS ENGLISH DRINK MORE THAN AMERICANS

London, Oct. 30.—John Burns, the Labor leader and president of the local Government Board, drew down upon his head the anathemas of the Laborites when in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon he intimated that the main disadvantages under which the British unemployed labored, as compared to the unemployed in America, was that the Britons drank more than their transatlantic confreres.

Mr. Burns repudiated the suggestion that the difference lay in the fact that the American unemployed had money in their pockets.

"I have been in America three times," he said, "and the only difference I saw between the unemployed in America and those of this country was that the former, for a short time after losing work, were better dressed. Many of them do not drink so much as do many British unemployed workmen, but British workmen have an advantage in the number of days they are idle."

Loud cries of "It is untrue," "It is a shameful comparsion," greeted Mr. Burns' statement.

DEAD IN THE BUSH

Young Girl From Peterborough

Found in Woods Near Eldorado—Death Due to Exposure

Madoc, Oct. 29.—On Sunday morning last while a young man was walking through the woods in the vicinity of Mr. Willard Ruport's house, north of Eldorado, he was horrified by coming upon the body of a young girl, who had evidently been dead for some time. He at once notified Mr. Ruport, who recognized the body as that of a young orphan girl named Edith Nicholls, who had been at this place for some time. He had notified the Home authorities about two weeks previous that he was about to return her to the home. It is presumed that the young girl learning this, resented it, and wandered away from the house. Mr. Ruport thinking that the young girl had returned to the Home wired that institution to find if such was the case. While awaiting a reply the gruesome find was made. Coroner Harper was notified and went out. He examined the body and called an inquest, which was held on Tuesday. The verdict given by the jury was that the young girl came to her death from exposure.

The verdict was as follows:

"That Edith Nicholls came to her death on or about the 9th day of October from cold and exposure, and that the said Edith Nicholls ran away from her home at Mr. Willard Ruport's to avoid being sent back to the Home at Peterborough."

The Daily Review

FRIDAY, OCT. 30, 1908.

AN AFTERTHOUGHT

The Globe gives utterance to some very emphatic criticisms of the late Laurier Government, and advises both retrenchment and purification as imperatively necessary. The patronage list which Conservative speakers devoted so much of their attention and which they characterized with so much vigor as a department of larceny and scandal, the Globe condemns with all its old-time incisiveness. If the Conservative stumpers were to be really reproached for scandal-mongering what may we ask is the Globe's performance but justification? The truth is just as Mr. Borden said. The Laurier Government is the most corrupt since Confederation, and that is needless. It is the most extravagant likewise and the most wasteful. Declining trade has caught it with its coffers empty and by the end of five more years if the grafters do not bleed it to death before that time it will have left Canada more than ever in the grasp of great corporations and at the mercy of the "beasts of Ephesus." It is useless to claim that we are progressing. The purchaseable vote holds the balance of power. Moreover, the keen sense of right and wrong which we hear so much about is largely a theme for Sabbath preaching and that alone. The mighty dollar is now the almighty dollar. Yet there are those who do not blind themselves to facts, and the true issues, and to them may trusted the task of cleaning house with a vengeance when the time comes. The real strength of the electorate was asleep, not beaten.

THE LAGGING TRUTH

The Liberal newspapers are now coming to admit what but a few days ago they so strenuously denied. The Ottawa Free Press issues a warning note. The following from the Montreal Witness is of interest:—

"Montreal Witness:—Accepting all the charges the people preferred Sir Frederick Borden. They also deliberately chose Mr. Emmerson and Mr. Foster and Mr. Turriff and Dr. Pugsley. The Liberals have not yet even got the scare they should have had. The election seems to say like the angel in the Revelation: He that was unjust, let him be unjust still, and he that was filthy let him be filthy still. There is never any reason to suppose that the House of Commons or the Legislative Assembly or the City Council is any worse than the people. On the whole, it is fair to presume them to be better. The people do not elect their best men or their worst, simply those that fairly represent their morality and aspirations. Is there any prospect of better things? Let us hope that though the party as such has not received the scare that would have been good for it, some individuals have not passed through the purgatory of public rebuke in vain."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Stratton's majority is only 333 if the official returns declare. It will be less before the breezes of spring blow.

The Toronto Star (Liberal) comes back again today with a vicious warning to Sir Wilfrid. Throwleading Liberal journals are now becoming conscience, stricken and ashamed.

The action of the Kaiser in springing his latest sensation on Britain is one of those coups for which he is becoming famous. It will not be long in all probability before a grand European shake-up will astonish the natives and verify old Moore's predictions.

It becomes more and more apparent that West Peterborough was at the mercy of the prowlers. From east and west, from north and south come tales of bribery and corruption of so open and shameless a character as to put West Peterborough again in the column of the "doubtfuls." When the light of investigation is let in on this riding it will look like West Elgin and West Huron rolled into one. A good deal of the wherewithal came from outside.

The new Bishop of Montreal, in succession to the late Bishop Carmichael, has been chosen. He is the Rt. Rev. Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, suffragant to the Bishop of London, and son of Rev. Dr. Marshall Lang, Principal of Aberdeen University. The candidate is 44 years old and is a very promotive church worker. Although chosen, he has not yet accepted.

Special Permission.—A firm of shady outside London brokers was prosecuted for swindling. In acquitting them, the court, with great severity said, "There is not sufficient evidence to convict you, but if any one wishes to know my opinion of you I hope that they will refer to me." Next day the firm's advertisement appeared in every available medium with the following, well displayed. "Reference as to probity, by special permission, the Lord Chief Justice of England."—Everybody's Magazine.

Forgetful.—A minister's wife, a doctor's wife, and a travelling man's wife met one day recently and were talking about the forgetfulness of their husbands.

The minister's wife thought her husband was the most forgetful man living, because he would go to church and forget his notes and no one could make out what he was trying to preach about.

The doctor's wife thought her husband was the most forgetful, for he would often start out to see a patient, and forget to take his medicine case and, therefore, travel miles for nothing.

"Well," said the travelling man's wife, "my husband beats that. He came home the other day and patted me on the cheek and said, 'I believe I have seen your before, little girl What is your name?'"—Tit Bits.

BIG FARM ENTERPRISE.

Company to Take Up Half a Million Acres of Land.

Winnipeg, Oct. 30.—A remarkable project which seems incredible of realization is outlined by A. B. Extey, who styles himself "General Manager of the Anglo-Canadian Land, Grain & Stock Co.," which was recently incorporated at St. Pierre, South Dakota, with a capitalization of two and a half millions, and with the avowed intention of colonizing five hundred thousand acres of land in the Canadian Northwest and working it entirely with English labor, as a single enterprise. The company hopes to establish itself in the neighborhood of Vermilion.

LAKE MAY LEAVE.

Militia Inspector-General May Take Imperial Job.

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—Major-General Lake, Inspector-General, may leave Canada at any moment for the purpose of taking up an important post in the imperial service. Gen. Lake, who is a brother of R. S. Lake, M.P. for Qu'Appelle, has been in Canada since 1904, and some years earlier served a term as quartermaster-general. He had that rank in 1896, and it had come to light that Sir Fred. Borden tried to get him appointed general officer commanding in 1898, the War Office refusing on the ground that he was too junior for the position. Major-General Lake on coming to Canada in 1904 as chief of the general staff, organized the new method of administration by a militia counsel, and has shown great efficiency. He has held the post of inspector-general for about a year.

Good quality feeders, 1000 lbs. up, are in demand, and look like selling higher from now out. The common kind, as usual, are hard to cash, altho the market got a better clearance on the common kind this week than last, in all probability being due to lighter receipts. Messrs. Murby bought about 400 head this week at following quotations: Best feeders, 950 to 1050 lbs. each, at $3.65 to $4 per cwt.; best feeders, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.25 to $3.50; best stockers, 600 to 800 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.25; common and medium stockers, $1.85 to $2.50.

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 30.—A recount of ballots in the Templeman-Barnard contest began yesterday morning before Judge Lampman. The press were excluded and the greatest care taken to exclude all not directly concerned. Up to noon seven out of the 25 boxes had been gone into and argument was heard, but decision will not be given on disputed ones until the end.

IMMIGRATION DISCUSSED.

National Council of Women Consider Matters of Moral Importance.

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—The National Council of Women of Canada yesterday discussed immigration, international disarmament, cheap theatres, objectionable literature, the white slave traffic and other matters relating to the moral influence of Canada. Reports were presented favoring further restriction of undesirable immigration. An improvement in the class of domestic servants arriving from the old country was noted in the report of the committee. There was a complaint from the Maritime Province delegates that few of the servants from Europe remained in the east, the majority being ticketed through to the provinces farther west. It was recommended that an effort be made to have a larger share of this class of immigrants assigned to the east.

Eleven For Acquittal.

Chatham, Oct. 30.—Elliott Kimball, who is held on the charge of murder in connection with the shooting of W. J. Healey, is being held in custody pending instructions from the Attorney-General's Department. The crown will press the prosecution at the Spring Assizes.

It is understood that the first vote taken after the jury retired was 7 to 5 for acquittal, the five being in favor of a verdict of manslaughter. The case was then fought out and the final vote stood 11 to 1 for acquittal, one of the 12 refusing to give in and holding out for a verdict of manslaughter.

Severed Head Startles Farmer.

Adrian, Mich., Oct. 30.—A dried human head, apparently cleanly severed from the body and with the mouth stuffed with rags, rolled out of a pile of sacks yesterday in an outbuilding on the farm of the late Samuel Bryant, where threshers were working.

Bryant, who has been dead for six months, lived alone on his farm for several years after having had trouble with his wife.

Close examination indicates that the head was severed probably by a saw. Dr. Wilcox declared it could not be the head of Bryant, but neighbors are unanimous in saying it is.

Two Hundred and Eighty Prisoners.

New York, Oct. 30.—Two spectacular raids of alleged poolrooms were made yesterday by the police at different places on the east side of the city. In the aggregate 280 prisoners were taken and in addition, it is said, a considerable quantity of gambling paraphernalia was confiscated.

At both houses raided it was necessary to use axes to gain entrance, and at one of them the heavy doors were impregnable and it was necessary to breach the wall of the building. Not one inmate of either house escaped arrest.

PLEADED GUILT TO TWO CHA

Young Lad From Near Let off on Suspended Sen

Madoc, Oct. 29.—The young lad, Joseph Godfrey son of Marshall Godfrey, of the Monk Road, near Bancroft, who was arrested a couple of weeks ago and committed for trial by Magistrate Jarman, had his trial before Judge Deroche on Friday afternoon, October 16th, in County Court. He was unrepresented by counsel, Mr. Anderson appearing for the Crown. He was charged with forging two cheques of $10 each. He pleaded guilty to both charges. He said he would be 17 years old next month, and had never done anything bad before, and if given a chance would promise to become a good man. Mr. Anderson said he believed the boy was not altogether bright, and he would not press for a severe sentence. Judge Deroche was of the same opinion, and after giving the boy some good advice, and impressing upon him the enormity of his offence, said he would let him have his liberty for one year to see how he would behave. If he did anything wrong he would be brought to Belleville and a sentence imposed. He hoped the accused would try to be a man in the future. He then allowed him to go. This is the same boy who shot his brother a couple of years ago while the two were alone in the house, but there was not sufficient evidence to prosecute.

Notices no Tightness of Money

Mr. George Evans, the popular tailor for particular dressers has put into stock a fine new line of fall and winter goods, and says that he sees no sign of hard times in Peterborough, judging by the way his hands are kept busy making up his best quality cloth into suits and dress overcoats.

Such an opinion from a high-class merchant tailor, shows that with at least some people, money is not tight.

of the bartly asserted the Coast is the smalles been made in fifteen years. "The year 1906 was a banner prune year for California, the crop totalling the immense quantity of 210,000,000 pounds, all of which was marketed prior to the harvest of 1907, excepting approximately 20,000 000 lbs. In 1907 but 105,000,000 pounds were produced or half the tonnage of 1906 and this year it is conceded by well posted shippers that the output will be approximately 40,000,000 pounds or about one-fifth that of two years ago and about 45 per cent of last season, with a carryover of 1907 stock not to exceed 10,000,000 pounds. Early in the season the crop was estimated at 50,000,000 pounds, but all orchards fell far short of the figures given, owing to lack of moisture and excessive hot weather in July and part of August. Aside from the small reduction in tonnage the fruit is of smaller size, running practically to 60-70s, 70-80s, and 80-90s, with a few 90-100s, practically no 30-40s, a very small percentage of 40-50s and only a fair quantity of 50-60s. Therefore demand for larger 50-60s. Therefore demand for larger sized fruit must be taken care of largely by the 30-40s, and 40-50s, carried over from 1907, the quality of which is excellent being far superior to any stock produced this year.

"The causes that combined to reduce the tonnage this year also affected the quality of the stock in many districts, and as a consequence there is a big quantity of off-grade stock that is unmerchantable as it lacks sugar and is so far below the standard as to to unfit for consumption. We would not handle it under any circumstances.

"It is a significant fact that the shipments from California for the first nine months of the year were 41,000,000 pounds. This was during the dullest period ever known to the trade when jobbers everywhere were buying only to supply their actual requirements without reference to their future needs. The shipments from California, during October, November and December, 1906 were 140,000,000 pounds and during the corresponding three months last year 68,000,000 pounds with possibly 35,000,000 pounds of good prunes not more, new and old on hand today to provide for an average annual domestic consumption for the past three years of 90,000,000 pounds exclusive of any European demand we may get.

"There has been no speculative buying by packers on the Coast as shippers have endeavored to cover their sales only on all goods, and let the grower carry the stock. Last year prunes were selling in October on a 4 1-2c to 5c basis while this year with less than half of the previous year's crops, a limited quantity is at present obtainable on a 3 1-2 to 3 3-4c basis.

"Stocks of prunes east are as is well known but a small fraction of those of one and two years ago at the corresponding time and once the situation is appreciated and Eastern jobbers believe what Coast packers know about it, then look out for a sharp advance in prices.

"Last year Oregon produced 30,000,000 pounds of prunes against a possible output this season of 10,000,000 pounds, the bulk of which has already been sold. Therefore the percentage of prunes to supply the demand is the smallest in the history of the Coast for the past fifteen years.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDED THE FOWL SUPPER

Held Last Evening Under Auspices of Women's Guild of All Saints' Church—The Programme

The ladies of All Saints' church are always noted for the large crowds they attract to their fowl suppers, and the annual event, which took place last night, was certainly no exception. In fact, in the opinion of many, it far exceeded any that have previously been held. The result was most gratifying, and the receipts, which will go towards the building of the new church, will amount to considerably over one hundred dollars.

The success of the affair is due to the indefatigable labors of the Women's Guild, under whose auspices the tea was held. The president of the Society, Mrs. D. J. Lundy, and the other members were untiring in their efforts in seeing that everyone was abundantly supplied with the many good things, and all must have gone away loud in their praises of the ladies of All Saints' church.

Tea was served in the schoolroom and from half-past five until eight o'clock there was a steady flow of people, all anxious to partake of the choice viands laid before them on the prettily decorated tables. The ladies in charge and the waitresses had a busy evening, but looked after their guests in a most creditable manner.

Those who had tables were: Mesdames Barraclough and Cornell, Methera and Rennett, Melville and Cochrane, Hogan and Currie, Koen and Blois, Kearns and Snowden, Blondin and Scott, Johnston and Wolstenholm, Sabin and Armstrong Fuller Blois and Evans.

After all had enjoyed the sumptuous repast an adjournment was made to the church, where a programme of sacred music was rendered. The rector, Rev. H. R. Trumpour, extended a welcome to those present, and in a few well-chosen remarks, introduced the following numbers;—

Vocal Solo—"The Lord is My Shepherd"—Miss Reesor.

Vocal Solo—"The Flight of Ages"—Mr. Gordon Wright.

Vocal Solo—"Two Cities"—Mr. Jas. Browne.

Vocal Solo—"One Sweetly Solemn Thought"—Mr. J. M. Johnston.

Hear Mrs. Jean Blewitt at Charlotte St. Lecture Room to-night. Good musical programme. Candy Table and Tea Room. Admission 25 cents.

Good Fishing

Mr. and Mrs. Winitt, Norman Howe, Robert Cassels and H. A. P. Armstrong, of Toronto; and Herbert S. Wood, of Peterborough, were recent guests at "Lakeview," Belmont Lake. Mrs. Winitt, who by the way is the wife of the proprietor of the Queen's Hotel, Toronto, caught a lunge weighing 18 pounds last week. The fishing at Belmont Lake this fall is better than that for many years past. Twenty-one maskinonge were caught there last week in a day and a half.—Norwood Register.

THEATRICAL

THE WOLFE

There will be a performance of one of the plays of the newest successful dramatist, Eugene Walter, at the "Grand" next Thursday, Nov. 5th, when his great play, from the Lyric Theatre, New York, will be given.

"The Wolf" is said to be a clean, pure, wholesome and charming drama that grips the heart strings from the first act. A simple story of the Canadian wilds, depicting the noble manhood and brave characters that are born, live and die in the wilderness, ignorant of the big world and its temptations beyond the woods and mountains. Its trend is along the natural groves of human life. There is no striving after the unreal or artificial to bolster up the creation of a fancy. Illustrating in a soul-stirring intensity, the ultimate end of the evil-doer who transgresses the laws of God and man.

The scenic settings are described as superb, the sunset scene at the portage as being an exquisite bit of stage painting. In imagination one inhales the soothing odor of the pines.

The howling of the pack of timber wolves in the forest which, according to an old Indian legend, presage the death of a man between moonrise and set, in its weirdness and uncanniness, has never been surpassed upon the stage.

A cast of notable players includes Mr. Severin DeDeyn, Miss Mabel Estelle and the Messrs. Henry Duggan, Geo. O. Nicholls, Frank Dee and J. T. Chaillice.

ABOUT GOSSIPING

As the result of a literary debate in Peterborough recently it was resolved that gossiping is more harmful than stealing. All sensible people will admit that the above resolution is indeed too true and that a character, or rather a reputation can be ruined in short order by malicious gossip-mongers plying their loathsome and degrading profession in any community. Recent and past developments in Havelock, gave particular point to this view. Vile, immoral, misleading and utterly false tales have been spread about town time and time again—gossip, carefully calculated to ruin, or seriously tarnish, reputations far more precious than merely worldly possessions. No condemnation is too severe for the authors of such gossip and we think it high time that all such were examined by the authorities, and found guilty, committed to the care of their rightful residence — the lunatic asylum or the common prison.—Havelock Standard.

KICKED ON KNEE BY HORSE AND SERIOUSLY INJURED

Mrs. John Heal, Charlotte St. left today for Roseneath, called there by the serious condition of her uncle, Mr. Artemus Blodgett, who a short while ago was badly injured by a kick from a horse. Mr. Blodgett had driven to Dunnett's Landing, Rice Lake, where he met his daughter off the Saturday afternoon boat. She was returning from a trip to the North-west.

On reaching home he proceeded to unhitch the horse and while doing so the animal kicked him in the knee dislocating it. At first, the accident was not thought serious but later developments have proved it to be so and little hope is held out for his recovery.

THE SHEFFIELD CHOIR'S VISIT

A feature of the coming visit of the Sheffield Choir to Canada has perhaps been lost sight of. The undertaking of bringing so large a body as two hundred people across the Atlantic for a flying visit involves such a tremendous outlay that no possible profit can result from the tour. This is a fact not only fully appreciated by Dr. Coward, the conductor and the members of the Sheffield Choir, and most of all by Dr. Charles A. E. Harriss, on whom the financial responsibility rests. He has decided that rather than try to make both ends meet by charging a higher scale of prices to make these prices as popular as possible, and it is for that reason that tickets are being offered in the present reasonable scale in all the ten cities which the Choir visits. There is no question that the public response to this consideration will be very great, and crowded houses will everywhere welcome the finest body of singers in Europe.

The concert will be held here in the Grand Opera House on Thursday evening, Nov. 12th.

WILL MAKE ANOTHER TRY TO LOCATE GREAT TREASURE

New Candidate for the Buried Gold of the Cocos Island in the Person of C. R. G. Robinson.

Cocos Island, that palm covered, picturesque, solitary bit of land some 400 miles west of Panama is once more to be hunted over for the treasure which Don Pedro Benito, the famous pirate is said to have hidden there.

The adventurer is Mr Claud Robert, Greves Robinson, who has obtained from the Costa Rican Government to whom Cocos belongs, sole rights for two years to explore the island.

Benito, who commanded the brig Relampago, carrying eight carronades and a 32-pounder 'Long Tom' swivel was one of the last of those pirates who earned the title of "Terrors of the Seas," by their ruthless cruelties. On the ships he attacked he never left a soul alive if he could help it and was known to have obtained immense booties from his piracies in the Spanish Main.

About 1822 he took in succession several ships with costly cargoes, amongst them one of Guayaquil which was conveying an enormous quantity of Church plate. This with the proceeds of the other piracies he carried to Cocos Island which he made his headquarters.

The treasure he buried is according to legend worth some six millions sterling and is said to have been placed in a specially constructed pit. Into this was placed, so the story goes, hundreds of tons of silver dollars, chests of jewels, gold church plate, chalices, patens, etc., a gold crown that bore among other ornaments a diamond the size of a pigeon's egg. When the treasure pit was sealed up Benito murdered every man who had assisted in its making, so that he might be the sole depository of the secret.

Mr Robinson's title to unearth this treasure if he can is likely to be challenged by a Mr. Guissler, to whom the Costa Rican Government some two years ago also granted privileges of exploration. Lord Fitzwilliam was interested in the Guissler venture and found a vessel to carry the leader to the island.

This vessel was wrecked at sea and when Mr. Guissler at last arrived in Costa Rica in last October he could not obtain a renewal of the ample concession once granted to him. Nevertheless, vowing that no one else should find the treasure of Don Pedro, Mr. Guissler left in a sailing vessel for Cocos Island and since that time there has been no news of him.

Cocos Island is about twelve miles in circumference has plenty of good water, groves of cocoanut palms and banana trees and animal life, including droves of wild pigs in abundance.

A second verdict against W. Montgomery, cashier of the Allegheny National Bank has convicted him of the embezzlement of $613,000.

SPORTING NEWS

SIDE BET HAS BEEN MADE BY HARRISON AND HOAGLAND

Arrangements have been completed for the ninehour heel and toe contest between Champion Hoagland and Jim Harrison, of town on the 5th of November, Thanksgiving Day. Hoagland has sent along his part of the side bet and Harrison has covered the amount and signed articles so the lovers of the walking game will have an opportunity of witnessing a great match when they meet. Harrison is sure Hoagland cannot beat him one mile in nine hours, as the champion tried his best to get away on the local man when they met in the walk at Port Hope, and failed to get a lap in six hours.

The match will take place in the Brock street rink and will no doubt draw a great crowd, for both men are favorites here.

WAS JOHN L. SULLIVAN EVER THE WORLD'S CHAMPION?

Did John L. Sullivan ever hold the world's championship? To this question the average man will say "yes." But there is perhaps some reason for an answer in the negative.

This morning a couple of local young men got into an argument over the matter. One stated positively that John L. never held the championship, while the other was just as certain that he did.

The sporting department of the Review was approached on the matter but no information was forthcoming from that source other than the big heavyweight was the holder of the diamond belt presented by Richard K. Fox, of the Police Gazette, and emblematic of the world's heavyweight pugilistic championship.

Mr. Joe Hay, proprietor of the Peterborough Bowling Club, and formerly sporting editor of the Toronto News, said that Sullivan never really held the world's championship, as he didn't defeat all the champions of other countries. Joe is personally acquainted with Sullivan.

PETERBOROUGH MAY SURPRISE THE STRONG T.A.A.C. TEAM

The T.A.S. players had a fine practice last night and are prepared to put up a great argument against the T.A.A.C. at Riverside Park next Saturday afternoon. The Toronto bunch had little difficulty in defeating the locals when the two teams came together in Toronto, and expect to win here. But they know the Peterborough aggregation will be reinforced by several good players and are taking no chances. They will bring down a line-up that will be a particularly strong one, and according to the Toronto papers, will be a hard one to beat in the Canadian championship finals.

Reg. DeGruchy, who was unable to play in Toronto on account of injuries, will be on the visiting team and his presence will count for a great deal.

There will be no admission fee charged to the grand stand, which has accommodation for 600 spectators.

Dr. MacPherson has been handing out some good advice to the team, and as a result they will be able to play a much faster and more systematic game than they did during the first game with the locals in Toronto. He will have the effect also of greatly strengthening the back division.

HACK. DEPENDS UPON HIS SPEED TO BEAT ROGERS TO-NIGHT

Yankee Rogers and his manager, W. B. Naylor, arrived in town this afternoon and both are quite confident of putting the "kibosh" on Young Hackenschmidt. He admits that he will have to put his best efforts to work to do this, but he is in such good condition that he does not fear the result.

Hackenschmidt is quite confident and thinks Rogers will not be so windy after the match, for he depends upon his speed to get away with these giants that he is meeting all the time. He thinks Rogers no exception and that he will go the same as all of them when he puts some of his holds on the Yank.

Bill Landry and A. C. Yekome are on for the first preliminary and this bout promises to be a peach, as both are quite confident. They will mix it up from the gong.

Ned Fitzpatrick is tackling a tough proposition when he undertakes to put Jack Wilson's shoulders to the mat twice in fifteen minutes, for Wilson is the slipperest bunch of muscle in the wrestling game in this town. Fitz thinks this is a good way to train for this match with Burridge and will go after Jack and do his best to get the two falls in the time limit.

The management will have the rink heated and quite comfortable for the fans to witness the sport. The advance sal ehas been good and a great crowd is sure to be on hand.

The first bout will be called at 8 o'clock and everything run off on time.

RUNNING

Shrubbs Version of It

From the Boston Journal

Alfred Shrubb arrived in town yesterday morning, coming direct from Buffalo, where he defeated three men in a five mile race. The little Briton was somewhat tired after his jorney, but told an interesting tale in regard to the trouble in Montreal on Saturday with Tom Flanagan, manager of Tom Longboat, the Indian runner.

Shrubb's version of the affair is as follows:

"I met Flanagan in the Windsor on Saturday and extended my hand in friendship. We were friendly last year and I could not understand why Tom heaped abuse on me, called me vile names and accused me of coming to Montreal to belittle Longboat. I told him I had no intention of bothering the Indian but wanted to run him a match race for a substantial side bet. After more abuse from Flanagan, I finally told him that I would run Longboat's head off and he retaliated by offering to put up $1000 as a side bet."

"We agreed on a sporting editor as the man to hold the $100 deposit each side was to put up. As we started to leave the hotel, Flanagan suddenly grabbed me by the throat and asked me what I was doing in Montreal, anyway. We separated and went to the newspaper offices in different cabs, but the sporting editor refused to hold the money and told Flanagan that I had tricked him into a match race. I was told to get out of the office, which I did."

"Later in the evening at the awarding of the prizes in the fifteen mile race, which was won by Longboat, Flanagan publicly apologized to me for his actions before 2000 people and also apologized to the proprietor of the hotel for creating the disturbance. That ended the incident as far as I was concerned."

In regard to running over the course just after the start, so as to show a comparative test, against the Indian, Shrubb said:

"I had no intention of running over the course shortly after the start but did express an intention of covering the distance after the other runners had finished or a couple of hours after the race. I told several of my intention but they remonstrated and finally decided not to make the test, as it might cause a demonstration. The King's highway was as much mine as any other man's, was my belief, and they could not have prevented my using the public roads, but I am not a troublemaker. Running is my business at present and I want to run Tom Longboat, or any man living from two miles up to any reasonable distance. If Flanagan will make good the $1000 bluff I will gladly accommodate him and will increase the wager to $5000 if he so desires."

WRESTLING

Fred Beell, the wonderful light heavyweight wrestler, of Wisconsin, who is easily the superior of any man at his weight, will be the contestant with Westergaart at Montreal to-morrow night.

Westergaart will have a big advantage in height and weight, but he will have to do his best to keep the wily Beell from defeating him and one of the best matches of the season should result.

THE RING

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Willus Britt, of San Francisco, manager of Lightweight Champion Battling Nelson, stopped off in Chicago for a few hours on his way to the coast.

"The rumors of Nelson fighting McFarland six rounds in the east, or meeting Johnny Thompson at this place, are all wrong," said Britt. "Nelson has only two fights in view, and neither of these is likely to come off soon. One of these battles, however, is to be with Packey McFarland. The battle will come off about New Year's. The other fight, if arranged, will come off later."

ALFRED SHRUBB WANTS TOO MUCH

Word was Received From Him To-day by Mr. Genno

Mr. Genno, of the Auditorium Roller Rink, received a letter from Alfred Shrubb to-day in reply to the former's communication asking the worlds 'champion distance man how much he would take to come to Peterborough and compete in the roller rink against a skater.

Shrubb stated his terms, which are too exorbitant, and unless he can be secured at a lower figure it is not likely he will appear here.

RUGBY

Expect a Hard Game

The Toronto A. A. C. seniors will leave on Saturday morning for Peterborough, where they expect a hard game from the locals.—Toronto Star.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, of the Varsity champion rugby team of 1905, will play on the half-back line for Peterborough against T.A.A.C. on Saturday, in the senior O. R. F. U. game.—Toronto Star.

Y. M. C. A. PRACTICES

There will be a practice of the Y. M. C. A. senior and junior Rugby teams at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon after the T. A. S.-T. A. A. C. game. It is expected that there will be a large turnout. Two teams will be picked and a game played. Among those expected to be out are the following:

Graham, Evans, Thornton, Moore, Staunton, Walker, Caniff, Archibald, Downing, Shirley, Armstrong, Patterson and McDonald.

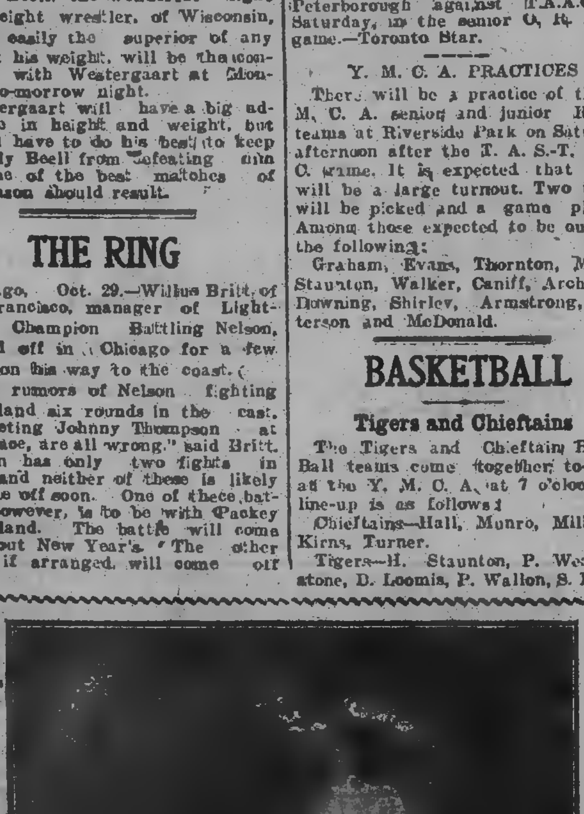
BASKETBALL

Tigers and Chieftains

The Tigers and Chieftain Basket Ball teams come together to-night at the Y. M. C. A. at 7 o'clock. The line-up is as follows:

Chieftains—Hall, Munro, Millburn, Kirns, Turner.

Tigers—H. Staunton, P. Weatherstone, D. Loomis, P. Wallon, S. Laing.



YANKEE ROGERS

He is picked to win to-night's match by many but those who have seen Hack work but think he has great chances of beating Yankee.

HOCKEY

Manager Flemming has been busily engaged during the past week in fitting up the skating rink. It seems strange that after the long period of fine weather that we have had, to begin to think about ice and snow, but in the natural order of things we must expect this. The icy promise of coming coldness breathes in every breeze. Soon, all too soon, the old sward, the tuneful snow shovel, the veracious thermometer and hockey, will divide the public attention so lately centered on baseball.—Norwood Register.

From Portage la Prairie it is reported that the wires are already working with a view to securing Hamby Shore. The Portage people deny that Poulin, Ross and Quinn of their last year's team, are going east with the Edmonton cup chasers, and assure Whitcroft that he must look elsewhere for stars, as these men are already booked for Portage.—The Globe.

GOLF

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Willie Anderson, of the Onwentsia club, four times winner of the national open, and three times winner of the western open, has added another championship to his collection by annexing the title of the Western Professional Golfers' Association.

Playing through a light rain, the North Berwick player made the four rounds of the nine hole course at the Beverley Country Club in 151 strokes, beating Stewart Gardner, the tall Exmoor representative, by one stroke, while Robert Simpson, a former western title holder, now with the Blue Mounted Country Club, of Milwaukee, was third with 155.

Harry Turpie, of Edgewater, and W. H. Way, the big Cleveland player, split the fourth and fifth prizes, tying at 155. Anderson's victory netted him the gold medal of the association and a cash prize of $75.

ATHLETICS

So Tom Longboat is to turn pro. Some will say that the experience will not be a new one for the Indian.

There are a great many who would like to see the Indian jump to the pro. ranks, simply for the fact that they would like to see him hook up with Shrubb. Such a race would draw an immense crowd, irrespective of where it was pulled off.

Meanwhile we have Fred Simpson, the Peterborough Indian, making the declaration that he will trim the Indian next time out. Simpson ran a grand race for ten miles at Montreal, when he gave out through lack of condition.

Tom Longboat will turn professional within a week.

Tom Longboat has all but signed a contract to meet Dorando, Hayes and Shrubb in Madison Square Gardens, New York, in the very near future.

Pat T. Powers, President of the Eastern League, and impressedurio of bicycle and athletic events in Gotham, is the man for whom he will race.

During the last few days an emissary of Mr. Powers has been working on the handlers of the Indian. This morning Tom Flannagan, his manager, refused to make a statement regarding the Indian's future, and every officer of the Irish Canadian Athletic Club did the same.

Pat Powers has offered Longboat $1,500 for a single engagement at Madison Square Gardens. This is win, lose or draw.

If Longboat will agree to run a series of races after the big event, in which Hayes, Dorando and Shrubb compete, he is to get $500 for each engagement against each individual runner.

This would give Longboat about $2,500 or $3,000 right off the reel as a professional runner. There are other forces at work who are willing to guarantee Longboat $5,000 for three months' work, racing all comers in various sections of the country.

It is only the controversy between these two propositions that keep the handlers of Longboat from declaring the Indian a professional this afternoon.

Longboat will be a pro. in a very few days. What is more, he will get the money if his handlers operate things properly.—Toronto News.

ROWING

In discussing the recent Barry-Towns sculling race for the English championship, the London Standard says

"Both men rowed themselves to a complete standstill, but once more the old adage respecting youth being served becomes applicable. Towns was giving away thirteen years in age an inch or two in height and a few pounds in weight but for a reputably slow beginner and great stayer Towns surprised everybody by being ahead in less than a minute and a half. Approaching Harrod's, Barry spurted hard to catch Towns, who had taken his opponent's water but the wary Australian drew out again and at Hammersmith bridge Towns possessed the advantage of half a length.

"Fixing this point to the top of Chiswick Eyot, Barry had the inside station and it was here that the Englishman made his supreme effort. Going up rapidly Barry was just about level at Chiswick church and a little further on Towns began to show signs of distress. The Australian stuc kpluckily to his business, however but Barry got so far ahead that he was enabled to take the Middlesex station and wash his rival right along the Devonshire meadows. After Barnes bridge Towns spurted hard and got up a trifle but Barry, although tiring, and only doing about twenty-five for the final minute lasted out to win a magnificent race, reflecting the greatest credit upon everybody concerned by two lengths."

Rock-Bound Labrador.

Readers of "The Outposts of Empire" series will have gathered from Dr. Grenfell's admirable letters that Labrador is a bleak land in which men live a life of considerable hardship. Indeed, there are many parts of Labrador which are not alone icebound throughout a long winter, but never out of touch with ice from year's end to year's end. And yet, the odd thing is that much of the country is in precisely the same latitude as the United Kingdom. But, while the Mother Country is warmed by the Gulf stream, Labrador is laved by the icy waters of the Arctic current, which in midsummer brings down thousands of ice-bergs to cool her rock-bound coasts. Any one who has ever passed in a ship near to an ice-berg, even in August, will remember that the proximity was extremely chilling. The natives of most parts of Labrador fear the bleak interior of their land, as a barren wilderness over which starvation broods and icy blasts sweep. That is the chief reason why the people of Labrador are sea fisher-folk. Inland, even the Indian is sometimes caught, so to say, in a barren place, and starved to death before he can reach either game or a settlement. But there are other parts of Labrador which are more agreeable, and men who have visited the country in summer time for the sport it affords, have a way of returning there another year.

Dog Steals Milk.

A policeman and a load of passengers on a Toronto street car were greatly surprised recently on beholding a collie dog with a quart gem jar in its mouth containing a pint of milk. The constable got off the car and followed the dog, which with tail in the air and ears set back was heading for a side street, where the sagacious canine emptied the bottle on the walk and licked up its contents.

A Historic Flag.

The flag in Trumbull's celebrated painting of "The Battle of Bunker Hill," to be seen in the rotunda of the capitol at Washington, represents the red flag of the period, white corner, green pine tree.

Pemmican.

Pemmican, originally a North American Indian preparation, is made of the lean portions of beef, thoroughly dried and then pounded into a paste and tightly pressed into cakes. Raisins are generally mixed into the beef to add to the flavor. Pemmican will keep for a very long time and is for this reason used on the long arctic expeditions.

KLONDIKE IMPROVES.

Output of Gold Fields at Dawson Is Going Uphill Again.

It is just nine years since Dawson, the capital of the Yukon, and the centre of world-famed gold-fields of the Klondike, was connected by telegraph with British Columbia, and thereby with the outside world. The Klondike was then at the height of its prosperity and the tide of its gold output was at its flow. In the year 1900 the Yukon streams and gravel beds yielded gold to the value of twenty-two and a half million dollars, and the inhospitable regions of this semi-Arctic land were the Mecca of those adventurous spirits who were willing to risk all in order "to get rich quick." Some succeeded, many staked their all and failed, returning home disappointed and broken men, others left their bones in the Far North and were heard of no more. After a time the gold-fields of the Klondike ceased "to pan-out" as they had once done, and the yield of gold steadily declined. Last year the output had a value of only about $3,150,000, and that was only about one-half of the value obtained in 1906. This year shows better again, and the output has gone up to five million dollars with prospects of a considerable increase in 1909. Klondikers claim that the increase will continue, and that the output of nine or ten years ago will soon be equalled. This expectation is based on the increased and greatly improved means of hydraulic mining, by means of which larger quantities of gravel can be "panned," and "panned" much closer than they could be a few years ago. Gravel of a lower paying grade can therefore be profitably worked. It seems somewhat remarkable that after all these years the "mother lode" from which all this gold has in ages past been washed away from and mixed with the gravel of the creeks and rivers, has not yet been found. It may never be discovered and perhaps ages ago it was worn away, but should it be found it ought to turn out to be the greatest quartz gold mine in the world.

STATUES IN BUTTER.

Canadian Historical Statuettes at the France-British Exhibition.

Artists and photographers sometimes have to work under difficult conditions in order to produce striking and realistic pictures. Seldom, however, has a piece of artistic work been executed under more uncomfortable conditions than those which the artist responsible for the remarkable life-size statues in butter, to be seen in the Canadian section of the Franco-British Exhibition, found necessary.

For two months his studio was a refrigerator. Probably the majority of modellers would find an atmosphere several degrees below freezing-point scarcely conducive to good work. The artist, however, who made the statues which are attracting thousands of people every day, and who is well known in the art world, although we are not at liberty to mention his name, found the cold no inconvenience.

The piece re resistance is an historical tableau depicting the meeting of Jacques Cartier, the celebrated French navigator of the sixteenth century, who made one of the first attempts at colonization in Canada with Donnacona, the Indian chief. Cartier is standing in a boat, in which a rower is seated. Another figure of a man fastening it to the shore, while Donnacona is standing erect gazing at Cartier, a finishing touch being given to the group by the trees and foliage in the background. Everything is modelled in butter, and forms a striking picture of cream-colored statuary, which seems to deserve a better fate than being eaten with bread, which will probably be its end when the exhibition closes.

Winter has arrived at Fernie with a snowstorm and freezing weather.

While Dr. Chisholm, the Conservative candidate, who carried East Huron, was speaking at Wingham, after election, a woman attacked him with stones.

THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

COPYRIGHT. 1907. BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

We started up the west coast. After three or four miles along a mesa formation where often we had to circle long detours to avoid the gullies we came upon another short beach and beyond it a series of ledges on which basked several hundred seals. They did not seem alarmed. In fact, one old bull, scarred by many battles, made toward us.

We left him, scaled the cliff and turned up a broad, pleasant valley toward the interior.

There the later lava flow had been deflected. All that showed of the original eruption were occasional red outcropping rocks. Soil and grass had overlaid the mineral. Scattered trees were planted throughout the flat. Cacti and semitropical bushes mingled with brush on the rounded side hills. A number of brilliant birds fluttered at our approach.

Suddenly Handy Solomon, who was in advance, stopped and pointed to the crest of the hill. A file of animals moved along the sky line.

"Mutton," said he, "or the devil's a preacher!"

"Sheep!" cried Thrackles. "Where did they come from?"

"Golden Horn," I suggested. "Remember that wide, empty deck forward? They carried sheep there."

The men separated, intending fresh meat. The affair was ridiculous. These sheep had become wild as deer. Our surrounding party with its silly bared knives could only look after them open mouthed as they skipped nimbly between its members.

"Get a gun off the old man, Mr. Eagen," suggested Pulz, "and we'll have something besides salt horse and fish."

I nodded.

We continued. The island was like this as far as we went. When we climbed a ridge we found ourselves looking down on a spider web of other valleys and canyons of the same nature, all diverging to broad downs and a jump into the sea, all converging to the outworks that guarded the volcano with its canopy of vapor.

On our way home we cut across the higher country and the heads of the canyons until we found ourselves looking down on the valley and Dr. Schermerhorn's camp. The steam from the volcanic blowholes swayed below us. Through its rifts we saw the tops of the buildings. Presently we made out Percy Darrow, dressed in overalls, his sleeves rolled back and carrying a retort. He walked, very preoccupied, to one of the miniature craters, where he knelt and went through some operation indistinguishable at the distance. I looked around to see my companions staring at him fascinated, their necks craned out, their bodies drawn back into hiding. In a moment he had finished and carried the retort carefully into the laboratory. The men sighed and stood erect, once more themselves. As we turned away Perdosa voiced what must have been in the minds of all.

"A man could climb down there," said he.

"Why should he want to?" I demanded sharply.

"Quien sabe?" shrugged he.

We turned in silence toward the beach. Each brooded his thoughts. The sight of that man dressed in overalls, carrying on some mysterious business, brought home to each of us the fact that our expedition had an object as yet unknown to us. The thought had of late dropped into the background. For my part I had been so immersed in the adventure and the labor and the insistent need of the hour that I had forgotten why I had come. Dr. Schermerhorn's purpose was as inscrutable to me as at first. What had I accomplished?

The men, too, seemed struck with some such idea. There were no yarns about the campfire that night. Percy Darrow did not appear, for which I was sincerely sorry. His presence might have created a diversion. For some unknown reason all my old apprehensions, my sense of impending disaster, had returned to me strengthened. In the firelight the nigger's sullen face looked sinister, Pulz's nervous white countenance looked vicious. Thrackles' heavy, bulldog expression was threatening. Perdosa's Mexican cast fit for knife work in the back. And Handy Solomon, stretched out, leaning on his elbow, with his red headgear, his snaky hair, his hook nose, his restless eye and his glittering steel claw—the glow wrote across his aura the names of Kidd, Morgan, Blackbeard.

They sat smoking, staring into the fire with mesmerized eyes. The silence got on my nerves. I arose impatiently and walked down the pale beach, where the stars glimmered in splashes along the wettest sands. The black silhouette of the hills against the dark blue of the night sky, the white of breakers athwart the indistinct heave of the ocean, a faint light marking the position of the Laughing Lass—that was everything in the world. I made out some object rolled about in the edge of the wash. At the cost of wet feet I rescued it. It was an empty brandy bottle.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE next day we continued our explorations by land and so for a week after that. I thought it best not to relinquish all authority, so I organized regular expeditions and ordered their direction. The men did not object. It was all good enough fun to them.

The net results were that we found a resting place of sea birds—too late in the season for eggs—a hot spring near enough camp to be useful, and that was about all. The sheep were the only animals on the island, although there were several sorts of birds. In general the country was as I have described it—either volcanic or overlaid with fertile earth. In any case it was canyon and hill. We soon grew tired of climbing and turned our attention to the sea.

With the surfboat we skirted the coast. It was impregnable except in three places—our own beach, that near the seal rookery and on the south side of the island. We landed at each one of these places. But returning close to the coast we happened upon a cave mouth more or less guarded by an outlying rock.

The day was calm, so we ventured in. At first I thought it merely a gorge in the rock, but even while peering for the end wall we slipped under the archway and found ourselves in a vast room.

Our eyes were dazzled so we could make out little at first. But through the still, clear water the light filtered freely from below, showing the bottom as through a sea glass. We saw the fish near the entrance and coral and sea growths of marvelous vividness. They waved slowly as in a draft of air. The medium in which they floated was absolutely invisible, for of course there were no reflections from its surface. We seemed to be suspended in midair, and only when the dipping oars made rings could we realize that anything sustained us.

Suddenly the place let loose in pandemonium. The most fiendish cries, groans, shrieks broke out, confusing themselves so thoroughly with their own echoes that the volume of sound was continuous. Heavy splashes shook the water. The boat rocked. The invisible surface was broken into facets.

We shrank, terrified. From all about us glowed hundreds of eyes like coals of fire—on a level with us, above us, almost over our heads. Two by two the coals were extinguished.

Below us the bottom was clouded with black figures darting rapidly like a school of minnows beneath a boat. They darkened the coral and the sands and the glistening sea growths, only the occultations and brightenings succeeded each other much more swiftly.

We stared stupefied, our thinking power blurred by the incessant whirl of motion and noise.

Suddenly Thrackles laughed aloud.

"Seals!" he shouted through his trumpeted hands.

Our eyes were expanding to the twilight. We could make out the arch of the room, its shelves and hollows and niches. Lying on them we could discern the seals, hundreds and hundreds of them, all staring at us, all barking and bellowing. As we approached they scrambled from their elevations and, diving to the bottom, scurried to the entrance of the cave.

We lay on our oars for ten minutes. Then silence fell. There persisted a tiny drip, drip drip, from some point in the darkness. It merely accentuated the hush. Suddenly from far in the interior of the hill there came a long, hollow boo-o-om! It reverberated, roaring. The surge that had lifted our boat some minutes before thus reached its journey's end.

The chamber was very lofty. As we rowed cautiously in it lost nothing of its height, but something in width. It was marvelously colored, like all the volcanic rocks of this island. In addition some chemical drip had thrown across its vividness long gauzy streamers of white. We rowed in as far as the faintest daylight lasted us. The occasional reverberating boom of the surges seemed as distant as ever.

This was beyond the seal rookery on the beach. Below it we entered an open cleft of some size to another squarer cave. It was now high tide. The water extended a scant ten fathoms to end on an interior shale beach. The cave was a perfectly straight passage following the line of the cleft. How far in it reached we could not determine, for it, too, was full of seals, and after we had driven them back a hundred feet or so their fiery eyes scared us out. We did not care to put them at bay.

The next day I rowed out to the Laughing Lass and got a rifle. I found the captain asleep in his bunk and did not disturb him. Perdosa and I, with infinite pains, tracked and stalked the sheep, of which I killed one. We found the mutton excellent. The hunting was difficult and the quarry as time went on more and more suspicious, but henceforward we did not lack for fresh meat. Furthermore, we soon discovered that fine trolling was to be had outside the reef. We rigged a sail for the extra dory and spent much of our time at the sport. I do not know the names of the fish. They were very gamy, indeed, and ran from five to an indeterminate number of pounds in weight. Above fifty pounds our light tackle parted, so we had no means of knowing how large they may have been.

Thus we spent very pleasantly the greater part of two weeks. At the end of that time I made up my mind that it would be just as well to get back to business. Accordingly I called Perdosa and directed him to sort and clear of rust the salvaged chain cable. He refused flatly. I took a step toward him. He drew his knife and backed away.

"Perdosa," said I firmly, "put up that knife."

"No," said he.

I pulled the saw barreled Colt's 45 and raised it slowly to a level with his breast.

"Perdosa," I repeated, "drop that knife."

The crisis had come, but my resolution was fully prepared for it. I should not have cared greatly if I had had to shoot the man, as I certainly should have done had he disobeyed. There would then have been one less to deal with in the final accounting, which strangely enough I now for a moment never doubted would come. I had not before aimed at a man's life, so you can see to what tensity the baffling mystery had strung me.

Perdosa hesitated a fraction of an instant. I really think he might have chanced it, but Handy Solomon, who had been watching me closely, growled at him.

"Drop it, you fool!" he said.

Perdosa let fall the knife.

"Now, get at that cable," I commanded, still at white heat. I stood over him until he was well at work, then turned back to set tasks for the other men. Handy Solomon met me halfway.

"Begging your pardon, Mr. Eagen," said he, "I want a word with you."

"I have nothing to say to you," I snapped, still excited.

"It ain't reasonable not to hear a man's say," he advised in his most conciliatory manner. "I'm talking for all of us."

He paused a moment, took my silence for consent and went ahead.

"Begging your pardon, Mr. Eagen," said he, "we ain't going to do any more useless work. There ain't no laziness about us, but we ain't going to be busy at nothing. All the camp work and the haulin' and cuttin' and cleanin' and the rest of it we'll do gladly. But we ain't goin' to pound any more cable, and you can kiss the book on that."

"You mean to mutiny?" I asked.

He made a deprecatory gesture.

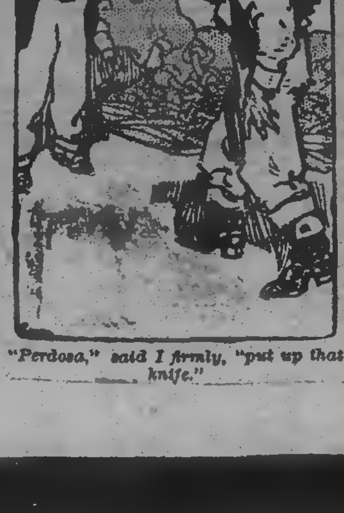
"Put us aboard ship, sir, and let us hear the old man give his orders, and you'll find no mutiny in us. But here ashore it's different. Did the old man give orders to pound the cable?"

"I represent the captain," I stammered.

He caught the evasion. "I thought so. Well, if you got any kick on us, please, sir, go get the old man. If he says to our face pound cable, why pound cable it is. Ain't that right, boys?"

They murmured something. Perdosa deliberately dropped his hammer and joined the group. My hand strayed again toward the sawed off Colt's 45.

"I wouldn't do that," said Handy Solomon, almost kindly. "You couldn't kill us all. And w'at good would it do? I asks you that. I can cut down a chicken with my knife at twenty feet. You must surely see, sir, that I could have killed you too easy while you were covering Pancho there. This ain't got to be a war, Mr. Eagan, just because we don't want to work without any sense to it."



"Perdosa," said I firmly, "put up that knife."

There was more of the same sort. I had plenty of time to see my dilemma. Either I would have to abandon my attempt to keep the men busy or I would have to invoke the authority of Captain Selover. To do the latter would be to destroy it. The master had become a stuffed figure, a bogy with which to frighten, an empty bladder that a prick would collapse. With what grace I could muster I had to give in.

"You'll have to have it your own way, I suppose," I snapped.

Thrackles grinned, and Pulz started to say something, but Handy Solomon, with a peremptory gesture and a black scowl, stopped him short.

"Now, that's what I calls right proper and handsome!" he cried admiringly. "We reely had no right to expect that, boys, as seamen from our first officer! You can kiss the book on it that very few crews have such kind masters. Mr. Eagen has the right, and we signed to it all straight to work us as he pleases, and w'at does he do? Why, he up and gives us a week shore leave, and then he gives us light watches, and all the time our pay goes on just the same. Now, that's w'at I calls right proper and handsome conduct, or the devil's a preacher, and I ventures with all respect to propose three cheers for Mr. Eagen."

They gave them, grinning broadly. The villain stood looking at me, a sardonic gleam in the back of his eye. Then he gave a little hitch to his red head covering and sauntered away humming between his teeth. I stood watching him, choked with rage and indecision. The humming broke into words:

"'Oh, quarter; oh, quarter!' the jolly pirates cried.
Blow high, blow low, what care we!
But the quarter that we gave them was to sink them in the sea,
Down on the coast of the high Barbare-e-e."

"Here, you swab," he cried to Thrackles, "and you, Pancho, get some wood, lively! And, Pulz, bring us a pail of water. Doctor, let's have duff to celebrate on."

The men fell to work with alacrity.

CHAPTER XVIII.

THAT evening I smoked in a splendid isolation while the men whispered apart. I had nothing to do but smoke and to chew my cud, which was bitter. There could be no doubt, however I may have saved my face, that command had been taken from me by that rascal, Handy Solomon. I was in two minds as to whether or not I should attempt to warn Darrow or the doctor. Yet what could I say and against whom should I warn them? The men had grumbled, as men always do grumble in idleness, and had perhaps talked a little wildly, but that was nothing.

The only indisputable fact I could adduce was that I had allowed my authority to slip through my fingers. And adequately to excuse that I should have to confess that I was a writer and no handler of men.

I abandoned the unpleasant train of thought with a snort of disgust, but it had led me to another. In the joy and uncertainty of living I had practically lost sight of the reason for my coming. With me it had always been more the adventure than the story. My writing was a byproduct, a utilization of what life offered me. I had set sail possessed by the sole idea of ferreting out Dr. Schermerhorn's investigations, but the gradual development of affairs had ended by absorbing my every faculty. Now, cast into an eddy by my change of fortunes, the original idea regained its force. I was out of the active government of affairs, with leisure on my hands, and my thoughts naturally turned with curiosity again to the laboratory in the valley.

Darrow's "devil fires" were again painting the sky. I had noticed them from time to time, always with increasing wonder. The men accepted them easily as only one of the unexplained phenomena of a sailor's experience, but I had not as yet hit on a hypothesis that suited me. They were not allied to the aurora. They differed radically from the ordinary volcanic emanations and scarcely resembled any electrical displays I had ever seen. The night was cool. The stars bright. I resolved to investigate.

Without further delay I arose to my feet and set off into the darkness. Immediately one of the group detached himself from the fire and joined me.

"Going for a little walk, sir?" asked Handy Solomon sweetly. "That's quite right and proper. Nothin' like a little walk to get you fit and right for your bunk."

To Be Continued.

Dr. A. E. Ross, the Conservative candidate in Kingston, had to carry on his fight with the knowledge that his father was not expected to live.

FIRST CHEAP WATCH

The Story of the Famous Old Long Winding Waterbury.

SCHEME OF AN OLD COBBLER

How the Connecticut Shoemaker's Idea Was Taken Up and Worked Out—A Timepiece That Came to Be Known All Over the World.

In a small country town in Connecticut lived a cobbler. He was a poor man and a peculiar one. The boys called him a "gene," and some thought him crazy. But he kept on in the even tenor of his way, living his own life and thinking his own thoughts. One of these thoughts was that he could make a watch that would have only three wheels.

A watchmaker out of a job heard of the cobbler and called at his little shop. This was the beginning of the famous Waterbury watch, which was the first cheap watch to be manufactured. It is now a thing of the past. But its cheap price and its remarkably long "wind" (it was a stem winder) were known around the world.

The Waterbury was named for the town where it was made. It had more than the three wheels that the cobbler had planned, but the little old shoemaker's idea was the original germ from which was evolved the successful cheap watch.

Having got the idea, the purchaser of the cobbler's rights found that the first difficulty in his path was lack of money. He looked about for a man with money enough, nerve enough and imagination enough to lead him to render the financial aid without which no first step could be taken. He was found, because it was a Yankee with an indomitable will that was looking for him.

"How much money will it take and how long a time do you want before you can begin to make your watches in sufficient quantities to make the thing a success," he inquired.

"I will be frank with you," replied the inventor. "It will require $25,000, and I shall need eight months for preparation."

"Go ahead," said the daring capitalist.

He went ahead. He met unexpected difficulties and had spent $250,000 and used up twenty-eight months before he turned out a single watch. But the capitalist never faltered. Then the factory, for which every piece of machinery had to be invented and specially made, turned out its first thousand watches.

Not one of them would go! Among other things, it was found that the sheets of brass out of which were stamped the wheels of the watch had a grain somewhat like wood. The wheels cut out round would not stay round.

This difficulty being remedied, a second thousand watches were made. A large number of these went, but the percentage of "stoppers" (watches that refused to go) was still too large.

New study, new experiments, however, finally perfected the cheap little timekeepers to the point of perfection that only about 10 per cent were stoppers. The good watches were tested in six positions—lying on the face, on the back and in four positions on the edge. The maker of each part stamped his mark on the part he made, so that if fault was found in that part he must make it right.

Then came the question of selling the watches, and over $800,000 was spent in the years of its vogue in advertising the Waterbury watch. Some of the methods used were interesting.

A negro minstrel troupe were paid to open their show by saying, "We have come from Waterbury, the land of eternal spring," referring to the long time required to wind the Waterbury watch.

One day the owner of one of these timepieces was winding it on the train. Across the aisle a traveler noted that his neighbor was winding his watch. It caused no thought until a second look and then a third showed the winding still under way. Then the astonished man spoke. "Excuse me, sir, but are you winding a watch?"

"Yes," said the winding owner, "and I'm tired of it. You wind awhile, will you?" This led to explanations and resulted in the ordering by the stranger, who had never before seen a Waterbury, of 50,000 watches for the use of his business house in its China trade.

The great business went on, and large sums of money were made in it. All over the world people were buying these watches, so cheap were they. All over the world people laughed at the "long wind." The old backer of the enterprise had died, and one of his successors felt indignant because his son in traveling in some remote part of Hungary was asked if the Waterbury he came from was the place where the watch with a long wind was made.

"And," said the man, "I don't want the product of my factory laughed about all over the earth." But his ambition led him to try to make a good watch. The new field he soon found was by this time occupied by most successful competitors, and after getting into hopeless indebtedness the old Waterbury Watch company died in the house of those who should have been its friends.—John F. Simmons in New York Tribune.

"THE WOLF"

Story of the play which appears here shortly.

The following story of "The Wolf," which will be presented at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, November 5th, appears in the "Canada West" magazine, for October, and is from the pen of Hugh Stuart Campbell:

Canada has long been the land of romance for the story-maker "The Wolf" is the first striking realization of Canadian atmosphere in a play. Eugene Walters, who has given us this clean, bold picture of elemental passions, calls it a melodrama. Rather should it be classed as a romantic drama, so greve, spacious and poetical is the movement. This is no intellectual word-sparring of a silken boudoir, but a conflict in which men "stand on their feet and fight" for supremacy in love. The action culminates in the events of a single day.

Andrew McTavish, granite-hearted, Bible-quoting old Scotchman, believes all women wanton in their love. To remove his motherless daughter, Hilda, from possible friendship with any of the opposite sex, he has built a log hut on the banks of the Wind River, in the northern forests of the Hudson Bay country—in stern determination to "keep her soul white." In spite of the emotional barrenness of her life, the bitter taunts of her father because she resembles the mother who has deserted them, Hilda grows to young womanhood with a heart puer, sweet and patient. The only one who has deserted them, Hilda grows to young womanhood with a heart pure, sweet and petient. The only one who has ever sought to strengthen her with sympathy is a young rench Canadian, Jules Beaubien, who prefers the wilderness to Montreal or Quebec, and in his wanderings has come every summer to talk and smoke with old Andrew B'aptiste le Grand, a Hudson Bay trader and nomad, is his faithful "dog." Jules has the enviable distinction of being the only one who can make Andrew McTavish laugh. So Andre whas smoked and drunk with him and let him see much of Hilda. Besides, "rench Canadians are only half-men," so no harm can come from Jules.

This summer Hilda is eighteen and the responsibility of "keeping her soul white" devolves upon herself. In the years that Andrew and his daughter have been isolated from the world, a great change has been taking place in the wilderness unknown to them. The land of the Hudson's Bay region, reserved for centuries to the hunter and the trapper, had been discovered to be enormously valuable as a wheat producer. The railways have stretched their tentacles rapidly through the wilderness, leaving towns and grain fields in their wake. While directing the surveying for a branch line near the Little Bear River, William McDonald, an American engineer, takes temporary quarters in the McTavish home. With him is George Huntley, a young assistant.

McDonald is familiar with all that ignorant Hilda longs for with the intensity of long-unsatisfied feeling. Even Jules, Hilda's "one friend," as she calls him, does not talk to her of the houses and ladies and magazines of great cities. Jules has been to Montreal and Quebec, even to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, true, but he loves the forests of the north. "A man's heart," he tells Hilda, "calls it where it will, and he can give no reason. I have been told that some love the song of the sea, and some the song of the cities—that men cannot live only where there are thousands of men, and that men cannot live without feeling the roll of the ocean under their feet. But me—I am a rench-Canadian. For six generations we have borne our children close to nature. To me, Hilda, the forest speaks as my comrade; the dogs, the sledge—they are all part of my heart. The north has been my only bride, and she is always young, with a smile on her face."

Besides, Jules does not think it wise to talk of places one may never visit. So he had never told Hilda of the bustling, varied, multi-colored life of cities. McDonald is not so scrupulous. With his wealth of information, he gains Hilda's attention. Through attracting her interest, he intends to gain her love. This is his pastime, the recompense he allows himself for the difficult life of an engineer. He has a wife and children at home. But he must find someone to amuse him wherever he goes.

Such is the adjustment of relations among the characters of "The Wolf" when the play opens upon a background of autumnal woodland.

In the foreground is the log hut of McTavish, a bear skin drying over the entrance. Rich, full-blooded colors of autumn dominate the scene. The tree boughs hang heavily with crimson leaves, mottled with gold. Endless leagues of forest stretch into the distance, wholly obliterating the horizon and revealing glimpses of a quiet lake.

Andrew McTavish, sitting before his door and whittling leisurely as he listens to B'aptiste Le Grand, feels none of this autumnal beauty. B'aptiste, as is his wont when he has a companion, talks of the American for whom he and Jules search. They have never seen him. His name even is unknown to them. Yet they will find him some day for what he did to Annette. Jules sister and B'aptiste's sweetheart. She was Jules' halfsister, to be exact, for although they had the same father, Annette's mothe was an Ojibway Indian. Annette was a good girl in spite of the fact that she had loved the American and killed herself when he deserted her two years ago. But he and Jles will find the American some day.

McTavish ridicules B'aptiste's belief in dead Annette's goodness. No, women are all alike. Their hearts are black. Did not his own experience prove it? He had married a young Swede off the streets of Montreal. The least she might have done to repay him had been to give him a son. Had she done it? No. Hilda was his Christmas present, a yellow-haired Swede in her mother's image. The mother had deserted him for a lover. Yellow hair indicated a taint of the original sin; and Hilda too is predestined to destruction.

Hilda, however, finds an aggressive partisan in young Huntley. He and McTavish have a standing dislike for each other because apparently Huntley "ha na respect for gray hairs." In spite of the laziness and love of fun which often temporarily blind him, young Huntley sees clearly that McDonald intends to amuse himself at Hilda's expense. Now he has worked for McDonald many years and looked silently on while McDonald pursued similar methods of pleasure in New York and and the villages where his work led him. Hilda is different. This time Huntley resolves to act, though as yet his impulses are not formulated into a definite plan.

He gives her what she needs unconsciously to strengthen her against McDonald's influence; an expression of his belief in her goodness. He has heard her mother's story from the railroad men who dub McTavish the "Madman of the North." "It's a shame the way he treats you. I heard how he married your mother. And she was pretty just like you, and he treated her awful rough. There are some people who are just naturally bad and some, like your mother, who are driven to it. And I believe that those who are driven stand an equal chance with those who are always good."

McDonald has no outward grossness to repel Hilda. He is a clean-cut, vigorous man and an efficient worker. His excellent outward appearance gives authority to what he chooses to tell Hilda. He chooses to tell her that he loves her, that the life she will lead with him will contain pleasure, affection and material comfort. Hilda listens. Is this the response to the "great desire" within her? She sees no outward mar kon the man before her to guide her. She knows that the bitter life in the forest with her father cannot be endured longer. She shakes her head; "I cannot answer now. I don't knowa." Then, as her father's strident voice calls her into the house; "All I know is that I cannot stay here."

Beaubien appears on the path, tall and lithe, wearing his leather clothes and cigarettes with characteristic rench Canadian grace. He greets McDonald heartily; he has come from his wanderings to spend his customary few weeks near the McTavish home. McDonald frankly likes him, and as they sit under the trees and talk, he frees his thoughts intimately.

The principal fault McDonald finds with the northern woods is that they have no women.

"No; of course, there are no ladies; that is a great disadvantage."

"I have found one even here."

Jules is puzzled for a minute. "You mean—Hilda? She is but a child, an innocent child."

"They are not attractive with the bloom off."

"You—like—her?" Jules querries.

McDonald laughs and folds his arms slowly. "That is—my—business."

"Of course," replies Jules, with his soft, pleasant laugh.

"And you," asks McDonald. "Are we rivals? Do you—like—her?"

"That is my business also."

With this apparent reticence, each man clearly reveals to the other where he stands. Jules has heretofore considered Hilda too young to receive his love. He comes summer after summer until she shall be old enough to realize the desire that is in his heart. McDonald's discernment of the fact that Hilda is beautiful and desirable opens Jules' eyes abruptly to the fact that McDonald has progressed far in Hilda's regard, and that he, Jules, may lose the prize he has waited for.

McDonald is recalling former conquests; "Unless a man is satisfied with a squaw, he is hard put to it for amusement. He himself a few years before had discovered a beautiful halfbreed and lived with her until the girl began to talk 'priest and marriage' so strong that he had to leave. She was a beauty, too — an Ojibwa—!

Jules is keen attention. His dead half-sister, Annette, was an Ojibway. "And what was this girl's name?"

The concentration in Jules' eyes puts McDonald on his guard. He has forgotten the girl's name. At all events, he heard—from what source he knows not—that she killed herself after he left.

"An' you think," Jules approaches him until he quite towers over the sitting McDonald, "that it was right for you to go away and leave this girl alone to die?"

"But I have a wife and children at home. And the girl was only a halfbreed—what should I do?"

"But I have a wife and children at home. And the girl was only a halfbreed—what should I do?"

"I will tell you, some time—I, Jules Beaubien, who am speaking to you now, I will tell you what I think," answers Jules.

To avert further unpleasant conversation McDonald enters the house.

B'aptiste appears. Jules grips his arm.

"B'aptiste—you know—the American for whom we search—I think I have found him."

"Sacre!" mutters B'aptiste.

"If it is he, he is trying to do the same thing to Hilda that he did to Annette. When I find out for sure —" he taps B'aptiste gun significantly.

"Kill," mutters B'aptiste.

"No, not you—I will kill him. I have the right. Annette was my sister."

As Jules too enters the house, B'aptiste is left alone. He raises his gun with prayerful hands to heaven and supplicates;

"Please, God, let B'aptiste kill the American."

It is afternoon of the same day.

The second act shows the living room of the McTavish house. The left wall is taken up with a fireplace—empty as yet of logs. Through the open casement of the broad window at the rear, leafy boughs of trees are seen. At the right a door leads to the open. A shaft of sunlight streams through a window near the door.

McDonald's arms sprawl over an ample table in the middle of the room as he pores over maps of the country. Huntley interrupts him. He has had a conversation with Jules. At last his impulses toward helping Hilda are going to break into speech.

Never before has he interfered with McDonald. Indeed, his principal asset in his relation to McDonald's work has been not ability but "minding his own business." Now he feels the asset slipping. He warns McDonald that Jules is alert to prevent harm to Hilda, and that "if it comes to a showdown about the girl—I've declared myself—job or no job."

As Huntley leaves, Hilda enters hurriedly. Before she can escape by the opposite door, McDonald calls her back to ask whether she has decided to go with him.

OZONE PLANT WORKS WELL

An impromptu test was made at the ozone filtration plant yesterday, for the benefit of Mr. D. Vaipey, of Lynn, Mass., assistant editor of the Daily Item.

Both pumps were started and 88 strokes a minute were made at the rate of nearly 1,200 gallons a minute. The respirator sterilizer worked perfectly and took this large body of water with no trouble.

There was closed at the time an eighteen inch valve, and one of the valves which was operating was only half open, so that in case of a conflagration the purification plant could deliver nearly twice as much water as present pumps could handle, which is about 1,400 gallons a minute.—Lindsay Post.

Have You Ever Figured
WHAT AN IMMENSE AMOUNT OF WORK YOUR EYES HAVE TO DO?

Every moment you are awake you use them steadily and those who read much or sew a great deal, or whose duties require close application of the eyes, are almost sure to stand in need of an Optician sooner or later.

To wait until a more convenient time is an injustice, as the trouble is being increased every day. Decide right now to see us about the matter. We tell many persons that they need not wear glasses, and will tell you if we find your eyes not under strain. Even if you need glasses you may get them where you like and when you like.

CONSULT OUR OPTICIAN

The eye is such a delicate organ that it should never be trifled with.

This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses, costing from $7.50 to $25 each. With this limited knowledg it is little wonder that so many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others who do not require them.

If you have eye trouble you should only consult an optician who has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the optical business.

Such a man is our Mr. Taylor.

ROCKEFELLER OUT FOR TAFT OIL KING MAKES STATEMENT

In Regard to His Politics and Supports Taft.

Says Republican Candidate Will Make For Law and Order---Bryan Not Surprised.

New York, Oct. 31.—A statement from John D. Rockefeller announcing that he intends to vote for William H. Taft for president next Tuesday and telling why he will do so and why he thinks Mr. Taft should be elected, was given out from the Standard Oil Co. at 26 Broadway on Thursday night.

The statement as given out by the Standard Oil officials reads as follows:

"Mr. John D. Rockefeller was found this afternoon at this office on the fourteenth floor of No. 26 Broadway, which he was visiting after a long absence, and consented to talk upon the presidential situation. He seemed in good health and condition and spoke as follows:

"It seems to me at this time when the question is put directly to any American citizen which candidate he will support by his vote for the presidency, he should be manly enough to answer it just as directly. I therefore say that I expect to vote for William H. Taft.

"If for no other reason I support Mr. Taft because on comparing him personally with Mr. Bryan, his chief opponent, I find the balance of fitness and temperament entirely on his side. The election of Mr. Taft will, I believe, make for law and order and stability of business. He is not a man, I judge, to adventure with rash experiments to impede a return to prosperity by advocating measures subversive of industrial progress.

"The question of candidates seems to me peculiarly a personal one in this campaign, as the leading orators on both sides have not succeeded in drawing party lines, as based on the platforms, with any great clearness. I do, however, support the general Republican position on the tariff and the currency. I have always been a Republican.

"I feel the more impelled to answer this question because it cannot be said that the great administration has in any way whatever favored the special interest to which my life has been devoted. That, however, does not excuse me from publishing my opinion and doing what I consider my duty as a citizen."

Napoleon, Oct. 31.—William J. Bryan, who yesterday began a tour of Ohio, the Standard Oil state, said he was not surprised at the declarations of Mr. Rockefeller, as the Standard Oil Co. and the Republican party have been so closely related that many of their interests are identical. In his statement Mr. Bryan said:

"Mr. Taft has been making speeches for many weeks and he has not yet dwelt upon the iniquities of the trusts or pointed out the injustice done to the American people by them. No wonder Mr. Rockefeller is for Mr. Taft.

ANOTHER OUTBREAK

Of Forest Fires is Feared

More Rain, or Snow, Would be Welcomed by Lumbermen Here

The Review this morning interviewed an authority on the lumber situation as to the probability of further forest fires breaking out. In reply it was stated that unless rain of considerable duration ensued or the snow soon put in an appearance the fires would without doubt break out again. This has been what is generally called an "open" fall and everything is so dry that it would need considerable moisture to reduce it from its dessicated condition. As a consequence, although the recent rains have extinguished the blaze above the ground, it is said to be still smoldering below, only waiting an opportunity to again break out. It seems to find lodgment among the small roots and grasses, sometimes as far as three feet below the ground according to the Review's authority and is enabled to burn there for an indefinite time unless effectually quenched by rain or snow. While this is a somewhat uneasy prospect for the lumbermen, it has its compensations for those who are employed by them for the larger the burnt over district the more men must be obtained to cut it.

Asked as to the danger of further fires within the vicinity of Peterborough the reporter's informant said the same conditions obtained here as anywhere else. The announcement of snow and sleet in the weather probs, therefore will be of particular interest to Peterborough people.

GOT TOO FREE WITH THE CALF

Trenton Boy Got Entangled in Chain and Received Bad Injuries

Trenton, Oct. 30.—On Monday Master Douglas Hoocy, son of Mr. Stewart Hoocy, met with a serious and painful accident. He was playing with a calf belonging to Mr. Bowerman, which was fastened by a chain. The lad became entangled in the chain and was dragged some distance. His leg and body was torn and several stitches had to be taken. Dr. Farncomb is in attendance and the patient is doing as well as can be expected.

ENGLISH BISHOP DECLINES THE POSITION OFFERED HIM

Montreal, Oct. 31.—According to a cablegram received yesterday afternoon from the Bishop of Stepney, Rev. Cormo Gordon Lang, that dignitary of the Anglican Church cannot accept the offer of the Montreal See. The message said: "Deeply appreciate honor; regret cannot accept."

When the cable was read to the synod no surprise was expressed as it was generally felt that the work of Bishop Lang at Stepney was of too important a character to be dropped in order to assume charge of this diocese. Correspondence is pending, however, between the synod and the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of London.

The synod has adjourned until Nov. 24, when it will again take up the question of the election of a new bishop.

DANIEL O'CONNELL, THE LIBERATOR OF IRELAND

Subject of Interesting Address by Mr. C. J. Foy, of Perth, in St. Peter's Hall Last Evening—Held Under Auspices of Ancient Order of Hibernians.

The career of Ireland's hero, Daniel O'Connell, was related in a scholarly address before a fair-sized audience at St. Peter's Hall last evening by Mr. C. J. Foy, K. C., of Perth. The affair was held under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Mr. Foy is a clever speaker, and gave a graphic portrayal of the leading incidents in the great Irishman's life. He kept his hearers in an interested mood throughout, and at different intervals of his speech he was loudly applauded. Mr. Foy's language was well chosen, his tributes to Ireland being spoken in words beautifully descriptive of the Emerald Isle and her notable hero.

The chairman of the evening was Rev. Father Kelly, who, in a few well chosen remarks, introduced the speaker of the evening. Previous to the address a short programme was rendered.

Mr. Foy was given a warm reception, and in introducing his subject he spoke of Ireland as being the cradle of heroes. He repeated Longfellow's lines from the Psalm of Life—

Lives of great men all remind us,
We must make our lives sublime,
And departing leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.

The speaker thought that the life of Daniel O'Connell filled the above lines better than any other man in the annals of Irish history. He was the liberator of his country. His life been emblazoned on the world and enshrined in every Irish hart. The colossal and immortal figure of Daniel O'Connell, he said, was a glorious example of honesty and integrity. He has dazzled the world by his mighty genius.

He asked his audience to consider what Ireland was at the end of the eighteenth century. In 1782 independent Protestants, as well as Roman Catholics united and demanded the charter of independence. He traced the history of Ireland from 1783 until 1798, when Daniel O'Connell was called to the bar, and from that tiem on he fought for the liberty of Ireland. The speaker referred to the army act passed in 1783, which declared it illegal for any Irishman to carry firearms, and to the tortures the Irish suffered under what he termed was iron rule. But he added that the Irish were the bravest people. The poet could well find food for thought in the sorrows of Ireland, and he asked "Where is that country that has not been bettered by Irishmen!"

Mr. Foy said that he believed God raised Daniel O'Connell to lead the Irish people. From 1810 to 1829 he preached the gospel of Ireland's glorious nationality. In glowing terms he spoke at some length on the most interesting incidents in the life of the great Irishman, tracing his career until his death on the 15th of May, in the north of Italy in 1847. keynote of his success was that he never forgot his church. His church was based on his faith in his God.

In conclusion he said that Ireland was great, glorious and free—great because of her history, and glorious because of Daniel O'Connell. He urged the Hibernians to be true to their principles and industries, and some day the hope of Daniel O'Connell would be fulfilled.

A vote of thanks was tendered the speaker, Rev. Father McColl, and Mr. Daniel O'Connell, making the motion, each referring in appreciative terms of the excellent address.

The programme rendered was as follows:

Violin solo—Mr. James Drain.
Recitation—Miss Carrie White.
Vocal—Mr. Chalmers.

A humorous sketch was given by Messrs. Jack Hanrahan, J. Hickey, and Misses Annie Simons and Carrie White.

The selections were of an Irish character and were well received.

MR. GREENWAY'S ACTIVE CAREER

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—Hon. Thomas Greenway, member of the Railway Commission, former Premier of Manitoba, and M.P. for Lisgar in the last Parliament, died rather unexpectedly at the Windsor Hotel at 7 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Greenway caught cold on his way to Ottawa to begin his duties as Railway Commissioner, and asthma developed, for several days his condition being considered serious. On Friday last he was pronounced out of danger, but Thursday morning serious symptoms again developed. In the evening he was better again, but early yesterday morning he took a turn for the worse, and while the nurse was out of the room he passed away, death being due to heart failure.

Hon. Thomas Greenway was a leader of Manitoba Liberalism ever since his entrance into the political life of that province in 1878. He went in that year to Manitoba from Huron County, Ontario, and in the following year he was elected to the Legislature for the constituency of Mountain. In 1882 he became leader of the Opposition in the Assembly, and and in 1888 became Premier. He was leader of the Government till its defeat in 1900.

It was when Greenway was Premier that the Legislature abolished the system of separate schools in Manitoba, to restore which the Federal Conservative Government introduced the remedial bill in 1896.

During the earlier years of his administration there was a good deal of important legislation, including the abolition of the railway monopoly, the abolition of the use of the French language in Parliament and in the courts, the new Judicature Act, the act establishing a bureau of crop statistics, and the National Schools Act. There were battles over all of these except those relating to law procedure and agriculture, which will be recalled by all Canadians.

Mr. Greenway was elected to the House of Commons for the constituency of Lisgar in 1904, and sat through the late Parliament. A month ago he was appointed a member of the Railway Commission, along with Mayor D'Arcy Scott and Prof. McLean of Toronto. His death, therefore, creates a vacancy on the board.

The late Thomas Greenway was born March 25, 1838, in Cornwall, Eng., and came to Canada when a boy, first settling near Bowmanville, and afterwards in Huron County.

MADE A FULL CONFESSION IN SHADOW OF PENITENTIARY

San Francisco, Oct. 31— Standing in the shadow of the penitentiary with sentence about to be passed upon him and having seen his young wife just led from the court room, hysterically crying, "No, no," E. A. S. Blake, a contractor, convicted of attempting to bribe John M. Kelly to qualify on the jury to try Abram Ruef, and vote for Ruef's acquittal, made a full confession in court yesterday.

Blake said that after he was arrested on a charge of bribery, Frank J. Murphy, Ruef's associate counsel came to him and promised him $10,000 if he would keep quiet. He said that notes for $1000 purporting to be signed by Ruef, were delivered to a third party to be paid to Blake immediately after he was convicted if he were convicted of bribery. Besides this amount Blake declared his wife was to receive $100 a month while he was in the penitentiary.

When Blake was called on yesterday to rise and receive sentence his wife cried "No, not that," and began to cry hysterically. She was led from the room.

After motion for a new trial and arrest of judgment had been denied Blake said that he had a statement as a reason why sentence should not be pronounced. This came as a surprise to his attorneys who were permitted to withdraw their case.

After he had been sworn and had stated that he had not been promised immunity Blake said he had been offered $1000 by Attorneys A. C. Newburgh and F. J. Murphy, of Ruef's counsel to influence J. M. Kelly, a prospective juror to vote for the acquittal of Ruef. He at first offered Kelly $500 which was refused, he said but an offer of $1000 was accepted. It was then brought out in allegations that Newburgh had procured attorneys for Blake's defence. Blake then told of the alleged offer of $10,000 and provision if he would not make a confession. The story told by Blake created consternation in court and the case was continued for two weeks.

THE BATTERY FROM COBOURG HEADS LIST

Although the official figures for teh annual competitive firing of artillery companies of the Dominion for 1908 have not as yet been issued, we learn on reliable authority that the Cobourg Garrison Battery top the list in every department. In the shooting at Petewawa camp in August they won the first prize, and as a result they win a big money prize. For general efficiency they won the Governor-General's Cup, and in the test number of points awarded each company are ten per cent. higher than the second company. Major Odell, his officers and company are to be congratulated on the grand showing they made, as batteries from the Atlantic to the Pacific were competitors.—Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

ONE HUNDRED LOCAL OPTION FIGHTS IN THIS PROVINCE

Toronto, Oct. 31.—A hundred local option contests are now on in Ontario of these 70 are for the abolition of the licenses in as many municipalities, and 30 are for the repeal of the local option by-laws in force.

The secretary of the Ontario Alliance states that the campaign is getting hotter every day, and is especially keen this week, as tomorrow is the last date for filing compulsory petitions to the municipal councils. After that date, even if the petitions contain the 25 per cent. of signature, it will be optional with municipal councils in the submission of the by-laws at the January elections.

The Alliance has a staff of field speakers and organizers at work, and is publishing a special local option campaign issued by its paper, the Pioneer this week.

The municipalities in which votes on the adoption of local option will be held are: Alnwick, Anson, Ashfield, Athens, Barton, Bayham, Blyth, Bobcaygeon, Bowmanville, Brampton, Bromley, Caledonia, Canboro, Carnarvon, Charlotteville, Chatsworth, Chesley township, Colchester S., Dunwich, Dutton, Eganville, Elfrid, Elsevir and Grimsthorpe, Emo, Escott Front, Exeter, Fenelon Falls, Forest township, Glencoe, Goderich, Gwillimbury E., Hagerman, Holland, Havelock, Hillier, Himsworth N., Hungerford, Ingersoll, Iroquois, Kennebec, Limerick, Lucknow, Madoc, Marmora and Lake, Middleton, Minden, Olden, Oso, Orillia, Percy, Picton, Point Edward, Seneca, Sidney, Thurlow, Tilsonburg, Trenton, Tudor and Cashel, Tweed, Wellington, Whitby, Wollaston, Yonge and Scott, Rear and Zorra East.

MRS. BLEWETT'S RECITAL

One of the literary treats of the season was the recital given in Charlotte street church Sunday school hall last night under the auspices of the Girls' Mission Circle of that congregation, and listened with great delight to the splendid programme that was presented. The feature was the appearance of Mrs. Jean Blewett, of Toronto, the well-known Canadian authoress and poetess, whose reading of a number of her poems was a decided treat. Not only does she excel in the literary world, but is a gifted reader. There were no nerve-shakers on the programme, most of the selections being of the "simple and heartfelt day" variety, and were presented by the gifted authoress in such a way as to be thoroughly enjoyable. "Native Born" is a fine, patriotic poem, but Mrs. Blewett was suffering from a slight cold, and was not able to give it all the fervor required. The "Irish Beggars" was a bright little sketch and showed the versatility of the entertainer.

The complete programme was as follows;—

Instrumental duet; Misses Gumpricht
A Group of Poems on Work; The Ploughman; The Hero; She Just Keeps House for me; Mrs. Jean Blewett.
Vocal solo: Mrs. G. Dickson Hall.
Forgive and forget; Mrs. Jean Blewett.
Vocal solo, "My Kingdom," Mr. Jas. Browne.
Native Born, Mrs. Jean Blewett.

This selection has been chosen by the Board of Education, Guildhall, London, England, to represent Canada, in the new literature for use in High Schools and Universities of Great Britain.

Violin solo, Miss Edna Palmer.
Love's Lodging House; The Wooing of Dagna; Mrs. Jean Blewett.
Vocal solo, Miss Pearl Lundy.
The Sociable Scot; A Morn in the Emerald Isle; The English hills; Mrs. Jean Blewett.
When Mary Walks with Me; For Old Sakes' Sake; Mrs. Jean Blewett.
God Save the King.

Miss Clarry was accompanist and her work could not have been improved upon.

The tea room and candy table did a lively business, the young ladies in charge being most attentive. The candy table was in charge of Misses L. Bobbitt, Ruby Clegg, Jean Neill and K. Manning.

The tea room was looked after by Misses Minnie Lightfoot, Beatrice Toovey, Ruby Adamson, and Myrtle Reid.

Yellow and blue was the color scheme of the decorations for the tea room and candy booth.

The young ladies are to be congratulated on their success.

Women Express Views at Ottawa.

Two Say They Will go to Jail if it Will do Any Good---Lady Edgar Has Matter Deferred.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—During the discussion on woman's suffrage by the National Council of Women yesterday afternoon, Dr. Margaret Gordon of Toronto and Miss Peters of St. John, both declared their willingness to go to jail if it would help the women of Canada to get the right to vote.

The resolution on woman's suffrage was ruled out by the president, Lady Edgar, as unnecessary. She disposed of it on the ground that full arrangements had been made to discuss the question of votes for women at the international conference to be held in Toronto next June.

Dr. Stowe-Gullen of Toronto expressed her opinion that the women suffrage question should be given a dignified place on the program of the National Council, as well as the International Congress. She thought it was an awfully innocent resolution, and at first had thought that every member would heartily support it. Later she had learned that it had caused a great deal of worry. In Colorado, where women had votes, the protection of women was well provided for. The thought was awful that women were ranked as minors, lunatics and animals, when they were not given the right to vote.

"No, no, we are not," exclaimed Lady Taylor of Hamilton.

"Yes we are," reiterated Dr. Stowe-Gullen. She thought no one was better able to deal with women's questions than women themselves, and it was time for the women of Canada to realize their responsibility.

Another animated discussion arose on the suffragette question when Dr. Stowe-Gullen presented a report on the citizenship of women. The report contained a paragraph approving the recent actions of the British suffragettes.

Miss M. Peters of St. John, in seconding the motion, declared in favor of the ballot for the women of Canada. If the women had votes, she declared, we would have prohibition in Canada.

Lady Taylor of Hamilton took the opposite view, "If we carry this resolution," she said, "we shall be commending the action of the suffragettes in England. They may be some women in Canada who approve of the conduct of the British women, but I do not. I ask that the eulogies of the British suffragettes be stricken from the report."

In the end Dr. Gullen agreed to strike out of the report references to the British suffragists and the report as amended was received.

PREMIER TO TURN FIRST SOD

For Transmission Line of Hydro-Electric Power Commission

Sir James Whitney will, it is said, turn the first sod of the Government transmission line for the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, at Toronto. The ceremony will take place, it is asserted, on Thanksgiving Day, or as soon after that festival as possible.

It has been suggested that the Mayors of the cities of Ontario, representatives of the municipalities in the Western Ontario Power Union, big manufacturers, Cabinet Ministers, Mr R. L. Borden, a number of members of the House of Commons and other representative men be invited to attend the ceremony.

The first sod will be turned as near the end of the street car line as possible, somewhere to the northeast of the city. Hon Adam Beck, chairman Hon J. S. Hendrie and Mr. W. K. McNaught, of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, will participate in the function.

OLDEST POLICE COURT JUDGE IN CANADA HAS RESIGNED

Windsor, Oct. 31.—Alex. Bartlet, Windsor's "Grand Old Man," and magistrate of the Windsor Police Court for nearly 31 years, announced yesterday that on the occasion of his 86th birthday anniversary, Dec. 31 of this year, he will retire to private life. He has definitely decided to send in his resignation to the Department of Justice.

Magistrate Bartlet is the oldest police court justice in Canada, so far as can be learned. Previous to going on the bench he was town clerk to which position he was appointed in 1854. His appointment as police court magistrate came 20 years later from the Mowat administration. He is certainly the oldest public servant in the Dominion in point of service. Mr. Bartlet is the only living charter member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, which celebrated its 50th anniversary only last year.

To-day Mr. Bartlet is hale and hearty and is possessed of a keen memory, which he attributes to his abstinence from liquor and tobacco.

LIFE AND WORKS OF TENNYSON

Literary Night of Young People's Guild of St. Paul's Last Night.

The first literary evening of the Young People's Guild of St. Paul's Church was held last evening and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large number present. The life of Tennyson was dealt with last night, and two very interesting papers were read.

The chair was taken by Rev. Robert A. Pogue. Miss Watt read the first essay, giving an outline of the great poet's life, and Mr. A. Mowat, in a well-prepared paper, dealt with the poetry of Tennyson.

Instrumental solos were rendered by Misses Baur, Foy and McCaw and Mr. James Mercer gave a vocal solo in splendid voice. Rev. Mr. Pogue gave recitations of Tennyson's poems.

At the close refreshments were served and a pleasant evening spent.

WAS BUSY SEASON

Sidewalk Gang Have Finished—Weather Now Too Cold.

The sidewalk force of the Board of Works finished work for the season on Friday night. The weather was getting too cold to ensure the best results from the cement and it was deemed advisable to stop work. The season has been a very busy one for the gang and a large amount of sidewalk has been put down. The figures in this connection will be given later.

The sewer gang is still at work and will be able to continue for some time. They will be able to get in considerable work before the weather becomes too cold.

NERVOUS DEBILITY CURED

Excesses and indiscretions are the cause of more sorrow and suffering than all other diseases combined. We see the victims of vicious habits on every hand: the sallow, pimpled face, dark circled eyes, stooping form, stunted development, bashful, melancholic countenance and timid bearing proclaim to all the world his folly and tend to blight his existence. Our treatment positively cures all weak men by overcoming and removing the effects of former indiscretions and excesses. It stops all drains and quickly restores the victim to what nature intended—a healthy and happy man with physical, mental and nerve power complete.

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

The young cads who call themselves students of the university and at the same time play dolly-pranks on the police of Toronto, seem to be unaware or careless of the fact that there is such a thing as public opinion in this country. These young fellows need a spanking. In our day at 'Varsity similar outbreaks were traced to their true cause, downright badness, and punished accordingly. The discredit being brought upon 'Varsity is great, and if the authorities cannot cope with the callow rowdies it would be well to let loose upon them a dozen professional toughs, who would soon put them where they belong. Many of these alleged students are cruel and cowardly by nature and instinct. A few swats or buckets of water fired in the right direction might do a heap of good, for there is no wrong that cannot be remedied. The people of this Province, especially those living in rural parts, have begun to sneer at 'Varsity, and if the Government finds it has a load to carry it may allow it to fall to the ground. Verb. Sap. is short for a word to saps heads and we hope it may do some good accordingly.

THE SITUATION IN EUROPE

The last card played by Emperor William seems to be a trump. The diplomats must have forgotten just how many cards were out. At the very moment when Britain had formed her system of European alliances to the King's taste, the Emperor Bill shatters it all at one blow by showing that he was the real friend of his enemy, and not vice versa. It is true, as France replies that the Emperor did wire Kruger, but it is also true as the Emperor replies that he declined to receive the Boer delegates in the middle of their stop-the-war crusade, and his refusal to receive Kruger was the final blow to Boer aspirations. Then again he boldly flings in the face of Britain the fact which she herself can confirm or deny, viz., that it was he who came to her rescue in Africa, and suggested the plan of campaign, which finally got her out of her trouble. Then to add force to his contention, he uncovers the schemes of the Dual Alliance, and shows that if it had not been that Germany introduced the germ of conflict all Europe would have been allied against Great Britain. That germ of conflict was the stipulation that if Germany joined the Franco-Russian alliance it should be on the understanding that the statu quo of Europe (Alsace and Lorraine especially) should be approved and ratified. At this France backed up, showing accordingly her real feelings, and Russia, who has designs on Poland demurred. "Now," cries the Emperor, triumphantly, "will Great Britain be my friend, or will she still continue to regard me as her enemy." It is plain that Germany and her Emperor are still too much for Germany's rivals. While Delcasse on behalf of France, ridicules the Emperor's suspicions, the weight of fact remains that the Dual Alliance at the time of the Boer war endeavored to destroy the Triple Alliance, of which Great Britain was "an occasional member." Notwithstanding all these things, it is plain that the concert of Europe might very well be as its name implies if it were not that the statu quo will not remain such, but continues changing. Germany always emerging "bigger and grander than ever."

The cultivation of German individuality and home life is the secret of German success. Although their wage appears to be low according to our standard, their tariff keeps their independence in their own hands and their ingenuity keeps the prices of necessaries well within their reach. They are apparently equal to the occasion.

A COMPARISON

It took no less than three elections to impress upon the people of Ontario the fact that the Ross Government was not what it professed to be. It may take a similar length of time to impress the people of Canada with the fact that the administration at Ottawa is rotten politically and in some cases individually. But when the crash does come it will come with a vengeance. If only those who voted Liberal this time were to be sufferers by it, it would not be so very bad, but unfortunately the deluge will fall upon the unjust and just alike. Instantly the returns came in bearing the glad tidings to the G.T.P. that it could finish its work, it made a large contract for Japanese labor. The law against bribery and corruption must be made more severe. In Dominion affairs these should be punishable summarily as in provincial elections. The law's delay as it is at present exasperates and discourages people. A ready remedy would help to extinguish the evil. At present an election is almost wholly a matter of money. The West Peterborough protest will show up things in a way that will surprise the electorate in general.

As soon as those who got money get over the fear of being prosecuted and rely upon the power of the court to grant them immunity there will be such a rush to unbosom in the hope of reward as will "stagger humanity."

A REWARD

Although very little good comes of noticing yarns circulated by designing men for the purpose of influencing credulous people somebody might as well make some profit out of it if possible. The case referred to is this: Mr. Burnham is, or was, accused of having said in some locality, "Where he thought he was safe," that if Sir Wilfrid came back to power he intended to bring his Holiness, the Pope, to Montreal.

Another yarn is to the effect that when Mr. Phelan, Mr. Kearns and Mr. Burnham went to Ennismore the last last named had Orange literature with him for distribution.

Now for the point, Mr. Burnham is prepared to pay $10 to the first person identifying the circulator of either one or both of these stories. It is not that they are of any importance or that any person of sense will believe them, but since they certainly have been circulated it is as well to make their circulation a matter of regret to the circulator, hence this reward. There is not one particle of truth in either story, as, of course, the originator knew, but if he can be found he will be made to suffer the penalty which the election law provides.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

When an old maid makes a goose of herself it merely proves that she is no chicken.

F. M. Field, K.C., of Cobourg, has issued a writ against Sam Clarke, M.P.P., for defamatory language used by the latter concerning the former during the late federal contest.

Chug-chug!
Br-r-r br-r-r!
Honk-honk!
Gilligillug-gilligilug!

The pedestrian paused at the intersection of two busy cross streets.

He looked about. An automobile was rushing at him from one direction a motorcycle from another, an auto-truck was coming from behind, and a taxicab was speedily approaching.

Zip-zip! Zing-ging!

He looked up and saw directly above him a runaway airship in rapid descent.

There was but one chance. He was standing upon a manhole cover. Quickly seizing it he lifted the lid and jumped into the hole just in time to be run over by a subway train.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Mr. Laurier has been given a new lease of power, but the charges that have been made during the last few months ought to open his eyes to the urgent necessity of his giving his attention to a supervision of the work of his colleagues."—Bobcaygeon Independent.

How absurd it is for the Grit press headed by the Globe to cry "Slanderbund" at the Tory press in face of the fact that Foster, Lefurgey, Fowler, etc., were made targets for criticism of the same order by the Grit press as that which the Conservative journals used against the Fisheries Department and the Interior Department at Ottawa. But this must be remembered. There were charges made against some members of the Laurier Cabinet which were not chargeable against any Tory in public life to-day. If the charge of wrong-doing can be maintained on slight grounds how much the more when the grounds are not slight.

OF INTEREST

The Review has been favored with the opinions of a politician intimately connected with the late election contest. His opinions refer particularly to the idea many of the electors have of their franchise as a saleable commodity. It reveals a state of things more alarming than even would have been guessed at. Many people look forward to an election as a season of personal profit to themselves. Unless there is money in it for them they will have nothing to do with it. On the other hand, there is a large proportion of the riding referred to and it is not many miles from West Peterborough, which could not be bought at all. The opinions of our informant indicate that a sense of honor is not peculiar to any race, class or creed. What would be a deadly insult to one man would be the very acme of practical common sense to another. There seems to be a disposition to play hide-and-seek with decency as if God could be fooled, or as if there were no God at all. The underlying sense of moral cleanliness is entirely absent from many. The animal predominates over the moral. The desire to gain an end also plays a powerful part, where other considerations are not in evidence. But taking it all in all the anxiety to get money may be depended upon to place most people at the mercy of the briber. While civilization and all that it comprises, is by no means a sham, it would be so but for the saving few who rise above the infirmities of poverty and the weakness of their own professions. It is plain that TEMPTATION is the cause, and curse of it all. If temptation were removed from the path of the weak, in ten years this would be a different world. The tempter is the meanest of men and upon him the wrath of the nation should fall.

Mystery still surrounds the fate of Mrs. Luard, the wife of the distinguished military man who was well known in Canada in connection with his services at the time of the Fenian Raid. The General's suicide threw not the slightest gleam or light upon the tragedy of which it was the result. Nor has the return to England of Captain Luard, the son, revealed any incident that might afford a clue to the slayers of the aged lady. The General's last letter to his son, written within an hour or so of his death and after he had made up his mind to do away with himself, did not as some people supposed contain anything in the nature of a confession. The ghastly problem remains unsolved; and it is said that the police have small hopes of ever bringing the murderer to trial.

The Luard case has given the 'yellow' press of England a noble opportunity. Baffled in its first attempts to hunt down the murderer it turned on the General and drove him to his death. It is doubtful if the worst of the American 'yellows' ever went so far as did some of the English papers in an effort to have a man convicted of murder. The laws of criminal libel in the United States and in Canada, make impossible such an atrocious hounding of a man as Gen. Luard went through. Naturally he was a subject for police investigations soon as the crime was discovered. The officers satisfied themselves that he had an alibi and that he would have had no motive in killing his wife. It was just possible that a knowledge of the domestic life of the Luards would supply a clue, and it was this point that the 'yellows' took up as soon as they became satisfied that the crime was not the work of tramps.

They may have been over-easily persuaded, for from a sensational point of view, the distinguished general was a much better object of suspicion than an unknown tramp. So the papers proceeded by the process of elimination to show that nobody but the General could have murdered his wife. The afflicted man's theory that hop-pickers who were then thronging the Kentish roads were responsible was held up to ridicule and he was attacked for having ventured it. Letters from correspondents urging the police to "look nearer home" were printed. Even worse than the tone of the sensational press were the letters inspired by it, and mailed privately to the General. At the inquest on his wife's body some of the questions asked were scandalous as he complained to his friends.

But the most outrageous attack of all was made after the others had driven their victim to suicide. A despatch was sent out to the press purporting to be the letter Gen. Luard wrote immediately before hurling himself under the wheels of the train. It contained the ominous words; "I cannot face my son." The inference was plain. The son knew of troubles between his father and mother, perhaps had even heard him threaten her life. He could not answer, and then might go to the authorities in his horror and fury and hand his father over to them. That is why he could not see his son, said tens of thousands of people in England. It was not until the second inquest that this false despatch was contradicted and the last words of the old soldier placed before a suspicious public.

Here is what General Luard wrote to Col. Warde, whose guest he was at the time of the suicide:

Bayham Court, Maidstone, 13-9-08
My Dear Warde,—

I am sorry to have returned your kindness and hospitality and long friendship in this way, but I am satisfied that it is best to join her in the second life at once. I can be of no further use to anyone in the future in this world of which I am tired and in which I do not wish to live any longer—I thought that my strength was sufficient to bear out against the horrible imputations and terrible letters which I have received since the awful crime was committed which robbed me of all my happiness. And so it was for long, and the goodness, kindness and sympathy of so many friends kept one going, but somehow, now, in the last day or two, something seems to have snapped the strength has left me, and I care for nothing except to join her again. So good-bye, dear friend, to both of us.

Yours very affectionately,
C. E. LUARD.

P.S.—I shall be somewhere on the line of railway.
C. E. LUARD.

So far, so good, said the yellow press but wait until we hear what he said in the letter he left for his son. That letter was read in most dramatic circumstances. The son arrived home on the very day of the inquest and appeared before the coroner who handed him his father's letter. The son broke the seal and read steadily through the several pages the envelope contained with the eyes of a crowded court upon him. Not a sound was heard save the crinkling of the paper held in the young man's firm hand. He finished the letter and then turning to the coroner said; "There is nothing in it concerning this case."

In response to a request he gave the letter to the coroner, who also read it through and announced that it concerned domestic matters and was not pertinent to the case.

Then the Captain arose and walked out of court and once more the curtain dropped over the mystery.

INCURABLE HEART TROUBLE

LOOKED FOR DEATH IN A SHORT TIME.

Entirely Cured by "Fruit-a-tives."

"Gentlemen,—The days of miracles are not all past and I feel that my complete recovery, from what seemed inevitable death, is practically a miracle. I suffered from severe Indigestion and Dyspepsia for nearly two years. I could not take food without fearful distress and I became almost a skeleton as the result of the suffering. I could not do any work and became so run down and weak that I could hardly walk. I was attended by two experienced doctors. They both pronounced my case heart failure and incurable, and I looked forward for death in a short time. I not only had the doctors but after they gave me up I tried many remedies and treatments but got no better.

At this time my son asked me to try "Fruit-a-tives," and from the outset of taking these wonderful tablets I was better and gradually this medicine completely cured me. I took a large number of boxes, perhaps a dozen, and now I am entirely cured and I have gained over thirty pounds in weight.

I am now so well that I have sold my farm and bought 200 acres more land. I make this statement voluntarily for the sake of humanity, and I am convinced that "Fruit-a-tives" is a wonderful remedy that will cure stomach trouble where doctors and everything else fail."

(Sgd) Henry Speers, J.P.

The doctors were all wrong. Mr. Speers had what we call "irritated heart." Indigestion and dyspepsia completely upset the stomach. Poisonous gases were formed which swelled the walls of the stomach and pressed against the heart.

"Fruit-a-tives" immediately strengthened the stomach, insured sound digestion and regulated the bowels. There were no poisons—no noxious gases remained in the system, and the heart was no longer irritated. Then the pain and fluttering stopped.

"Fruit-a-tives" is put up in two sizes 25c and 50c. If your dealer has not both, write Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Whitmore Not Guilty.

Jersey City, N.J., Oct. 31.—After being out two hours, the jury in the case of Theodore Whitmore, on trial for the murder of his wife, whose battered body was found on Dec. 26 of last year, in a swamp near Harrison, N.J., returned a verdict last night of not guilty. Whitmore's defence was an alibi, which he was able to establish by the testimony of a number of witnesses who testified to having seen him in New York at the time of the commission of the crime.

Juvenile Delinquents.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—W. L. Scott of Ottawa yesterday morning addressed the National Council of Women of Canada on "Juvenile courts." He stated that there was now an excellent Federal Juvenile Delinquents Act on the statute books, but so far no Provincial Government had provided machinery necessary to give it effect. The council adopted a resolution urging all local councils of Canada to endeavor to have Provincial Governments make provisions for the application of the act.

Mob Raids County Jail.

Kingston, Tenn., Oct. 31.—A mob of thirty men attacked the Roane County jail early yesterday and killed George Cook, held on the charge of murdering John King, a ferry man at South West Point a few weeks ago. All but two of the mob were masked.

It is presumed the men intended to hang Cook, as they had a rope. Cook offered resistance and drew a razor and cut one of the men in the mob. Four bullets then entered his body.

Hemmed In by the Flames.

New York, Oct. 31.—Hemmed in by flames, and unable to escape from the basement of a business house in Duane street, Henry Jones and David Mahoney were burned to death Thursday night, and William Settgast will probably die.

The men were at work when a barrel of celluloid caught fire. The poisonous fumes soon overcame Jones and Mahoney.

Stony Lake boats and tugs are still busy carrying and towing freight.

No Evidence of Bribery.

Sundridge, Oct. 31.—The trial of the man Agar, accused of election bribery, took place yesterday. It transpired that the information was laid by Johnstone, bailiff of the division court. Epple, the man who it was alleged had been bribed, stated that Agar had not approached him in any way, and that he was not aware that any information had been laid against him. The magistrate therefore dismissed the charge.

The charge against Unger was sent for trial. No evidence for the defence was given. Mr. Watson and Mr. Ard, president of the Conservative Association, went his bail. It is reported that charges may be laid against Johnstone.

Home Buyer Is Thief.

New York, Oct. 31.—In the arrest of a young man who gave his name as James Somers, and said that he came of wealthy English parentage, the police believe they have the robber who entered the home of Mrs. Amelia G. Adams in New Rochelle Thursday, bound her, looted the place and escaped.

Detectives who arrested Somers in Harlem say he confessed to the Adams robbery and to a similar offence committed on Kingsbridge road in September. The plan of the robber in both instances was to represent himself as a prospective purchaser of the home.

Woodstock May Go Dry.

Woodstock, Oct. 31.—Petitions signed by 825 electors of Woodstock were yesterday afternoon put into the hands of City Clerk Morrison, asking the city council to submit to the electors at the January municipal elections a bylaw for cutting off any hotel and shop license in the city. There are nine of the former and two of the latter.

Suffragist Amaze Iowa.

Boone, Iowa, Oct. 31.—Six hundred women suffragists paraded the streets of Boone. Rev. Anna Shaw, head of the National Order of Suffragists, headed the parade. With her were Miss Randell and Miss Costello of London, famous for their participation in the attacks made by Parliament by the women suffragists of England.

The spectacle of six hundred women marching through the streets caused the whole town to turn out to witness it.

For College Riflemen.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—An interuniversity shooting match will be held Nov. 14 by the Dominion Rifle Association, open to all university rifle associations who will shoot on their own ranges at 200, 500 and 600 yards. The highest scores forwarded to the D.R.A. secretary will get a challenge cup and eight miniatures for members of the team. This annual event is to encourage colleges to form rifle associations.

Not Due to Protection.

London, Oct. 31.—(C. A. P.)—The Morning Post points out that the modern Canadian artist in campaign literature would have little difficulty in basing upon discreetly worded evidence of the great Lord Durham charges of graft and boodle not less lurid than those which characterized the recent elections. This is in answer to the charge that protection has bred corruption in the Dominion.

GUELPH MAN SHOT DEAD.

His Hunting Companion Slipped While Carrying a Rifle.

Guelph, Oct. 31.—Trainer's Cut, on the G.T.R., two miles from the city, where so many accidents have happened on the railway in the past few years, was the scene yesterday afternoon of a shooting accident which caused the death of James Connolly, a young man whose parents are retired farmers and live on Grove street in this city. Accompanied by Harry Scarlett, a youth of fifteen years, he was out shooting with a twenty-two calibre rifle. While in the cut a freight train came along and the hunters, accompanied by another boy named Dennis, climbed up the bank. Connolly got nearly to the top when he sat down. Scarlett was following him up, but slipped and fell, and the bullet from the rifle entered the left eye of Connolly. He fell over and never spoke a word. About an hour later a doctor, arriving with the ambulance, found the two boys standing on the hillside with their dead companion. No inquest will be held.

Lawyer Goes to Cell.

New York, Oct. 31.—William Flyaner, a lawyer with offices in Wall street, was sentenced yesterday to one year's imprisonment in the penitentiary for grand larceny. Flyaner is 66 years old, and has been prominent as a churchman. Hundreds of letters asking for clemency were submitted on his behalf. Despite these the court said:

"As a warning to others I will sentence him to one year. Lawyers who take their clients' money have no right to expect mercy."

Flyaner was convicted of diverting to risky speculations, $18,000 entrusted to him by two women for safe investment.

Gets Fifteen Years.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—Fifteen years for an unmentionable offence was the sentence imposed yesterday on Dr. J. W. Geoffrion, once a prominent physician, in this city.

He was at the head of an organization known as the "Mange Le Ligne" Club, probably one of the most infamous organizations that this continent ever saw. There were all told upward of thirty men members, while young boys were constantly falling into their clutches. When exposure came members of the club fled the country, but five have been tried and convicted. The others will receive their sentence to-day.

After Penny Cable Rate.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux left yesterday afternoon for England, with the object of negotiating for the penny-a-word cable rate between Canada and Great Britain. He will be accompanied by Hector Verret, his private secretary.

The conference will be attended by representatives of the various colonies, and the Canadian Government, through Mr. Lemieux, will lend its support to the movement for reduced cable rates as an incentive to increased intercourse between the various parts of the empire.

New York, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Wm. Astor, who for thirteen years has been regarded as the social leader of New York, died last night of heart disease at her home in Fifth avenue. For nearly four weeks Mrs. Astor, who was 82 years old, had been in a critical condition.

Charles M. Hays Says Three More Years Will See Line Completed.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—Chas. H. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk Railway Co., who returned yesterday from Prince Rupert and intervening points on the system, stated that after being over all of the sections under contract. Both on the prairie and the coast, he felt quite safe in declaring that he did not apprehend any conditions would arise, engineering, financial or otherwise, that would prevent the Grand Trunk Pacific from being completed from end to end by the month of December, 1911.

One, he added, has only to read the report of the Government engineer to realize what a magnificent roadbed they had secured, and how favorable the grades and curvatures were all along the line.

He stated that regular trains will be running from Port Arthur to Edmonton next spring, that another 100 miles will be out east of the coast section of 110 miles, and 200 more west of Wolf Creek, leaving a gap of 400 miles yet to be placed under contract.

Runaway Girls Caught.

Toronto, Oct. 31.—Detective Twigg yesterday secured Emily Saint, 18 years, and Myrtle Mary Muirhead, 16 years, who, with a third girl, Elizabeth Brennan, 17 years, escaped from the Alexandra Industrial School at East Toronto a week ago. He found them in a lodging-house on East Queen street, and upon the Saint girl he got one of the two watches stolen from officials of the school at the time of the escape.

The two taken say that the Brennan girl, who is believed to be in Buffalo, has the other watch.

They are charged with theft of the watch, as well as with escaping.

Chinese Don't Enthuse.

Amoy, Oct. 31.—The Chinese people are apathetic regarding the arrival here of the second squadron of the United States Atlantic fleet. Only a few natives turned out to witness the arrival of the battleships yesterday.

Resentment at the severe measures taken to exclude the Chinese from participation in the celebration is the chief cause of the apathy.

Kaiser May Come to Canada.

London, Oct. 31.—(C. A. P.)—The Railway Magazine states that when at Kiel in 1904 the Kaiser told Archer Baker, M.P., he would visit Canada when steamers could do the trip in four days. Mr. Baker remarks that as these are now possible, we may yet see the Emperor a passenger on the all-red route.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—When Thomas Fox, after a terrible struggle with D. J. Reardon on the edge of a cliff at Primrose Hill on Sept. 3, threw him over, he did the proper thing, and was warmly commended by Magistrate O'Keefe yesterday morning. The time of flight was 20 minutes, and the height reached was between 120 and 150 feet. The course was literally as the crow flies, over trees, fields and streams.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE COMEDY ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME

"All the Comforts of Home", as the title of the play suggests is about ninety per cent. of laughing gas, and o use the words of Mr W. Winter, the veteran critic of the New York Tribune, "It is a perfect antidote to melancholy". With the possible exception of "Charley's Aunt" it has been the most popular comedy of modern times and those who go to see it on the third and fourth of November will not be disappointed. Mr. Wm. Gillette, the eminent actor and playwright who is playing at the Princess in Toronto at present is the authority in Toronto at present is the author of this delightful four-act comedy, and Burns Mantle, the dramatic critic of the Chicago Tribune has said: "If Mr. Gillette had never written anything but "All the Comforts of Home" it would have been enough to make him famous.

Although the situations and lines are intensely humorous and the climaxes irresistibly funny there is not word in it that would bring a blush to the most modest cheek. The scene of the piece is laid in a private drawing room of a residence in one of the residential quarters of London, England and one Pettibone, the owner of the house has a young wife of whom he is very jealous, without cause and in the midst of his heat and fury suddenly abruptly takes the entire family away on a three months trip to Venice and other places, leaving his nephew, Alfred Hastings, a young doctor, who is always broke, to take charge of the house, during his absence. Pettibone gone, Alfred is man behind the gun and after rapturously surveying his new surroundings and looking at the keys to the wine cellar which his uncle has left him calls in a partner, Tom McDow, the funniest ever, and they both decide to turn the Pettibone mansion into a lodging house.

A crude mode of rules and regulations is drawn up by Alfred in which a condition is enacted that children and dogs must keep off the grass and Tom McDow, a jack of all trades, puts a sign out in front of the house announcing "Lodgings to Let," with a blazing footnote to the effect that lodgers will have "All the Comforts of home." A lodging or boarding house in that locality is surely a new thing, and in a very brief space, the house is full of all sorts and conditions of men and women; country town folk and musicians, opera singers, English dudes and dead beats, dope fiends, men with minds and men without minds.

All sorts of complications arise and the fun at once becomes fast and furious. Old Bender falls in love with the opera singer; Alfred falls in love wthi Bender's daughter. Tom has his troubles with the mad musician and the dope fiend upstairs. Mrs. Bender is on the war path. The officers of the law come in to arrest Langhorne and the queer entanglements that follow are just the funniest ever seen amid the glare of the footlights. Things are going from bad to worse when the Pettibones return home. What happens after that is too funny to tell. You'll have to come and see it in the Grand Opera House, Peterborough, on Nov. 3rd and 4th.

Following are the principals forming the cast: Messrs. Charles Barber, George Lynch, Irving Beers, Mort Johnston, A. C. Yokome, F. D. Craig, D. B. McRae, W. G. Ferguson, Claude Brady and C. G. Graham.

Ladies, Misses L. L. Hallihan, Nellie Hallihan, Pearl Morgan, Nell Graham, Mona O'Shea, Agnes Pentland and Mrs. J. N. Barber.

The play will be staged under the direction of Irving Beers, who put it on with marked success in all the western cities of Canada and the United SStates.

OBITUARY

CHARLOTTE I. WHITEFIELD.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Whitefield, North Monaghan, will sympathize with them in the loss they have sustained by the death of their infant daughter Charlotte Isabella, who passed away last evening. The child was two years and four months old.

The funeral took place this afternoon at two o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

J. R. McNEIL.

Speaking of the death of Mr. J. R. McNeill at Ottawa, the "Citizen" says;

J. R. McNeil, for many years well known as one of Ottawa's leading merchants, died rather suddenly yesterday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock. Mr. McNeil had apparently been in good health until a few days ago, when he began to complain of indisposition. This developed until medical assistance was called in and the illness pronounced to be cerebral hemorrhage. He sank very rapidly until the end. A couple of years ago he had met with a serious accident, falling down the cellar stairs at his shop and sustaining a fracture of the base of the skull. Although the injury was one from which few recoveries are ever made, Mr. McNeil seemed to have regained perfect health and was apparently free from any after effects. It was this blow, however, which finally caused his death.

The deceased was born in Preston, England, on December 12th, 1855, and came to Canada in 1886, having originally followed the trade of cutter. After spending a few months in Peterborough he moved to Ottawa and was employed as manager in the firm of Donaldson and Thompson, who then did a big business here, with a large store on Sparks street and a branch on Wellington. The year 1889 saw him start in business for himself, and from that time he rapidly progressed until at the time of his death the tailoring firm of J. R. McNeil was one of the foremost in the capital, while in real estate, too, the deceased had large holdings. Nor was he prominent only as a business man, for among those who knew him he was marked by a simple and unostentatious, though not the less tangible, charity that was extended to all, irrespective of creed. He had always taken a particular interest in St. Luke's Hospital, which at the time of its founding and later had been the object of his benefaction. The youthful sporting element in the capital, too, was indebted to him for the interest he took in them. A self-made man, he had grown with the commercial life of the city.

The court to which he belonged is looking after the funeral arrangements. The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock from S. Rogers and Son's undertaking parlors on Rideau street, to Beechwood cemetery.

ELLEN JANE ARTHUR.

The death occurred early this morning at Nicholls Hospital of Ellen Jane Arthur, wife of Frank J. Arthur, corner Park and Elm streets. The deceased was 39 years of age, and was born in Gore's Landing, she being a daughter of Mr. William Braithwaite, of that place. She had been ill only a short time with pneumonia. She was widely known and highly respected, and her death will be learned of with deep regret. Her husband and two children are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place Monday, interment taking place at Gore's Lading.

The service will be held at the house tomorrow evening at 8.30 o'clock and the funeral will take place thence to Gore's Landing on Monday at 8.30 am.

GOOD HOME-MADE BLADDER CURE

Old Folks Who Suffer Find Prompt Relief in Simple Home Mixture

Here is a prescription that anyone can mix at home. Any good prescription pharmacy can supply the ingredients named at little cost; being composed of vegetable extracts, it is harmless and inexpensive. Best of all it does its work well, relieving even the worst forms of bladder trouble, fequent urniation, backache, kidney complaint, and by its direct action upon the eliminative tissue of the kidneys makes these most vital organs rid the blood and system of waste matter and uric acid, which causes rheumatism.

Here it is. Try it, if you suffer, Fluid extract dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

Former sufferers often state that one week's use shows curative results in nearly every instance, and such symptoms as lame back, frequent desire to urinate, pain in the bladder and even chronic rheumatism are generally relieved within a few days, the pain and swelling diminishing with each dose.

PRESENTATION OF A PURSE TO THEIR RECTOR

Rev. Mr. Fennell Well Known Here, Retiring From Hamilton Church After 35 Years Service

At a social meeting held Friday night in the township hall, Barton, the members of Holy Trinity Church bade farewell to Rev. J. and Mrs. Fennell, who are severing their connection with the parish, Mr. Fennell having retired from the diocese after over 35 years of active service.

After some time spent in social intercourse and the serving of refreshments, Mr. Walkden, one of the wardens, on behalf of the congregation, delivered a very feeling and pithy address, setting forth the regret of the people at the departure from their midst of a man of such genial character and sterling worth, and testifying to their appreciation of the rector's work among them. long acquaintance with Mr. Fennell ned a well-filled purse.

Rev. Mr. Fletcher, of Glanford, was then called upon and endorsed the sentiments expressed by Mr. Walkden, and did so in a few well-chosen words, referring to his own long acquaintance with Mr. Fennell through both his college and ministerial career.

Mr. Fennell replied that he was exceedingly glad of the opportunity of meeting all the congregation once more, and expressed his thanks and appreciation of the gift, which was quite a surprise to him. But most of all, he was pleased at the appreciation of his work done in the parish. He had endeavored to build up the parish, but took no credit to himself for any work done, nor did he enter the ministry with any thought of attaining greatness or eloquence, but simply because he felt called upon to do it, and that God's blessing would rest upon his efforts. He earnestly thanked the congregation and Mr. Fletcher, on behalf of both Mrs. Fennell and himself, for the expression of their appreciation and kindly feeling, and trusted that the parish would continue to prosper, and that God's blessing would rest upon one and all.

Several short speeches were then made by memebrs of the congregation, who testified to their appreciation of Mr. Fennell and his work, and their regret at losing him, and after a short impromptu entertainment, enjoyed by all present, the meeting dispersed.

Mr. and Mrs. Fennell have gone to reside in Toronto.—Hamilton Spectator.

Rev. Mr. Fennell is well known in this city, being a cousin of Mr. Robert Fair. He has officiated at St. John's Church on numerous occasions, and his many friends here will join in wishing him many years of retired life.

WHEN A MAN KNOWS

He Will Buy From His Neighbor When it Pays Best

Besides their enormous business through 200 Semi-ready Stores, the company conducts what is known as a "Special Order Business." Each store carries a line of 250 cloth samples, worsteds, tweeds, serges, and cheviots—and orders are put through the factory in four days for all suits made to measure.

With this supplement to their business all the Custom tailor travellers are being driven out of Western Canada by the Semi-ready agents. This was formerly a rich ground for them for the traveller could always get $10 or $15 a suit extra. When a man knows he can have a suit made to order from his local dealer, tailored for the same price as he would pay in the east, and delivered promptly on the day promised, he is not likely to patronize the itinerant pedler.

SPORTING NEWS

ACCORDING TO DESPATCH WHITCROFT WILL HAVE UNUSUALLY STRONG TEAM

Edmodnton, Oct. 31—A despatch has been received from Portage la Prairie to the effect that Ross, Quinn and Paulin of the Portage team will play with Edmonton this year and that Edmonton has also signed Lester and Frank Patrick who are now in Nelson and Herbie Jordan of Quebec one of th best forwards in the ECHL last winter. These with Whitcroft and Miller of Edmonton's last year's team will make up the team to play for the Stanley Cup.

Asked regarding the truth of this report E E. Chauvin, secretary of the Edmonton Hockey Club stated that the club management were not in a position to either confirm or deny the report.

"It is, of course pretty generally undersood that Whitcroft and Miller will play on the Edmonton team this winter but so far we have no announcement to make as to who the other players will be."

HACKENSCHMIDT PICKS BEELL TO WIN FROM YANKEE ROGERS

Fred Beell challanged the winner of last night's bout between Rogers and Hackenschmidt, and will meet Rogers at an early date.

Mr. Chris. Graham said he would not undertake the management of the bout unless guaranteed $200, which represents half what Beell and represents half of what Beell and Roegrs will wrestle for as a purse, irrespective of the side bet. He made this announcement at the conclusion of the match last night. Beell and Rogers are both agreeable to wrestle in Peterborough if suitable inducements are made to them, but neither man is wrestling for his health.

The sporting public of Peterborough should not let the opportunity of having the match go by without a big bid for it. Beell is the most wonderful wrestler of this weight the world has ever known. He stands only five feet three inches in height, weighs 175 pounds and is a Sampson in strength and extraordinarily fast. Besides other victories over the leading heavyweights he has to his credit the defeat of Frank Gotch.

Young Hackenschmidt is an enthusiastic admirer of Beell.

"He is the greatest wrestler in the world," he said to the Review. "This fact is beyond dispute, and anybody who knows anything about wrestling will admit this. He has the same standing in the wrestling world that Fitzsimmons had in the ring."

"Do you think he would beat Rogers?"

Hack hesitated a moment before expressing an opinion for publication and then ventured the opinion that he would do so. He has every reason to know that Rogers is a good man, has seen Beell go and thinks he can defeat the Yankee. Frank Gotch, the world's champion, thinks that Beell can beat any heavyweight except himself.

HACKENSCHMIDT GAVE ROGERS GREAT BATTLE BUT YANKEE WON THE LAST TWO FALLS

Hack Took First in 18 Minutes of Vigorous and Scientific Wrestling—Rogers Appeared Too Strong and Heavy for His Opponent, Who Was Wonderfully Speedy and Clever—A Magnificent Exhibition

Last night patrons of the game saw the fastest and most interesting wrestling bout of the season. Yankee Rogers and Young Hackenschmidt held the interest of the audience during 42 1-2 minutes of sensational work. Rogers won, but Hack was certainly a good second. He gave Rogers the busiest time of his life and was on the aggressive for four-fifths of the time. He went right in from the commencement of the bout and gave Yank no time to do any of his spectacular leg wrestling—he was kept too busy defending himself from the onslaught of his lighter, but strong and very scientific opponent. Time and time again Yankee endeavored to get an effective leg nelson or scissors on his man, but Hackenschmidt was always there with an effective block and succeeded in standing off his man.

Considering Rogers' reputation to the uninitiated, Hack looked to be taking big chances in grappling as aggressively as he did, and wading in all the time, but while he was mixing it up at close quarters he protected himself at the same time by his admirable guard. Rogers seemed perplexed by his wonderful speed and in this respect the smaller man had it all over his opponent in a hundred different ways. When Rogers wrestled with Mohl his auditors thought he was about as speedy as any heavyweight in the business, but those who saw Young Hack let out last night admitted, if any of them had it on him in pure speed, they must have a little more human in their physical make-up. And he seemed to have more science than Yankee, but it was really his lightning-like quickness that showed him up to such great advantage. For none of them are better posted on the fine points of the game than the same Yankee. When it came to weight, though, Rogers had an advantage that counted, and it was on physical force combined with science, of course, also that won him the match. The men, as they went on the mat weighed, Hackenschmidt 188, Rogers 206, giving the latter the advantage of 18 pounds, every bit of which he used to advantage.

HACK GETS FIRST FALL

Young Hackenschmidt was the first to come out of his dressing room. He was given a fine reception by the crowd. Rogers got a cheer or two when he strode across the arena to the mat, but Yankee is not so popular here that any bouquets are tossed at him during a match. Everybody admits that he is a very fine wrestler, however, but too studiously rough to suit the average audience. Assistant Fire Chief Chief Taylor, acted as referee.

As soon as the men shook hands it was evident that Hack wanted a fall in the shortest possible order. He went at the big fellow in the most aggressive way and got behind him a couple of times much to the surprise of the spectators. To get back of a man like Rogers a wrestler must show exceptional speed.

Yankee was soon on the defensive and the men were down on the mat and up on their feet first one being in a dangerous position and then the other. After seven or eight minutes Rogers was forced to take the defensive and Hack held him there practically all of the time until the end of the first fall which went to Hackenschmidt after 18 minutes of the fastest, cleverest and altogether finest wrestling ever seen in Peterborough. Rogers had a leg Nelson on his man when the latter with a very speedy move broke away and pried his man over with a body scissors getting a further arm hold to make matters certain.

The audience was very enthusiastic and applauded and cheered for Hack

ROGERS GETS THIS ONE.

The work of throwing Yankee with his great size and power of resistance was apparently quite a strain for Hackenschmidt for when the men came on the mat again it was Rogers who commenced to do the work. He had done very little of the aggressive while the first fall was being obtained and was somewhat fresher than Hack. The latter was there though and argued every bit of the way. The men went after it faster than ever and they travelled at such a clip that it was difficult matter to follow their movements. Rogers was apparently determined to work harder and faster. When the men were on the mat with Rogers on top Yankee put on a crotch hold and Hackenschmidt in spite of his desperate resistance was forced over. Time 3 1-2 minutes.

He appeared very much depressed and did not go to his dressing room but sank back into his chair and waited dejectedly until the time for the last fall

In the final clash as in the other two the wrestling was of a high order and the fans were elated with the clever work. It was in the concluding period that the real struggle for supremacy came. Both men jumped right in and there was a lively exchange until the fall came.

Rogers won it in 8 minutes on a crotch hold.

THE PRELIMINARIES

In the first preliminary A. D. Yokome threw W. Landry twice, getting the first fall in 8 minutes and the second in 1 1-2 minutes.

Ned Fitzpatrick undertook to throw Jack Wilson twice in fifteen minutes and succeeded in doing so. The first fall only lasted 1 1-2 minutes, Fitzpatrick doubling on Wilson and throwing him with an armlock. With only two minutes to go Fitz got a full nelson and scissors hold on his opponent and the punishment was so severe that Wilson was forced to discontinue the bout. The go was an exciting one and was greeted with frequent outbursts of applause. Wilson put up a good argument but Fitz had the advantage of weight and appeared too strong and scientific.

Hackenschmidt refereed the preliminaries and gave great satisfaction.

LACROSSE

PRO. IN THE WEST

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 31—Professional lacrosse or none is the slogan of Vancouver admirers of the national game for next season. And if the British Columbia Amateur Athletic Union decides to make a ruling that at no time professionals and amateurs shall mix, as was the case in the recent Vancouver-Capital series then it means that the professional game will be played here next year. For New Westminster intends to retain the Minto Cup and if the trustees order it to defend this trophy against the Tecumsehs it is a cinch bet that it will do so. As this seems to be the only method of converting the Royals to the professional idea the officers of the Vancouver club are just hoping that the amateur union will rise up in its might and lay down the law good and fast.

Showed Poor Appreciation

Peterborough fans patronized the bout last night very poorly. Rogers any time he has wrestled here has figured in exciting and scientific matches and in view of his splendid matches with Mohl it is surprising that the crowd was not larger.

The sporting public failed to show the proper appreciation of an excellent bout.

PETERBORO' IN THE LEAD

Half Time Score at Riverside Park Was 3--0 in Favor of the Home Team

At half time in the Toronto A.A.C.-Peterborough rugby match at Riverside Park this afternoon, the home team led by 3 points to nil. Both teams had strong line-ups. The locals scored in the second quarter and one rouge. There was no scoring in the first quarter.

Game started at 2.51. Peterborough kicked off, playing north. There was an exchange of punts. The ball is worked towards T.A.A.C. for good gains. Pete Flett tore off the first spectacular run, cleverly catching a punt. MacPherson dodged through for a nice run, punting cleanly when tackled.

Flett and Fitzpatrick got into a mix-up in which Fitz used the Toronto man up quite a bit. Both were ruled off.

Crough got away on a beautiful run for thirty yards that set the crowd cheering wildly. The play was very even both teams making good play. Neither team scored up to the end of the first quarter.

A lively fracas occurred and O'Connor and Flett were ruled off.

Peterborough was making some nice short gains near the line. Macpherson kicked the ball over for the first point 1-0

Quinlan and Macpherson tried a pretty combination play but not for much gain. Macpherson kicked the ball and Flett had to rouge, 2-0

Fitzpatrick got the ball on a TAAC fumble about twenty feet from the line. Macpherson tried for a goal from the field but did not connect. The ball shot over the dead line for another point. Craig followed up and fell on the ball for a touch, but it was over the dead line and only one point was the result.

When half time was called the score was 3-0, for the locals.

Final score—T.A.A.C. 7; Peterborough 8.

DATES FOR THE STANLEY CUP GAMES

Whitcroft's Team Will Come East Early in January

Montreal, Oct. 03—The dates now suggested for the Stanley Cup games are January 6th, 8th and 11th. These dates were suggested by the Edmonton Club as being satisfactory to them. Mr. P. D. The Edmonton Club is willing to have the contest decided by a majority of goals in two matches should the champions not be able to play three matches.

Race to start at 2 p.m. and end at 11p.m. It is agreed that Mr. Hoagland, party of the first part, shall allow Mr. Harrison, party of the second part, a handicap of one mile. Said contest will be for a wager of $250 a side and division of the door receipts to be agreed upon before the day of the race, at which time a referee shall be agreed upon. It is also understood that no coaching shall be allowed; only three cautions for unfair walking or fouling will be allowed, either contestant violating this rule shall be disqualified, the referee's decision shall be final.

It is still further agreed that the said race shall be under the management of Mr. Chris. Graham, who is empowered by both parties to arrange all details of this contest and to select the final stakeholder and assist in naming a referee. The above agreements are satisfactory to both contestants and they therefore affix their signatures.

SPORTING TALK

Mr. Tommy McDonough, of the Oriental, has informed the Review that a handicap wrestling match has been arranged between him and Mr. Paddy Carroll, of the cafe department of the same hotel. Mr. Carroll, according to conditions is to throw his man in ten minutes. Followers of the game doubt whether he will be able to do so, as Tommy is very wiry and a clever defence wrestler.

GRANTS OF LAND FOR VETERANS

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Oct. 31—During the past week two enthusiastic and largely attended meetings have been held of men who took part in the South African War, and who are not entitled to participate in the land grant under the Volunteer Bounty Act of 1908. An Association has been formed to be called the "Imperial South African Veterans' Association." The object of the Association is to seek to have the above Act extended that all men of the Anglo-Saxon race who took part in the South African War, and who are not already entitled to participate in the land grant, and who were residing in Canada at the time the said Act came into force, shall be included in its provisions. Lord Milner and Lord Northcliffe, who have been staying here, and the newly elected members of the Dominion Government for this city have expressed their sympathy with the proposed amendment. Mr. Shelford Grimwood, 3 Metcalfe street, Toronto, has been appointed President of the above Association, and is also acting as Organizing Secretary for the Dominion and as soon as all the names of the men living in Canada are to hand, a deputation will wait on the Government at Ottawa.

THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

He held close to my elbow. We got just as far as the stockade in the bed of the arroyo. The lights we could make out now across the zenith, but owing to the precipitance of the cliffs and the rise of the arroyo bed it was impossible to see more. Handy Solomon felt the defenses carefully.

"A man would think, sir, it was a cannibal island," he observed. "All so tight and tidylike here. It would take a ship's guns to batter her down. A man might dig under these here two gate logs if no one was against him. Like to try it, sir?"

"No," I answered gruffly.

From that time on I was virtually a prisoner, yet so carefully was my surveillance accomplished that I could place my finger on nothing definite. Some one always accompanied me on my walks, and in the evening I was herded as closely as any cattle.

Handy Solomon took the direction of affairs off my hands. You may be sure he set no very heavy tasks. The men cut a little wood, carried up a few pails of water. That was all.

Lacking incentive to stir about, they came to spend most of their time lying on their backs watching the sky. This in turn bred a languor which is the sickest, most soul and temper destroying affair invented by the devil. They could not muster up energy enough to walk down the beach and back, and yet they were wearied to death of the inaction. After a little they became irritable toward one another. Each suspected the other of doing less than he should. You who know men will realize what this meant.

The atmosphere of our camp became surly. I recognized the precursor of its becoming dangerous. One day on a walk in the hills I came on Thrackles and Puls lying on their stomachs gazing down fixedly at Dr. Schermerhorn's camp. This was nothing extraordinary, but they started guiltily to their feet when they saw me and made off, growling under their breaths.

All this that I have told you so briefly took time. It was the eating through of men's spirits by that worst of corrosives, idleness. I conceive it unnecessary to weary you with the details.

The situation was as yet uneasy, but not alarming. One evening I overheard the beginning of an absurd plot to gain entrance to the valley. That was as far as detail went. I became convinced at last that I should in some way warn Percy Darrow.

That seems a simple enough proposition, does it not? But if you will stop to think one moment of the difficulties of my position you will see that it was not as easy as at first it appears. Darrow still visited us in the evening. The men never allowed me even the chance of private communication while he was with us. One or two took pains to stretch out between us. Twice I arose when the assistant did, resolved to accompany him part way back. Both times men resolutely escorted us and as resolutely separated us from the opportunity of a single word apart. The crew never threatened me by word or look. But we understood each other.

I was not permitted to row out to the Laughing Lass without escort. Therefore I never attempted to visit her again. The men were not anxious to do so. Their awe of the captain made them only too glad to escape his notice. That empty shell of a past reputation was my only hope. It shielded the arms and ammunition.

As I look back on it now the period seems to me to be one of merely potential trouble. The men had not taken the pains to crystallize their ideas. I really think their compelling emotion was that of curiosity. They wanted to see. It needed a definite impulse to change that desire to one of greed.

The impulse came from Percy Darrow and his idle talk of voodoos. As usual he was directing his remarks to the sullen nigger.

"Voodoos?" he said. "Of course there are. Don't fool yourself for a minute on that. There are good ones and bad ones. You can tame them if you know how, and they will do anything you want them to." Pulz chuckled in his throat. "You don't believe it?" drawled the assistant, turning to him. "Well, it's so. You know that heavy box we are so careful of? Well, that's got a tame voodoo in it."

The others laughed.

"What he like?" asked the nigger gravely.

"He's a fine voodoo, with wavery arms and green eyes and red glows."

GREATEST CHORUS MIXED VOICES

A Standard of Musical Excellence Unsurpassed in the World

The visit of the Sheffield Choir to Canada is a direct outcome of the desire for closer intercourse between the Dominion and Great Britain in the realm of music. This movement originating from Canada has made for reciprocity in music between the Motherland and her principal overseas Dominion, demonstrating with no uncertain sound that the art of music-making fostered upon true principles whilst serving to cultivate the higher sense of things that matter can also become productive of practical results along the lines indigenous to business and commerce.

The Sheffield Choir of England is known to be the greatest chorus of mixed voices in the world. Such is conceded by the entire press of Great Britain and the press of Germany. Such also is the opinion of the world's foremost living Conductors and Composers—Richter, Nokisch, Weingartner, Elgar, Parry, Stanford, Mackenzie and others.

The visit of the Choir to Germany during the autumn of 1906 further accentuated the unprecedented standard of unsurpassable excellence to which the Sheffield singers have soared, leading men of music, statesmen and royalty being of one mind and opinion regarding their undoubted powers.

The Choral selections to be given in performance here have been chosen to show the extraordinary versatility with which this famous chorus is accredited in the performance of every kind of choral music, the perfect rendering of which added to their God-given voices, has earned for the Sheffield Chorus the envied reputation of being the greatest choir in the world.

Their visit to Canada is for the short period of twelve days, during which time one concert will be given in the Grand Opera House at Peterborough on the evening of Thursday, Nov. 12th. You are invited to support this movement in music—conceived as it is in the interests and welfare of the Dominion—by subscribing liberally for tickets, the prices of which it is hoped have been placed within the reach of all people.

Subscription lists are now open.

Subscribers will be entitled to the first choice of seats.

THE HOOK

At a dinner of a legal association held in Washington not long ago one of the speakers told of a farmer's son in Illinois who conceived a desire to shine as a legal light. Accordingly he went up to Springfield, where he accepted employment at a small sum from a fairly well known attorney. At the end of three days' study he returned to the farm.

"Well Bill how do you like the law?" asked the father.

"It ain't what it's cracked up to be," responded Bill. "I'm sorry I learned it."

The teacher received the following note explaining the absence of one of her pupils the day before:

"Plese excoose Henny for absents yesterday. Him and me got a chance of a ride to a funeral in a carrage and I let him stay at home as he had never rode in a carriage and never went to a funeral nor had many other pleasures. So plese excoose."

In New Haven the committee of a graduating class once went to a local jeweller with a commission for a large badge. They had in view a design representing a youthful graduate surveying the universe. "About how large would you like the figure," the jeweller asked. "Well, said the spokesman, 'we thought the graduate ought to cover about three-quarters of the badge and the universe the rest."

A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

The Trouble Yields to the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make

Ask any doctor and he will tell you that rheumatism is rooted in the blood; that nothing can cure it that does not reach the blood. It is sheer waste of money and time to try to cure rheumatism with liniments and lotions that only go skin deep. You can speedily cure rheumatism with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, drive out the poisonous acid and loosen the stiffened, aching joints. Among the thousands of rheumatic sufferers cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mr. W. A. Taylor, Newcastle, N. B., who says:—"For a number of years I was a great sufferer from rheumatism, which was seated in my shoulders and knee joints. I tried liniments and blistering but with no effect. In fact the trouble was getting worse, and my knee joints got so stiff that they would snap if I stooped, and I could scarcely straighten up. Altogether I was a terrible sufferer, and nothing I did or took gave me any relief until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I took the Pills steadily for a couple of months, and every vestige of the trouble disappeared. That was two years ago, and as I have had no return of the trouble, I feel safe in assuming that the cure is permanent."

Nine-tenths of the common ailments that afflict humanity are due to bad blood, and as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood, that is the reason they cure so many different troubles, such as anaemia, indigestion, rheumatism, eczema, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, paralysis and the ailments of girlhood and womanhood with all their distressing headaches, backaches and irregularities. Sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail at 50c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE LAYMEN'S MISSION MOVEMENT

To the Editor of the Review,

Sir,—Is it not unfortunate that Peterborough has not yet taken its place among the other cities of Canada in coming into touch with one of the most remarkable movements of this generation? We may be sure that our laymen are as enterprising as those of Ottawa, Kingston or Hamilton. The movement has developed so much vigor, sparkling enthusiasm and brotherhood that we cannot afford to be outsiders.

I venture, therefore, to suggest that each congregation (which has not already done so), should arrange to-morrow to send a delegation of influential men to the meetings to be held in Toronto on Monday and Tuesday. These delegates, if impressed by the strength of the movement, would probably on their return call a general meeting to discuss organization, and it will be well for the rest of us to keep our eyes open for reports of the Toronto meetings.

Yours, &c.,
ANGLICAN.

MRS. S. F. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ONT.:

Dear Mrs. Currah,—Your letter of the 24th received to-day. Please find enclosed $5.00 for 6 boxes of Orange Lily. I would not think of discontinuing its use, as I know that 6 more boxes will produce a permanent cure. Even now I am an entirely new creature since using O. L. At present I know of two other cases the same as mine, (long standing leucorrhoea), and as you give sample trial boxes free, if you would send me a few I would gladly hand them to my friends, for I know it will produce the same good results in every case. I intend sending you my photo and testimonial letter later, for I feel we cannot say too much in favor of Orange Lily, and know if more of same was used among suffering womankind the surgeon's knife would be cheated of its many baptisms in the blood of suffering women. Hoping God may ever bless and prosper you and Dr. Coonley in your noble work, believe me, ever your sincere friend, MISS R. McK., Merlin P.O., Kent Co., Ont.

KINGSTON, ONT., July 15th, 1903

DEAR FRIEND,—Some time ago I wrote and told you the great good your wonderful medicine had done for me. Since then I have continued to use it, and after five years of terrible suffering and undergoing three operations, I am completely cured by Orange Lily, after using it for eight months. I cannot say too much in praise of it. Knowing as I do, that so many women in this city suffer as I did, and knowing what it did for me, I would like to take the Agency. Will you please send instructions and terms to Agents? Gratefully yours, MISS G. T., 359 Brock street.

"THE WOLF"

Story of the play which appears here shortly.

Concluded from Yesterday.

She looks very young and very childish in her rough, shapeless dress and heavy braids as she shakes her head, helplessly. "Still, I don't know."

She has come to one conclusion. If there is to be any shame connected with going away, she will stay, regardless of the bitterness of life here. Her father must not be able to say that her heart is black. People must not talk about her as they did about her mother.

"But if your father consents. If, after I talk with him, he wishes you to go?"

She hesitates, almost convinced. McDonald is promising her all she asks. The desire to live her own life, to be free, to pierce the mysteries which beckon her from the country beyond the pines and barriers, struggles with the instinctive fear of McDonald which has lodged in her heart, she knows not why. Yet uncertainty masters her. "Still I don't know."

McDonald realises that the sure way to reach Hilda is, after all, through her father. When McTavish comes in, McDonald approaches him adroitly. He begins very far from his object. He offers to let McTavish invest his scanty saving in a sure thing. The railway for which McDonald surveys is directing its course towards the Little Bear River. When the line is completed, the land at the mouth of the river will be valuable. McDonald has invested there sufficient capital to return him a fortune. If McTavish wishes to invest he will relieve him of making all arrangements. When McTavish has the money he can travel—he can even go back to visit Scotland.

At the suggestion of Scotland, his "boyland," the old man softens for the only time during the play.

"Mon, I ha dreamt o' Scotland these twenty years. I've dreamt o' it in the long cold night o' winter, and under the pines in the summer time wind has sung her sweet dear ballads. I hae closed ma eyes and me heart's near cracking at the thought o' me bonnie land. Scotland—mon 'tis the thought of her that hae kept the life in me body these long, lonely, weary years."

Stirred by this prospect, McTavish listens favorably to McDonald's further proposition. When the railroad goes through near their home, there will be many men on the construction gangs. Now, McDonald has a godly mother in New York who would make it her delight to continue the work of guarding Hilda. McDonald himself will gladly take her to New York to place her under his good mother's care.

His words lift a weight of anxiety from McTavish's mind. McDonald has his complete confidence. Freely he consents to the plan and goes to tell Hilda of the change in her circumstances.

At that moment McDonald smells a whiff of cigarette smoke. He wheels abruptly. On the window casement leans Jules.

"In the United States we would call that eavesdropping."

"Twould be the same in any language. Yet—you have heard all is fair in—love—and—war."

Jules' pleasant voice and soft smile disarm his enemies. One may fight with him but never quarrel.

"Won't you come in?"

"Thanks." Jules leaves the window and reappears at the door.

"You were lying to that old man."

"No. Only following your method—promises."

McDonald eyes him defensively. Suave and courteous as Jules is, Huntley's warning has made McDonald wary.

McDonald makes a generous proposition. He feels his position impregnable. Jules knows that he has a wife back in the States, but he cannot use this information against McDonald. Hilda's choice must be the culmination of her own impressions and desire. McDonald proposes that before he sees Hilda, Jules shall have an interview with her, "Though I tell you now—you haven't a shred of a chance."

"Still I take that chance."

Jules says not a word to Hilda of his love for her. He tells her of his sister Annette. Love is not always good. It was not good for her.

Hilda cannot explain her own desire for love. When the wolves how on winter nights near the door, she longs to be one of them, free to choose a mate, and her own way of living. Is this love?

"I do not know, Hilda. All men do not love alike. Love is the great desire and all that live have it. In the spring when the snow melts and the ice crashes down the river, when the pink flowers of the forest peep from under the snowdrifts, then the world is full of love. The ducks and the geese are noisy in their romances. The he-wolf kills night and day to feed the mother of his cubs. The bull-moose bellows in the pride of his fatherhood. The robin watches its bright-eyed mate on the next tree waiting for those three little eggs to bring new life into the world. And all this, Hilda, is the love God wanted man to have. But it is not so, Hilda. Some men, some time have sinned and the great desire is not always good, not always pure. Hilda, I have had the great desire like all men. I have not always been good, but, having been bad, I have learned much and now always I wish to be good. Love comes to a man in his loneliness and tears his heart like the fangs of a wolf. I have been in the north when at noon the red rim of a distant sun is the only message of warmth and glow of the distant southland. And then, in the cold and loneliness the great desire has come upon me. I love, and somewhere I knew my mate was waiting for me and I'd curl up among my dogs and sleep peacefully."

One phrase of Jules lingers longest in Hilda's consciousness. Annette's love was not good; she trusted a man who deceived her; he was not of her race nor of her tongue.

When McDonald tells her that her father has consented to her going away with him she shrinks from him. While he dilates on the expanded life this means, she sits at the window, thinking of an old Indian superstition: Last night the wolves formed in a pack. She heard them howling. Did not he know, she asks McDonald, that the wolves never form in a pack in the summer time unless some one is about to die? He laughs at her childish fears. Then, as the shaft of sunlight glorifies her hair and slender face, a passion for her sweeps over him. He catches her in his arms telling her how much he loves her, though he is not of her race nor of her tongue.

The embrace terrifies her. The words awaken the latent resistance to him that Jules has fostered. Now she sees the whole plot. Her father and this man have conspired to blacken her soul.

Her shrieks bring McTavish and Jules. Hilda cowers behind Jules for protection. Believing that Hilda has refused to go to McDonald's mother because Beaubien is her lover, McTavish would tear her with his bare hands.

At this moment B'aptiste's gun appears at the window. He covers McDonald and McTavish until Jules and Hilda have escaped through the door and out into the forest.

The third act shows that by evening the fugitives have advanced as far as the portage of Little Bear. The soft coolness of twilight is creeping up from the river. A red rim of sun still glows dully on the horizon. The vivid forest hues sink in the shadowy light to quiet brown.

Down the rocky path of the hill Jules and Huntley, who has cast his lot with them, carry the canoe. While Hilda, worn by the day's excitement, rests on some blankets near a log, Jules unfolds his plan to B'aptiste and Huntley. They are to take Hilda in the canoe farther down the river, while he waits for McDonald. If Jules does not appear the next day, B'aptiste is to return to complete the work Jules has failed to do. In that event Huntley is to take Hilda to Montreal. Jules has made a rude draft of a will. Huntley is to arrange that Hilda shall possess the modest fortune Jules leaves for her in Montreal.

"Nice, cheerful little document to hand a fellow," mutters Huntley.

The sun has quite disappeared. The only light comes from the fire Jules has kindled for Hilda. The gloomy blackness of night, fast limiting their vision urges them forward.

The time has come for Jules to bid farewell to Hilda. Here motions are no longer pale and childish. The revelations of the afternoon, the active resistance of her father; the direct expression of deep feelings, have changed the passivity of a child. She knows now. Her "desire" is no longer vague. She loves Jules.

Gently, her arms around her shoulders, Jules tells her that he must wait for the man who follows them.

"Do not be afraid of McDonald. To-morrow, at noon, Hilda ma chere, I will meet you an the fork of the Little Bear River, with M'sieu Huntley, and there will be a priest there, and there you will be my wife. Wait until to-morrow, and if, to-morrow at noon at the fork of the Little Bear River, I, Jules Beaubien, do not meet you, remember that I am waiting for you on another river that has no ending, where there is but one father who is a kind father, and where there are no hardships or complaints, and where there are thousands and thousands of canoes and all of them filled with angels and floating in the sunshine for ever on its peaceful waters. Always will I wait there and whenever you come I will be there, to take you in my arms. . . . Hilda, I love you, I love you."

As the soft paddle strokes faded into the night, Jules makes sure that his knife slips readily from his belt and that his revolver is filled with cartridges. Then he waits.

The night is a black wall hiding all but the upward flickering ribbons of the fire-flame. Jules is a shadow perceptible only when he moves. In the distance, wolves begin to bark—snarling crescendos of shrill menace. It is the pack that Hilda has heard the night before.

Suddenly there is a crashing descent on the rocky path. A revolver shot. Quickly, Jules thinks of the fire and hurls himself headlong across the open space to the fire, smothering it by his fall.

A silence.

Then some one stirs — creeping stealthily, warily down the path. Cautiously he approaches the long shadows where near the log the fire had burned. He stirs the huddled mass on the ground with his foot. No response.

Suddenly there is a quick uprising. The two men grapple. Back and forth they force one another. In the heavy gloom their faces and forms are indistinguishable. Neither makes a sound; the struggle is intense. Hardened by years of exposure and combating against nature, the men are pitted equally.

Then there is a choking cry. One of the men has the other by the throat. He forces him to his knees, then back until his breast is clear. There is a swift flash of a knife. Another choking gurgle. Then quiet.

The man holding the knife straightens himself with a contented cheerful grunt. He strikes a match to satisfy completely any doubt of the other's death.

The momentary flame flickers over McDonald's lifeless face.

Jules lifts his voice in a long, resonant, "Hallo, B'aptiste!"

Back over the water echoes a distant, glad, "Hallo, Jules!"

The End.

SCOTCH CONCERT AT CONSERVATORY MUSIC HALL

Held Last Evening Under Auspices of St. Andrew's Choir

The Conservatory Music hall was well filled last evening on the occasion of the Scotch concert given under the auspices of the choir of St. Andrew's church. The programme was entirely of a Scotch character, Mr. Barclay McDonald Robinson, delighting his hearers with his readings. Mr. Robinson speaks the Scotch dialect perfectly as was evidenced by his readings last night.

A feature of the evening was the chorus work by the choir, which had been especially trained by Mr. R. Gliddon. The lady members were gowned in white with tartan sashes and looked well. The programme was as follows:

COLD BROUGHT ON KIDNEYS DISEASE

Brantford Lady Suffered Till Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. A. H. Thompson Had Heart Disease, Lumbago and Rheumatism, and Tells How She Was Restored to Health.

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 30.—(Special)—How Colds, La Grippe and other ills settle on the Kidneys and develop Rheumatism, Heart Disease, Bright's Disease and other terribly dangerous ailments; and how any and all of them are cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is fully shown in the case of Mrs. A. H. Thomson, whose home is at 48 Albion Street, this city.

Mrs. Thomson was, some years ago, taken with Cold and La Grippe and Straining, which affected her Kidneys, and the result was Backache, Lumbago, Rheumatism and Heart Disease, which caused both her and her friends grave anxiety.

She had suffered some years when she heard of cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and bought a box which she used with such splendid results that she continued to take them till she was cured. Since then she has used Dodd's Kidney Pills in her own family and recommended them widely to her friends, all of whom have warm words of praise for the standard Canadian Kidney remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Bright's Disease are all Kidney Diseases or are caused by diseased Kidneys. You can't have any of them if you keep your Kidneys sound and your blood pure. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the Kidneys sound. Sound Kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood.

Ezekiel Hill, the Indian, was sentenced at Brantford to ten years for assaulting Mrs. Levi General, an Indian woman.

This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

ITALIAN KILLED WITH STONE A MURDER NEAR INGERSOLL

The Men Disputed Over a Game.

M. Ponzi Hit Pardi Constantine With Two Pound Rock and Death Follows.

Ingersoll, Nov. 2.—Murder was the outcome of a dispute yesterday afternoon between two Italians, members of a party of navvies in the employ of the C.P.R., who for the past few days have been occupying cars here. The immediate cause of the fatal quarrel is not definitely known, but it is supposed to have been due to a difference of opinion as to a game which they had been playing. In a fit of rage M. Ponzi, a man of powerful physique, standing nearly six feet in height, is said to have seized a large stone, weighing probably two pounds, and hurled it at his fellow-countryman, Pardi Constantine. The missile struck Constantine over the left temple with such force that he dropped in his tracks and expired before the doctor arrived.

Intense excitement followed the crime, during which Ponzi made his escape, and although a search was at once made for him his whereabouts are still unknown. His description has been wired to many neighboring points.

The tragedy occurred shortly after 4 o'clock and the police had very little time to follow the trail.

After Constantine received the death blow, Ponzi hurried to the car he had been occupying and grabbed his coat. He started in a westerly direction and is supposed to have followed the C.P.R. in the direction of St. Thomas.

The fact that the Italians in the party have very little knowledge of the English language and that they make no apparent efforts to render assistance have placed the police at a disadvantage in getting at the details in connection with the killing. A twin brother of the dead man was an eye-witness of the affair and he was almost frantic from grief.

It appears that the quarrel was precipitated by a game which resembles "Duck on the rock." This, it is said, was being played for money. In pitching a stone, the one who knocked the coin out of a ring, kept it. The ownership of a coin was probably the root of the quarrel.

The scene of the murder is a point about 250 yards west of the C.P.R. depot. The murdered man was 28 years of age and married. His family are in Italy and he had intended leaving in a week's time to join them. Ponzi is escribed as being 28 or 30 years of age, 5 feet 11 inches or 6 feet in height. He wore a dark brown or black coat, blue overalls, faded, and a soft felt hat.

HAD SAD ENDING

Three Killed Returning From Dance.

Tragic Affair Near Windsor—Failed to Hear Approaching Electric Car.

Windsor, Nov. 2.—Three lives were blotted out in an instant when one of the big suburban cars on the W.E. & L.S. Electric Railway ran down three men walking on the tracks near Pelton station shortly before midnight on Friday. The dead are: Walter Gilhula, James Battersby and Francis Battersby. The night was dark and the noise of an approaching car was drowned out by the heavy freight train passing on the Michigan Central tracks close by.

The three men had been attending a Hallowe'en dance given by Wm. C. Donaldson. James Battersby was keeper of a tower at the point where the Pere Marquette Railroad tracks and the Michigan Central Railway intersect, and was trying to reach his tower in time to let down the gates for an approaching train, the rumble of which drowned the noise of the electric train coming behind the men, and without knowing the car was bearing down on them the two Battersbys and Gilhula were struck.

The motorman discerned the men ahead for about forty yards before they were struck. He rang his gong and sounded the pneumatic whistle in the usual manner, but the signals apparently were unheard and in a moment the swiftly-moving car had overtaken the little party and ground out their lives beneath the wheels. The head of Gilhula was severed from the body. Coroner Brien of Essex empanelled a jury and held an inquest on Saturday, but adjourned it until today in order that the bodies might be viewed. No blame is attached to the crew of the suburban car. The three victims of the accident were all well-known young men residing in Sandwich West. The Battersby boys were cousins. All were unmarried.

Women's Mission Circle

The thankoffering service of the Women's Mission Circle of the Murray street Baptist church will be held on Tuesday afternoon, tomorrow, at three o'clock.

A MYSTERIOUS ACCIDENT OCCURS NEAR SMITH'S FALLS

Smith's Falls, Nov. 2.—Cycil Gallipean of this place died at the hospital Saturday, the result of a mysterious accident which he met with on Thursday.

With his brother Elisha he was engaged in cutting wood on Jas. Maitland's farm. They had partaken of their dinner in the woods and had sat down on a log to light their pipes. A few moments later both were unconscious. About 3 o'clock Elisha recovered and saw his brother sitting on a log some distance away, but neither could tell what had happened. They called for help and short time later were brought to town.

They became delirious and from that condition Cycil never rallied. His brother is almost recovered now, but is suffering from several bruises on his body. It is supposed that a heavy branch was blown from the tree near where the men were sitting and struck them both at once, the injury inflicted on Cycil Gallipeau proving fatal.

ELECTIONS NOT HAVING MUCH EFFECT ON NEW YORK MARKET

Special to the Review.

New York, November 2. — Great strength of market, but more or less apathy ruled the Stock Exchange during the week. Next Tuesday the great choice between the two Presidential candidates will be settled, and as a stock market influence that factor will quickly disappear. The prevailing impression is that the results will be satisfactory and that both the stock market and general business will gain thereby in confidence and increased activity. Possibily such anticipations will be realized to an unexpected extent; but it is easy to attach too much weight to such considerations, and in all probability the election, having been largely discounted, hence will exert nothing more than a passing influence in the stock market. Some mercantile and manufacturing business has doubtless been held in abeyance, pending the election, caused by doubt with many as to the result. Still it is safe to assert that the sum total of business during 1908 will prove to have been after all but slightly affected by the election. In fact, at a time when uncertainty is at its height, we find legitimate business is actually showing its greatest recovery from panic. Now that uncertainty is over, we may look forward to a steady advance toward the normal.

$413.95 AMOUNT OF FINES AT POLICE COURT TO-DAY

Four hundred and thirteen dollars and ninety-five cents was the total amount of fines imposed at the police court this morning. It was the biggest morning that Magistrate Dumble has had for some time and the receipts are larger than any previous day in the present year. There were a number of disorderly cases on the docket resulting in the payment of heavy fines but the amount taxed each frequenter of the gaming house is what so considerably swelled the city coffers. With the exception of one, the fines were all paid.

PROPOSITION TO HOLD UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICE

The proposition has been made that the churches of Peterborough should unite in holding a Thanksgiving service on Monday morning. This is being done in several other Canadian cities and the idea is being generally approved. If this was done there would no doubt be a large attendance at the service, which would, of course, have to be held in some large building in order that there would be sufficient accommodation.

The Ministerial Association of the city is holding a meeting on Thursday and it is understood that the proposition referred to above will be brought up.

FORECAST FAVORS REPUBLICANS

Calculations Indicate That Taft Will be Next President—New York Herald's Disinterested Reports Favor Republican Candidate by Substantial Majority.

New York, Nov. 2.—The Herald thus sums up its final forecast:

Reasonably sure Republican: California 10, Colorado 5, Connecticut 7, Delaware 3, Idaho 3, Illinois 27, Indiana 15, Iowa 13, Kansas 10, Maine 6, Massachusetts 16, Michigan 14, Minnesota 11, Montana 3, New Hampshire 4, New Jersey 12, New York 39, North Dakota 4, Ohio 23, Oregan 4, Pennsylvania 34, Rhode Island 4, South Dakota 4, Utah 3, Vermont 4, Washington 5, West Virginia 7, Wisconsin 13, Wyoming 3. Total 306.

Reasonably sure Democratic: Alabama 11 Arkansas 9, Florida 5, Georgia 13, Kentucky 13, Louisiana 9, Maryland 8, Mississippi 10, Missouri 18, Nebraska 8, Nevada 3, North Carolina 12 Oklahoma 7, South Carolina 12. Total 177.

Basing the forecast of to-day still on surface indications and on reports made by disinterested correspondents in various doubtful states, The Herald gives Mr. Taft 306 electoral votes and Mr. Bryan 177.

"The states changed from the table of last Sunday are six. No state that Mr. Taft seemed then to have with reasonable surety has been lost to him during the last week of the campaign. No state that Mr. Bryan was credited with last week has gone from his column.

"It yet remains to be seen, however, whether the peculiar announcement by John D. Rockefeller that he would support Taft can be turned by the Democrats into an argument which may swing some close states back to Bryan. The Democratic campaigners are making use of the incident with all the avidity with which a last card is seized upon in the closing hours of the campaign.

The following are the statements given out by the party chairman and the candidates themselves:

Chairman Mack (Dem.)—"A landslide for Bryan. The party is reunited and victory is in the air. He will have 333 votes, made up of the solid south with 169 votes, including Maryland and Delaware, Colorado 5, Connecticut 7, New York 39, Kansas 10, New Jersey 12, North Dakota 4, Oregon 4, Rhode Island 4, West Virginia 7, Wisconsin 13, Wyoming 3, Indiana 15, Idaho 3, Montana 3, Ohio 23, Nebraska 8, South Dakota 4 Total 164. California and Illinois I place in the doubtful column but the chances are extremely in favor of their being won."

Chairman Hitchcock (Rep.)—"We will have 325 electoral votes."

Candidate Taft—"The State of New York is the most Republican part of the United States. There is every indication, through that part of the state above the Bronx, that there will be a majority of the Republican ticket, nearly equal to that of Mr. Roosevelt four years ago. The Democratic majority in the City of New York will probably not exceed 70,000 votes. This will be overcome by the Republican vote above the Bronx with such overwhelming force as to give the Republican ticket in the Empire State a clear majority of from 100,000 and upward."

Candidate Bryan—"While I think that the result is more certain in some states than in others, I do not want to discourage those in less certain states by making discriminations. I believe that we shall have votes to spare in the electoral college and in a considerable majority of the popular vote."

Walter Wellman of The Chicago Record-Herald gives Taft 260 sure and Bryan 172 sure, doubtful but probably Republican 8, doubtful but probably Democatic 43. He differs from The New York Herald in that he gives Montana to Byran; gives Ohio doubtful, but probably Democrat, and Indiana doubtful, but probably Democratic.

"LE NATIONALISTE" FRANKLY ADMITS THAT THE RE-ELECTION OF SIR WILFRID LAURIER IS THE TRIUMPH OF RACIAL PREJUDICE

In the Whole Province of Quebec Only Six French—Canadian Counties Supported the Conservatives—Of the 24 Counties in Ontario and Maritime Provinces Where French-Canadians Are Most Numerous, 23 Elected Ministerialists.

The Review has followed, closely, in wording and display, the leading article four columns wide upon the front page of Le Nationaliste, both as to the headlines and reading matter, of which the following is a translation.

"One can find more than instruction in the 26th of October: for our part before everything we see in it the triumph of race prejudice. It is in effect to the compact vote not merely of Quebec but of the French-Canadians of Ontario and the Maritime Provinces that Mr. Laurier most clearly owes his triumph. . . . If Mr. Borden, however, had thought upon the number of French-Canadian electors in these province she would have been spared many disillusions. There are as a matter of fact in Ontario and the Maritime Provinces several hundred thousand of our compatriots. The majority supported in the provincial elections Whitney and Hazen, Mr. Whitney especially who as soon as he came into power added Mr. Rheaume as Minister of Public Works to his ministry, and Mr. Foy, Irish Catholic, as Attorney-General. This procured for him the French-Canadian vote almost en bloc. In the Federal election on the contrary, these same electors turned as one man in favor of Laurier. The following table will give some idea of the number of French-Canadians in Ontario:

Prescott—70 per cent. of pop.
Russell—50 per cent.
Nipissing—42 per cent.
N. Essex—40 per cent.
Ottawa—33 per cent.
Glengarry—32 per cent.
Cornwall—26 per cent., etc.

While in New Brunswick, Gloucester has a French-Canadian population amounting to 81 per cent. of the total:

Kent—67 per cent.
Victoria—63 per cent.
Richmond—50 per cent.
Restigouche—44 per cent.
Westmorland—36 per cent., etc.

One has no difficulty in explaining the result if one reflects upon the influence upon an election of five hundred thousand or merely five hundred ballots falling into the box in favor of the same candidate. But suppress this influence, suppose the vote is divided pretty equally in the French-Canadian counties and the rest of the country and you will see that the Government would have been upset. It is a brutal fact against which no mere talk can prevail."

"It would be wrong to conclude that we condemn Mr. Laurier or approve of the return of Mr. Borden. We approve on the contrary without reserve of the action of those who did what they believed to be right in giving their support to the Liberal party, and we do not say that on our part we would not have done the same in spite of everything. . . . When we reproach our compatriots with is not for having voted for Mr. Laurier, but for having voted for him solely because he was a man of their own race. If an English speaking First Minister with the same administrative record had placed himself before the French-Canadian electorate, would it have done the same? Hardly. On the contrary, we believe that if Mr. Laurier, instead of being called Laurier, was called Smith or Johnson the French-Canadian vote would have been divided almost as the English was. When Mr. Laurier comes again to boast of his work in re-uniting Canada and in obliterating race prejudice we shall point to the late elections. . . . For weeks and months the journals in Quebec, Ontario and the Maritime Provinces have appealed to the French-Canadian elector in the name of race. He himself has gone from one end of the province to the other crying "I do not want you to vote for me because I am of your own blood, but I ask you not to vote against me because I am one of your own." . . . Our compatriots have not been proof against these manoeuvres, and the result is that they have voted for Laurier "parce que c'est un Canadien" (because he is a Canadian) without considering the questions at issue, the interest of the country or common sense. . . . Of the twenty-four counties of Ontario and the three Atlantic provinces where the French-Canadian vote predominates, only ONE voted for Borden. If ever the exploitation of race prejudice has been pushed farther let us hear of it. Whenever there has been a sentiment rising in the French-Canadian breast regarding French-Canadian rights. Mr. Laurier has said "If we combine and the English combine in the same way, we shall be crushed." . . . But when it comes to gaining elections he forgets his principles as he did on Monday last."

(Sgd.) Jules Fournier.

The Review thanks "Le Nationaliste" for its honesty and candour. In the old days when Sir John A. Macdonald was kept in power it was chiefly through the French-Canadian vote. His own compatriots ignored the sentiment of race and voted against him. The English-speaking electors have never combined on that basis. It may be well, however, as Le Nationaliste plainly points out, for French-Canadians, who by the way, are esteemed and beloved by their fellow-countrymen in Ontario and elsewhere to remember that if the English combine in the same way as the French combined on Oct. 26th Canada may once more become merely a number of provinces.

FIRE ON SUNDAY

Occasioned Considerable Alarm—Barn Was Burned

A good sized blaze was created by children playing with matches in Mr. J. P. Francis' barn at 228 Euclid Avenue yesterday afternoon about four o'clock. The structure was a frame one and contained two loads of straw, half a bale of hay and a pig, and once the flames got a start they made great headway. The brigade made a rapid run over to Ashburnham, but the barn was over 2000 feet from the nearest hydrant and consequently the waterworks could not be used. The barn was practically ruined before the firemen got there, so that the water would have been of little use anyway. The brigade therefore directed all its attention to preventing the flames spreading to the two houses close by, which they did with the chemicals.

Damage to the extent of $35 to contents and $100 to building, was done and there was no insurance. Mr. Francis however was successful in saving his team of horses and harness but he received some nasty burns about the face and right arm.

After the brigade had left the wind fanned the fire up again and sent sparks flying to such and extent that the neighbors were afraid of their property and notified the chief who loaded a bunch of buckets onto the old wagon and went out again. A bucket brigadew was formed and after emptying two wells and drawing a lot of water from the creek, the fire was extinguished entirely.

AN OUTBREAK OF SMALLPOX

Number of Cases at Kingston—Was Diagnosed as Chickenpox

Special to the Review.

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 2— Quite a number of smallpox cases have developed within the past few days. Doctors had not reported the cases which they had diagnosed as chickenpox. The attack is remarkably mild.

RAID BY POLICE

Six Local Men Are Caught Gambling

Police Constables Newhall and Adams raided a place on Water street about two o'clock on Sunday morning, with the result that six well known men of this city were summoned to the police court this morning charged with being frequenters of a gaming house. Mr. G. W. Hatton appeared for the defendants. He pleaded guilty to the charge against the man, that of being the proprietor of a gaming house. He also pleaded guilty for the men who were caught playing the game. In the case against the proprietor His Worship reserved judgment until to-morrow, but in the others he imposed a fine (on each one of sixty dollars and costs, amounting to $63.85.

The table on which they were playing was in court.

Five Boys Had to Pay Fines—Young Man Taxed for Being Disorderly.

M. Pappas pleaded guilty to being disorderly in his pool room on Thursday night last. A young man who was the cause of the disorder did not appear in court, pleaded guilty and was fined ten dollars to be paid forthwith. After hearing the evidence His Worship dismissed the case against Pappas.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Mr. Pappas.

Mordi McGill said that on Thursday night last he came along and he saw Hoolihan was holding a young man, trying to quiet him. Pappas and the young man were fighting. Pappas struck him with his left hand and had a street car box in his right hand which he raised as though he was going to strike. The police were 'phoned and the young man went home.

Victor Fowler was passing by when the row was on. Things seemed to have quieted down when he arrived. He saw Pappas make an attempt to strike the young man. Pappas had him down.

Samuel Hoolihan after finishing his work in the pool room, went across the street. He did not see any blows struck. He took hold of the young man and took him out.

Harry Thompson said the young man came in and had a conversation with Pappas which culminated in a scuffle. He saw the two fall on the floor.

Pappas said that he was in the cigar store when this young man came in, swearing and cursing. He tried to put him out and a scuffle ensued. Defendant denied striking him.

Chief Rozzel stated that the young man pleaded guilty. He informed the Chief that he was drunk.

HALLOWE'EN.

Five youths under the age of sixteen years were each fined two dollars at the police court this morning for tearing up a crossing at Murray street and pulling down a fence on the property of a Brock street resident on Hallowe'en.

The boys were evidently out to do all the damage they could but were taken into custody by P. C. Meagher before a great deal of harm was done. They paid their fines forthwith.

A SUNDAY DRUNK

An Ennismore resident pleaded guilty to being drunk on Sunday and was fined five dollars which he paid.

Another young man pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly and was fined two dollars and costs, amounting to $5.85.

ALLOWED TO RUN AT LARGE.

James O'Keefe was charged with allowing his cow to run at large. He gave His Worship a satisfactory explanation and the Magistrate dismissed the case.

TO VISIT ORIENT

Mr. Geo. Thomas Left To-Day

Sails About Middle of Month—Will Visit Parents in Hong Kong

Mr. George Thomas, of the Dominion Chinese Cafe, left for Ottawa this morning and after visiting friends in that city and Montreal for a few days will leave for Vancouver and will sail from there for China about the middle of November. Mr. Thomas will spend several months with his parents in Hong Kong city, and will return to Canada next summer, likely in July. Upon his return it is his intention to open a high class restaurant in Toronto.

Mr. Thomas has been a resident of Peterborough for the past two years and has made a large number of friends, who will wish him a pleasant visit to his native land. Although leaving the city he retains his interest in the restaurant business here which will hereafter be managed by Mr. Thomas' partner, Mr. Harry Hamilton.

This is the second visit Mr. Thomas has made to China since coming to Canada. He will sail from Vancouver on the Canadian Pacific steamship, the "Empress of India."

SEXSMITH'S MAJORITY

Is Much Higher Than Was Expected—Official Returns Make it 382.

The official returns for East Peterborough were made today by the returning officer, Mr. B. Morrow. Mr. Sexsmith's majority is 382. This is larger than was expected. The polls in the north that had not been heard from before went strong for the Conservative candidate.

LINDSAY BOY INJURED ON HALLOWE'EN

Special to the Review.

Lindsay, Nov. 2.—Harry Palen, a lad of about fifteen years, sustained a fracture of the thigh on Saturday night. A portion of a sidewalk which agang of boys were carrying fell on him with the above result. He was carried home on a door and the bone set. His face was also badly cut and bruised.

STUDENTS HALLOWE'EN PLANS WENT WRONG AT TORONTO

Toronto, Nov. 2.—There were 300 police on duty in the city on Saturday night to prevent the students from damaging property. The students were so well watched that they didn't do a thing but make noise, and it is a crowd of outsiders who followed the parade of 300 students down town late at night who are blamed for the destruction of glass worth hundreds of dollars. Plate glass store fronts on Yonge street and numerous house windows on York, Agnes, Elizabeth and other streets were demolished. And there wasn't a single arrest.

The "Meds" enjoyed themselves in the early part of the evening by waylaying Arts men escorting young ladies to the dance in the "gym." Nearly every escort had his white shirt-front daubed with blacking and his attire otherwise mauled.

The "Meds" expected to join forces with S.P.S. returning from Buffalo about midnight, but the train was delayed and though the locals waited beside two huge bonfires on the park until after 2 a.m., the forces did not unite.

At Hamilton 30 policemen were hidden in the depot ready to belabor the Science excursionists had they attempted a frolic there.

BERLIN ABATTOIRS MODELS; HAVE A MUNICIPAL PLANT

All Slaughtering of Animals is Done at it—An Interesting Report Made.

Washington, Oct. 23.—U. S. Consul-General A. W. Thackara, writes that all animals intended for food poses, in the city of Berlin must by German law and municipal and police regulations be slaughtered in the municipal abattoirs under the strictest police and veterinary surveillance, Mr. Thackara describes their operations as follows:

Only the most humane methods of killing the animals are permitted to be used and the utmost attention must be paid to cleanliness and to the prevention of infection in all the various operations. The Berlin abattoir, located in the northern part of the city, was built in 1881, at a cost of over $425,000 and covers an area of nearly 115 acres. It is regarded as one of the model institutions of its kind in Germany, one in which the most modern hygienic methods are used.

The abattoir is divided into two sections—the cattle market and the railway station on the east and the slaughter yards and houses on the west. In the cattle market section there are sheep, cattle and hog stalls, the exchange, various sheds in which the cattle are sold, sheds for isolating animals which are either infected or are under suspicion, disinfecting plant, etc. In the railway station there are various tracks and platforms, where four cattle trains of 50 cars each may be unloaded simultaneously.

The slaughter yards contain the police slaughter house, where animals which are ill are suspected and have been rejected by the veterinary officials are killed by the police butchers under the direction of the veterinaries; a hall for the sale of meat; three cattle slaughter houses, administration buildings for the officials of the abattoir and for the veterinary surgeons, etc., pathological museum and the municipal meat examination department.

There are further an institution for the preparation of lymph, slaughter houses for calves and sheep, with the necessary stalls for small animals, cooking and sterilizing department, kitchens for trying out fat and making tallow, albumen factory, plant for making margarine, one for cleaning bristles, etc. In the section for killing hogs there are three hog yards, with room for 10,000 hogs, five slaughter houses, boiler house, cold storage plant, a building for the microscopic examination of meat, etc.

THE ELECTIONS

As advices reach headquarters from all directions it becomes more and more apparent why the Laurier administration was returned. In the east riding of Peterborough as in the west, money was used openly and in large quantities. Elsewhere, it was the same. Then again Le Nationaliste, Mr. Bourassa's organ, says that the French-Canadians in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick went solid for Sir Wilfrid. In Ontario, Prescott, Ottawa, Russell, Nipissing, N. Essex, Glengarry, Cornwall, Stormont, Algoma, E. Simcoe, Kent, S. Essex and S. Renfrew, where the French vote is heavy, returned supporters of Sir Wilfrid. Out of 24 counties in New Brunswick and Ontario where the French vote is a factor, 23 went Liberal. Le Nationaliste further says that if the French-Canadian vote had not been solid, it is apparent that the defeat of the Laurier Government was certain. It becomes all the more necessary that every protestable election should be protested and it will be. The article which we reprint from Le Nationaliste in this issue frankly describes the position in Canada.

THE LIBERAL PRESS

All our Liberal exchanges, now that the necessity of suppressing the truth for party purposes exists no longer, agree that the Laurier Government must curb its expenditure and cure its ills. When will the time arrive that will usher in a firm independent and patriotic resolve that the country's good, not the party's, shall be first in people's hearts and minds? We are aware that men view things differently, that the color surrounding certain conditions and circumstances is black to one, but merely a light grey or brown to another. This difference is due to prejudice or opinion. It may be sincere and unintelligent. If so it is excusable, if not pardonable. But in the main the chief offences are discernible by both and acknowledged by both, yet neither has the fairness to put a stop to it. The pendulum continually swings from one point of personal vantage to the other. The worship of the money-god is the cause of it all. Although the Laurier Government has secured another lease of power, but few believe it deserved it. Another four years will emphasize this fact.

AUTUMN

The brilliant sky and clear bracing air of the past few days form altogether a tonic which even the most sluggish nature can scarce resist. The one drawback to it is the knowledge that the sun is declining. Even though Dec. 21st is well within the dark portals of winter, yet most people take on an air of jubilance on the morning of Dec. 22nd simply because the great morning of the solar year has dawned and the luminary is getting ready to rush back into the warmth and glow of this season of warmth and glow of his season of ... for this and banish the sadness of the declining year we feel the full blessing of the crispness of autumn which, with the exception of February, provides the most brilliant and bracing weather of the year. The re-action induced by cold stimulates even invalids into a partial recovery, while to the healthy there is a new accession of energy and vital force. When it is extremely cold or extremely hot, the body becomes relaxed and depressed, and the mind likewise, but in the middle seasons of spring and autumn there is nothing to depress and everything to charm both young and old, feeble and strong.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The second and last chapter of the election contest in West Peterborough will be in the election courts. The Liberal organization was repeatedly warned that it would not be allowed to "steal" the election. The Liberal candidate does not in any sense represent West Peterborough, but as a matter of fact, a very small section of it. However, the truth about all this will come out and then we shall know for sure.

OF INTEREST

When the shriek of the steam engine echoes past Ur of the Chaldees and along the banks of the Euphrates, and the train traverses the waste where Nebuchadnezzar's sway flourished, it may indeed be said that modern civilization has annexed the cradle of the world's earliest life, says Public Opinion.

That day has come nearer by a decision which has just been made by the Turkish Government to recreate Chaldea; but the mind which will plan this great revival in the morning lands of history will be an English mind—that of Sir William Willcocks, who has achieved such great things for Egyptian irrigation.

"The Turkish Government has engaged Sir William Willcocks to supervise the contemplated irrigation and canalization works in Mesopotamia and elsewhere. The brief announcement by the prosaic Reuter is emblematical of the immense change which has been effected in Turkey by the revolution," says the Times of India.

A LIFE'S DREAM.

"Some four years ago Sir William Willcocks entranced an audience in Cairo by his description of the ancient irrigation works on the Tigris and the Euphrates, and his forecast of the possibilities of reconstructing them on modern scientific principles. In the cold weather of 1905 Sir William visited Baghdad, and made a rough survey of the country, and upon his return to Bombay, he gave enthusiastic estimates of the future of this ancient granary. Immediately upon his return to Europe Sir William set himself to obtain from the Porte a concession for the works, but he was obstructed by the commanding influence of Germany and the Chauvinist German newspapers, were full of mutterings against his efforts to anticipate the advent of the Baghdad Railway.

VISTAS OPENED UP.

"As soon as the Yildiz Camarilla has fallen Sir William has secured his end, and he will now be able to devote himself to the attainment of the dream of his life, which is the recreation of ancient Chaldea. The magnitude of the scheme may be gauged from the fact that rough estimates place the irrigable area at nearly three million acres, the expenditure at twenty-one millions pounds sterling, and the capital value of the land when irrigated at sixty million pounds. The possibilities opened up are vast.

"That matter-of-fact statement carries the germs of possibilities which will transform the economic and political conditions of the middle east, and enormously increase the trade prospects of Bombay and Karachi," continues the Times of India. "Indeed, it is difficult to write of the vistas opened up by this decision in terms which do not carry the stigma of exaggeration. In the days of the Assyrian and Sassanian kingdoms the delta of the Tigris and Euphrates was the granary of the world. This alluvial plain, extending four hundred miles inland from the present shores of the Persian Gulf, was celebrated for its fertility. 'Of all countries that we know,' wrote Herodotus, 'there is none so fruitful in grain. It yields commonly two hundred fold, but when the production is greatest, even three hundred fold, and the blades of wheat and barley plants are often four fingers in breadth.'

A TRAGEDY OF HISTORY.

"Nothing is more tragic in history than the sterilizing of this fruitful garden. The ruins of great cities stand in the desert and a few Arabs only wander amongst the shapeless mounds that cover them, or shelter under their broken arches and crumbling walls. The fertility which once made this country the marvel of the world has departed, and instead of abundant life, death reigns. The causes which induced this unparalleled collapse are undisputed. The Assyrian and Sassanian kingdoms owed their glory to agriculture. Their wealth was based upon the fertility and productiveness of the soil.

ASSYRIA'S AGRICULTURE AND IRRIGATION.

"This productiveness again was mainly due to irrigation. The great Narhwan Canal took from the Tigris on the left bank and supplied a whole plexus of canals and irrigated an immense area before it rejoined the river a little below Badrai. On the eastern side the Dijail Canal, over a hundred kilometres long and fifty metres wide, irrigated the lands above flood level as far south as Baghdad. In the neighborhood of Baghdad these labyrinthine canals converted the plain into one vast garden. But the preservation of Titanic hydraulic works argues the existence of a strong central government. The crumbling Sassanian kingdom was riven by the Arabs and the desertion of its ancient bed by the main stream of the Tigris cut off the supply of the mighty canals and left them high and dry. The Persian nobles and landlords were powerless to repair the dykes, the main portion of the canal system became obliterated, and the smiling gardens succumbed to the conquering desert.

CHALDEA A CORNLAND.

"Nevertheless all the conditions which made ancient Chaldea a laughing cornland remain, except the human directing force. The Tigris and Euphrates carry to the sea enough water to make the desert blossom again and to float the laden argosies to the ocean. The soil needs only water to resume its traditional fertility. Even now the traveller cannot fail to be impressed by the evidence of amazing agricultural wealth revealed by the close-packed date groves on the flood lands of the Shatt-el-Arab, and at Basra the ocean going liners carry their cargoes of grain in bulk. Nothing is needed but money, brains and labor to make the Tigro-Euphrates valley just such a waving wheatfield as the Chenab and Jhelum Canal colonies. This is the task to which Sir William Willcocks has bent all his energies.

AMAZING POSSIBILITIES.

"With every desire to take a restrained view of the position it is impossible to estimate the political and economic revolution which will be wrought in Arabistan by the restoration of its ancient irrigation works in anything but glowing terms," concludes the Times of India. "The desert will blossom like a garden, new cities will rise on the ruins of the mighty memorials of the Assyrian and Sassanian Kings, Basra will become another Hamburg or Antwerp and India will find in the Tigro-Euphrates Valley a field for colonization and trade rich beyond the dreams of avarice."

CYCLONE WOOER KILLED HER "NO"

Strenuous Suitor Didn't Mind Being Arrested for Impetuosity

A Cleveland despatch says: — The way to marry a spirited woman who says "No" to one proposal, is to pay no attention at all to what she says, but just go ahead and wed her.

Laudson T. James, a Baltimore and Ohio engineer, hands out this advice. James ought to know. The young widow he loved had him arrested twice last week when he tried to put his theory into practise. The object of his tender regard complained that he broke in her door to make her sign an application for the marriage license.

On top of this comes the announcement that James won after all, and that the wedding is set for Monday. James wore a smile as wide as his collar when he set out on his (locomotive run to-day.

In court when James was tried last week it didn't look a bit as if James was going to win. He got a suspended workhouse sentence and heavy fines on two charges, and was told that if he didn't stop his peremptory wooing the sentence would go into effect.

But James' method of wooing had already had its effect. Last evening, according to announcement from the Baltimore and Ohio yards, Mrs. Mamie Johnson, who is the one James made up his mind to win, telephoned him. She told him he might call.

He did—in a hurry.

Telephoned at 7.45 p.m.

Arrived at house at 7.56 p.m.

Admitted at 7.56 1-2 p.m.

Engaged at 7.59 p.m.

Which is going some.

James told engineers at the yards to-day they would go on a long wedding trip through the south right after the wedding on Monday. "The arrest and sentence in court didn't bother me a bit," he said. "A man's love shouldn't mind a little thing like that."

THEATRICAL

Mr. Arthur Stringer's remarkably plain-spoken article in Canada West on the subject of "Canada Fakers" may be taken to heart by the playwright as well as by the story-teller. The drama, "Pierre of the Plains," recently seen by Canadian audiences, can hardly come under the class of Canada-faking productions. The play is somewhat reminiscent of Sir Gilbert Parker's "Pierre and His People," and is not the melodramatic rendering of our Northwest, with which audiences in Chicago and New York have occasionally been entertained.

Mr. James Metcalfe of New York Life says of the play: "'Pierre of the Plains' is at least a virile drama. Drummond, Parker, Roberts, et al, have brought the French-Canadian and half-breed into literature, and that distillation of French blood into North American surroundings has at last found its way to the stage. Wherever the French blood goes it brings picturesqueness of character and incident. This is valuable to a stage dominated by Anglo-Teutonic phlegm.

"Mr. Edgar Selwyn, whose recent 'Father and Son' did not get quite the recognition it deserved, has taken Sir Gilbert Parker's 'Pierre and His People,' and woven it into a play which certainly arouses and holds the interest. The types are primitive ones, but they seem close to nature and serve the primary dramatic intent of defining a stage story. If we leave Aeschylus, Ibsen and the problem writers out of consideration for a moment, it will be necessary to admit, shamefacedly, perhaps, that in 'Pierre of the Plains' Mr. Selwyn has given us vital drama. Also his depiction of Pierre is an excellent piece of acting. The devil-may-care half-breed, with his trust in the destiny of the cards, his irreligiousness, his gayety, chivalry and touches of polite gallantry, is worth more analysis than the passing notice of short space. So of the well-defined characters and good actors in the cast.

"Briefly, old-fashioned theatre-goers will find 'Pierre of the Plains' a good, strong play, well acted. It will not please those who in the drama look only for morbid mentality dissected to the discovery of the most remote diseased microbe."—Canadian Courier.

A NEW CLOTHES RACK.

Designed For the Needs of Women With Little Closet Room.

A woman who has no closet room but wardrobes only in her apartment has had a carpenter make an adjustable clothes rack that may be moved wherever she goes and which when taken apart is merely two standards and a long curtain pole.

She designed the rack as follows: Two pieces of oak an inch and a half thick by four inches wide, each set in a standard eighteen inches long by two high and four wide. The uprights were six feet six inches high and were set in the center of the supports, each narrow and running the long way of the supporting blocks or feet. At each end of each of these two blocks a flat, thin piece of wood was nailed by the carpenter so that one might, if desired, use slim nails for fastening them to the floor.

Through the top of each standard a hole was cut large enough to permit an inch and a half curtain pole passing through. Across the top of each standard was also nailed a flat, thin piece of oak the same length and width as the feet or supports of the standards, running the same way.

These standards are placed opposite each other, against the wall preferably, and a ten foot one and one-half inch curtain pole is run through the holes. The standards may then be pulled nearly to the end of the pole, or they may be pushed toward each other to any desired point, or a shorter pole may be used.

The gowns or garments are then placed on the wooden clothes hangers having hooks at the top and the latter then hung on the pole, the hooks fitting the one and one-half inch pole very easily. The standards being so high permit of trailing gowns and long coats being hung on them, and the depth of eighteen inches insures the feet and the top pieces projecting beyond them.

To keep the clothes free from dust, which is everywhere, a cover must be made. This woman bought two heavy unbleached, seamless, ready made sheets and had them stitched together in a flat seam and put this over the rack, the flat boards at the top holding it out. In this case the standards are only six feet apart. If pulled out the full ten the extra wide sheeting would have to be bought by the yard and cut the desired length.

Of course any other covering of sufficient thickness will do, but unbleached muslin was chosen in this case because it could be laundered and kept clean easily and because it would look better with every laundering.

DRAINAGE DEMANDS.

The Importance of Good Plumbing, Sewerage and Water Supply.

In populous cities and towns the drainpipes and sewers are a prolific source of disease, to repel which even the most efficient safeguards are incomplete, but much is gained to health by keeping the run clear of obstruction, with an occasional flushing, with the addition of lime, soda or salt and hot water.

On moving or clearing out days we look upon the dusty pile of wornout and utterly useless rubbish brought to light and wonder where it all came from. Not one thing of all is worth saving or carrying away, and the whole obtruding collection of good-for-nothings should have been long before discarded from the family storehouse. We are apt to be too indifferent in respect to the environments of our country homes, which are not accessible to any general system of sewage. All waste water should be carried a considerable distance from the house and never suffered to stagnate in the open air.

If the water supply is from a well it should be located beyond the possible impregnation of objectionable deposits. We have in mind the corruption of well water in one instance by a cow yard and in another by a refinery located at a distance of a hundred feet or more.

The trouble may be years in manifesting itself, but it is sure to come in time. Open wells in frequent use are preferable to closed ones, inasmuch as they have the advantage of continuous fresh air purification.

The needful appurtenances of a country home are a series of outbuildings, including a stable, a cow shed, henhouse, etc. While these should be conveniently accessible from the dwelling, they should never be suffered to encroach upon the sanitary appointments.

Good health is the foremost consideration, and nothing should be allowed to stand in the way of it.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To cure a wart put a drop of vinegar on it three or four times a day and then put on the vinegar as much baking soda as the vinegar will absorb. Keep it on ten minutes, and in a few days' time the wart will drop off and leave no mark but a tiny white spot.

If the heart is weak, but otherwise normal, it can often be strengthened by active leg movements, such as running on tiptoes, swinging the legs back and forth and in a circular motion, flexing the foot and knees and running. This last should be begun slowly and not continued too long at first.

For burns and scalds there is nothing more soothing than the white of an egg, which should be poured over the wound. It is softer than collodion as a varnish for a burn and, being always at hand, can be applied immediately. It is the contact with the air which gives the extreme pain. White of eggs excludes the air and prevents inflammation.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Shoots Wife, Then Himself.

Buffalo, Nov. 2.—Elbridge Vanderveer, aged 27 years, employed by the Grand Trunk Railroad as a trackwalker at Port Colborne, Ont., shot his wife, Frances, aged 23 years, Saturday morning, one bullet entering her breast and another her arm. Verderveer then shot and killed himself instantly.

The couple had been married about three years, but about a month ago they separated, the wife coming to this city, where she was keeping house at 349 Ellicott street. About 9.30 a.m. Saturday Vanderveer rang the bell at her address, and when she appeared at the door opened fire upon her. Believing he had killed her, he entered the parlor and shot himself through the head.

The woman is at the hospital, but is not thought to be fatally injured.

Three Burned to Death.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Three negro children were burned to death and two other persons, after being almost suffocated, were rescued and carried down a ladder from the third floor in a fire Saturday at 309 Northwest T. street. The victims were trapped in a room on the upper floor, overcome by smoke, and died a few minutes after being removed to a hospital. The house was occupied by negro messengers and their families.

Makes Grain Handling Record.

Port Arthur, Nov. 2.—The Port Arthur elevator plant is making a record in grain handling. At the close of next week the plant will have handled over ten million bushels, which equals the amount handled up to the close of navigation at this place last year.

It is expected that almost half the year's crop will be handled through this point.

To Hold Rifle Contest Nov. 10.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—The Dominion Rifle Association has completed arrangements for the inter-university match to be fired Nov. 10. Each team will fire on its own ranges at 200, 500 and 600 yards. A silver cup will be presented to the winner by the D.R.A.

Saloons Target For Bombs.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—The twenty-fourth bomb in the series which has been directed against alleged gambling resorts, was exploded in the rear of a saloon owned by F. F. Brennan in Cottage Grove avenue. Windows shattered and the whole neighborhood was startled by the explosion, but no one was hurt.

For months the police and public have been mystified by the bomb hurler, who in spite of all sorts of ruses and traps laid to catch him, has invariably escaped.

The bomb-throwing is supposed to be an expression of displeasure manifested by gamblers who have been suppressed, against resorts that are allowed to run.

Catholics In Parade.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 2.—What was probably the greatest parade of a religious character in the history of New England, brought to a close yesterday, the centennary celebration of the founding of the Roman Catholic diocese of Boston, which began last Wednesday. It is estimated that fully 40,000 men, representing the Holy Name societies of the Roman Catholic Church in the five counties, which constitute the diocese, Suffolk, Middlesex, Essex, Norfolk and Plymouth, with over 150 priests and 100 bands.

Mrs. Ezekiel Feld is an invalid, and her son, Charles, is blind, so that when their house caught on fire in the dead of night they were in dire straits. They were nearly overcome by smoke when rescued. The house and contents were destroyed.

BUELOW WANTS TO QUIT.

German Chancellor Explains How Interview Was Published.

Berlin, Nov. 2.—According to The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, Prince von Buelow, the imperial chancellor, on Saturday offered his resignation to Emperor William in consequence of the publication in London of the interview with His Majesty, for which the prince took responsibility.

The Emperor would not accept the chancellor's resignation and at the same time permitted Prince von Buelow to publish a full explanation, so as to meet the unjustifiable attacks that have been made upon His Majesty.

It was announced conclusively at the Foreign Office Saturday night that the chancellor would remain in office.

Prince von Buelow's explanation in The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung follows:

"His Majesty received from a private Englishman, with a request that he be permitted to publish it, the manuscript of an article in which a series of conversations between the Emperor and several English personalities, held at various dates, were put together. The reason given for the request was in order to make known His Majesty's utterance to the largest possible number of English readers, thus serving to improve Anglo-German relations.

"The Emperor forwarded this manuscript to the chancellor, who in turn sent it to the Foreign Office with a note requesting careful scrutiny. The Foreign Office did not report anything objectionable in the contents, and publication thereupon followed.

"When the chancellor, as a result of the publication in The Daily Telegraph, became aware of the contents of the manuscript, he explained to the Emperor that he personally had not read it, and that had he done so he would have hesitated and advised against its publication."

More Voters Arrested.

Port Arthur, Nov. 2.—Two more arrests have been made in connection with alleged illegal voting at the Dexter poll on the Grand Trunk Pacific. Saturday afternoon two men, Hogarth and Armstrong, were arrested and given bail. They were charged with aiding and abetting in impersonations that were charged against a number of voters. It is charged that some men at the polls voted six or seven times.

The Liberals claim that it was an attempt made to throw the election in case Conmee was elected by a small majority. It is charged that whisky was freely used at the poll. More arrests, it is said, will be made this week in connection with alleged crooked work at other polls.

China Ignores Fleet.

Pekin, Nov. 2.—The presence of the second squadron of the United States battleship fleet at Amoy, where the vessels arrived Friday, and where the men are now being entertained by the Chinese Government, is hardly known in Pekin.

The Chinese papers have said nothing at all about the visit, and the presence is being completely ignored, both officially and otherwise, that is, so far as Pekin is concerned.

This probably is because the festivities in connection with the birthday of the empress dowager are coincident with the entertainment of the visiting Americans.

Relief For G.T.P.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—Some people who are well posted as to the relations between the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Government expect some kind of a relief bill at the early part of the coming session.

TWO MEN ON LIVE WIRES.

One Goes to the Aid of Comrade and Gets 2,200 Volts.

Owen Sound, Nov. 2.—Alfred Bruce and William Myers, members of a gang of linemen in the employ of the Bell Telephone Co., were electrocuted Saturday morning. For six hours doctors endeavored to restore animation to Bruce, but without avail, and his recovery is regarded as hopeless. Myers escaped with a badly burned hand.

Myers was putting up clips and was suspended by his belt from one of the wires when his hand come in contact with the power wire carrying a voltage of 2,200. Bruce went to his assistance. He was moving along the wire suspended by his belt when the steel spur on his boot came in contact with the power wire, jerking it and setting Myers free. At the time when his foot struck the power wire Bruce had hold of a ground wire, so that he received a shock of about 5,000 volts. He fell back limp. They will meet to-morrow to elect officers and organize further.

One lady present caused a stir by asking of the lady in the chair "Can you tell me what is the price of votes? I know that they have been paid for right along."

A. E. Fripp, M.P.P., addressed the meeting, and declared that if the question of extension of suffrage to women was brought up in Ontario Legislature he would vote in favor of it.

A series of meetings to promote the movement will be held throughout the Ottawa Valley during the coming winter.

Laid to Rest

The remains of Lorne S. Hillier were laid at rest in the Little Lake cemetery on Friday afternoon, Oct. 30th, 1908. Although the funeral was private, a great many sorrowing friends of the family gathered to pay their last respects to the deceased.

Mr. Ormond Spilsbury, Master Vernon Spilsbury, and Master Tom Falkner, cousin of the deceased, and Gordon Martin, a friend, acted as pallbearers.

The many friends of Mrs. W. Spilsbury and Mrs. E. Hillier deeply sympathize with them in their sad hour of trouble.

At Charlotte Street

Mr. Hassard, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., occupied the pulpit at Charlotte street church yesterday morning and Rev. H. M. Manning, of St. James congregation, preached in the evening. At the morning service a mixed quartette composed of Mrs. G. B. Hughes, Miss S. Lee and Messrs. Chas Harmer and James Browne, rendered "Softly and Tenderly." The quartette was unaccompanied and gave the number a very artistic rendition. At the evening service Miss Olive Howell gave a solo very pleasingly.

The Inthon Bible Class

The Inthons' gathered in the classroom yesterday afternoon to the number of forty-seven and four visitors. Mr. F. O. Moore, the able assistant teacher took Mr. Pearson's place and covered the lesson pretty well.

The Inthons and friends of Mr. Geo. Rose will be sorry to learn of his illness. A bouquet was sent to him during the week by the class.

An inquiry committee is going to Toronto on Tuesday to attend the thousand men banquet to be held in the Excelsior rink by the Toronto Sunday School Association.

A social evening is scheduled for Friday. A splendid programme is being prepared. Mr. Switzer's class are invited to attend as are also the wives and lady friends of the Inthon's and any of the fellows of Peterborough who wish to come

We wonder how Mr. R. J. Suden is faring on his annual deer hunt. Perhaps we will have a venison supper when he gets back.

There is lots of space in the classroom yet, fellows. Come on in next Sunday and help to fill it up. The room is nice and cosy and it is far ahead of walking around in the cold. —Contributed

THE HOOK

The elections in the United States are on to-morrow. Will it be Bryan or Taft?

A wideawake reporter in Glasgow, Scotland, overheard the following conversation early one morning between a couple on their way to market. The man was carrying a huge tub on his head and a live pig in a sack over his shoulder.

"What are ye feared for?" asked James

"I'm feared ye're gaun tae kiss me," she answered.

"Hoo can I kiss ye, ye fule, when I have a tub on me heid, an' a pig on me back, an' haudin' on wi' baith hands?" said angry James.

"Oh, ye could easily put the pig on the grun', an' turn the tub on the tap o' it, an' sit doon on it an' put me doon aside ye. That's what mak's me feart, Jamie."

The Home of The Overcoat

What They Are

They are not new faddy coats—Just the common sense coats that have been known by us since we were boys as the warm kind—changes of course have been made in the style details, such as fuller skirts, different collar and lapel, but withall they amount to just this; neat, warm top coats to turn zero frosts and freezing winds. The most comfort giving coat on the market to-day. The business man may wear them, the traveller likes them, the professional man wishes nothing better—in fact you may see them in all walks of life.

The New Features

The skirt has the loose drapery effect, the lapels are large, when open form a nice double breasted effect or they can be turned over and buttoned across the chest under the collar giving the real Prussian style and doing away with the use of the muffler to a large degree.

The Cloth

The cloths used in the make up of these coats are of the substantial wearing order in fashionable tweeds in dark tone mixtures, including bronze green and grey effects. The prices we quote here are of two special Thanksgiving values, viz:

$20.00 and $25.00

If you want the other sort we have them too.

CREDITED TO CHAS. DICKENS

Famous Author is Accused of Originating the Remark "23"

A very erudite fan, who writes on violet scented, Alice blue vellum, hands me the only really truly source from which grew the expression, "twenty-three," that he adds to the very long list and like all the others draws rather on his imagination than on his memory or knowledge for his facts, says Gym Bagley.

I will set this much disputed origin of "twenty-three" at rest right here And it has no cause to blush for that same origin, for it was fathered by no less a literary guy than Chas. Dickens. It occurs in 'A Tale of Two Cities." Sydney Carlton has his neck under the guillotine. There was a bunch of them that day who lost out by a head. The 22nd victim had checked his topper in the basket, when Carlton's turn came. Then to quote,

"The pressing in of many footsteps in the outskirts of the crowd so that it swells forward in a mass, like one great heave of water, all flashes away. Twenty-three."

OLD RESIDENT IS CALLED AWAY

Death of Mr. John McLean Armour--Came to Peterborough in 1851

Mr. John McLean Armour, one of the oldest residents of the city passed away on Saturday night at his home, 61 Dunlop street. Death was due to the infirmities of old age.

The late Mr. Armour was born in Scotland, and came to Peterborough from Glasgow, in 1851, and had resided here ever since. He is survived by his wife, five sons and four daughters. The sons are Andrew, of Utica, NY., William, of Santa Cruz, Cal.; John, of New York City, and George and Alexander of Peterborough. The daughters are Mrs. W. Lyons and Mrs. T. Kemp, of Peterborough; Mrs. R. Hart and Miss Isabella, of New York.

Mr Armour was well known in the city and his death will be heard of with much regret.

Last evening twenty-three men sat down to tea in the YMCA dining room, the refreshments being provided by the ladies of St. Andrew's church and served by the Strangers' Tea Committee.

There were five nationalities represented from homes in different parts of Ontario and the United States.

After church several of the strangers were back to the parlor and took part in an informal song service and listened to the reading of the first chapter of the Life of Sir George Williams, the founder of the Young Men's Christian Association.

ONE BAD MISTAKE

Is Frequently Made by the Wisest of Peterborough People.

Its a serious mistake to neglect backache. Backache is the first symptom of kidney ills. Fatal complications may follow. Booth's Kidney Pills act quickly to overcome kidney ills, do not delay until too late. it may mean Diabettes, Brights Disease. Read what a Peterborough resident says:

Mrs. R. Duncan, 115 McDonnel st., Peterborough, Ont., says:—"Some thirteen years ago I suffered with a severe attack of La Grippe that had until this spring left me in a weakened and miserable condition. The kidneys had been disordered through this and became so inactive that doctors had pronounced Bright's Disease and termed my case incurable. My back was very weak and the pains across the kidneys were most excruciating. The urine was highly colored and contained a quantity of whitish sediment. I had become so discouraged through my years of suffering that I had no care for anything. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at The Market Drug Store and I tried them. The first box convinced me of their merits. I used five boxes of the remedy and I have been entirely cured. I am like a new person, well and strong and can sleep through the night and awake refreshed and ready for the day."

Cookery Class at the Y.W.C.A Monday, 7.30 to 9.30 p.m. Tuesday, 9.30 to 11.30 a.m.—Lesson, Chowder, Stews and Creamed Soups, Imperial Sticks and Croutons, Price per lesson 15c

FINAL REHEARSAL THIS EVENING

Of "All the Comforts of Home"---Will be Given at Grand To-morrow and Wednesday Nights

After rehearsing for several weeks with diligence and system, the members of the cast of "All the Comforts of Home," know their lines perfectly and have a thorough understanding of the proper expression of their parts and the presentation of the piece promises to be an interesting and most satisfactory one. Mr. H. Irving Beers, the capable director, has shown good judgment in making the selection of his players, and he himself will be seen in one of the principal roles.

The company, which is composed of local amateurs, has been rehearsing in the Knights of Pythias Hall, and the first rehearsal at the Opera House was held Saturday evening. Another one will take place there to-night.

"All the Comforts of Home" has been decidedly successful in other cities where Mr. Beers has put it on and its local production will doubtless be welcomed by capacity audiences to-morrow and Wednesday evenings, the two nights it is to be presented here.

The play is an unusually clean and clever comedy. It will be given under the auspices of the Peterborough Hockey Club.

MANY TAKE ADVANTAGE ONE CENT RATE

A local postman stated to the Review to-day that there has been a big increase in the mail matter for city delivery since the one cent rate for drop letters was established. Many firms who formerly sent out accounts to be delivered now by boys now use the mails for this purpose. The new way is much more satisfactory.

Extra-Great News From The Carpet Department!

AN ELEVEN DAYS' SALE OF SHORT ENDS

COMMENCING TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3rd AND CLOSING SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14th, at 9:30 O'CLOCK, P.M.

Coming events cast their shadows before. We have been asked many times recently, "Why don't you have a sale in "Carpets?" But, sales cannot materialize simply on request. There must be stronger reasons than that. But now the Golden Opportunity is here and great will be the Saving for those who take advantage of it.

The Carpet Department has informed us that it is impossible to secure duplicates of many lots now in stock. Manufacturers seem to like to change patterns and colorings, simply for the sake of having something new. We have to keep step, so the remaining odd lots of Carpets must go, and a very vigorous reduction in the price is the motive power. So we put these patterns into a special sale, because it is expected that special prices encourage special buying, and we are quite sure that those who have single rooms or even an occasional suite to carpet, can find ample selection in this showing.

Will You be a Bargain Buyer at This Sale?

WILL INSIST ON RESIGNING

Although Von Buelow Appears to Retain the Imperial Favor

Special to the Review.

Berlin, Nov. 2.—In spite of the fact that Crown Prince Frederick William visited Chancellor Von Buelow this morning, which is an indication that the Chancellor retains the imperial favor, there are many rumors current that the Chancellor will persist in retiring as an outcome of the publication of the now famous interview with the Emperor that appeared in the Daily Telegraph of London. Various statesmen are mentioned to succeed him.

UNDERWRITERS' INSPECTION

Mr. Howe of the Fire Underwriters' Association Here To-day

Mr. Howe, of the Ontario Underwriters' Association, Toronto, is in Peterborough to-day and is making an inspection of the local fire protection and the fire brigade.

An alarm was rung in this afternoon from box 22 and the brigade responded, attaching the hose to the hydrant at Queen and Simcoe sts. A very large crowd gathered in short time and watched the work of the brigade with interest.

The national debt originated in the reign of William III., whose first loan was obtained in 1694.

FINE NEW HARBOR AT BEAVERTON

Has Been Completed and is Great Improvement

The harbor work which for the past four years has been in progress has come, we understand to an end— for the time being, at least——and is completed.

The work is an excellent one, and promises to prove reasonably permanent. It has also made a great change about the mouth of the river, and the only thing which now mars the appearance of that region is the decaying remains of the old wharf, which certainly is not "a thing of beauty." The channel which is 100 feet wide from the turning basin to deep water with a safe landing dock on each side, forms a splendid and adequate protection for all craft that may, from stress of water, require shelter; while as an adjunct to the Trent canal, when the great work becomes operative, it will be most valuable.

Altogether the work, with a few exceptions has been well done.—Beaverton Advocate.

CHAMPIONSHIP WON LAST FOUR MINUTES OF PLAY

T.A.S.A.C. Had Score 6-2 When T.A.A.C. Made Touch and Won BY 7-6---Mara's Unopposed Run Did It.

Locals had Score 3-0 at Half Time—MacPherson Played Star Game at Centre Half—Peterborough Showed Great Improvement Since Last Game.

Lost in the last four minutes of play, had lost when it should have been won, and when to all appearances it was won—that is the truth in brief of the senior O. R. F. U. game on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park between T. A. A. C and T.A.S.A.C. and with the game went the championship. With the number of minutes mentioned to play Mara the centre half for the visitors, obtained the ball a little past half way and carried it over for a touch. He passed Macpherson, Davidson and Crough in making the run, but they seemed deadened by surprise or something else, and almost before the spectators realized it the Toronto man was over for a try. The score before the touch was made was 6—2, and it put the finishing touch on Peterborough's chances. There was great jubilation in Toronto's camp at Morrison's half clever and half lucky work, and the supporters of the locals were quite depressed and somewhat annoyed that the victory should be won in such a fashion. The five added to T. A. A. C's. two made their score 7, and gave them the game by 7-6. The locals tried desperately to get a couple more points, but their opportunity of coming out to the good was lost, and the whistle blew with T. A. A. C. the winners. Mara run was one of the surprises of rugby in Peterborough, and was in its way the feature of the game.

To say that the day was a good one would be somewhat misleading, for the weather was decidedly raw, with an uncomfortably keen wind blowing. While this made it unpleasant for the spectators, they became warmed up with enthusiasm for the game was close and a good exhibition, and more than that, the Peterborough fourteen looked good to win.

Timely punting was displayed by the back divisions of both teams, with Dr. Macpherson doing the lion's share of it for the T. A. S. Quinlan Crough also both booted the ball in great style and with good judgment. Macpherson played a fast, effective and consistent game and showed his old-time form. He was sure in his catches, clever in his punting, and got away with several splendid runs. And outside of his own outstanding good work the effect of his well directed tuition could be seen by the general good form displayed by the team. A marked awakening since the game in Toronto with T. R. A. C. has taken place, and the men played with much greater system and snap than then. The ex-'Varsity half was well supported in the back division by Quinlan, Crough and Craig. It would be rather difficult to say which played the better game in speaking of the showing of Quinlan and Crough. Both did great execution for the losers and were in the game from the commencement of it until the call of time.

Crough did some heavy punting that counted for a great deal, and guarded the line in fine fashion. Quinlan was conspicuous for his neat catching and running, and also punted splendidly. Craig played a good game at left half and didn't lag a moment. He followed up excellently and lost no opportunities whenever there were any openings. Lundy showed up well at quarter and made the nicest play of the day in the second half, when he stole around the end a la American style and sprinted for about thirty-five yards before he was stopped.

The home scrimmage and wing men blocked their opponents well and gave good protection to the halves. Every man was on his mettle and played with marked determination, making the play strenuous at close quarters.

Flett, Morrison and Clark were three halves that knew no period of relaxation, and played without letting up during the entire game. Morrison, perhaps by reason of his position at centre half, did the most of the work, being especially active in the last half. Flett and Clark both shone. Flett's punts were of great advantage to the visitors, and he banged the ball in stellar style. Clark introduced his men in a heady way and accepted everything that came in his direction. He is a deadly tackle and covers much ground. The Toronto scrimmagers and wings were fast and heavy. The whole team appeared to be in the best of condition.

As far as the play went Peterborough certainly had considerably the better of it, but the Toronto men made a stalwart defence of their line and it was not found possible to make a touchdown against them. But their line was more unceasingly assailed than that of the local team's, and they were called upon to save several times when they were in imminent danger.

From the start of play it was apparent that the T. A. S. were going to put up a most aggressive game, and at half time the score was 3-0 in their favor. All the points were made on rouges and were throughout the game, except the disastrous five T. A. A. C. secured on the try.

In the second half Toronto made two before the locals got going and then T. A. S. ran their score up to six. The game was rough in places and two or three lively scraps occurred. Mr. R. F. McWilliams refereed the game with satisfaction. Dr. McWilliams, of Keene, acted as umpire. The attendance was good considering how cold the day was, and doubtless would have been much larger had the weather man been a little more thoughtful in the interests of the game.

FIRST HALF.

Play commenced at 2.50 and there was considerable punting done by both lines after the kick-off. Peterborough had a slight advantage and the ball was getting close to the T. A. A. C. goal line. After he had handled a swift punt nicely, Pete Flett tore off a sensational dash. Macpherson caught the ball and ran for a good gain. He heaved it well into Toronto territory when he saw he could make no further progress on the sprint.

A little diversion in the way of a fistic argument took place between Fitzpatrick and Flett. The players on both sides became interested and it looked as though a general broil would take place but the two offenders were separated and both penalized before further trouble ensued.

Crough romped down the field in a corkscrew dash for a thirty yard gain and the crowd gave him a hand. The play became very even with neither team gaining much ground. At quarter time no scoring had been done.

In the second quarter TAS had but a bit the better of the play, Macpherson's punting being responsible for the three points secured. The ball had not been rolling long before O'Connor and Flett became involved in a scrapative side issue and were ordered to take a respite. After a succession of good gains Macpherson hammered the ball over the dead line for the first score, 1-0.

Quinlan and Macpherson made a nice combination play but did not gain much ground. Flett caught a kick from Macpherson that went over the goal line and had to rouge, 2-0.

TAAC fumbled a short distance from the goal and Fitzpatrick froze onto the leather. Macpherson tried for a goal from the field on the scrimmage but the wind carried the ball on an erratic course. It went over the dead line for a point however, 3-0.

Craig followed up and fell on it, but it was over too far for a touch. No more scoring was done in this half.

SECOND HALF

Macpherson was brought down several times and the visitors were apparently laying for Peterborough's crack man. Morrison kicked the ball over TAS goal line, Macpherson catching it and by cleverly dodging prevented a rouge. Peterborough had a scrimmage a few feet from the line. There was little ground gained for a couple of scrimmages, Craig at length relieving by a nice run. Clark punted for TAAC's, first point, 3-1.

No more scoring was done in the third quarter.

A little later Flett kicked another one over. Crough caught it but was brought down for a rouge before he could return the ball, 3-2.

Things were looking a little too good for the visitors and the spectators began coaching the locals to play harder. Clark, Toronto's right half made a pretty catch and run. The ball was kicked to the local goal line Macpherson saving. The Toronto half line commenced quite a punting bombardment. Quinlan made a good gain on a sharp dash. The TAAC line tried a combination play, Flett passing to Morrison who passed to Clark but threw the ball forward and TAAC were given their yards. Crough chased off on an applause bringing run. Toronto almost had the ball over for a try but Crough got hold of it and sent a punt past centre field. The locals followed up and Macpherson caught the return and sent it over the line, Morrison receiving it. He was downed for a rouge, 4-2.

Macpherson again punted it over and Morrison got it back into safe territory by a close margin. Macpherson broke away on a lively jaunt and passed to Crough when checked. It seemed to be an off day for combination plays however, and Crough was brought down before he gained very much. The Peterborough backs were doing some nice punting. On a pass from a scrimmage Lundy made a lovely run around the end for 35 yards. TAS worked a series of bucks. Macpherson slipped away on a circling run that helped some. Crough smashed a corker over the dead line, 5-2.

Macpherson tried a drop from the field but it was nicely blocked. Quinlan pretty nearly had a try on a splendid run. The ball was tossed out to Macpherson from a scrimmage and he once more punted and obtained a rouge, 6-2.

With the play around centre field and nearer the TAS goal than the other citadel, Mara carried the ball past Macpherson, Quinlan and Crough and over the line for the only try of the day. TAAC's. score then jumped from 2 to 7 and the tally remained 7-6 until the conclusion of the game. The try was not converted.

BASEBALL

The winners of the Lindsay town league is not yet known. The ruling of President Watson has caused no little comment. Here it is the first of November and the town league is not yet over. To say the least, the league this year has been somewhat of a fizzle. There have been a number of very exciting games, but something has been lacking in the running of affairs. For lateness of the season, this is a record.—Lindsay Warder.

BEELL TOO MUCH FOR THE FAR FAMED WESTERGAARDT

Westergaardt, the great Swiss wrestler, took on a bigger contract than he bargained for when he met Fred Beell, of Wisconsin, at Sohmer Park, Montreal on Friday night. Wrestling at Sohmer Park is carried on in rounds of ten minutes duration, and Beell nearly had his man at the end of forty minutes' wrestling, the bell alone saving Westergaardt. Beell apparently had the better of his man all the way through in spite of the fact that he was 40 pounds lighter, but at the end of an hour and a half's wrestling neither man had secured a fall. Beell's next opponent will likely be Yankee Rogers. He will wrestle him in Peterborough if suitable arrangements can be made, if not some other place will be decided upon.

The Montreal Star says the following of the Beell-Westergaardt match:—

The long expected meeting of Westergaardt, the big Swiss, and the little wonder, Fred Beell took place at Sohmer Park on Friday night. After an hour and a half of hard, continuous work on the part of both men, it was impossible for them to obtain any other decision from the referee than that of a draw.

From the very beginning of the bout the two set to work in earnest, and it was clearly seen that Beell was by far too quick and alert on his feet for the big Swiss. The latter endeavored vainly to catch a hold on the little Wisconsin man, but without result. Every time the strong and powerful arms of Westergaardt closed on nothing but air, and to his great surprise and bewilderment his opponent was always somewhere where he was not expected to be. Practically the same thing occurred during the whole of the match. At first it was believed that one of the men would tire, and would then be an easy mark for the other, but it was not so for Westergaardt and Beell, although quite tired at the end of their hour and a half's titanic struggle, were yet well able to make an excellent showing, and the last ten minutes were perhaps the most exciting of all, as the two men went for each other, for all they were worth, seeming very intent on obtaining a fall before the gong was sounded. Only once throughout the whole match did Beell appear to be in a dangerous position, but then he succeeded in getting away from this so easily that it is hardly worth while mentioning. On the other hand, Westergaardt was very often put to a severe test, and his shoulders were kept from coming in contact with the mat only through his enormous strength, which helped him considerably to break his opponent's holds.

The bell saved Westergaardt from a fall by the close of the fourth round when Beell had what seemed to be a winning hold on him. His shoulders were about six inches from the ground when the gong rang and the two men had to go to their seats.

While Westergaardt is 6 feet 2 inches in height, and weighs 210 pounds, Beell is only 5 feet 4 inches, and weighs only 170 pounds a difference of 40 pounds between the two men.

A telegram addressed to Westergaardt last night from Frank Gotch, read as follows:—"Am sorry to say could not be there. Had to stop in Toronto."

THE MAIL SPEAKS WELL OF LOCALS

The Mail and Empire had a representative at TAAC —TASAC game on Saturday and he writes as follows;

Dr A. W. Macpherson and his Peterborough senior ORFU team almost proved too many for TAAC in their championship game here this afternoon, and it was only Mara's spectacular 55-yard run for a try two minutes before full time that turned the tide the visitors way. At the time the play was pulled off the Quakers were in the lead, six to two, and, as a matter of fact, had never been behind at any stage of the contest. The Athletic Club team was not up to its full strength but the Toronto players thought it quite formidable enough to ensure an easy victory. They had reckoned however without Macpherson's coaching, and the splendid work of the stellar ex-Varsity half himself who though a trifle short on condition played a really magnificent game, in his old position. What he has done with the material and it can safely be said that the Electric City has now by long odds the best team that has ever represented it. The good part of last year's outfit has been rounded out by fast and husky juniors and, with Macpherson at the helm, the Petes from now on will take a lot of beating on the home grounds. Pete Flett the great half back of last year's Argonauts figured on the right half for TAAC and though apparently in poor condition and lacking practice, showed numerous flashes of his true form. In the early part of the game he was very uncertain as were the other backs, all muffing and fumbling everything that came their way. As a result instead of winning and by themselves, as they should have done they were more or less lucky to pull out ahead. Crough and Quinlan, in addition to Macpherson, were in the limelight for the homesters.

TRUNDLES

The Munro Colts are hard at it again, and have arranged a series of nine games between themselves, the first three of which will be played tonight at the P. B. C. alleys. The teams will be of the three-man variety, and will comprise Messrs. De La Fosse, Huston and McCrae, who will stack up against Martin, Bruce and Lang. The games will start at 7.30 and the stake will be an oyster supper.

There is a warm controversy among the b[illegible]rs as to who is the best roller in Peterborough, and the suggestion has been made that in the next tournament the singles be made a feature, so that the question of individual supremacy may be settled.

A team of five men, including George Cairns, Hemstead and Harry Lasher, may go to Toronto on Thanksgiving Day for a match game with one of the leading teams there.

Thanksgiving Day turkeys will be given as prizes this week at the P. B. C. alleys, one for the high score and another for the novice class.

THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

Watching narrowly its effect he swung off into one of the genuine old crooning voodoo songs, once so common down south, now so rarely heard. No one knows what the words mean—they are generally held to be charm words only—a magic gibberish. But the nigger sprang across the fire like lightning, his face altered by terror, to seize Darrow by the shoulders.

"Doan you! Doan you!" he gasped, shaking the assistant violently back and forth. "Dat be King Voodoo song! Dat call him all de voodoo—all!"

He stared wildly about in the darkness as though expecting to see the night thronged. There was a moment of confusion. Eager for any chance I hissed under my breath: "Danger! Look out!"

I could not tell whether or not Darrow heard me. He left soon after. The mention of the chest had focused the men's interest.

"Well," Pulz began, "we've been here on this spot for a long time."

"A year and five months," reckoned Thrackles.

"A man can do a lot in that time."

"If he's busy."

"They've been busy."

"Yes."

"Wonder what they've done?"

There was no answer to this, and the sea lawyer took a new tack.

"I suppose we're all getting double wages?"

"That's so."

"And that's say four hunder' for us and Mr. Eagen here. I suppose the old man don't let the schooner go for nothing."

"Two hundred and fifty a month," said I and then would have had the words back.

They cried out in prolonged astonishment.

"Seventeen months," pursued the logician after a few moments. He scratched with a stub of lead. "That makes over $11,000 since we've been out. How much do you suppose his outfit stands him?" he appealed to me.

"I'm sure I can't tell you," I replied shortly.

"Well, it's a pile of money anyway."

Nobody said anything for some time.

"Wonder what they've done?" Pulz asked again.

"Something that pays big." Thrackles supplied the desired answer.

"Dat chis' "— suggested Perdosa.

"Voodoo"— muttered the nigger.

"That's to scare us out," said Handy Solomon, with vast contempt. "That's what makes me sure it is the chest."

Pulz muttered some of the jargon of alchemy.

"That's it," approved Handy Solomon. "If we could get"—

"We wouldn't know how to use it," interrupted Pulz.

"The book"— said Thrackles.

"Well, the book"— asserted Pulz pugnaciously. "How do you know what it will be? It may be the philosopher's stone and it may be one of these other things. And then where'd we be?"

It was astounding to hear this nonsense bandied about so seriously. And yet they more than half believed, for they were deep sea men of the old school, and this was in print. Thrackles voiced approximately the general attitude.

"Philosopher's stone or not, something's up. The old boy took too good care of that box, and he's spending too much money to be doing it for his health."

"You know w'at I t'ink?" smiled Perdosa. "He mak' di'mon's. He say dat."

The nigger had entered one of his black, brooding moods from which these men expected oracles.

"Get him ches'," he muttered. "I see him full—full of di'mon's."

They listened to him with vast respect and were visibly impressed. So deep was the sense of awe that Handy Solomon unbent enough to whisper to me:

"I don't take any stock in the nigger's talk ordinarily. He's a fool nigger. But when his eye looks like that then you want to listen close. He sees things then. Lots of times he's seen things. Even last year—the Oyama—he told about her three days ahead. That's why we were so ready for her," he chuckled.

Nothing more developed for a long time except a savage fight between Pulz and Perdosa. I hunted sheep, fished, wandered about, always with an escort tired to death before he started. The thorght came to me to kill this man and so to escape and make cause with the scientists. My common sense forbade me. I begin to think that common sense is a very foolish faculty indeed.

It taught me the obvious—that all this idle, vaporing talk was common enough among men of this class, so common that it would hardly justify a murder, would hardly explain an unwarranted intrusion on those who employed me. How would it look for me to go to them with these words in my mouth:

"The captain has taken to drinking to dull the monotony. The crew think you are an alchemist and are making diamonds. Their interest in this fact seemed to me excessive, so I killed one of them, and here I am."

"And who are you?" they could ask.

"I am a reporter," would be my only truthful reply.

You can see the false difficulties of my position. I do not defend my attitude. Undoubtedly a born leader of men, like Captain Selover at his best, would have known how to act with the proper decision both now and in the inception of the first mutiny. At heart I never doubted the reality of the crisis.

Even Percy Darrow saw the surliness of the men's attitudes and with his usual good sense divined the cause.

"You chaps are getting lazy," said he. "Why don't you do something? Where's the captain?"

They growled something about there being nothing to do and explained that the captain preferred to live aboard.

"Don't blame him," said Darrow, "but he might give us a little of his squeaky company occasionally. Boys, I'll tell you something about seals. The old bull seals have long, stiff whiskers—a foot long. Do you know there's a market for those whiskers? Well, there is. The Chinese mount them in gold and use them for cleaners for their long pipes. Each whisker is worth from six bits to a dollar and a quarter. Why don't you kill a few bull seals for the 'trimmings'?"

"Nothin' to do with a voodoo?" grunted Handy Solomon.

Darrow laughed amusedly. "No, this is the truth," he assured. "I'll tell you what: I'll give you boys six bits apiece for the whisker hairs and four bits for the galls. I expect to sell them at a profit."

Next morning they shook off their lethargy and went seal hunting.

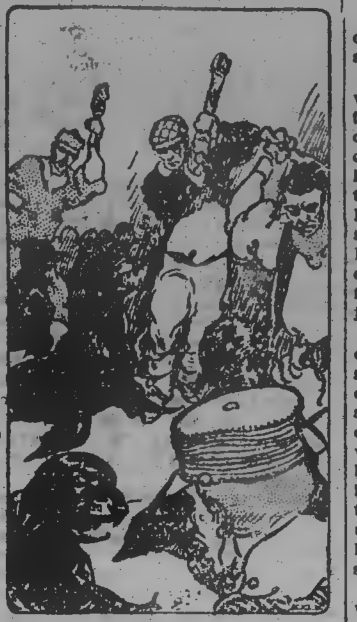
I was practically commanded to attend. This attitude had been growing of late. Now it began to take a definite form.

"Mr. Eagen, don't you want to go hunting?" or "Mr. Eagen, I guess I'll just go along with you to stretch my legs" had given way to, "We're going fishing. You'd better come along."

I had known for a long time that I had lost any real control of them, and that perhaps humiliated me a little. However, my inexperience at handling such men and the anomalous character of my position to some extent consoled me. In the filaments brushed across the face of my understanding I could discover none so strong as to support an overt act on my part. I cannot doubt that had the affair come to a focus I should have warned the scientists even at the risk of my life. In fact, as I shall have occasion to show you, I did my best. But at the moment in all policy I could see my way to little besides acquiescence.

We killed seals by sequestrating the bulls, surrounding them and clubbing them at a certain point of the forehead. It was surprising to see how hard they fought and how quickly they succumbed to a blow properly directed. Then we stripped the mask with its bristle of long whiskers, took the gall and dragged the carcass into the surf, where it was devoured by fish. At first the men, pleased by the novelty, stripped the skins. The blubber, often two or three inches in thickness, had then to be cut away from the pelt, cube by cube. It was a long, an oily and odoriferous job. We stunk mightily of seal oil. Our garments were shiny with it. The very pores of our skins seemed to ooze it. And even after the pelt was fairly well cleared it had still to be tanned. Percy Darrow suggested the method, but the process was long and generally unsatisfactory. With the acquisition of the fifth greasy, heavy and ill smelling piece of fur the men's interest in peltries waned. They confined themselves in all strictness to the "trimmings."

Percy Darrow showed us how to clean the whiskers. The process was evil. The masks were quite simply to be advanced so far in the way of putrefaction that the bristles would part readily from their sockets. The first batch the men hung out on a line. A few moments later we heard a mighty squawking and rushed out to find the island ravens making off with the entire catch. Protection of netting had to be rigged. We caught seals for a month or so. There was novelty in it, and it satisfied the lust for killing. As time went on the bulls grew warier. Then we made expeditions to outlying rocks.



We killed seals by clubbing them on the foreheads.

Later Handy Solomon approached me on another diplomatic errand.

"The seals is getting shy, sir," said he.

"They are," said I.

"The only way to do is to shoot them," said he.

"Quite like," I agreed.

A pause ensued.

"We've got no cartridges," he insinuated.

"And you've taken charge of my rifle," I pointed out.

"Oh, not a bit, sir," he cried. "Thrackles, he just took it to clean it. You can have it whenever you want it, sir."

"I have no cartridges, as you have observed," said I.

"There's plenty aboard," he suggested.

"And they're in very good hands there," said I.

He ruminated a moment, polishing the steel of his hook against the other arm of his shirt. Suddenly he looked up at me with a humorous twinkle.

"You're afraid of us!" he accused.

I was silent, not knowing just how to meet so direct an attack.

"No need to be," he continued.

I said nothing.

He looked at me shrewdly, then stood off on another tack.

"Well, sir, I didn't mean just that. I didn't mean you was really scared of us. But we're gettin' to know each other, livin' here on this old island, brothers-like. There ain't no officers and men ashore—is there, now, sir? When we gets back to the old Laughing Lass, then we drops back into our dooty again all right and proper. You can kiss the book on that. Old Scrubs, he knows that. He don't want no shore in his. He knows enough to stay aboard, where we'd all rather be."

He stopped abruptly, spat and looked at me. I wondered whither this devious diplomacy led us.

"Still, in one way, an officer's an officer, and a seaman's a seaman, thinks you, and discipline must be held up among mates ashore or afloat, thinks you. Quite proper, sir. And I can see you think that the arms is for the afterguard except in case of trouble. Quite proper. You can do the shooting, and you can keep the cartridges always by you. Just for discipline, sir."

The man's boldness in so fully arming me was astonishing, and his carelessness in allowing me aboard with Captain Selover astonished me still more. Nevertheless I promised to go for the desired cartridges, fully resolved to make an appeal.

A further consideration of the elements of the game convinced me, however, of the fellow's shrewdness. It was no more dangerous to allow me a rifle—under direct surveillance—for the purposes of hunting than to leave me my sawed off revolver, which I still retained. The arguments he had used against my shooting Perdosa were quite as cogent now. As to the second point, I, finding the sun unexpectedly strong, returned from the cove for my hat and so overheard the following between Thrackles and his leader:

"What's to keep him from staying aboard?" cried Thrackles, protesting.

"Well, he might," acknowledged Handy Solomon, "and then are we the worse off? You ain't going to make a boat attack against Old Scrubs, are you?"

Thrackles hesitated.

"You can kiss the book on it you ain't," went on Handy Solomon easily. "Nor me nor Pulz nor the greaser nor the nigger nor none of us all together. We've had our dose of that. Well, if he goes aboard and stays where are we the worse off? I asks you that. But he won't. This is w'at's goin' to happen. Says he to Old Scrubs, 'Sir, the men needs you to bash in their heads.' 'Bash 'em in yourself,' says he; 'that's w'at you're for.' And if he should come ashore w'at could he do? I asks you that. We ain't disobeyed no orders dooly delivered. We're ready to pull halliards at the word. No, let him go aboard, and if he peaches to the old man, why, all the better, for it just gets the old man down on him.

"How about Old Scrubs"—

"Don't you believe none in luck?" asked Handy Solomon.

"Aye."

"Well, so do I, with w'at that law crimp used to call joodicious assistance."

I rowed out to the Laughing Lass very thoughtful and a little shaken by the plausible argument. Captain Selover was lying dead drunk across the cabin table. I did my best to waken him, but failed, took a score of cartridges—no more—and departed sadly. Nothing could be gained by staying aboard. Every chance might be lost. Besides, an opening to escape in the direction of the laboratory might offer. I as well as they believed in luck judiciously assisted.

In the ensuing days I learned much of the habits of seals. We sneaked along the cliff tops until over the rookeries; then lay flat on our stomachs and peered cautiously down on our quarry. The seals had become very wary. A slight jar, the fall of a pebble, sometimes even sounds unnoticed by ourselves, were enough to send them into the water. There they lined up just outside the surf, their sleek heads glossy with the wet, their calm, soft eyes fixed unblinkingly on us.

It was useless to shoot them in the water. They sank at once.

When, however, we succeeded in gaining an advantageous position it was necessary to shoot with extreme accuracy. A bullet directly through the back of the head would kill cleanly. A hit anywhere else was practically useless, for even in death the animals seemed to retain enough blind, instinctive vitality to flop them into the water. There they were lost.

Each rookery consisted of one tremendous bull who officiated apparently as the standing army, a number of smaller bulls, his direct descendants; the cows and pups. The big bull held his position by force of arms. Occasionally other unattached bulls would come swimming by. On arriving opposite the rookery the stranger would utter a peculiar challenge. It was never refused by the resident champion, who promptly slid into the sea and engaged battle. If he conquered, the stranger went on his way. If, however, the stranger won, the big bull immediately struck out to sea, abandoning his rookery, while the newcomer swam in and attempted to make his title good with all the younger bulls. I have seen some fierce combats out there in the blue water. They gashed each other deep.

You can see by this how our hunting was never at an end. On Tuesday we would kill the boss bull of a certain establishment. By Thursday at latest another would be installed.

I learned curious facts about seals in those days. The hunting did not appeal to me particularly, because it seemed to me useless to kill so large an animal for so small a spoil. Still it was a means to my all absorbing end, and I confess that the stalking, the lying belly down on the sun warmed grass over the surge and under the clear sky was extremely pleasant. While awaiting the return of the big bull often we had opportunity to watch the others at their daily affairs, and even the unresponsive Thrackles was struck with their almost human intelligence. Did you know that seals kiss each other and weep tears when grieved?

The men often discussed among themselves the narrow, dry cave. There the animals were practically penned in. They agreed that a great killing could be made there, but the impossibility of distinguishing between the bulls and the cows deterred them. The cave was quite dark.

Immersed in our own affairs thus, the days, weeks and months went by. Events had slipped beyond my control. I had embarked on a journalistic enterprise, and now that purpose was entirely out of my reach.

Up the valley Dr. Schermerhorn and his assistant were engaged in some experiment of whose very nature I was still ignorant; also I was likely to remain so. The precautions taken against interference by the men were equally effective against me. As if that were not enough, any move of investigation on my part would be radically misinterpreted and to my own danger by the men. I might as well have been in London.

However, as to my first purpose in this adventure I had evolved another plan and therefore was content. I made up my mind that on the voyage home, if nothing prevented, I would tell my story to Percy Darrow and throw myself on his mercy. The results of the experiment would probably by then be ready for the public, and there was no reason, as far as I could see, why I should not get the "scoop" at first hand.

Certainly my sincerity would be without question, and I hoped that two years or more of service such as I had rendered would tickle Dr. Schermerhorn's sense of his own importance. So adequate did this plan seem that I gave up thought on the subject.

My whole life now lay on the shores. I was not again permitted to board the Laughing Lass. Captain Selover I saw twice at a distance. Both times he seemed to be rather uncertain. The men did not remark it. The days went by. I relapsed into that state so well known to you all when one seems caught in the meshes of a dream existence which has had no beginning and which is destined never to have an end.

We were to hunt seals and fish and pry bivalves from the rocks at low tide and build fires and talk and alternate between suspicion and security, between the danger of sedition and the insanity of men without defined purpose, world without end forever.

To Be Continued.

THE GIBSON FIGURE.

Women Strive For Broad Shoulders and Small Hips.

Have you a "correct figure," or don't you know whether you have or not?

Well, you can answer the question yourself with a tapeline and the following table: For a twenty-seven inch bust the chest should measure thirty-four inches, the shoulders thirty-nine, the neck twelve, the waist twenty-three, the hips thirty-six, the upper arm eleven, armpit to waist eleven, the wrist six, the ankle eight, the calf fourteen and the thigh twenty-one.

A different bust would require a proportionately smaller or larger trunk measurement, but only a slight difference in the extremities.

This indeed is the new feminine figure—a graceful, refined adaptation of that of a well set up man, with strongly developed shoulders and hips that when a woman is well corseted and gowned should measure an inch or so less than the bust.

And what first placed this type of sweetness long drawn out before the public eye? The process of evolution may be traced backward in this wise: The tall girl in the sheathlike gown is a present fad decreed by the latest fashion, and the fashion is dictated by cultivated modern taste, which taste sprang from—what else could it be?—the creations of artists who are specialists in beauteous feminology. Charles Dana Gibson was such an artist. When he began to draw women of distinction and refinement, the ideal of the up to date American man of the world, a change came simultaneously over the spirit of the modiste's dream. Why? Because everywhere one saw them in pictures—a daughter of the gods, divinely tall and most divinely fair—whose garments were as a part of herself, becoming, mysterious, yet truthful. It took a long time to arrive at the clew to the problem of how to look like the Gibson girls. But, as surely as you live, it was thinking in this way that brought about the good results which now appear.

THE SLEEPLESS WOMAN.

She Should Live as Much as Possible in the Open Air.

What can the sleepless woman do to help herself? Let her note, in the first place, some things that she ought not to do. She ought not to drink tea or coffee, especially toward bedtime, for these stimulate the brain.

She ought not to spend all her time indoors, but rather live much in the open air and breathe deeply the while. She ought not immediately before retiring to read thrilling stories of "battle, murder and sudden death."

She ought, above all, says Samuel McComb in Harper's Bazar, not to fear the idea of not sleeping, and the fear of not sleeping will be dissipated by the firm conviction that, even though she should remain awake for hours, some at least of the benefits of sleep can be obtained by using those hours aright.

One goes to bed primarily to rest, secondarily to sleep. If one does not sleep one should not keep turning over and over, growing more impatient with oneself, but should impose on the mind calm, peace and a state as near vacuity as possible. As has been well said: "Sleep is like a pigeon. It comes to you if you have the appearance of not looking for it. It flies away if you try to catch it."

If possible approach bedtime with a feeling of indifference and learn to say within yourself, "If I sleep, well; if I don't sleep, also well, though not so well." This little lesson thoroughly learned will have the most beneficial influence in attracting sleep. Assuming, then, that the sufferer has removed the physical causes of sleeplessness—that noise and light and material discomforts are excluded—there is now no reason for the insomnia.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Burn juniper berries in a room that has been freshly painted or papered. Keep the windows closed for twelve hours, then air thoroughly, and the room is habitable.

A good way to extract the juice from beef for those who require that nourishment is to broil the beef on a gridiron for a few minutes and then squeeze with a lemon squeezer. Add a little salt.

A useful washing fluid is made by boiling together half a pound of slaked lime and a pound of soda in six quarts of water for two hours. Let it settle and then pour off the clear liquid for use.

Remove grass stains from linen by first dipping the spots in ammonia water and then washing them in warm soapsuds.

In polishing walnut furniture take three parts of linseed oil to one part of spirits of turpentine. Put on with a woolen cloth and when dry rub with woolen. The polish will conceal a disfigured surface.

A cupful of left over mashed potatoes may be made into croquettes by the addition of the yolk of two eggs, a little grated nutmeg, a half spoonful of onion juice, a pinch of salt and a little chopped parsley.

Liver should always be parboiled and wiped dry before frying. This not only keeps the juice, but softens the flavor.

Pulverize a teaspoonful of borax, put it in your last rinsing water, and your clothes will come out white instead of yellow.

No article of furniture should receive more attention than the refrigerator. It should be washed and dried every day.

To prevent sausages from shriveling cover them with cold water and allow them to come to a boil. Then drain them and fry.

A "Coney Island," similar to the playground near New York, is being projected for Liverpool.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rambling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

JACK LONDON, THE NOVELIST, HAS EXCITING ADVENTURE

Melbourne, Nov. 2.—News has just come to hand by way of Sydney of a remarkable aventure experienced by Jack London, the American novelist, and his wife, during a cruise they are now having on the Pacific.

Mr. London's yacht, the Snark, it is stated, became disabled some weeks ago, and as the pieces of machinery required to re-equip it had to come from Sydney the vessel was laid up on the Island of Guadalcanar. Mr. and Mrs. London subsequently decided to board a labor-recruiting vessel, the Minota. After joining this boat the novelist and his wife were carried one night on to the Mallua Reef, which is close to the dreaded cannibal island of Mallala, the gory doings of whose inhabitants outvie the wildest fiction.

According to the story told to the Sydney Press by the officers of H.M. S. Cambrian, Mr. and Mrs. London were stranfed on the reef for two days and two nights, during which time they were surrounded by the canoes of the hideous man-eaters. The novelist was fully armed, as were the crews of the Minota, but the savages were so treacherous and numerous, that watch night and day had to be kept to avert surprise and a hideous death. The safety of the party during the time taken to refloat the Minota was more due, however, to Mr. Caulfield, one of the few missionaries in the Pacific, who have influence over the natives of Malaita. Mr. Caulfield induced the mission boys to form a body guard for the protection of the Minota's passengers and crew. Eventually the Minota was made seaworthy again and the peril disappeared.

CAMPAIGN FORECASTS FROM AMERICAN SOURCES

"From all I see, from all I hear, it is a Bryan tidal-wave," remarked John Sharp Williams to an inquiring newspaper man; but he added, "I have seen many Democratic tidal-waves sweep the Republicans into power." Taken collectively, the campaign predictions which are being given out by the party managers are about as illuminating as is the above comment by the ex-leader of the House minority. It is now more than three weeks since Mr. Taft and Mr. Bryan made almost simultaneously the announcement, "I am going to be elected." The first official forcast issued by the Republican side in this campaign allotted 307 electoral votes to Taft and 158 to Bryan, classing 18 as doubtful. The same conditions, interpreted at the same time by the Democratic National Committee, gave only 144 electoral votes to Taft, while no less than 261 were accounted for in the Bryan column. At the present moment the political prophets in the rival camps seem scarcely less at variance in their outlook, although the St. Louis Globe-Democrat (Rep.) claims that "every one of the 'straw' votes which have been taken by newspapers and magazines points to Republican success"—and this in spite of the fact that "Democratic and independent papers are far more active in trying to foretell the result than the Republican papers." At the same time Chairman Norman E. Mack, of the Democratic National Committee, has discovered that Mr. Bryan is to be elected, with 66 votes to spare in the electoral college. According to Mr Mack's latest figures, Bryan will have 308 votes, only 242 being necessary to elect him. In this estimate, in addition to the solid South, New York, Rhode Island, New Jersey, West Virginia, Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Colorado, Montana and California are allotted to the Democratic candidate.—Literary Digest.

ARMY OFFICERS HERE WILL SAY FAREWELL NEXT SUNDAY

Staff-Captain Goodwin and Capt. Maisey, the officers in charge of the local corps of the Salvation Army, will say farewell to the soldiers next Sunday and on the following Monday a tea will be held. The officers are leaving for Montreal, where they will be identified with the work of the Army in their new building which is being erected in that city, and which is about completed.

Their successors here will be Staff-Capt. and Mrs. Walton, of Toronto. it will be remembered that Staff-Capt. Walton was here last Easter in charge of the Temple Band. At that time he made a larg enumber of friends who will be pleased to know that he is coming here to reside. It is expected that he will commence his duties on Oct. 12th.

The work of Staff-Capt. Goodwin and Capt. Maisey during the past year has been very successful, and the best wishes of a host of friends and acquaintances will follow them in their new field of labor.

NO POWER TO RUN MILLS, WATER VERY LOW IN RIVER

Owing to the water being so low in the river, there has not been sufficient power now for several nights to run the Central Mill or the Quakers Oats Co. mill. Speaking to the Review to-day Mr. H. A. Mulhern, manager of the Central Milling Co., stated that if rain did not come soon the mills would have to be closed down during the day, as as well as at night. Not for many years, he said, has this condition of affairs been known to exist.

As a result of having to run only half time the output of flour from these mills will consequently be much less and will cause a decrease in the amount of business. Several homes were also without electric lights last night.

RICE ENTREES.

Tasty Dishes That May Be Compounded Quickly and Easily.

The housewife who is merely acquainted with rice in its dual aspect—that is, as a pudding or as a more or less indifferently cooked adjunct to curry—will be, I imagine, greatly surprised when she finds that quite a number of delightfully savory little entrees may be achieved with its aid.

Here, then, are a couple of recipes wherewith she may proceed to astonish the mere man at dinner or luncheon:

Boil half a pound of well washed rice in salted water till very tender. Drain thoroughly. Let it dry. Place an ounce of either butter or oil (roughly, a large teaspoonful) in a clean stewpan. When very hot add a finely minced onion and a few picked shrimps. Fry for a few minutes, then add the rice and fry, turning frequently, until of a light golden hue. Add cayenne or white pepper to taste and a large heaped tablespoonful of grated cheese. Any sort will do, but Parmesan gives the best results. Make very hot. Pile upon a hot dish and serve at once.

Take some smoked sardines and make them hot on a saucer in the oven in a little of their own oil. Have ready half a pound of well cooked rice. It must have been cooked in salted water till very tender. Drain it well. Dry it. Place a large tablespoonful of either butter or oil in a clean stewpan. Melt or bring to the boil, then add the rice, together with a teaspoonful of very finely minced shallot. Fry a light golden hue. Add a large tablespoonful of tomato catchup, a tablespoonful of grated cheese and pepper to taste. Make very hot. Pile up on a hot dish. Drain the sardines quickly on clean blotting paper. Garnish round the base and serve at once. Anchovies may be used in place of sardines if liked. Turn the rice frequently when frying it.

THE BUSINESS WOMAN.

Smiles Will Help to Lighten the Day's Work.

Business women should enjoy life—every bit of it. To do this they must keep alive and not forget they are living.

Many business women have lost and are losing a third of their lives. The instant they leave their homes in the morning they become entirely different beings, forgetting entirely that they are alive. They become mechanical beings for their employers. They never smile, never tell or think of humorous incidents apropos of the dark happenings of the day. These would flavor their existence.

This is not the view of an idealist or dreamer who spends all of life in trying to find amusement to pass the hours away and who only pictures the business woman's life, but is the view of one hard in the harness of the business world and one who strongly advocates working as hard as strength will permit, always busy as a bee and working earnestly and faithfully for the employer's interests.

Cultivate a smile, be an optimist, enjoy every minute of your lives, sisters! You will profit and be years younger instead of years older if you do.

The Ironing Board.

Holland window shades no longer fit for the windows may be utilized in several ways. First, they should be cleaned by soaking from ten to fifteen minutes in cold water and then boiled in soap and water in the boiler for five minutes. They can then be easily cleaned. They may be used to cover the ironing board and will be most durable and satisfactory. They may also be shaped into aprons by cutting.

Mutton Tallow Uses.

Ink stains may be removed by pouring melted mutton tallow over them before putting the garments in the wash. The tallow should be allowed to get cold before the garment is washed.

HOUSEWIFE HINTS.

Mayonnaise seasoned with chili sauce gives a variation for fish and meat salads.

Carpets should be beaten on the wrong side first and then more gently on the right. Never put a carpet down on a damp floor, for this often results in the carpet becoming ruined.

If when using lemon for flavoring you need only half a one, put the other half on a plate and cover with a glass tumbler. This excludes the air and prevents it from drying up or getting moldy.

A linoleum may be freshened perceptibly if given a coat of linseed oil and paraffin. Boil the oil and wax together and apply while still hot with a brush. Use only enough to cover the surface and when finished wipe it off dry with a cloth.

To dry lace curtains without a stretcher wind quilting frames with muslin. Pin each point of the curtains evenly to the muslin. Two or three may be put on at once, one over the other. Dry in the open air or indoors in a warm room.

Never paper a wall that is inclined to be damp without first making it impervious to moisture by applying a varnish of one part shellac to two of naphtha. The disagreeable odor will soon disappear, and after papering there will be no more trouble from moisture stains.

To remove stains of long standing from marble mix one gill each of soapsuds and ox gall and half a gill of turpentine. Then add as much fuller's earth as will make a paste and rub it on the stains. Leave it on a few days and then wipe off. It may be necessary to repeat the operation.

Ends Election Fight.

Montreal, Nov. 2.—Ex-Alderman Dennis Tansey, whose election as a member of the Legislature of St. Anne's is being contested, has resigned so as to save any further trouble in connection with the contestation. Tansey, however, will be a candidate again. It is understood that his former opponent, Ald. Walsh, will not be in the field this time, but that Alderman Dan. Gallery will oppose Tansey.

Every moment you are awake you use them steadily and those who read much or sew a great deal, or whose duties require close application of the eyes, are almost sure to stand in need of an Optician sooner or later

Italian Makes Murderous Assault.

Minto, N.B., Scene of Tragis Affair--Boarder Attacks Visitor With Knife.

Fredericton, N.B., Nov. 3.—A serious stabbing affray occurred at Minto, Sunbury County, Sunday night, in which an Italian miner named John Endine was the assailant and John McKay and Christopher Pettley the victims. McKay was stabbed fifteen times and Pettley seven, and at last accounts both were lying at the point of death. The fracas took place at the home of a Russian miner. McKay and Pettley, who were on friendly terms with the Russian, called at his home during the evening, and while preparing to depart, McKay caught hold of the Russian's wife and began whirling her around the room. Endine, who was a boarder at the house, became incensed at McKay's conduct, and, seizing a shotgun which was standing in the corner, made for him. At this stage Pettley interfered and took the gun away from the Italian, who by this time had his anger thoroughly aroused, and, whipping out a knife, he stabbed Pettley seven times in the body and legs. McKay went to the assistance of his friend, and was stabbed fifteen times in the region of the abdomen by the infuriated Italian. After he had done the stabbing Endine made his escape, but was captured later.

McKay is a native of Scotland, and is between sixty and seventy years of age. He had been at Minto mine nine years. His wife and two children reside in Nova Scotia. Pettley belongs to Norton, and is about thirty-five years of age. Endine, who is about forty years of age, has been at Minto only a short time. He is unable to speak English.

ARTISTS IN GREAT CHOIR

That Will be Heard Here on November 12th---Are Many Talented Soloists

Little has been said about the soloists who accompany the Sheffield on their notable journey across the Atlantic, and who will be heard here in a few days' time. Dr. Coward in his great potentiality has a force of soloists regularly attached to his chorus, and they are artists who have been practically trained by him, and who ar einspired with his spirit, and are, therefore looked upon as among the most accomplished interpreters of part songs and the higher examples of oratorio in Great Britain. This force is one of the great assets of the Sheffield Choir. While an Albani at her best, or a Clara Butt might have the lustre of a great name, it is safe to say that for the [illegible] effects obtained by Dr. Coward his soloists are equally fine and this fact is now recognised in England where the Sheffield solo artists are in great demand. Among them may be mentioned Miss Emily Breare soprano, who has been the solo artist during the past season in no less than sixteen notable oratorios. Of her singing at Queen's Hall the London Referee said, "Her finished singing came as the visit of an angel of light. She has a beautiful perfectlyp roduced voice that is evidently dominated by artistic intuition and fostered by judicious training."

HENRY BREARLEY
One of the Principal Tenors

The principal tenor, Mr. Henry Brearley, now divides with Ben Davies, the leading oratorio engagements in England, and there is hardly any work of note in which he has not sung.

Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, principal contralto, is a splendidly equipped artist who is a grand-daughter of the celebrated Hungarian prima donna, Madame Peschka-Leutner. Though of foreign extraction she was born in England, but educated both in France and Germany. Her voice is frequently compared to that of Madame Patey.

Miss Eleanor Coward, soprano, is a daughter of the conductor, and is herself a choral conductor. She has a fine flexible absolutely trained soprano.

Miss Kathleen Frankish, soprano, Miss Clara North, soprano, Mr. Robert Charlesworth, baritone, who refused th eprincipal engagement of the Norwich Festival to come to Canada, Mr. William Racock, baritone, nda Mr. H. Firth, tenor, are all well-bred artists.

WHY NOT UTILIZE THE MENZIE PROPERTY AS SITE FOR THE NEW PUBLIC LIBRARY

The public library question is to the front again. The city council had it up before them last night and before adjourning passed the following resolution:

Moved by Ald. Johnston,
Seconded by Ald. Elliott,

"That Mr Richard Hall, acquiescing in the arrangement that the building on Simcoe street, donated by the executors of the Nicholls estate be sold and the funds secured be used in equipping and adding to the endowment fund, and that $35,000 be gotten from Mr. Carnegie for the erection of a new library, and that a monument be erected to the late Mrs. Nicholls on any spot that Mr. Hall may choose."

There are good prospects now of the council going ahead in this connection and furnishing the city with a modern library. This being the case, the question arises "where will the new library be built." Many suggestions have been made during the past two years. Some of them war worth consideration, others were not.

One of the properties the city can secure for the library is the Menzie building at the corner of George and Dublin streets, lately known as the George street school. There are spacious grounds around the building and there are a number of trees and shrubs on the property, making it ideal as a library site. A house has been built on the property towards Water street which mars the view to some extent but if considered advisable the new residence can be removed. The Review has been informed that the Menzie property can be secured for $13,000. This includes the new house located on it. The citys hould be able to realise twelve or thirteen thousand dollars for the building on Simcoe street presented to the corporation by the trustees of the Nicholls estate.

With a few alterations the Menzie building would make a splendid library. It is large, in good condition, splendidly finished within and without, and the exterior view is everything that could be desired.

By purchasing the Menzie property it might be possible for the city to do without a grant from Carnegie and avoid the payment of the ten per cent. per annum for maintenance purposes, that Mr. Carnegie will likely demand if his money is accepted.

It will no doubt be stated that the Menzie property is not centrally located. If a suitable site for a library could be secured, in the vicinity of the Y.M.C.A., would it be considered satisfactory? No doubt it would. The Menzie property is only two blocks farther north, which is really a very small matter.

In view of the reasons given above, the proposition to utilise the Menzie property as a location ofr a public library, is well worth consideration by the city for a public library, is well

MILD WINTER PREDICTED BY OLD HUNTER FROM NORTH OF PETERBOROUGH COUNTY

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Nov. 3.—The workingman, and perhaps others besides him, will be very glad to hear that there is some hope of the coming winter being a very mild one, since the price of fuel is very high. This is the opinion of an old hunter and trapper from the northern limits of Peterborough County, who visited Havelock on Saturday to lay in provisions for the winter. He said that the coming winter would be milder than last, and that there would not be so much snow.

This old hunter has spent a large part of hi slife in the wilds of Peterborough county, where at night the hoot of the owl and the cry of the wolf can be heard, and where a person awakens in the morning to find the tracks of deer around the hut, or a bear lingering in the neighborhood of his cabin in search of a breakfast, where the animals roam the forest and the fish rule the waters seldom disturbed by man; only occasionally do they confront man and are forced to try all their tricks with which they are made familiar by instinct in order to escape death at the hands of the hunter.

This old man, who has for so many autumns watched the habits of the animals and then noted the kind of weather that followed, believe sfaithfully that by instinct the wild animals can foretell the kind of weather that is to come. He has studied the habits and custom sof these animals like a farmer studies his crops to see how they will turn out, and he knows why each action is taken on the part of the animals.

Starting with the small things, he says the squirrels, chipmonks, muskrats and other small animals are not building their house for this winter as warm as last.

Another indication of the mildness of the coming winter is the appearance above ground all over the northern part of the county of many groundhogs. He also says that the fur on the fur-bearing animals is not nearly as thick as last year. He also said that the wolf was coming south, and that this was a sure sign of a mild winter.

SOUTH OPS FARMER WAS SAVAGELY ATTACKED BY AN INFURIATED BULL

Mr. James Warde, of South Ops, near the swing bridge, has a hat which was the direct means of saving his life, and which should be valued highly by him.

A few days ago a bull belonging to him strayed into Mr. Thomas Hutton's field adjoining the property of Mr. Warde. The latter proceeded to drive the animal back, which seemed inclined to go without any trouble. In the twinkling of an eye, however, and when Mr. Warde least expected a demonstration on the bull's part, the animal suddenly became maddened and attacked its owner. Mr. Warde was knocked down, and in falling he turned his face to the ground in an endeavor to save himself from the animal's onslaughts, in the meantime throwing up hi shand for th epurpose of trying to catch the ring in the bull's nose. The animal, however, caught Mr. Warde on its horns and hurled him in the air a considerable space. When he alighted he attempted to make his escape, and in running he fortunately dropped his hat. The frenzied beast, attracted by the headgear, stopped and surveyed it an instant before charging on it. This gave Mr. Warde an opportunity to take safety, which he was not long in taking advantage of. He was severely bruised in his encounter with the animal, and has no hesitation in saying that it was his hat that saved his life.

DEER TIES UP SOO RAIL MILL

Thousands of Men Idle for Several Hours as Result

Special to the Review.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Nov. 2.—A frightened deer dashed into rolling mill at the plant of the Algoma Steel Company today and leaped into the rolls which were turning out steel rails. As a result 1000 men were idle several hours.

A buck and doe emerged from the river near the plant and wandered about the yards. When a yard engine came steaming by the buck deserted his companion and plunged into the river again but the doe trembling with fear, dashed in the directoin of the mill. Rushing along the tracks and leaping over the heads of the startled workmen she landed on the steaming rolls and was so badly injured that she had to be killed.

The doe was one of the finest specimens ever seen in the north country.

TRAPPER FROM THE NORTH IN CITY TO-DAY

Mr. James Cleary Lives 80 Miles North of Cobalt--Former Resident of Peterboro'

Mr James Cleary a former resident of Chandos township, but who has for the past five years resided eighty miles north of Cobalt, on the banks of the White Clay River, is in the city today. He has been visiting here for the past three weeks and leaves tomorrow for the North country. Mr. Cleary is a trapper and mining prospector. He is unmarried and has a small cottage in the woods of Northern Ontario. Englehart is the nearest town and it is about thirty-eight miles from where Mr Cleary lives.

Mr. Leary is anxious to get back, as he will soon commence his winter's trapping. Lynx, mink and marten are very plentiful and Mr Cleary is kept busy all winter catching them and getting them ready for shipment in the spring. He is very fond of the life of the fisher and trapper and would not care to return to Peterborough county again.

SAVE "CROOKED NECK" SMITH AT MONTREAL

Montreal, Nov. 2.—Two witnesses of the fatal shooting in Lagauchetiere street, for which "Crooked Neck" Smith is sentenced to be hanged on November 27th, have been located in the United States, where they escaped after the tragedy of last July.

Smith's counsel says he has received communications fromth em which he believes will have the effect of saving his client from the scaffold.

Both witnesses were pals of Smith and Malone, alias Enright, the man who was shot.

FOSTER STARTS SUIT AGAINST LATE OPPONENT

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Nov. 3.—On behalf of Hon. G. E. Foster a writ was issued at Osgoode Hall to-day against W. H. Shaw, Mr. Foster's opponent in North Toronto in the recent election. Mr. Foster claims unstated damages for alleged libel and slander.

New York, Nov. 3.—Twenty-seven arrests were made before ten o'clock to-day in the lower east side districts for illegal registrations.

SEARCHING FOR HIDDEN TALENT IN THE STREETS OF LONDON

Want Fairy Queens and Comic Thieves—Christmas Pantomines Demand Actors.

London, Nov. 2.—During the dog days, when the sun was hot in the Strand, there might always be seen little groups of men and women in Wellington street and the neighborhood of Covent Garden. They stood in doorways labelled "Theatrical Agency," always laughing, as though life had not a care; and the men wore their hats at the faintest of angles, and the ladies looked like duchesses—in disguise.

They were of, course, actors and actresses undergoing the "rest cure." But now that the leaves of autumn are falling they are all away, scattered to the four winds. The autumn tours have taken them, and only actors who seldom act and actresses who say they once acted remain like the last flowers of summer in Covent Garden.

After the exodus for the autumn tour, many of the theatrical agents have also gone. They have gone ahunting, though their game is not a recognized form of British sport. They are talent-hunters, and to the wilds of Blackburn and Burnley, Wigan and Oldham, and wherever the bills of a musical comedy placard the walls, they go with inquisitive eyes and little notebooks.

They are the heralds of King Pantomime, and they are on the prowl for undiscovered genius and beauty not yet crowned on picture postcards. In their pockets are the books of unproduced pantomimes, and they are anxious to find fairs queens and comic thieves and knockabout gentlemen with new tricks, and pretty girls who would make gallant boys. They have a keen scent for any originality and for any new "turns" which would make a hit in pantomime.

Long ago, of course, the chief parts have already been booked. The "principal boys" of last Christmas signed new contracts for the Christmas before the end of the run. But there is always room for second boys and for the minor parts. There is more room than can ever be filled for the new comedian, who, in some provincial town, is serving his apprenticeship before becoming one of the court jesters.

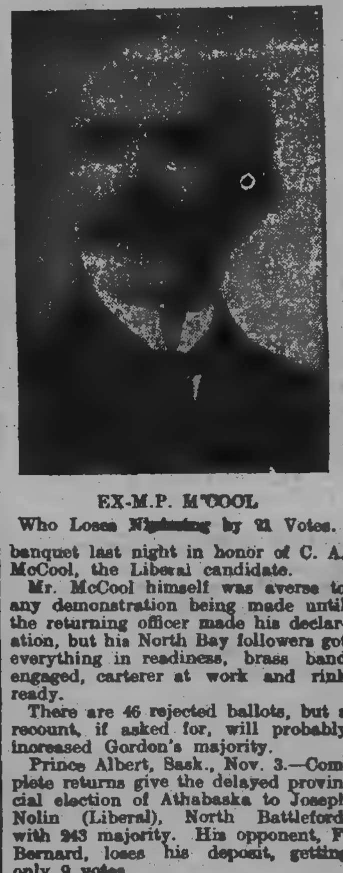
So the talent-hunters are always on the alert, remembering that Dan Rolyat and George Robey and Harry Lauder and many other famous wags, were in their time picked up in unexpected places and taken from obscurity to "big business."

NIPISSING GOES TORY

C. A. McCool on Eve of Rejoicing Finds Himself Defeated---Official Count Changes Result.

North Bay, Ont., Nov. 3.—The official count of Returning Officer Browning for Nipissing yesterday developed a surprise, George Gordon (Cons.) being returned by a majority of 21.

Election night Gordon was thought to be elected by a good majority, but later returns brought the candidates down to even terms and returns from outlying polls came in very slowly. By last Thursday the Liberals were so confident of victory with a small majority that arrangements were made to have a celebration and banquet last night in honor of C. A. McCool, the Liberal candidate.



EX-M.P. M'COOL
Who Loses Nipissing by 21 Votes.

Mr. McCool himself was averse to any demonstration being made until the returning officer made his declaration, but his North Bay followers got everything in readiness, brass band engaged, carterer at work and rink ready.

There are 46 rejected ballots, but a recount, if asked for, will probably increased Gordon's majority.

Prince Albert, Sask., Nov. 3.—Complete returns give the delayed provincial election of Athabaska to Joseph Nolin (Liberal), North Battleford, with 243 majority. His opponent, F. Bernard, loses his deposit, getting only 9 votes.

NO POWER TO RUN MILLS

Shortage of Power Tied up Many Industries This Morning

The oldest inhabitant fails to remember a time when the water was so low in the Otonabee river as at the present time. The unusually dry season is of course responsible for the condition of affairs that now exists.

Last night there was practically no electric power, and this forenoon many of the factories in the city were unable to operate for the same reason. The Review was without power all forenoon and scores of other industries were in the same postiion. This afternoon, however, the power was turned on, but the situation is very serious and rain is wanted badly.

In many places along the river ground can be seen in almost the centre of the stream.

VOTING GOING ON

Americans Are Choosing Their President.

Polls in New York City Opened at Six O'clock This Morning---Republicans Confident.

New York, Nov. 3.—With election day at hand, with fair weather and a heavy vote indicated throughout the United States, the rival managers of the Republican and Democratic national campaign closed their desks at headquarters last night, declared respectively that Taft and Bryan would win, and then hurried away on late trains to cast their ballots, Mr. Hitchcock at West Newton, Mass., and Mr. Mack at Buffalo. Both will return here to receive the returns.

The polls in New York city opened at six o'clock this morning and will close at six to-night. The same rule holds out in practically every part of the state, and the indications are that the New York State vote will be he first to be flashed over the wires to-night as giving an indication of how the election is to go. This at least will be true of the counties and cities outside of greater New York. Voting machines are extensively used up the state and the results will be known almost as soon as the polls close.

Marysville, Ka., Nov. 3.—W. J. Bryan concluded his campaign of the State of Kansas and of the United States before an enthusiastic audience here last night. It was the last political speech, his address at Lincoln being non-partisan.

Mr. Bryan realized it was the concluding political speech of the campaign, and his peroration was delivered with all the earnestness at his command, and as he declared that he had given an impulse to honest politics and helped to create a sentiment in favor of reform, he was wildly applauded by the large audience.

CONCLUSION OF CAMPAIGN

Final Statements of the Two Presidential Candidates

The following is the conclusion of the last campaign speech of 1908 made by Mr. Bryan:

"If I enter the White House, I shall enter it free to keep the pledges I have made, free to serve with singleness of purpose.

"If I am elected I shall for four years devote whatever energy I have and whatever ability I possess to the one object of making this Government again a Government in which the people rule, and under which every citizen shall draw from society a reward proportionate to the service which he renders to his fellow men."

Youngstown, Ohio, Nov. 3.—The last word of his campaign has been spoken by William Howard Taft, and he left last night for Cincinnati to cast his vote.

"Vote the Republican ticket and preserve prosperity, protection to American industries, business integrity and the rights of labor."

This was the message with which Mr. Taft finished his fight.

The six and one-half hour's Judge Taft spent in Youngstown were crowded with political events, resplendent with the pomp and show of party organizations and a carnival of hilarity, noise and abandon by the populace to the occasion.

Oyster Bay, Nov. 3.—His own feeling of extreme confidence was thus expressed yesterday by President Roosevelt when in speaking of the campaign he declared, "We've got them beaten to a frazzle."

ELECTION RETURNS

Returns from the Presidential election, taking place in the U.S. to-day will be received to-night over a special wire to New York by J. N. Barber, Stock Broker, over Madill's Drug Store.

The service begins at 5 p. m. and all interested are invited.

RUSHED WITH ORDERS AT NEW FURNITURE FACTORY

Mr. T. W. Oke, commenced operations in his new furniture factory yesterday, having moved in from the old one on Saturday last. The new building is much larger and greatly increases the capacity for business.

Mr Oke stated to the Review today that his business had multiplied to twice what it was where he first started a year ago last August. At that time he only employed three men whereas now he has ten. Tables, sideboards, and bedroom suits are manufactured and there is apparently a great demand for those turned out by Mr. Oke, as he is rushed with orders all the time. The new factory is much bettere quipped than the old one.

Men are at present busy preparing the old building for the Pterborough Lubricator Co., installing the machinery and getting it ready to start work in a few weeks.

MERCHANTS OF CITY WILL HOLD DINNER AT "NATIONAL"

The Merchants Association of Peterborough, will meet at the National Hotel on Thursday evening at 6.30 o'clock, where they will partake of supper, after which addresses will be delivered on benefits to be gained from a real live merchants association.

The local branch has been for some time an association in name only and it is the object of several of the members to make it more active and to awaken a deeper interest among the merchants in the matters of vital importance to them. The supper on Thursday evening will be informal and it is urged that every business man in the city be present. The speaker of the evening will be Mr. C. N. Trowern, of Toronto, and Dominion and Provincial Secretary of the Retail Merchants Association, who will deal with such subjects as collection fo bad debts and other things of general interest to merchants.

Mr. R. G. Kingan is chairman of the committee who are looking after the arrangements.

THEY BEAT OUT BEAR IN LIVELY CHASE

A good bear story already comes from the northern woods. One day two members strayed in a canoe from the party. They landed at a promising spot, and were delighted to pick up the trail of a big bear. They found him all too soon. Master Bruin seemed well prepared to receive them, and the guns spoke persuasively to him. But the leaden messengers failed in their message, for the bear ignored them and charged full tilt at the sportsmen. They developed into remarkably fast sprinters, a sporting proclivity with which one at least did not think he was so familiar. It is pleasing to relate that they beat the bear on the run to the boat and left him baffled on the water's brink.

REVIEW BULLETINS

The Review will bulletin the returns of the Presidential Elections, in the United States, this evening. The first returns will come in shortly after five, and will be placed on the Review bulletins promptly.

ONE DEATH PER DAY IN CITY DURING MONTH OF OCTOBER

There was an average of one death a day in Peterborough during the month of October. The total for the month was thirty-one compared with sixteen for the same month last year. The death rate during the month just closed was unusually high, so much so in fact as to cause some comment.

The following are the vital statistics for the month secured at the city clerk's office:

Births	44	34
Deaths	31	16
Marriages	19	16

HOUSE AND CONTENTS WERE DESTROYED BY THE FLAMES

A disastrous blaze from some unknown source took place this morning between four and five o'clock at the residence of Mr. Michael Healy, Hilliard street, close to the town limits line. The house and its contents were burned. It has not been learned whether the loss was covered or partially covered by insurance.

The fire was detected by Mrs. Healy smelling smoke and calling her husband's attention to it. He found the flames had gained considerable headway. The alarm reached the fire hall at 4.10 and though the brigade made a quick run the walls of house which was a one and a half storey frame dwelling had fallen in by the time they had arrived and the back kitchen was destroyed. There was no hydrant closer than 2500 feet and water was used from the wells close by. The firemen devoted their attention to thoroughly drenching the house next door and saved it from catching fire. Mr. Healey's residence was too far gone to save.

NATURE A VERY SKILFUL PHYSICIAN

Puts Up Her Medicines in Most Tempting Form.

Have you ever tasted anything more delicious than the fresh, ripe, luscious fruits? These are Nature's medicines. A regular diet without fruit is positively dangerous, for the system soon gets clogged with waste matter and the blood poisoned. Fruit Juices stir up Bowels, Kidneys and Skin, making them work vigorously to throw off the dead tissue and indigestible food which, if retained, soon poison the blood and cause Indigestion, Headaches, Rheumatism, Neuralgia and a host of other distressing troubles.

But there is a quicker way to stimulate the organs to do their work properly. Take one or two "Fruit-a-tives" tablets every night, besides eating some fresh fruit every day. "Fruit-a-tives" combine the medicinal properties—many times intensified—of oranges, apples, prunes and figs, with the best tonics and internal disinfectants added.

Their action on Bowels, Liver, Kidneys and Skin is as natural as Nature's own, but quicker and more effective. Sold by all dealers—25c. for trial box—50c. for regular size — 6 boxes for $2.50. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

MR. BORDEN

There is no desire to depose Mr. Borden. It is not that he is incapable, that the country went against him. He is a man of great solidity and purity of character and as a consequence is perhaps a little out of place in Canada just now. But it will all come right in the end. Where once we plumed ourselves upon setting a good example to our neighbours, our neighbours are setting a good example to us. Mr. Borden is one of the first men of the Empire. He needs no praise and no sympathy. He has endeared himself to all by his genuine manliness and unswerving rectitude. Of his ability there is no question. He does honor to the Conservative party by remaining at its head.

RACE AND RELIGION

Canada is a long way from being what many Canadians have been trying to delude themselves into believing, viz., a homogeneous nation. Parties there are and parties there will be, but as "Le Nationaliste" patriotically points out, combinations of her people on any other than political grounds will lead to discontent, if not disaster. It is useless to urge in face of the facts sited by the French-Canadian journal, that the late elections are merely a source of disappointment to Conservatives. Apart from a consideration of the solemn warnings issued by the Liberal journals of the first class to the Laurier administration since Oct. 26th, that extravagance and graft must cease, almost in the very language used by Conservative journals and Conservative stumpers themselves, the outcome of the late election is a matter of astonishment. French-Canadians have, as their journal points out, evidently resolved to go en masse for a leader of their own race, irrespective of other considerations. Such a cause is fraught with peril. The slightest pretext for going en bloc is looked for, and even, if otherwise wanting, is readily supplied. It is not our intention to issue inflamatory appeals. They are neither necessary nor desirable. The French are a clever and lovable race, with all the good qualities of the great race from which they sprang, but the moment the English race makes sure that the trend of events is as "Le Nationaliste" declares, the conflict on the Plains of Abraham will be renewed. It is out of reason that the English-speaking Canadians should endure to be made the tools of such bigotry and pretence. The history of Canada bears ample testimony to the patriotism, valour and unselfishness of a real truly Canadian people, but it is not necessary to point out that a race combination such as that of October 26th is neither the one nor the other. If this be true—if Le Nationaliste's unmasking shows what is really behind the veil, then Canada is in the hands of an unscrupulous minority. When race and religion enter into the arena of electoral strife, aided and abetted by wholesale corruption, politics and all that name of business of the State implies straightaway takes its departure. At various periods in our history these same difficulties have arisen, but never so glaringly as at present. The warning of "Le Nationaliste" is opportune, and even overdue, as doubtless M. Fournier has forseen. Is there no way of appealing to the fairness and honour of the people of Canada without dragging in race and religion? The instant that pressure or influence of such a character is brought to bear by one or the other, the cleavage is emphasized. It is for that very reason that they are called upon to aid. If there were not influences and forces of a separate and distinct nature existing amongst people who occasionally exclaim that they are one people and cursed be he who says 'Nay,' they would not be called upon at all. Hence that very fact indicates the excessive and growing danger. It is to be hoped that it will not become more serious.

THE NICHOLLS MEMORIAL

It is only gratifying to find that the people of Peterborough, through their representatives the City Council, have decided to erect a memorial to the late Mr. Nicholls and the late Mrs. Nicholls. Peterborough has been generously endowed out of the Nicholls estate, and while the parks and hospital might well be considered a monument in themselves, yet they are not a memorial erected by the citizens. Designs for the memorial will no doubt be sought. That submitted by Miss Wallis is considered very fine. The natural attitude and characteristic pose of the subject as displayed in the clay model are certainly excellent. However, the selection of the design is a detail, the main object is the grateful recognition of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholls and their benefactions in a suitable manner. To Mr. Richard Hall belongs much of the credit of the management of the Nicholls trust, and it would be only fitting that a bust of him should be placed in the Nicholls hospital or in some similar place by the Council. The aldermen have undoubtedly seized the psychological moment for doing the right thing.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Killed Walking Home.

Merrickville, Nov. 3.—George Morris met a tragic death. He had been attending a meeting at Throsboro, and was returning home on foot when he was struck in the back of the head by the pole of a carriage. The impact fractured the base of the skull, and Morris was carried over thirty feet on the end of the pole before he fell to the ground. He died the next morning.

OF INTEREST

The passive resisters of Bath, fifty-five in number, were summoned at the police court on Monday last. Among them were one newly-made magistrate Mr. Walter Pitt, of Messrs. Stothert & Pitt, engineers; four city councillors, Messrs. O. H. Long, F. W. Spear, H. Green and R. W. Kirkus, president of the Free Church Council; the Revs. L. O. Parkinson, M. A., H. Walker Blott, R. Rew, T. Tyers, W. Linton, J. Turner Smith, J. R. Huntley. The Rev. Tyler, Tyres said: "We regret the necessity for our continuing to resist the law. But, until the law is altered under which we are called upon to pay for teaching against which our very existence as Nonconformists is a protest, we must maintain this attitude. We have taken the constitutional course, and as benchers of magistrates advised, 'charged the Government,' but still the iniquitous law remains on the Statute Book. Our wrongs are still perpetuated, and we will not submit."

The most recent issue of the Bibliophile Society is a volume entitled "Charles Dickens and Maria Beadnell; Private Correspondence." It consists of letters written by Dickens to his first love, Maria Beadnell, said to be the original of Dora of "David Copperfield" and Flora of "Little Dorrit." The original letters belong to Mr. Bixby, of St. Louis. Maria Beardnell was the daughter of John Beardnell, manager for a firm of bankers, Smith, Payne and Smith. Dickens was introduced to the family by his friend Henry Kolle, who married Anne Beadnell in May, 1833, shortly after the first five of the letters printed were written. These five letters are apparently the ending of a happy intercourse of some months. In the first of them, dated only "March 18th," Dickens declares that their recent meetings have been "little more than so many displays of heartless indifference" on her part, and he returns to her some presents which he says "I have always prized, as I still do, far beyond anything I ever possessed." The original of this letter was returned to Dickens, and it is printed from a copy retained by Miss Beadnell. Of the other letters of this first series, one is undated, the others are dated simply "Thursday," "Friday," and "Sunday," but all were written within a few days. There was apparently never any engagement, but that Dickens was on familiar terms with the Beadnell family for three years or more is shown by a poem, "The Bill of Fare," written in the autumn of 1831. The manuscript of this, preserved by Miss Beadnell, is also printed in the volume. In it Dickens characterizes his friends, including the Beadnells, and himself says:

"And Charles Dickens, who in our Feast plays a part,
Is a young Summer Cabbage, without any heart;—
Not that he's heartless, but because,
as folks say,
He lost his, twelve months ago from last May."

Mrs. King-Lewis, whose experiences in Macedonia during the gravest troubles have given her a special knowledge of Turkey and its people, has been following with deep interest the recent political changes in the Sultan's Empire. Our readers will remember that Mrs. King-Lewis distributed aid on behalf of the Society of Friends to the sufferers in the interior of Macedonia, when they were oppressed by the Turkish soldiery. In the course of a talk on Saturday, she remarked that the granting of a constitution has come as a surprise even to those who are best acquainted with Turkish conditions. While it was known that the so-called Young Turks were working quietly behind the scenes no one expected that their success would be so rapid and complete.

"I believe," said Mrs. King-Lewis, "that much of this success is owing to the splendid educational work done by Robert College, of Constantinople. It was founded as you will remember, by Cyrus Hamlin, whose idea was to establish an institution to which students of all nationalities should be admitted, and where they might receive instruction in their own language. There is no attempt at proselytising at Robert College, although the work is carried on on Christian principles. Many of the Bulgarians have profited considerably by the opportunities thus thrown open to them. Nearly all their leading men have been trained at Robert College. The Sultan was most unwilling to allow Turks to enter it. He used to send to find out whether any Turkish students were in attendance, and he would order their removal. I met recently a very interesting Pasha, a man of forty, who said to me: 'I would have given anything to receive my own training at Robert College. Since this was impossible I am determined that my boy shall go, even if I lose my own position for sending him.' The boy was sent to the College and is now a student there."

Friends in the East have written Mrs. King-Lewis expressing their delight and surprise at the change. It is generally believed that the reforms will be permanent. The Sultan is completely in the hands of the Constitutional party. "The Young Turks," said Mrs. King-Lewis, "have acted very wisely in refusing either to depose the Sovereign or to stain their hands with his blood. By this moderation they have won the sympathy of Europe. Any violent action on their part would have alienated the Powers. I hear that in Turkish towns the people are going about wearing badges made of colored linen, with the words upon them, in gold letters, 'Liberty, Fraternity and Justice.' It is recognized that the gaining of the army was the master-stroke of the reformers. We must remember that the soldiers had been for long in arrears with their salaries. The twenty-five men who escorted me in Macedonia had not been paid for months, and were even then becoming desperate. This neglect to pay the troops was the direct cause of many acts of lawlessness and violence, numbers of the soldiers were literally starving, their uniforms were in many cases torn almost to rags: their one possession of any value was the rifle. Since the loyalty of the army was undermined, Abdul Hamid had no resource but to submit. In my opinion the reformers showed consummate genius in their refusal to turn him adrift."

PRAISE OF REFORMERS

"Another remarkable feature in the revolution," said Mrs. King-Lewis, "has been the disinterested conduct of the Young Turks. No one, as far as we can learn, has sought office for himself. The mere fact that no conspicuous names were emerged amongst the leaders shows that this has been a truly national movement. Even from remote Armenian letters, have arrived which express the ecstasy of the people. Their one fear is that such changes are too good to last."

TURKEY AS A PLEASURE GROUND

Mrs. King-Lewis remarked that there is no reason why Macedonia should not be opened up for travelling in the near future. "It is a beautiful country, not unlike Switzerland, with mountains, lakes and rivers. The only railway at present is that from Sofia by Uskub to Salonica. The centre of the country remains to be opened up. The Sultan may live to see many changes though he is over seventy and looks somewhat infirm. Prison reform, for instance, must be taken in hand seriously. When I first travelled in Turkey," said Mrs. King-Lewis, "I seemed to be entering a prison; soldiers with rifles, were ranged on each side of the platform, as the train entered Adrianople. I was not allowed to take books with me to Macedonia, and even an English newspaper was confiscated. I remember that on one occasion my train was held up for half an hour while officials were examining a copy of the Daily News they had taken from my bag. Had they been able to read it, I should certainly have been sent to prison. Few English people have any idea of the horrors of Turkish prisons. I was not permitted to enter one. Mr. Noel Buxton was allowed to see only two of the sufferers. Escaped prisoners, who we have known, were in a dreadful condition. One man told that he was shut up with twenty-five others in a room nine feet square. Many died of consumption and other diseases in these foul dens and there is no doubt that hundreds have been drowned within recent years in the Bosphorus. I am thankful that the changes have come in this way. Although difficulties may arise, I do not think that the good work can be permanently undone."

IN A BREATH THERE'S REST

Breathe Hyomei and be Cured of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma

Nature has a remedy for catarrh, epidemic colds and bronchitis that is far better than dosing the stomach with medicine and drugs.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicate the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs and restoring health to the mucous membrane.

Hyomei acts like a curative internal air bath and has the same healing and antiseptic effect as the air where pine and Eucalyptic forests give off their fragrant and healing balsams.

Breathe healing Hyomei and see how quickly you will get relief from catarrh and head colds. If it does not help you there will not be a penny's expense, as W. Madill, druggist, corner Hunter and George Sts., agrees to refund the money. The complete Hyomei outfit costs only $1.00.

HE KNOWS

Louise Chandler Moulton.

We lay us down to sleep,
And leave to God the rest;
Whether to wake and weep
Or wake no more be best.

Why vex our souls with care?
The grave is cool and low—
Have we found life so fair
That we should dread to go?

We've kissed love's sweet, red lips,
And left them sweet and red;
The rose the wild bee sips
Blooms on when he is dead.

Some faithful friends we've found;
But they who love us best,
When we are under ground
Will laugh on with the rest.

No task have we begun
But other hands can take,
No work beneath the sun
For which we need to wake.

Then hold us fast, sweet Death,
If so it seemeth best
To Him who gave us breath
That we should go to rest.

We lay us down to sleep;
Our weary eyes we close;
Whether to wake and weep
Or wake no more, He knows.

MURDERER CONFESSES.

Detroit Teamster Tells How He Slew His Half-Brother.

Detroit, Nov. 3.—John Kurka, a teamster, yesterday made a dramatic confession of how he killed his half-brother, Anthony Schultze, a week ago and then hauled the body in his dump wagon across the city to the spot in the western outskirts where it was found.

The police had dressed Kurka in the clothes he wore on the morning of the murder, mounted him on his wagon and had him drive across the city from the Schultze home to the woods, to permit several persons to identify him, if possible, as the teamster they had seen in the neighborhood last Sunday. After he had been identified by several people Kurka admitted the crime. He said that Schultze and his wife were quarreling, and when he interfered Schultze attacked him.

"Then I let him have it with the hatchet," said Kurka. "His wife and I loved each other and we wanted him out of the way. I feel better now. I was haunted by Schultze's face ever since I killed him."

WILL LEAD TO FEELING.

London Journals Say Kaiser's Interview Will Create Distrust.

London, Nov. 3.—The London morning papers comment ironically upon what they describe as "ingenious semi-official explanations" from Berlin concerning the Emperor's published interview, and consider that the effect of these will be greatly to increase distrust of the German Foreign Office and its methods and probably lead to still greater ill-feeling between Great Britain and Germany.

The Daily Telegraph gives no further explanation of the affair, which its Berlin correspondent declares involves Germany in the gravest democratic crisis she has experienced since the dismissal of Bismarck.

Sidney Whitman, the well-known English publicist, who, it has been believed in certain quarters, was the author of the article, denies any connection with it.

Aeronaut In Spill.

New York, Nov. 3.—While experimenting with his "wind wagon," Dr. Julian J. Thomas, the aeronaut, met with an accident at the Morris Park experiment grounds of the Aeronautic Society and is suffering from severe nervous shock and probable injury to the spine.

When going at a high rate of speed, Dr. Thomas saw immediately in his path, a motor cycle which its owner had left lying on its side. In attempting to swerve quickly the forepart of the wind wagon collapsed beneath Dr. Thomas, who was pinned to the earth under the rear portion of the apparatus and the heavy machinery.

Reform In Russia.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 3.—It is understood in well-informed naval circles that Admiral Wierenius, president of the technical commission of the Admiralty, will shortly retire from his post. The commission has been under fire of late for tardiness in the designing of warships.

It is stated also that several other admirals are soon to be placed on the retired list.

This is the first important step in the reform of the Ministry demanded by the Douma as a condition of passing adequate appropriations for naval purposes.

Socialists and Police Clash.

Berlin, Nov. 3.—A mass meeting of Social Democrats held last night to protest against the treatment of the Socialist minority in the Prussian Diet, resulted in numerous conflicts with the police, who forcibly dispersed 10,000 Socialists who had been unable to gain admission to the meeting.

A large number of arrests were made, and fearing that the demonstrators would march on the Royal Castle, the police cut off the streets and bridges leading thither.

Chinese Shops Looted.

Hong Kong, Nov. 3.—Twenty-six shops were looted Sunday night. The looting grew out of a Japanese boycott. Some Chinese merchants have expressed a desire to abandon the boycott, while others have protested against its discontinuance, and Sunday night's attack on the shops was for the purpose of emphasizing the need of keeping up the boycott. Further trouble is expected to-day. More than 200 arrests have already been made amid scenes of great excitement.

A Murder Deep Down.

New York, Nov. 3.—Eighty-five feet below the surface of the street, in a dimly-lighted shaft adjoining the Pennsylvania Railroad Co.'s tunnel in Thirty-Second street, between Park and Madison avenues, a laborer who was on duty as a watchman, was murdered Sunday morning. Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—At the Montreal Stock Yards' West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Oct. 31 were 3892 cattle, 3480 sheep and lambs, 2579 hogs and 342 calves.

The offerings for local consumption this morning were 1600 cattle, 1400 sheep and lambs, 1130 hogs and 150 calves. There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle to-day. Supplies were smaller than a week ago and as a fair percentage of the same consisted of good useful beeves, the demand from local and outside butchers was good and an active trade was done. Cable advices from Liverpool on Saturday reported trade in cattle slow, but note no change in prices as compared with a week ago. The demand from exporters here for supplies was limited and trade in this direction was quiet, owing to the fact that they had ample stock on hand and coming forward to fill their freight engagements.

Choice beeves sold at 4½c, good at 4c to 4¼c, fair at 3½c to 3¾c, common at 2½c to 3c, and inferior at 1¾c to 2c per lb. Owing to the colder weather and an improved demand from local buyers for lambs, a stronger feeling has developed in the market since this day week and prices have advanced ¼c to ½c per lb. The offerings were larger and an active trade was done with sales of choice lots at 4¾c to 5c, and good at 4¼c to 4½c per pound. There was no change in sheep, the demand on export account being still limited on account of the continued discouraging advices from European sources, consequently sales of choice lots were slow at $3.25 to $3.50, and culls at $3 to $3.25 per cwt.

Altho cable advices on Canadian bacon from Liverpool, London and Bristol were weak last week at a decline of 2s to 4s per cwt., yet in spite of this fact and the increased supplies of hogs on the market this morning, there was no important change in the local situation.

The demand from packers and dealers was good and sales of selected lots were made at $6.40 to $6.50, and in a few odd cases as high as $6.65 was realized per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Exports of live stock for October were 16.382 cattle, 1416 sheep. Total for the season to date, 84,750 cattle and 8513 sheep.

DIRECTORATE BLAMED.

Jury In Mt. Vernon Wreck Says Grand Trunk Is Responsible.

Brantford, Nov. 3.—Joseph Maguire, Grand Trunk yardman, was arrested last night prior to the inquest into the Mt. Vernon wreck, on a charge of manslaughter, and later released on $2,000 bail.

The verdict was very long and placed responsibility for the disaster on the Grand Trunk. It declared the practice of the yard-engine, which collided with the special work train, in leaving the yards to push trains up the five-mile grade to Mount Vernon, and then returning without instructions, was dangerous in the absence of telegraphic connections along the line.

It was held that Maguire had double duties to perform as yardman and flagman, and that the former telegraph operator and a second yard engine had shortly before been taken off this particular service.

The telegraph operator who remained was a boy of only 19 years and had been on duty for 12 1-2 hours alone.

MESSAGE TO INDIA.

King Sends Greeting on Anniversary of Assuming Control.

London, Nov. 3.—On the occasion of the 50th anniversary of Great Britain's control of the direct Government of India, Queen Victoria having been proclaimed Empress throughout India on Nov. 1, 1858, King Edward Sunday issued a long message to the princes and people of India, which the Viceroy, the Earl of Minto, read at the durbar at Jodhpur yesterday.

The message dwells upon the peaceful progress of the Empire under a beneficent administration, pays warm tribute to the loyalty of the Indian subjects and troops, announces amnesty for prisoners and a further gradual extension of the principle of representative institutions in the direction of equality in citizenship, and a greater share by the Indians in legislation and the Government.

SMALLPOX IN KINGSTON.

Fifteen Cases Are Now Reported and Rigid Quarantine Is Enforced.

Kingston, Nov. 3.—Kingston now has 15 cases of smallpox. Two new cases were reported yesterday afternoon. The cases were traced to two hotels and several stores, and these will probably be closed up. The board has a big problem on its hands and realizes its responsibility. So far this year smallpox has cost the city $2,500. Four more rooms have been fitted up at Fort Henry to cope with the disease.

Mayor Ross will call a special meeting of the council to consider the question of compulsory vaccination. Dr. Fred. Etherington has addressed a letter to the council tendering his resignation as a member of the City Board of Health, because of inactivity in face of smallpox.

Gale Sweeps Lower St. Lawrence.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Considerable damage is reported from the lower St. Lawrence as the result of the great gale which has been sweeping over land and sea for the past couple of days.

The barge Mercure has been wrecked at Rousseau Anne, and the schooner Voltigeurs at Tadousac. The outward bound Allan Liner could not land her pilot at Father Point, owing to heavy sea, and he had to go to England in consequence, while the inward bound Kensington failed to get a pilot for the same reason.

Jacktars Go to Esquimalt.

Quebec, Nov. 3.—The C.P.R. steamship Lake Manitoba, from Liverpool, which arrived here yesterday, had on board a detachment of the imperial navy, consisting of 160 seamen, with eight petty officers and eight commissioned officers, who go through to Esquimalt to undergo a course of training at the naval station there. They will travel to Esquimalt by a special train on the C.P.R.

Japan and Germany.

Tokio, Nov. 3.—The Kaiser's yellow peril talk is causing great uneasiness in German official and commercial circles. A feeling prevails that the strenuous efforts of the last decade to rehabilitate German interests have been nullified, if not destroyed, while the Japanese press vigorously criticizes the imperial utterances.

Denounces Montreal Mayor.

Elections In Newfoundland.

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 3.—General elections were held throughout the colony yesterday, following a bitter campaign.

The Government of Sir Robert Bond is opposed by the People's party, led by Sir Edward Morris, formerly a member of Premier Bond's Cabinet. As the ballots in all the polling places are not counted where they are cast the result of the elections will not be known before to-night.

A Sheriff Arrested.

Oswego, N.Y., Nov. 3.—Henry Hilton, sheriff of Oswego County, was arrested last night on a bench warrant issued by District Attorney Baker on indictments found by a grand jury, charging him with having presented for audit bills alleged to contain false and fraudulent items relating to overcharges for the keep of prisoners.

CALICO BALL AT HAVELOCK

Several From Peterborough in Attendance---Event Was Most Successful

Special to the Review

Havelock, Nov. 3.—The "Masquerade Calico Ball" in the Opera House on Friday night last under the manaegment of the young ladies of town was a huge success in every respect and the young ladies, who had charge of the affair are to be congratulated on the way they carried out every detail. A very large number were in attendance. Besides the people from town, there were visitors from Peterborough, Campbellford, Hastings, Norwood, Marmora, Deloro and Smith Falls. The best of music was supplied by one of the best orchestras of Toronto ,and was appreciated very greatly by those present, as it added much to the ejoynment of the evening.

The hall was most artistically decorated for the occasion with flags, bunting, evergreens and large palms, Japanese lanterns and hollowed out pumpkins in which candles were placed and pictures of witches and cats which adorned the wall brought out the spirit of Hallowe'en.

Dancing was indulged in until 12 o'clock, when the electric lights were turned off, leaving the hall in the shadowy lights of the candles. The lancers were then danced and masks removed and all adjourned with their partners to the dining room where a most dainty fowl supper was served to the guests. The tables presented a beautiful feature, artistically adorned with cut flowers and pumpkins filled with different kinds of fruit.

When all had done due justice to the good things provided, leap year dances were indulged in, and the young maidens of town had a chance to battle with their bashfulness. As the hours began to grow large, this most delightful event, long to be remembered by those present was brought to a close with the singing of the National anthem.

The evening was spent in music and in a social manner. Vocal solos were given by Misses Francis Manning and Olive Howell and several of the young ladies present rendered instrumental solos which were much enjoyed.

Mr and Mrs. Reid were the recipients of many beautiful presents.

FORMER PETERBOROUGH MAN DIED AT PRINCE ALBERT

Death of Richard S. Cook, Mayor of Prince Albert—Was in the Riel Rebellion—A Man of Great Energy and Ability.

Many friends here of Richard S. Cook, a former Peterborough man, will regret to hear of his death, which occurred at Prince Albert, Sask., on October 27th. Mr. Cook had met with success in the west and was Mayor of the city of Prince Albert at the time of his death. He was for many years head of the Crown Land Department in that part of the Northwest. "Dick," as he was familiarly known in Peterborough, was an old Peterborough boy, who, in the service of his country during the Reil rebellion and subsequently did credit to himself and his town.

The Prince Albert Herald of October 27th, contains the following account of the passing away of Mr. Cook;

The death of Mayor Cook at the Victoria Hospital this morning at 3 o'clock will come as a shock to the citizens. But the end was not unexpected, as since entering the hospital on October 17th with typhoid fever he has gradually grown weaker until his death cam ethis morning. It was but four days before entering the hospital that his case was diagnosed as typhoid, though his Worship had been quite worn from hard work and the recurrence of a trouble from a wound received in battle twenty-three years ago.

Richard Samuel Cook was born in Peterborough, Ont., in 1861, and came west when quite a youth, serving in the C.P.R. Land Department in Winnipeg.

After remaining in this employ for some time the '85 rebellion broke out and he joined French's Scouts serving through th erebellion. At the capture of Batoche young Cook was wounded. A bullet entered his right leg below the knee and shattered the bone, leaving a wound which has been a source of constant annoyance throughout the last twenty-three years of his life. The effects of this wound had on weakening his system led to his succumbing to his recent attack of fever.

In 1886 Mr. Cook was made homestead inspector and land guide by the Dominion Government, and in May, 1906, was made Dominion Lands Agent for Prince Albert district.

It was in recognition of his 20 years of able, honest, efficient servic ein the land department in the capacity of guide and inspector that Mr Cook was promoted to one of the highest positions in the gift of the department in the west.

The many lines of public service in which the late Mayor engaged have been the astonishment of all who saw him perform his duties with such efficiency. Prompt and unwearied in doing public good he always was, in spite of the suffering which his wound got in the service of his country, caused him.

Again in 1897 when Almighty Voice raised his rebellious band against the Government Mr. Cook was one of those to oppose the rebellious spirit and on that occasion had his apprel vent bya bullet. Ever eager to protect his country, his province, his city against the foe in whatever form he could be fought bravely on to the he fought bravely on to the end.

Chief among the larger public services which Mayor Cook has rendered to Prince Albert is his work in connection with Victoria hospital. This institution of humanitarian work is largely a monument to his large humane heart and indefatigable labor. Since the inception of the institution he has been its secretary and his active service in building up the present institution is recognized as one of his greatest achievements. It was but fitting that the man who had done so much to give this great institution to this city should be allowed to pass away in this institution which was a labor of love to him and will remain a monument to his memory and humanitarian spirit.

In fraternal circles the late Mr Cook was prominently identified with the Independent Order of Foresters, being Chief Ranger. He was also a member of the Masonic Order. He was one of the active workers and pillars of the Anglican church of Prince Albert. In all his social relations R. S. Cook was a man whose company was a refining and uplifting influence and in every department of life he touched he brought sweetness and light.

The business interests of the late Mayor were chiefly those of his connection with the large milling and elevator company organized some years ago in Prince Albert—the Farmers Milling and Elevator Company—of which he was the president and chief stockholder. Closely connected with both his business interests yet also with his recreation was his large farm on which he has one of the finest herds of shorthorns in the province.

Two years ago in an election, contested by Mr. J. E. Bradshaw, Mr. Cook was elected Mayor of Prince Albert and was again returned by acclamation in 1907. When completing his second term he passed away.

As chief executive of the city Mayor Cook has shown marked abilities as a master of municipal practice. He made a deep study of municipal problems and gave the closest attention to the affairs under his jurisdiction. Mayor Cook was a model civic executive, always alive to civic improvements and ever alert as to the business methodst hat must be pursued in public business. A model of promptness and despatch in civic affairs, and a presiding officer of such diplomacy, tact and energy, Mayor Cook might be said to have a veritable genius for public affairs.

There will be a memorial service for the deceased on Thursday in the City Hall where all citizens will attend at 12.30. A number of brief tributes by men associated with Mayor Cook in his various works for the advancement of this city will be given.

The funeral will leave the home of the family at two o'clock for St. Alban's church where service will be held, after which the procession will follow the deceased to St. Mary's cemetery.

The various fraternal orders will take part in the funeral arrangement and attend in body the procession to the grave.

THE COUNCIL DIDN'T HAVE ANY BIG MATTERS TO DEAL WITH Regular Meeting Last Night—Routine Business—Ald Morgan Expresses Disapproval.

There were several small routine matters came up before the Council last night, and were quickly dealt with, although the meeting was prolonged by considerable controversy. Those present at the meeting were: Mayor Rush, Aldermen Phelan, Morrow, McIntyre, Gillespie, Morgan, Bradburn, Buller and Elliott.

THE REPORTS.

Reports of committees were read as follows;—

Moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Buller, that the Fire Water and Light Committee be authorized to purchase a team of horses for the fire hall ,and that the treasurer be authorized to issue his cheque to pay for the same. Also that one team of horses now in the hall be sold.

Ald. Morrow thought that the matter should be held over until next year as the Fire, Water and Light Committee had already spent a large sum this year.

It was pointe out that it takes some time to hunt up a good team of horses.

The matter was referred back to the committee.

It was moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Buller, that the chief of the fire brigade be authorized to appoint a call man to look after the fire hall when the brigade is called out to a fire.—Carried.

BY-LAWS READ.

The following by-laws were read: To confirm the registration of a plant of lots. To construct sewers, and to raise funds to pay for same. To construct a sewer on Water street, on sanitary grounds, authorising the City Trust Commissioners to grant leases.

Ald. Morgan raised objection to several things which had been done, and which, in his opinion, should not have been carried out, had not other work of equal importance been performed.

Ald. Morgan also criticised the action of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, but he made no headway as the Council upheld the committee.

It was moved by Ald. Johnston, and Ald. Phelan,—That this Council expresses its sincere appreciation of Mr. Richard Hall's acquiescence in the arrangements of the Council in reference to a new Public Library, and the monument to the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls—Carried.

AYLMER STREET.

Mr. Carton was present and stated that he had a house on what will be Aylmer and Princess streets, when these are opened up. At present he has no way of getting out, except over private property or away around by Lansdowne on Park street. So far he has not been able to rent the house. He asked that Aylmer and Princess streets both be opened up.

The following communications were received;—

From the Preston Car and Coach Co., Limited, of Preston, submitting blue print of new design of snow plough ,asking the Council to consider its acceptibility for use in Peterborough.

From E. H. Mann, asking for the approval of improved plan No. 128, property at George and Dublin sts. Building operations are ready to be commenced at once by man who desires to purchase lot.

From T. F. Matthews, asking city to place a four-way hydrant in front of premises on George street, as required by the Ontario Fire Underwriters Association as result of recent examination.

From C.P.R. Superintendent at Havelock asking to have additional fire protection provided by placing of hydrant south of tracks on the west side of George street.

From Baltimore Engraving Co., New ment by reason of being delayed 3 hours by the street overseer and Mr. York, asking for contract for providing enamelled street name signs for street corners.

From A. McCarthhy, asking $4 pay-Elliott, while moving house on Water street last August. He claims this is expense of buying iron bars which are of no further use to him.

From T. Kinnear & Co. asking for effective drainage and advising that a claim from any loss resulting from present lack of drainage facilities. City Engineer sent in a communication explaining that considerable water ,in his opinion, soaked through the wall on the south side of the building.

From the Board of Health, recommending the construction of a sewer on Dublin street from Water to a point 120 feet east of Water.

Several residents at the corner of Smith and George streets sent in a petition for an electric lamp to be placed at this corner.

Three new members were initiated at the meeting of Clan Alpine, Sons of Scotland, last night. Organizer Grieves was in attendance and assisted in the work of initiation. There was a large turnout of the members and much enthusiasm prevailed. One of the candidates initiated last night only arrived here from Scotland on Thursday of last week, so it will be seen that those in charge of the local camp are losing no time in securing "Sons of Scotland," in the real sense of the term.

Camp Clan Alpine meets in the Knights of Pythias Hall on Simcoe street.

THE RING

London, Nov. 2.—Jimmy Britt, the California fighter, defeated Johnny Summers, of England in the tenth round to-night at Wonderland. The conditions of the fight called for ten rounds at 133 pounds, the men weighing in at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Summers had the better of the fight during the first two rounds, and Britt, seeming to realize his disadvantage, put more energy into his work and shaped up much better in the succeeding rounds. The Englishman showed great cleverness in the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds and looked to be a winner. Britt came back, however, and fought his man to the ropes, having considerable advantage in the ninth and tenth rounds. The American was declared the winner on points, although a considerable section of the spectators who filled the big hall questioned the referee's decision.

For several minutes there was every indication of a riot, and it was with the utmost difficulty that quiet was restored. Britt and the referee were loudly hooted as they left the hall.

Extra-Great News From The Carpet Department!

AN ELEVEN DAYS' SALE OF SHORT ENDS

COMMENCING TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3rd AND CLOSING SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14th, at 9:30 O'CLOCK, P. M.

Coming events cast their shadows before. We have been asked many times recently, "Why don't you have a sale in "Carpets?" But, sales cannot materialize simply on request. There must be stronger reasons than that. But now the Golden Opportunity is here and great will be the Saving for those who take advantage of it.

The Carpet Department has informed us that it is impossible to secure duplicates of many lots now in stock. Manufacturers seem to like to change patterns and colorings, simply for the sake of having something new. We have to keep step, so the remaining odd lots of Carpets must go, and a very vigorous reduction in the price is the motive power. So we put these patterns into a special sale, because it is expected that special prices encourage special buying, and we are quite sure that those who have single rooms or even an occasional suite to carpet, can find ample selection in this showing.

MONUMENT TO MRS. NICHOLLS; PUBLIC LIBRARY FOR THIS CITY

A monument will be erected to Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls, Peterborough's greatest benefactor, the location to be chosen by Mr. Richard Hall, trustee for the Nicholls estate. This was decided upon at a meeting of the committee of the whole council last night.

The meeting was held for the purpose of considering a public library for Peterborough, $28,000 of which is composed the building, and an endowment fund donated by the Nicholls estate, and a motion was put through to get the rest of the money needed from Mr. Carnegie. A motion was made to ask Mr. Carnegie for $25,000, but this was changed to the amount required, as it is possible more than $25,000 will be necessary.

Mr. Hall, who was present on behalf of the Nicholls estate, wanted the library called the Nicholls Library with the name conspicuously placed on the building. The council preferred a monument as a means of having Mrs. Nicholls' name fittingly remembered, and it would be a tribute which would last for centuries, and would be noticed by citizen and stranger alike.

It was suggested that the present library building could be sold for $18,000, which figure it is estimated it should bring. This, with the endowment of $10,000, would make $28,000 and with the rest of the amount necessary supplied by Mr. Carnegie a splendid library could be built on a suitable location.

Ald. Bradburn, representing the council, and Mr. Richard Hall, representing the Nicholls estate, made a trip last week to Toronto, Galt, Brantford, St. Catharines and other places, and saw and made inquiries concerning the libraries in those places.

After a great deal of discussion and a thorough consideration of the matter it was moved by Ald. Johnston and seconded by Ald. Elliott that Mr. Richard Hall, acquiescing to the arrangement that the building on Simcoe Street donated by the executors of the Nicholls estate be sold and the funds secured be used in equipping and adding to the endowment fund, and that the required amount be gotten from Mr. Carnegie for the erection of a new library and that a monument be erected to the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls on any spot Mr. Hall may choose. Carried.

FRAUDS OF ONCE TRUSTED AGENT RECALLED BY DEATH

Montreal, Nov. 3—David "Mustard" Hobbs, released a short time ago from St Vincent de Paul penitentiary died in the Western hospital at four o'clock on Saturday morning.

Hobbs' last appearance before the public of Montreal was some four years ago when he stood in the dock of the Court of King's Bench and received a sentence of five years for stealing what at that time was believed to be in the neighborhood of $37,000 but which afterwards turned out to be nearer to $67,000.

Hobbs was in charge of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's customs department with headquarters in the Board of Trade building and he so manipulated the accounts that he was well on the way to make a fortune or, as many people thought, to lose all that he stole.

Hobbs found out that his crimes were discovered and one morning he was missing. The police were given instructions to find him and Lieut Col. Percy Sherwood, Chief of the Dominion police undertook the task, with the aid of the Thiel Detective Service. After many clues had been run down Hobbs was located in New York and brought to Montreal.

It was only after his wife had arranged for the return of a large sum of money which was in the hands of a business firm that Hobbs got off with a sentence of five years. After he went to the penitentiary it was learned that he was already a jail bird and had served seven years' penal servitude in England for scuttling a ship and attempting to collect the insurance. His record was extremely bad and there were many rumors which suggested that he would have to serve the full time of the sentence. His health, however, failed rapidly and he got out about four weeks ago.

He was taken to the Western Hospital three weeks ago and from there he directed some deals which he believed would eventually end in a permanent business. Death, however put an end to his plans

Carnation Night at Roller Rink

Miss Jewell and Mr. Duncan won the prize for graceful skating at the roller rink last night. They were presented with a beautiful bouquet of carnations. The attraction of the evening was flower night, and each skater was presented with a carnation. A large number were present and everyone was well satisfied. The next attraction will be the race on Thursday night between Hoagland the famous pedestrian and Prof. Genno and others. The course is two miles for Hoagland while Prof Genno will skate four miles. The race will be put on on Friday night also. The band concert will also be rendered that night. The race between the walker and skater should prove a great drawing card.

THE WORK OF THE LAYMEN

Toronto, Nov. 2.—"The most marvellous missionary campaign that has been seen in any generation as it solves potentially the problem for all nations," was the terse and emphatic way in which Mr. J. Campbell White, of New York, general secretary of the Laymen's Missionary movement, described his impression of the work under the direction of that movement during the first year of its operation in Canada at a meeting in St. James' schoolhouse Saturday afternoon on the anniversary of the memorable occasion when a hundred Toronto laymen undertook to raise the missionary givings of Toronto churches to half a million dollars.

The meeting, though called on a few hours' notice, was largely attended by representatives of all the evangelical denominations. Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., chairman of the Canadian committee, presided, and gave a short sketch of the campaign carried on in two dozen Canadian cities during the past two months. Several of those who had been engaged in that tour were present and gave their impressions of its effect.

Rev. Canon Tucker said the fact that the Baptists have already accomplished the task for their denomination, reaching not merely the $5 per member aimed at, but $10 $15 or $20, even in some places $30 per member was an encouragement and incentive to all other churches.

Hidden Skin Troubles

Have you on some part of your body a sore, or eruption, or ulcer, or eczemous patch which, hidden from the gaze of others, yet causes you hours and hours of pain and inconvenience? Have you tried this, and that, and the other remedy in vain, and are you feeling disheartened and discouraged? If so read the following instances of Zam-Buk's healing power, and apply it to your case:

"I had an ulcerated leg for several years. The ulcers spread all round the limb, which was swollen to nearly twice its normal size. Several doctors treated me. One suggested amputation. None did me any good. Zam-Buk healed the sores!" So says Mrs. Gilmour, of Princess St., Kingston. Or, read this:—

"My mother tried many things for abscesses and eruptions, but in vain. In Zam-Buk she found a complete cure." So says Miss A. Coggill, of Wapella (Sask.).

Sufferers from these "Hidden Skin Troubles" of any nature should profit by such experiences as this. Zam-Buk is seen at its best when applied to cases which have defied ordinary treatment. Write for trial box, and test it at our expense

ZAM-BUK

THE GREAT SKIN-CURE.

ZAM-BUK AND A MIRACLE OF HEALING

Over and over again Zam-Buk has performed a miracle of healing when applied to sores and skin injuries which have refused to heal under any other form of treatment. Why not let it heal your trouble? Immediately Zam-Buk is applied to a sore or wound or diseased portion of flesh it commences its work in two directions. It anoints the exterior, and its antiseptic properties prevent any germs and bacilli from creating trouble. Then the herbal essences and juices so finely purified and concentrated, penetrate the subjacent layers and stimulate the weakened or diseased cells to active, healthy operation. These cells then put forth their "Building" products and replace the diseased outer layer with fresh and healthy tissue. By degrees the whole diseased surface is thus replaced by new healthy skin.

In this way Zam-Buk cures cuts, burns, bruises, ulcers, abscesses, itch, eczema, eruptions, pustules, scurvy, salt rheum, blood poison, and other forms of skin trouble. Zam-Buk also cures piles, varicose ulcers, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c per box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. 6 boxes $2.50.

LOWELL PAPER SAYS ROGERS RECEIVED AWFUL BEATING AT HANDS OF WESTERGAARDT

The Lowell, Mass., newspapers give a detailed report of the match held last Tuesday between Westergaardt and Rogers. In this match Westergaardt did not display his accustomed restraint, but crushed Rogers in a few minutes. The great Yankee didn't have a chance with the giant of the west. The Swiss champion outdid Gotch, who had a much harder time to beat Rogers than Westergaardt did. The Lowell Journal says:

"The match between Rogers and Westergaardt, the unknown, was held yesterday evening before a great crowd and terminated in a surprise. Rogers, well known by his height and his strength, and who has been classed among the most formidable wrestlers of America, was handled like an amateur by his gigantic adversary. Westergaardt took the first fall in eight minutes. A stop of some minutes had to be taken to repair the platform during the first fall. He took the second in four minutes. The crowd was fairly stupified at the sight of this exploit, and Westergaardt will be regarded in Lowell as the equal of Gotch. The match was as terrific as it was brief.

"From the beginning Westergaardt, who seemed to have a grudge against Rogers, waded into him deliberately.

"A minute after going onto the mat Rogers was seized by the waist from the front and was whirled in the air and fell on the ropes. A very strict referee would have given a fall, but it was not complete. The wrestling recommenced with the men standing, and Westergaardt, with a violent move, rolled Rogers to the edge of the mat and hurled him against the ropes. The shock of the two men falling broke the ropes. Rogers fell off the platform and Westergaardt remained with only one leg on the platform. The two returned to the mat and the referee stopped the bout till the ropes were fixed up. Six minutes were thus lost and the match recommenced with fury. Immediately Rogers was borne to the mat but he stalled off his opponent and was soon on his feet. Westergaardt went after his man again and after a mixup of a few minutes Rogers was held by a head hold and hammerlock while his limbs were reduced to powerlessness by a severe leg lock. The big Yankee was doubled up like jackknife and the fall was Westergaardt's.

A FIERCE STRUGGLE.

"The second engagement was short and fiercer than the first. At the beginning Westergaardt seized Rogers from behind and bore him to the mat, gripped him with a crotch and half Nelson and turned him on one shoulder and then the other. Westergaardt lifted the Yankee's legs in the air and Rogers again saved himself by rolling from one shoulder, working himself to the edge of the carpet. Westergaardt, who did not wish to let his prey escape, lifted him and carried him to the middle of the mat and slammed him down upon his two shoulders, and Rogers fell dazed and beaten."

The Lowell paper adds this comment to its report:

"If there is another wrestler in America, Gotch or any other, who is capable of beating Rogers so thoroughly and quickly as Westergaardt the Unknown did we should like to know him."

Rogers was matched against Westergaardt for Friday in Montreal, but after the show Westergaardt made of him in Lowell the match would be ridiculous.

TOM LONGBOAT TO TURN PRO. HE WILL MEET DORANDO

The Toronto Star says:—

The die is cast!

Tom Longboat, the Indian running sensation of the past two years, has become a professional.

That this was the ultimate windup of the Onondaga's career no one doubted, but beyond fruitless negotiations, nothing was done until Saturday.

On Saturday Tom C. Flanagan, manager of the Irish-Canadians, and the Indian's mentor, was interviewed by Controller John J. Ward, a C.A.A.U. governor, Rev. J. D. Morrow, the well-known athletic meet official and ex-quarter-mile champion of Canada, and P. J. Mulqueen, the president of the Irish-Canadians, on the matter. These three gentlemen, backed up by another prominent C.A.A.U. officer, pointed out that as Longboat would not work the game as other athletes did, and his status was continually being questioned for this reason, and that his legs were his fortune, and professionalism his final goal, it would be better if he took the jump now when the running game was good, and he could get the money.

WHAT THEY TOLD FLANAGAN.

"The boy's future depends on what is done now," they told Flanagan. "His fortune will be made or marred this winter. This is the crisis."

They proposed that the Indian should be transferred to the "pro" ranks under Flanagan's management, and that the money he earned be turned over to a committee, composed of W. J. Little, general manager of the Montreal Star; John J. Ward, and Rev. J. D. Morrow, these three to invest the money for Longboat's future use.

WILL RUN DORANDO.

This idea appealed to Flanagan, and to-day the I.C.A.C. manager will enter into negotiations for a race with Pietro Dorando, the Italian, at Madison Square Garden, on the S. Thanksgiving.

"He will get $2,000 out of this race alone," said Flanagan. "After Dorando we will meet J. J. Hayes, the winner of the Olympic Marathon, and then we will be ready to meet Alf Shrubb. I hate like blazes to give Shrubb a race, but we'll have to do it. I'll match him to meet Shrubb at 15 miles, 20 miles and 25 miles."

Longboat's first professional exhibition will be at Kingston Roller Rink next week. He may also run an unknown five miles at Buffalo within 10 days.

Longboat has a $20,000 pair of legs.

His withdrawal from the ranks of Canadian amateurs removes the most talked-of amateur athlete Canada ever had.

Deerfoot, his Indian predecessor, it is not generally known, was a Canadian Indian. He came from the West, though he is usually referred to as a New York State Indian.

YOUNG HACKENSCHMIDT MAY START WRESTLING CLASSES IN THIS CITY

While he has made no definite arrangement Young Hackenschmidt is contemplating starting a wrestling class in Peterborough, and will in all probability do so if he can secure suitable premises. He has conducted classes in other cities with great success.

In Boston, the last place where he had a class, Hack turned out several tournament winners. The classes he has conducted have been very large and composed of young men of good standing.

Anybody who saw Hackenschmidt wrestle with Yankee Rogers realized before he had been going two minutes that he had a wonderful store of science and speed. He should make an ideal instructor.

Burrows to Manage Belleville Intermediates---The District Prospects

Belleville, Nov. 2.—Hockey prospects for next winter are now being discussed in this city. Belleville will have O.H.A. intermediate and junior teams. Sandy Burrows, one of the old star intermediates, will manage the intermediate team. It is believed the group will be Peterborough, Cobourg, Port Hope and Belleville.

The junior team will be strong, and the series will likely be Cobourg, Port Hope, Trenton, Picton and Belleville. The Trenton team will be very strong, and will play its home matches on the Belleville rink, as there is no covered rink in Trenton.

PLAYING WITH VARSITY 111

Ross Dobbin, a Peterborough boy, is playing with the third team of Toronto University. Speaking of the Varsity 111-McMaster game on Saturday, the Star says:

Varsity 111 defeated McMaster University II, on Saturday in a rugby game on McMaster grounds, in spite of a lead of ten points which McMaster II had over them and the absence of Captain Stan Morse, who was unable to play owing to injuries, the Varsity 111 team outplayed their opponents throughout the game, the final score being 34-6 in favor of Varsity 111, making a total of 37 to 19 on the round, or a lead of 18 for Varsity 111. For the winners Duff Wood on the half line played a steady and cool game, making some splendid runs and being sure in his catches. Bill Macpherson also did some fine booting for Varsity, Stirrett, Doherty, Bob Evans, Alexander, and Conn also shone for Varsity and Wes Winans played in his old style at quarter. With Stan Morse in line again, next Saturday, Varsity 111 look like the winners again of the Junior Inter-Collegiate championship. Queen's 111 will have their hands full with the boys from Toronto.

The teams:

Varsity 111— 34— Alexander, Macpherson, Wood, McCabe, Winans, Scandrett, Dobbin, Graham, Grass, Conn, Doherty, Stirrett, Allport, Thompson

PATRICK BROTHERS WILL TRY TO FORM CHAMPIONSHIP HOCKEY TEAM IN NELSON

Game in British Columbia Will be Under Patronage of Millionaire Lumberman—Four Players From Kenora Including Tom Phillips—No Team in Spokane.

Special to the Review.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 3— Crack players identified with the championship hockey team of Kenora, N.W.T., are coming west to Nelson, B. C., this winter, when the club, backed by the Patrick brothers, millionaire lumbermen, will make an effort to bring the Stanley trophy cup to the little city on Kootenay Lake.

G. H. Nelson, who was cover on the Nelson team last year, made the foregoing announcement during his present stay in Spokane.

The four men coming from the Kenora team are Tom Phillips, generally admitted to be the fastest and greatest forward in the hockey world, and Si Griffiths, Bordreaux and Kennedy, all fast and experienced players. This quartette was the backbone of the Kenora team which brought the Stanley cup west of Montreal last year for the first time since its origin. Then there will be Frank Patrick, brother of Lester Patrick, the sensational point of the Nelson team. Young Patrick was last year captain of the Montreal Victorias. These two star players are sons of one of the Patricks who operate the big lumber plant in Nelson, and it is the Patricks who are behind the plan.

They are putting up $2,500 for the expenses of the team to go east and are furnishing the lumber for a fine big new ice rink, the largest west of Winnipeg, to be constructed at Nelson. This rink will be regulation size, with a sheet of ice 180 by 90 feet. The rink will have an estimated cost of $13,000.

It is the plan of the promoters to start the Nelson team back towards Montreal about January 15th, and to have the team play exhibition games at Edmonton, Calgary, Regina, Brandon and Winnipeg, and possibly Ottawa and Toronto on the way.

Mr. Wilson says that in Nelson there is keen regret that Spokane does not put in a big ice rink and support a crack hockey team. All British Columbia was delighted when Spokane sent a hockey team to Rossland two years ago and repeated it last year, but was much distressed when the chances of Spokane becoming a big centre of interest were practically killed by the abandonment of the big artificial ice rink in Cannon street a year ago.

In this connection it may be mentioned that there is a plan on foot now to organize a hockey team to play in a Northwest league to be formed with Calgary, Nelson and several other Canadian and American cities. There are several former fast players in the Spokane country and they are keenly interested.

If Nelson succeeds in bringing the Stanley cup, emblematic of the Canadian hockey championship, it will not be the first time that a team in the Northwest captured an athletic championship of Canada. The lacrosse honors came to the great team at New Westminster, B. C., which was gathered much in the same manner as the one to represent Nelson this winter, the players coming from the crack teams all over Canada.

"BILLY" HEWITT GIVES CREDIT TO THE PETERBOROUGH TEAM

Billy Hewitt, sporting editor of the Toronto Star, who witnessed the T.A.A.C.-Peterborough game at Riverside Park on Saturday, has the following to say of it:—

Peterborough, Nov. 2.—Toronto A. A.C. defeated Peterborough here on Saturday for the O.R.F.U. senior championship by the smallest possible margin, the final score being 7 to 6 in favor of the visitors, though the locals were in the lead until the last few minutes of play, when a sensational 60-yard run by Mara from a scrimmage gave Toronto five points and the game.

The game was played in quarters, with a wind that blew fitfully from the north-west. Toronto had the wind in the first and third quarters, while the locals had the advantage in the other two periods. The score by quarters was 0-0, 2-0, 3-2 and 7-6, Peterborough always being in the lead until two minutes before time was called.

The star of the game was undoubtedly Dr. A. W. MacPherson, of the champion 'Varsity team of 1905, who played centre half and captained the locals. He not only played one of the best games of his career, but also directed the play in a masterly manner. He played practically the whole game for Peterborough behind the line, never made a muff, ran and dodged in his best style, and outkicked even such a good punt as Pete Flett. The bulk of the work fell on the doctor's shoulders, and he surpassed himself by the excellence of his playing. He was especially strong on the defence, some of his catches behind his own line and punts with tacklers on top of him bordering on the phenomenal. Dr. McPherson received excellent support from the deaf mute, Crough, whose long distance kicks into touch were especially valuable to his team when playing against the wind.

The Peterborough team as a whole played an entirely different game to their exhibition in Toronto. They showed evidences of good coaching, and were in much better shape than their opponents. Some of the wings were needlessly rough, and made a dead set on Flett, who retaliated in kind, with the result that he was sent to the penalty bench several times.

Grant, Clarke, Holden, Campbell and Mara played the best game for the winners, and the scrimmage also worked in good form. Flett was in no shape for football, and Len Morrison had an off-day. The tackling of the visitors was away below the mark.

All of Peterborough's points were the result of kicks to the short dead line at the south end of the field, while Toronto scored on two rouges and Mara's try.

THE WINNER OF RACE WAS NOT DAVE BELLAND AFTER ALL

Quebec, Nov. 2.—U. Beland running under the colors of the Zouave A.A.A., of Quebec, won the road race here Saturday afternoon, covering the five and one-half miles in 32 mins. 50 secs. He was one minute and ten seconds ahead of A. Robilliard, of the National Harrier Club, of Montreal, who finished second; Menard of the Zouaves, was third; E. Fabre, of the Nationals, of Montreal fourth; Paddy Royal, M.A.A.A. fifth; H. Hebert, Montreal Nationals sixth; Lancie, M.A.A.A. seventh; Jas. Davis, St. Patrick's, Quebec eighth; E. Brodeur, Montreal Nationals ninth; Delaney, M.A.A.A. eleventh; McCuaig, M.A.A.A. twelfth; Baker, M.A.A.A., thirteenth; Dail, Y.M.C.A., fourteenth; Ducket, Montreal Nationals fifteenth.

Immediately after the race protests were lodged against Beland, who finished first, by the M.A.A.A. and Nationals. Beland, these protests intimate, is not the Beland who went to the Olympic games, but a western crack, and a large amount of money was wagered upon him. The team prizes were awarded as follows:—1st, National Harrier Club Montreal; 2nd, M.A.A.A. There were 54 starters.

MEADOWS IS SUSPECTED

Of Having Run Under the Name of Beland---A Serious Accusation

A serious accusation is made about Fred Meadows, of Guelph, the well-known five-mile runner. On Saturday at Quebec an unknown man, running under the name of "U. Beland" and in the colors of the Zouaves of Quebec, won the Daily Telegraph road race of 5 1-2 miles in 32.50. A despatch from Quebec says that it is rumoured that the unknown was Meadows. The despatch also says that Paddy Royal, the Montreal crack, who was fourth, was so sore at the unknown that he tried to punch him. This was a Federation race.

The Globe's Guelph representative called at Meadows' boarding house last night, and was informed that the runner was "out of town and will not be back until to-morrow." If it is Meadows, the break will remove from C.A.A.U. competition one of the best five-milers Canada ever had.

A protest has been lodged against the unknown winner. The Daily Telegraph race is a big betting event, and this year it was known in Ontario that an effort would be made to shunt in a well-known Ontario runner and win it out.

The following despatch was received early this morning from the Globe man at Quebec city:—"W. Beland, who won the Quebec Daily Telegraph road race Saturday, is not a Quebecker, notwithstanding that he was entered as the brother of Dave Beland, a well-known local runner. The judges and others in connection with the incident are enquiring into his identity with every prospect of discovery. In the meantime it is thought that he is a well-known runner from Toronto who was brought here by a coterie of sports to make money out of him.

He is about 5 ft. 10 ins., fair, and weighs about 150 pounds, and is physically well developed. The first note of suspicion aroused in his regard was the amount of money offered by the strangers that he would win the race, and finally when he entered the clubhouse after the race, he was very severely scrutinized by both Quebec and Montreal sportsmen, who declared that he belonged to neither city. The judges have their suspicion in regard to his identity, but until they are absolutely certain they will give nothing out. Suspicion, however, points to the possibility of his name being Meadows.

THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

CHAPTER XIX.

THE inevitable happened. One noon Pulz looked up from his labor of pulling the whiskers from the evil smelling masks.

"How many of these things we got?" he inquired.

"About three hunder' and fifty," Thrackles replied.

"Well, we've got enough for me. I'm sick of this job. It stinks."

They looked at each other. I could see the disgust rising in their eyes, the reek of rotten blubber expanding their nostrils. With one accord they cast aside the masks.

"It ain't such a fortune," growled Pulz, his evil little white face thrust forward. "There's other things worth all the seal trimmin's of the islands."

"Diamon's," gloomed the nigger.

"You've hit it, doctor," cut in Solomon.

There we were again, back to the old difficulty, only worse. Idleness descended on us again. We grew touchy on little things, as a misplaced plate, a shortage of firewood, too deep a draft at the nearly empty bucket. The noise of bickering became as constant as the noise of the surf. If we valued peace, we kept our mouths shut. The way a man spat or ate or slept or even breathed became a cause of irritation to every other member of the company. We stood the outrage as long as we could; then we objected in a wild and ridiculous explosion which communicated its heat to the object of our wrath. Then there was a fight. It needed only liquor to complete the deplorable state of affairs.

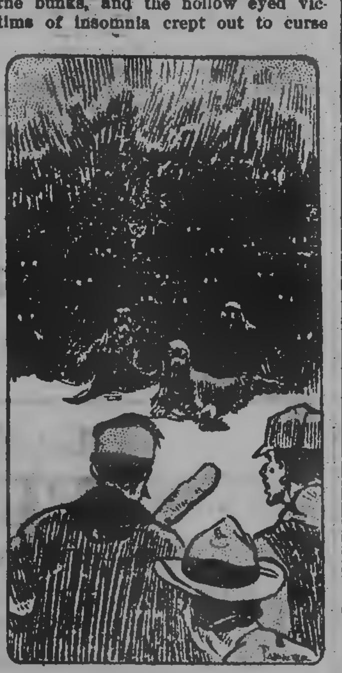
Gradually the smaller things came to worry us more and more. A certain harmless singer of the cricket or perhaps of the tree toad variety used to chirp his innocent note a short distance from our cabin. For all I know he had done so from the moment of our installation, but I had never noticed him before. Now I caught myself listening for his irregular recurrence with every nerve on the quiver. If he delayed by ever so little, it was an agony, yet when he did pipe up his feeble strain struck to my heart cold and paralyzing like a dagger. And with every advancing minute of the night I became broader awake, more tense, fairly sweating with nervousness. One night—good God, was it only last week? It seems ages ago, another existence, a state cut off from this by the wonder of a transmigration at least. Last week!

I did not sleep at all. The moon had risen, had mounted the heavens and now was sailing overhead. By the fretwork of its radiance through the chinks of our rudely built cabin I had marked off the hours. A thunderstorm rumbled and flashed, bull down over the horizon. It was many miles distant, and yet I do not doubt that its electrical influence had dried the moisture of our equanimity, leaving us rattling husks for the winds of destiny to play upon. Certainly I can remember no other time in a rather wide experience when I have felt myself more on edge, more choked with the restless, purposeless nervous energy that leaves a man's tongue parched and his eyes staring. And still that infernal cricket or whatever it was chirped.

I had thought myself alone in my vigil, but when finally I could stand it no longer and kicked aside my covering, with an oath of protest, I was surprised to hear it echoed from all about me.

"D—— that cricket!" I cried.

And the dead shadows stirred from the bunks, and the hollow eyed victims of insomnia crept out to curse their tormentor. We organized an expedition to hunt him down. It was ridiculous enough, six strong men prowling for the life of one poor little insect. We did not find him, however, though we succeeded in silencing him. But no sooner were we back in our bunks than he began it again, and such was the turmoil of our nerves that day found us sitting wan about a fire, hugging our knees.



The darkness in front of us was alive with fiery eyeballs.

We were so genuinely emptied, not so much by the cricket as by the two years of fermentation, that not one of us stirred toward breakfast. In fact, not one of us moved from the listless attitude in which day found him until after 9 o'clock. Then we pulled ourselves together and cooked coffee and salt horse. As a significant fact, the nigger left the dishes unwashed, and no one cared.

Handy Solomon finally shook himself and arose.

"I'm sick of this," said he. "I'm goin' seal hunting."

They arose without a word. They were sick of it, too—sick to death. We were a silent, gloomy crew indeed as we thrust the surfboat afloat, clambered in and shipped the oars. No one spoke a word; no one had a comment to make, even when we saw the rookery slide into the water while we were still fifty yards from the beach. We pulled back slowly along the coast. Beyond the rock we made out the entrance to the dry cave.

"There's seal in there!" cried Handy Solomon. "Lots of 'em!"

He thrust the rudder over, and we headed for the cave. No one expressed an opinion.

As it was again high tide, we rowed in to the steep shore inside the cave's mouth and beached the boat. The place was full of seals. We could hear them bellowing.

"Two of you stand here," shouted Handy Solomon, "and take them as they go out! We'll go in and scare 'em down to you!"

"They'll run over us!" screamed Pulz.

"No, they won't. You can dodge up the sides when they go by."

This was indeed well possible, so we gripped our clubs and ventured into the darkness.

We advanced four abreast, for the cave was wide enough for that. As we penetrated the bellowing and barking became more deafening. It was impossible to see anything, although we felt an indistinguishable tumbling mass receding before our footsteps. Thrackles swore violently as he stumbled over a laggard. With uncanny abruptness the black wall of darkness in front of us was alive with fiery eyeballs. The seals had reached the end of the cave and had turned toward us. We, too, stopped, a little uncertain as to how to proceed.

The first plan had been to get behind the band and drive it slowly toward the entrance to the cave. This was now seen to be impossible. The cavern was too narrow, its sides at this point too steep and the animals too thickly congested. Our eyes, becoming accustomed to the twilight, now began to make out dimly the individual bodies of the seals and the general configuration of the rocks. One big bowlder lay directly in our path, like an island in the shale of the cave's floor. Perdosa stepped to the top of it for a better look. The men attempted to communicate their ideas of what was to be done, but could not make themselves heard above the uproar. I could see their faces contorting with the fury of being baffled. A big bull made a dash to get by. All the herd flippered after him. If he had won past, they would have followed as obstinately as sheep and nothing could have stopped them, but the big bull went down beneath the clubs. Thrackles hit the animal two vindictive blows after it had succumbed.

This settled the revolt, and we stood as before. Pulz and Handy Solomon tried to converse by signs, but evidently failed, for their faces showed angry in the twilight. Perdosa, on his rock, rolled and lit a cigarette. Thrackles paced to and fro, and the nigger leaned on his club farther down the cave. They had been left at the entrance, but now in lack of results had joined their companions.

Now Thrackles approached and screamed himself black trying to impart some plan. He failed, but stooped and picked up a stone and threw it into the mass of seals. The others understood. A shower of stones followed. The animals milled like cattle, bellowed the louder, but would not face their tormentors. Finally an old cow flopped by in a panic. I thought they would have let her go, but she died a little beyond the bull. No more followed, although the men threw stones as fast and as hard as they were able. Their faces were livid with anger, like that of an evil tempered man with an obstinate horse.

Suddenly Handy Solomon put his head down and with a roar distinctly audible even above the din that filled the cave charged directly into the herd. I saw the beasts cringe before him. I saw his club rising and falling indiscriminately, and then the whole back of the cave seemed to rise and come at us.

This was no chance of sport now, but a struggle for very life. We realized that once down there would be no hope, for while the seals were more anxious to escape than to fight we knew that their jaws were powerful. There was no time to pick and choose. We hit out with all the strength and quickness we possessed. It was like a bad dream, like struggling with an elusive hydra headed monster, knee high, invulnerable. We hit, but without apparent effect. New heads rose, the press behind increased. We gave ground. We staggered, struggling desperately to keep our feet.

How long this lasted I cannot tell. It seemed hours. I know my arms became leaden from swinging my club. My eyes were full of sweat. My breath gasped. A sharp pain in my knee nearly doubled me to the ground, and yet I remember clamping to the thought that I must keep my feet, keep my feet at any cost. Then all at once I recalled the fact that I was armed. I jerked out the short barreled revolver and turned it loose in their faces.

Whether the flash and detonation frightened them, whether Perdosa, still clinging to his rock, managed to turn their attention by his flanking efforts or whether, quite simply, the wall of dead finally turned them back I do not know, but with one accord they gave over the attempt.

I looked at once for Handy Solomon and was surprised to see him still alive, standing upright on a ledge the other side of the herd. His clothing was literally torn to shreds, and he was covered with blood. But in this plight he was not alone, for when I turned toward my companions they, too, were tattered, torn and gory. We were a dreadful crew, standing there in the half light, our chests heaving, our rags dripping red.

For perhaps ten seconds no one moved. Then with a yell of demoniac rage my companions clambered over the rampart of dead seals and attacked the herd.

The seals were now cowed and defenseless. It was a slaughter, and the most debauching and brutal I have ever known. I had hit out with the rest when it had been a question of defense, but from this I turned aside in a sick loathing. The men seemed possessed of devils and of their unnatural energy. Perdosa cast aside the club and took to his natural weapon, the knife. I can see him yet rolling over and over and embracing a big cow, his head jammed in an ecstacy of ferocity between the animal's front flippers, his legs clasped to hold her body, only his right hand rising and falling as he plunged his knife again and again. She struggled, turning him over and under, wept great tears and fairly whined with terror and pain. Finally she was still, and Perdosa staggered to his feet, only to stare about him drunkenly for a moment before throwing himself with a screech on another victim.

The nigger alone did not jump into the turmoil. He stood just down the cave, his club ready. Occasionally a disorganized rush to escape would be made. The nigger's lips snarled and with a truly mad enjoyment he beat the poor animals back.

I pressed against the wall horrified, fascinated, unable either to interfere or to leave. After a little a tiny stream, growing each moment, began to flow past my feet. It sought its channel daintily, as streamlets do, feeling among the stones in eddies, quiet pools, miniature falls and rapids. For the moment I did not realize what it could be. Then the light caught it down where the nigger waited, and I saw it was red.

At first the racket of the seals was overpowering. Now gradually it was losing violence. I began to hear the blasphemies, ferocious cries, screams of anger hurled against the cave walls by the men. The thick, sticky smell grew stronger, the light seemed to grow dimmer, as though it could not burn in that fetid air. A seal came and looked up at me, big tears rolling from her eyes. Then she flippered aimlessly away, out of her poor wits with terror. The sight finished me. I staggered down the length of the black tunnel to the boat.

After a long interval a little three months' pup waddled down to the water's edge, caught sight of me and, with a squeal of fright, dived far. Poor little devil! I would not have hurt him for worlds. As far as I know, this was the only survivor of all that herd.

The men soon appeared, one by one, tired, sleepy eyed, glutted, walking in a catlike trance of satiety. They were blood and tatters from head to foot, and from drying red masks peered their bloodshot eyes. Not a word said they, but tumbled into the boat, pushed off, and in a moment we were floating in the full sunshine again.

We rowed home in an abstraction. For the moment Berserker rage had burned itself out. Handy Solomon continually wetted his lips, like an animal licking its chops. Thrackles stared into space through eyes drugged with killing. No one spoke.

We landed in the cove and were surprised to find it in shadow. The afternoon was far advanced. Over the hill we dragged ourselves and down to the spring. There the men threw themselves flat and drank in great gulps until they could drink no more. We built a fire, but the nigger refused to cook.

"Some one else turn," he growled. "I cook aboard ship."

Perdosa, who had hewed the fuel, at once became angry.

"I cut heem de wood," he said. "I do my share. Eef I cut heem de wood you mus' cook heem de grub!"

But the nigger shook his head, and Perdosa went into an ecstacy of rage. He kicked the fire to pieces. He scattered the unburned wood up and down the beach. He even threw some of it into the sea.

"Eef you no cook heem de grub you no hab my wood!" he shrieked, with enough oaths to sink his soul.

Finally Pulz interfered.

"Here, you foreigners," said he, "quit it! Let up, I say! We got to eat. You let that wood alone or you'll pick it up again!"

Perdosa sprang at him with a screech. Pulz was small, but nimble, and understood rough and tumble fighting. He met Perdosa's rush with two swift blows, a short arm jab and an uppercut. Then they clinched and in a moment were rolling over and over just beyond the wash of the surf.

The row waked the nigger from his sullen abstraction. He seemed to come to himself with a start; his eye fell surprisedly on the combatants, then lit up with an unholy joy. He drew his knife and crept down on the fighters. It was too good an opportunity to pay off the Mexican.

But Thrackles interfered sharply.

"Come off!" he commanded. "None o' that!"

"Go to h—l!" growled the nigger.

A great rage fell on them all, blind and terrible, like that leading to the slaughter of the seals. They fought indiscriminately, hitting at each other with fists and knives. It was difficult to tell who was against whom. The sound of heavy breathing, dull blows, the tear of cloth and grunts of punishment received; the swirl of the sand, the heave of struggling bodies, all riveted my attention, so that I did not see Captain Ezra Selover until he stood almost at my elbow.

"Stop!" he shrieked in his high, falsetto voice.

And would you believe it, even through the blood haze of their combat the men heard him and heeded? They drew reluctantly apart, got to their feet, stood looking at him through reeking brows half submissive and half defiant. The bullheaded Thrackles even took a half step forward, but froze in his tracks when Old Scrubs looked at him.

"I hire you men to fight when I tell you to and only then," said the captain sternly. "What does this mean?"

He menaced them one after another with his eyes, and one after another they quailed. And their plottings, their threats, their dangerousness dissipated like mist before the command of this one resolute man. These pirates who had seemed so dreadful to me now were nothing more than cringing schoolboys before their master.

And then suddenly to my horror I, watching closely, saw the captain's eye turn blank. I am sure the men must have felt the change, though certainly they were too far away to see it, for they shifted by ever so little from their first frozen attitude. The captain's hand sought his pocket, and they froze again, but instead of the expected revolver he produced a half full brandy bottle.

The change in his eyes had crept into his features. They had turned foolishly amiable, vacant, confiding.

"'Lo, boys," said he appealingly. 'You good fellows, ain't you? Have a drink. 'S good stuff. Good ol' bottl'." He lurched, caught himself and advanced toward them, still with the empty smile.

They stared at him for ten seconds, quite at a loss. Then:

"He's drunk!" Handy Solomon breathed, scarcely louder than a whisper.

There was no other signal given. They sprang as with a single impulse. One instant I saw clear against the waning daylight the bulky, foolish swaying form of Captain Selover, the next it had disappeared, carried down and obliterated by the rush of attacking bodies. Knives gleamed ruddy in the sunset. There was no struggle. I heard a deep groan. Then the murderers rose slowly to their feet.

FACTS ABOUT COLDS.

What a Well Known German Periodical Has to Say.

Wissen fur Alle, a well known German periodical, has recently been discussing a few facts about colds, and perhaps some of us who are afflicted with the uncomfortable summer shneezing and blowing may be a bit interested in part of the article:

"Many people may be surprised to hear that even in this world there are places where it is impossible to catch cold. There are facts, however, which bear this out. Explorers in the arctic regions never catch cold. Their clothes are often saturated with perspiration through their struggles over the ice and are a mass of ice when they retire for the night, and yet despite the fact they often have to sleep out in the open in their sleeping bag and that this is their only means of thawing themselves out their health does not suffer in the least. Indeed, it has been declared that most explorers are physically the better off for their sojourn in the northern regions.

"Then there is the classical instance of the St. Kilda cold. On that rocky, lonely island, lying some forty miles beyond the western Hebrides, there are about a hundred inhabitants who manage by cultivating a little of the ground and by catching sea fowl to keep themselves alive. The coast is so precipitous and the seas so stormy that for eight months out of the twelve they are practically inaccessible. Oddly, whenever a steamer touches at this island all the inhabitants, including the very infants, are seized with a cold."

The German periodical puts down the readiness of the man in the temperate zone to take cold to the coddling habit which fears exposure, resulting in a delicate constitution, more ready to suffer at the slightest change of temperature. It sums up by saying: "Exposure is not the direct cause of colds. It only acts on a lowered vitality. The only safeguard is continued exposure."

"HOODOO" LUNCHEON.

It Should Be Held on the Thirteenth of the Month.

There are few forms of entertainment which afford as much amusement as is furnished by a "hoodoo" party.

The party should be held on the 13th of the month unless it is absolutely impossible. Invite thirteen girls for your luncheon. The invitations may have the picture of a witch in one corner, and seal the envelope with a four leaf clover cut out of green paper.

Use table mats in the shape of four leaf clovers cut from green silk or silkaline and make a centerpiece the same. In the center of the table on the green centerpiece place a black silk cat, such as may be bought in any toy shop.

Charming candle shades may be made at home easily and inexpensively. From nursery books cut pictures of witches on broomsticks and either paste or trace them on white paper. If colored black they will loom up distinctly when the candles are lighted.

Each name card may be made different. One might be a wriggly snake, another a horseshoe, another a broom, a fourth an owl and many other things which represent some hoodoo. A cake in which have been baked different articles which suggest various superstitions, such as a ring, a silver coin, a thimble, a button and a china hare, would afford a great deal of fun.

A rabbit's foot mounted in silver and a brooch in the form of a horseshoe would make appropriate prizes if games or cards are played.

Write With Both Hands.

Sir Edwin Arnold once stated that one of the many evidences of Japanese common sense is the custom of teaching children to write with either or both hands. Charles Reade, through arguments in his writings, converted many persons to become ambidextrous, and it is a gift or an acquisition greatly to be desired by those who wield a pen. To be able to change the pen from one hand to the other at the first premonition of weariness would relieve many a weary hour and perhaps prevent writers' cramp. Thomas Jefferson while American minister to France broke his right wrist, but with little trouble learned to write with his left hand. That was before the days of the typewriter, and without the use of both hands it would have been impossible later for Jefferson to carry on his voluminous correspondence. Instead of wasting time and patience trying to break a naturally left handed child from using the pen in that hand, would it not be better to teach him to use both hands equally well? An adult whose muscles are no longer supple can learn to write with the left hand in one week, and in one year the handwriting of one hand will be as good as that of the other.

For the Woman Who Travels.

One of the most useful garments for the woman traveler by sea or her sister who must take a sleeper for a land journey is a black china silk negligee. Let it be cut with ample fullness both back and front full length to the floor, open in front and finished with a sailor collar. A dressy touch may be given by edging the collar and sleeves with lace and jaboting lace down either side of the front. Fasten the front with ribbon bows at intervals of eight inches. The garment takes but small compass, does not show the effect of close packing and may be substituted for the bulky bath robe on shipboard or in the sleeper. Those who have been the fortunate possessors of such an acquisition to the wardrobe cannot speak enthusiastically enough of the comfort coming from its use.

A "Coney Island," similar to the playground near New York, is being projected for Lievrpool.

FAIR DIRECTORS WAITED ON COUNCIL LAST NIGHT

Urged That City Purchase the Grounds and Erect New Buildings—President Leary and Mr. H. C. Garbutt Spoke.

A deputation representing the West Peterborough Agricultural Society, and consisting of President Leary, Secretary Hall and Directors H. C. Garbutt and J. J. Turner, waited on the council last night and made the proposition that the city buy the agricultural grounds and have the Fair in future conducted by the city. The speakers for the society were Messrs. Leary and Garbutt.

Mr. Leary produced a largely signed petition in favor of the city purchasing the grounds. Mr. Leary said that the Fair could be made most successful, as the attendance for the last two years proved, but the lease would expire in three years, and new buildings were required on the grounds.

Mr. Garbutt shared Mr. Leary's views and said that owing to the expense in connection with the erection of new buildings and in view of the fact that the lease expired in three years, a private company of directors didn't feel they would be well advised in putting up the buildings.

Mayor Rush stated that he didn't know whether the city would be able to purchase the grounds or not, and City Solicitor Hall would have to be seen on that point.

The speakers mentioned that the grounds might be leased for park purposes when the Fair wasn't being held.

My lady has reached the age of sixty. She has become nearsighted and a bit deaf. She was rheumatic, and she had a slight stoop and somewhat of an uncertain gait. But for the vigilance of her maid, Perkins, she would have looked every month of her age and passed for the old woman she was.

It was Perkins who skillfully padded her gowns and applied the dainty pink and white complexion and who gave her daily lessons in the art of remaining a young woman.

It was Perkins who had told her for the last dozen years that she looked under forty and who made each birthday count one less instead of one more. In her way, and it was a good way, Perkins was a jewel of the first water.

My lady had wealth. When, at the age of forty, she had married again, only to become a widow for the second time within three years, her cash income had been largely added to.

At fifty a third ardent suitor appeared, but my lady decided to preserve her widowhood and retain control of her money. At sixty she had herself and she had Perkins. Five years previously, when the woman had come to her, she had said:

"Perkins, I am a frivolous thing of thirty-five."

"Yes'm," replied Perkins as she mentally added twenty years to the figures.

"I am frivolous, but not quite a fool."

"No'm."

"And I want you to help me from becoming one."

"Certainly, m'm."

"If you see me flirting or acting giddy, as most young women are apt to do at times, put your foot down and stop it."

"I will, m'm."

"Should I really fall in love, Perkins—should I be so giddy and frivolous and foolish as to think of marriage, put both feet down and bring me to my senses ere it is too late. That's all this evening, Perkins."

Thus Perkins became lady's maid, chaperon and adviser combined. She was the keeper of the keys and the watchdog of the treasury. She was a good judge of human character and a close estimator of how far a flirtation could go and still come under the head of harmless.

On several occasions, when things had gone their limit, she had announced the fact, and my lady had turned her back on the affair.

It was one season at Nice when things went wrong. Perkins was finding it hard work to keep the wrinkles rubbed away. My lady was beginning to notice her own stoop and limp, and she was almost ready to acknowledge that she felt all of forty-eight and a few minutes over.

Count DuBois made his appearance at this opportune moment. He was a real French count, if that was worth anything. He was also a spendthrift and a gambler. He had about reached the end of his tether when he got around to Nice on a tour of adventure and ran across my lady and her friends.

His reputation soon caught up with him, but in Europe a title excuses much. There was almost at once an open flirtation between my lady and the count, and for a time the Argus eyed Perkins watched it and said nothing.

However, when Mrs. Grundy had begun to nod and wink and whisper behind her fan, she took my lady in hand. On all previous occasions the dear old thing had heaved a sigh or two, shrugged her shoulders and submitted to the inevitable, but on this occasion, to Perkins' great surprise, she proved obdurate.

"Perkins, I am surely in love," she replied.

"But you can't be. You are too—too young."

"But I know that I am in love, and I shall marry the count, poor boy."

Perkins came back at her with enough statistics to swamp the characters of three or four adventurers, but my lady had made up her mind and nothing could move her. Perkins knew when to argue and when to conceal herself behind the portieres.

Before the count left the parlors next day she was in possession of all needed particulars. There was to be a yachting party of a dozen friends, and during the trip the engagement would be announced—two weeks later a marriage and a honeymoon trip.

The yacht would not make the harbor until a late hour in the evening, and the count would call for my lady in a carriage. He further threw out a suggestion. It was that Perkins be locked in her room at a certain hour to prevent her wandering about Nice during the evening hours and getting lost or falling off the quay.

Human jewels such as she had been known to disappear off the face of the earth while innocently taking the night air of that charming resort.

"But Perkins won't be advertised for as a lost jewel," said Perkins to herself as the count left the house, and for the next few hours her face wore an expression that ought to have put my lady on her guard, but didn't.

She was so mild and gentle and affectionate and she seemed so far from suspecting any sort of plot that she could have asked for a raise of salary and got it on the spot. As she didn't ask, it was not offered.

Neither did my lady think it best to tell her that she would soon be out of a place. That was another thing the count had suggested—the very last thing as he was leaving the house—that as soon as the marriage took place Perkins could go hang. My lady simply patted her faithful servant and companion on the back and said that she should miss her when she died.

The day on which my lady was to begin her yachting trip dawned auspiciously. She had looked into her heart. She had felt the stir and flutter of love and romance. She had heard that one lady had said that she was old enough to be the count's grandmother.

She looked into her glass and indignantly repudiated the slander. Not a gray hair in her head; not a wrinkle on her face; not a wabble to her knees as she stood there and felt how good it was to be young again. Even her worst enemy must have been forced to admit that day the complexion just finished by Perkins was a three-A brand, and that the movements of the old dame around the room had all the lithesness of girlhood.

After the midday lunch she became petulant and nervous and finally drove Perkins away to sit by herself. She thus secured an interval in which to pack a small trunk with the things she would need aboard the yacht. At the dinner hour she had the meal served in her rooms. She ate sparingly, but drank rather more than usual of her favorite brand of wine. It is needless to add that the bottle passed through the hands of Perkins before taking its place on the table.

Half an hour after dinner my lady felt drowsy and retired for a nap. She could sleep for two or three hours and then have plenty of time to turn the key on the unsuspecting Perkins.

Her puffs were laid aside for the nonce, her complexion secured against accident, and she laid her head on the pillow and fell asleep like a tired child—or a grandmother. However, when the count drove up soon after 10 o'clock he found my lady ready and waiting, and the drive to the quay was quickly made.

En route he wanted to inquire if there had been much trouble in disposing of the watchdog, but as his companion seemed disinclined for conversation he decided to let the point stand over until later. They went on board the yacht at once, and my lady was handed over to the care of the stewardess. She might have inquired if the rest of the party had come aboard yet, but she didn't. She didn't seem to care.

The count and the captain had had their morning cocktails and were hungrily awaiting the appearance of my lady and breakfast, when she sailed into the cabin after a night of sleep broken at intervals by chuckles that seemed to chuckle of their own accord.

She had a smile of serenity on her face, and she sat down to the table with a good appetite. The captain doffed his cap and made his bow. The count started to do the same thing, but caught his breath and then yelled.

It was Perkins—Perkins the jewel—Perkins the watchdog—Perkins the all around best ever. She was calm. She was tranquil. She was very much at home.

She excused the absence of my lady on the grounds of a very pressing engagement and promised, as her substitute, to enjoy every hour of the trip so kindly planned and so auspiciously begun.

It was a breakfast with firecrackers and Roman candles tied to it. Every minute or two there was a snapping and crackling, and every minute or two something would go off. The count cursed and raved and tore his hair, the captain grinned and chuckled and Perkins said she hadn't enjoyed a breakfast so much in many moons.

It was soon discovered that she and the count were not en rapport and coundn't view matters in the same light. In fact, they speedily decided that they didn't want to be found drowned in the same Mediterranean sea. If the disappointed and cursing man had had Perkins afar on the desert or on some lonely mountain peak he would have gladly wrung her neck, but on the yacht there were restraints.

Of course the craft put back. When Perkins reached the hotel she found my lady in tears and her complexion ruined for life. The count left Nice the same evening without having called; the captain of the yacht had no news for reporters, and to this day there are not half a dozen people who can elevate their eyebrows and look knowingly when a certain name is mentioned.

Perkins did not take advantage of the circumstance as another might. She simply used the incident as a lever when she wanted to cut short another flirtation. After she had stated her case with the force and clearness of an attorney at law she would hold up a forefinger and conclude with:

"Cut it short, my lady. I may not be there next time to doctor your wine and take your place, and then what would the world say?"

Why Hurry?

The scorching cyclist was on the road to Stratford-on-Avon. He was bent over the handle bars, and the beads which bespeak the strenuous toiler were trickling off his face.

"Hi, sonny," he called to a passing youth, "am I right for Shakespeare's house?"

"Yes, you're right, mister," was the dreamy reply of the leisurely youth, "but you needn't hurry. Shakespeare's dead."—London Answers.

ABOUT EMERSON

A feature in recent French literature is the number of studies of English authors. They are mostly done with great care and pains. Mlle. Dugard, Professor of Literature at the Lycee Moliere, has just published a book about Emerson. She characterizes the philosopher as a remarkable blend of Oriental mysticism and Yankee shrewdness. Without the union of these tendencies he would not have succeeded in gaining the ear of his compatriots and in reconciling American thought with spirituality. There is nothing new in this, but Mlle. Dugard puts her points well. "Emerson knows the value of a dollar as well as a Concord farmer, and reserves for those who believe him buried in his dreams the surprise of seeing him apply to life the sagacity of the positive man. They say to him that his spiritual astronomy apart, he is incapable of observation; and after two trips to Great Britain he publishes precise notes on English character which would do credit to Taine. They imagine that, surrounded by romantic youths intoxicated with new ideas, he will share their exaltation; and, behold, he opposes them instead with pitiless good sense. . . . Among the reforms presented to him for approval he distinguishes at a glance those which are tainted with utopianism and those which may prove efficacious."

DANGER IN THE SACRAMENT UNFERMENTED WINE FAVORED

By Members of the W. C.T.U.

Speaker at Convention at Barrie Declares That Holy Communion is Often a Menace.

Barrie, Nov. 4.—The thirty-first convention of the Ontario W.C.T.U. was opened in the Collier street Methodist Church here yesterday morning. The convention was called to order by Mrs. S. G. E. McKee, Barrie, president of the local and provincial unions. Nearly the full quota from each union was present, there being 150 delegates in all.

In connection with the use of unfermented wines, Mrs. Hagar of Welland emphasized the great danger of allowing the use of fermented wines in the sacrament to those who have an appetancy for liquor. Cases have been known of children who showed great eagerness to partake of the sacrament, and gave as a reason their intense love of the fermented wine used. Some men refrained from partaking of the sacrament because of the fear that they might acquire the habit of drinking.

Mrs. Barney of Rhode Island, the world evangelist, and superintendent of prison visitation of the W.C.T.U. for the world, spoke of the utter folly of using fermented wines in the sacrament because men who had freshly signed the pledge frequently took the sacrament, and the very smell of the liquor was like the waves of hell fire to them, and undid all the work of his conversion.

Mrs. S. G. E. McKee, gave an epitome of the prohibition situation throughout the civilized world, showing the large decrease in the number of licenses in Ontario and the number of municipalities that have adopted local prohibition. She predicted that in 30 years the bar would be a thing of the past in Ontario. She emphasized the wisdom of educating the children in the schools to the danger of the liquor habit.

ECONOMY IS NEEDED

In Use of Electric Power ---Council Considered Matter Last Night

There will be no relief from the shortage of electric power in Peterborough until rain comes. Although some inconvenience has been experienced there is consolation in the fact that Peterborough is better off as regards power than nearly every other city in Canada. With the exercise of economy this city should be able to pull through until rain comes and brings relief.

A conference of the Committee of the Whole Council with Mr. J. H. Larmonth, of the Peterborough Light & Power Co., Mr. W. G. Ferguson, manager of the Otonabee Power Company; J. Harris McClelland, superintendent of the Trent Valley canal, was held in the city clerk's office last night, when the power situation was considered. It was pointe out that while the water supply was low there had been no rain for months, and the very best possible was being done, and in future, until such time as the rain comes the people will have to be content. With reasonable economy everyone should be able to get a sufficient supply. At any rate this city is much better off than the other cities depending upon electrical energy.

BANK CLERK PLEADS GUILTY TO THEFTS AT CHESTERVILLE

Cornwall, Nov. 4.—D. E. Wilson, who was arrested at Brockton, Mass., by the American authorities last week, and taken to Cornwall by Provincial Detective H. Reburn, was before Police Magistrate Davis yesterday and pleaded guilty to six charges of breaking into stores and stealing therefrom in the Village of Chesterville, where for three or four months Wilson was employed in the branch of the Molson's Bank.

During the summer there were many petty burglaries in the village, but no one suspected the gentlemanly bank clerk till late in September when another bank clerk discovered that Wilson's trunk was full of pieces of cloth and a lot of gents' furnishings. When confronted by this evidence and the men he had robbed, Wilson threw up his hands, and having restored the goods, was allowed to leave town.

He went to Brockton, Mass, but returned quietly on the night of Oct. 18, and broke into two stores, carrying off about $80 worth of goods and some cash. He might never have been suspected had he not been seen and recognized getting on a train at Finch by a bank manager from Chesterville. His reappearance coincident with the burglaries aroused suspicion and led to his arrest. He was committed for trial and will come before Judge O'Reilly some day this week. The goods stolen and recovered are valued at $350.

ANOTHER NOTED Y.M.C.A. MAN SECURED FOR THE CONVENTION

Arrangements are coming along splendidly for the Y.M.C.A. Boys' Convention here on Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Another noted boys' worker has been secured to assist in the programme. He is Mr. Waite of New York city, the International Religious Work Secretary for Boys. In addition to being a successful Y.M.C.A. worker, Mr. Wait eis a noted athlete, having held several championships in the United States. The local committee were very fortunate in securing Mr. Waite fo rthe convention.

Word has been received from Hamilton, Central and East End Y.M.C.A's, Ottawa, Brantford, Port Hope and Lindsay, stating that delegations from their associations are being sent to the convention at Peterborough. Other associations have been heard from to-day.

The local boys are taking an active interest in the convention and are reminded that they should register with the boys' secretary, Mr. Evans, before Friday.

It is hoped that a large number of the boys will be on hand Saturday morning to meet the trains and give the delegates a hearty welcome.

FORMAL OPENING OF THE COLLEGIATE ON NOV. 27TH

The formal opening of the Collegiate Institute will take place on Friday evening, November 27th. That was the announcement of the special committee appointed to look afetr the arrangements at the meeting of the board of Education last evening. The delay in not having the opening earlier was due to the fact that the assembly hall was not in readiness, the seats not having arrived.

The Honorable Minister of Education, Dr. R. A. Pyne, will be here and will deliver an address. Prominent civic officials will also be invited to be present.

TAFT IS THE NEW PRESIDENT REPUBLICANS SCORE A VICTORY

Carry United States With Electoral Vote of 298---Governor Hughes is Also Victorious in New York State Despite Feeling Over Anti-Racing Policy---Taft Will Have Majority in New York City.

New York City, Nov. 4.—The outstanding features of the Presidential election are:

William H. Taft is elected President with approximately 298 votes.

Practically no change is indicated in the complexion of the National House of Representatives.

The United States Senate will retain its present Republican majority.

Governor Chas. E. Hughes has been re-elected in New York State by about 54,000 plurality.

Indiana has gone for Taft.

Bryan has apparently carried Nebraska.

Ohio returns are very slow owing to immense ballot, but Taft has carried it by a large plurality.

Judge Taft probably will receive a greater plurality in New York State than President Roosevelt did four years ago. He has exceeded Mr. Roosevelt's plurality in New Jersey and had a surprisingly big vote in Massachusetts.

The Republican pluralities fell off heavily in the middle west in a manner thoroughly surprising to the Republican managers.

Speaker Cannon has been re-elected by his usual majority.

Representative Payne of New York and Dalziel of Pennsylvania have been re-elected and the House of Representatives probably will continue under its old regime. Mr. Payne will have charge of the new tariff bill in the extra session which Mr. Taft will call immediately after March 4 next.

Missouri has returned to the "solid south" on the Presidential ticket and elected Cowherd as its governor.

The first returns received came from scattering districts in Massachusetts. The heavy pluralities indicated there for Taft seemed at once to dissipate any probability of a "landslide" for Bryan, as many Democrats had claimed, and the Republican managers at once began to put out claims of victory.

Returns from the up-country districts of New York State, where voting machines are largely used, were the next to arrive. It had been predicted for days that Erie County, including the heavy vote of Buffalo, might be taken as an index to the drift throughout the country. This proved to be the case, so far as the national ticket was concerned, Mr. Taft having a plurality of something more than 4,000 votes. Erie County surprisingly, however, gave Lieutenant-Governor Chanler a plurality of more than 3,000. The opponents of Governor Hughes were quick to claim a sweeping victory, but returns from the other large counties and cities soon changed the complexion of the returns completely.

The vote in Greater New York for Chanler was deeply disappointing to his friends, while the heavy vote for Taft, especially in the Borough of Brooklyn, completely eclipsed the most sanguine hopes of the Republicans. Governor Hughes was cut heavily up the state, but not so deeply as to imperil his election, once the drift in his favor "below the Bronx" had begun to make itself felt.

To Governor Hughes, Judge Taft said: "I thank you warmly for your congratulations and reciprocate by extending congratulations to you on carrying New York State against tremendous odds and by the wonderful campaign which you carried on. We are all indebted to you also for your aid in the national campaign."

To Representative Wm. B. McKinley, the candidate wired: "I am delighted to know that we shall have a Republican House, for that is absolutely necessary for future work."

Timothy L. Woodruff was sent an expression of gratitude, "for the great campaign which was carried on." He also expressed especial gratification at the election of Governor Hughes.

The following is the latest returns with the plurality wherever it can be estimated, and the vote which the state carries in the electoral college:

Republican—California (10); Colorado (5); Connecticut (7); Delaware (3) 3,500; Idaho (3) 20,000; Illinois (27) 170,000; Indiana (15) 18,000; Iowa (13) 30,000; Kansas (10) 20,000; Maine (6) 31,000; Maryland (8) 6,000; Massachusetts (16); Michigan (14) 100,000; Minnesota (11) 20,000; Montana (3); Nevada (3); New Hampshire (4); New Jersey (12) 80,000; New York (39); North Dakota (4) 30,000; Ohio (23); Oregon (4); Pennsylvania (34) 300,000; Rhode Island (4); South Dakota (4) 10,000; Utah (3); Vermont (4) 27,904; Washington (5); West Virginia (7) 25,000; Wisconsin (13) 75,000; Wyoming (3).

Democrat—Alabama (11); Arkansas (9); Georgia (13); Florida (5); Kentucky (13) 15,000; Louisiana (9); Missouri (18) 35,000; Mississippi (10); Nebraska (8) gain 8 to 14,000; North Carolina (12); Oklahoma (7) 40,000; South Carolina (9); Tennessee (12) normal; Texas (18); Virginia (12).

BANK TELLER IS IN TROUBLE REPORTED SHORT IN ACCOUNTS

TOWN IS ON FIRE

Disastrous Conflagration at Pembroke---Over Forty Buildings Burned.

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Nov. 4.—Fire, which broke out at Pembroke at 4 o'clock this morning starting in the works of the National Manufacturing Co., extended south to Pembroke street, burning all the principal buildings on the south of Pembroke street. The Pembroke Flour and Grist Mill and the Pressman building are a complete loss.

At 9 o'clock the fire was burning in the rear of the Mackay-Ryan Hardware Co's building.

All the telegraph wires have been burned, and consequently no further details are obtainable.

Later—A report received from Renfrew at 12 noon states that the fire at Pembroke is still burning and that forty residences have been destroyed.

Renfrew, Nov. 3.—A traveller who left Pembroke about 8 o'clock this moring says the fire started at 4.20 o'clock in the foundry at the National Manufacturing Co., spread to the Leeland House and thence towards the street leading to the dock. Crossing that it burned the building down towards the C.P.R. railway tracks and then spread up Main street as far as the National Hotel.

Catching in the wooden buildings and boat houses along the river front the fire swept back towards the Copeland House, which with the Munro brick block was destroyed. Leaping to the street it seized on th egrist mill on the west on the same side of the river. The fire is still raging.

Prominent in Farmers' Bank.

A Discrepancy of From $12,000 to $17,000 Alleged in Books of D. C. McCallum.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—The rather startling discovery of a shortage of from $12,000 to $17,000 in the accounts of the head office of the Farmers' Bank in this city has been made, and the cause is said to be unfortunate stock speculation with the bank's funds by D. Cameron McCallum, who has been with the financial institution, since its formation some few years ago. What the actual shortage is has not yet been made known, as the officials of the bank's head office are busy at work going over the teller's books and cash. So far there are discrepancies in the cash of some $12,000, and it is thought it may be some days before the management is aware of the real shortage. While the books of the bank are under inspection, the teller is still there helping the officials to straighten out the accounts which are now somewhat muddled.

That the teller has admitted speculating with the funds of the bank is evident from the fact that he has turned over to the city manager a number of stock certificates which have a market value of thousands of dollars. Mr. C. R. Hill, the city manager of the Farmers' Bank, has been constantly in the company of the teller since Monday morning, when the shortage was discovered, and has obtained some valuable information which may help the bank management to recover some of the money lost in the unfortunate stock dealings on the local market. The teller is not trying to conceal anything; in fact, he has told the management that he feels greatly relieved that the shortage has been discovered.

What action the bank will take against the official will not be determined till the general manager, Mr. W. R. Travers, returns from New York, where he went on business towards the end of last week. Mr. Travers has been summoned to the city by telegraph, and in the meantime Mr. Hill, the manager, and Mr. James G. Fitzgibbon, the chief inspector of the Farmers' Bank, are attending to the examination of the teller's cash and are expected to learn the true state of affairs before the end of the week.

It was more like a company of professionals than a cast of local amateurs that gave the first presentation of "All the Comforts of Home" at the Grand Opera House last night. The play was presented under the auspices of the Peterborough Hockey Club, and was most favorably received by the large audience in attendance. Both the piece and the cast were excellent and the combination went to make a highly satisfactory performance, and one much above the standard of amateur productions which are frequently patronized, not because of their worth but merely as an expression of sympathetic interest. Last night's presentation was one that appealed to the audience, not simply because of its local connection, but on its real merits, and it is safe to say that it would make quite a hit if given outside of town by the same cast.

Throughout the entire piece the resourceful and intelligent direction of Mr. Irving Beers, who produced the comedy here, was always in evidence. Besides instructing the company in the proper reading of their lines, he has thoroughly drilled them in the "business" of their parts, to use a theatrical word, and as a result their work individually and in concert was most praiseworthy. Mr. Beers has shown himself a director with a thorough knowledge of acting and stage technique, and was given able assistance by his stage manager, Mr. George Lynch.

MR. C. G. GRAHAM
President of Peterborough Hockey Club, under whose auspices "All the Comforts of Home" is being produced.

MR. IRVING BEERS.
Director of "All the Comforts of Home" and who played one of the leading roles last night.

THE PROTEST.

To show that a protest of the recent election here is not an afterthought we may say that an agreement was made prior to Oct. 26th between some of the officers and leaders of the local Conservative party and Mr. Burnham that in the event of a corrupt contest a protest should follow. This protest will now be made in due course. There is therefore no ground whatever for charging anybody with being actuated by mere irritation or disappointment. Corruption has got to be put down no matter which side it occurs on. It is a mere travesty of common decency, let alone civilization or religion, that bribery or corruption shall go on unchecked and uncheckable. The solid opinion of the community is behind the protestors in this business. In protesting we do not aim at trifling and unintentional infractions of the law. We are aiming at widespread and wholesale electoral debauchery. If the man with the longest purse and least scruples is to be the ideal or actual representative let us know it at once so that we may save ourselves an immense amount of useless, if honourable, endeavour. We have got so low in our moral sense now in Peterborough that men will be found to excuse the grossest corruption. While so many have been preaching that the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand, it looks as if the ancient morals of the community had been going astray. We are of the same opinion as formerly that the tempter is the ruin of the individual as of the State. We have a duty to perform and propose to perform it. The eyes of the real people are upon us.

THE BAPTIST ANNUAL.

The Ontario and Quebec Baptist convention is held this year in Ottawa. The Baptists and Disciples have have agreed to unite and are forming a basis of doctrinal and governmental union. The report on Baptist union however met a different fate. While the closing resolution moved and seconded by the opposing leaders of debate re-affirmed the desire for union nothing in that direction was accomplished. The arguments pro and con are as follows:—1 Union would mean one board of administration instead of three as at present. Missionaries who are now rivals or strangers, would be brought together to help each other. The impressiveness and strength of union is manifest. There is no need of its becoming autocratic. On the other hand the opponents of union urged 2. That the question should not be lightly considered. The old plan has worked well. The new one may mean an autocracy. Heretofore the new plan proposed has varied from year to year. There were legal aspects of the case standing in the way. The united gatherings could meet but once every three years. This view prevailed.

The total number of Baptists in Ontario and Quebec is 52,000. Financially they are strong and in giving they are said to excel. Mr. Rockefeller has given $50,000 in aid of McMaster University Medical School, a department about to be established. Mr. Frank Sanderson, Ph.D., formerly of Peterborough and now a well-known actuarial authority and pillar of Walmer Road Baptist Church, has been elected a governor of McMaster University.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

From the searching comments of our exchanges, it is manifest that there was a wholesale as well as retail use of money in the recent elections in Ontario.

J. W. Kern, in a speech at Syracuse, asserts that some preachers and colleges, influenced by gifts from rich men, condone evils as great as those which preceded the Civil War. He might have added churches also.

In the advertisement in another column calling for subscriptions to the fund for protesting Mr. Stratton's election, it will be observed that no mention is made of any desire to exclude investigation into the Conservative side of the case as well. Let us have this whole business cleared up. It will have a most beneficial effect on a riding that has long since slipped into the slough of corruption. This is the greatest step in true home missionary work undertaken in a generation in Peterborough. As Mr. Kern, now vice-president of the U.S., observed in one of his recent speeches, it was appalling to note the excuses put forward for the grossest corruption by alleged respectable citizens. We probably all need a toning up.

THESE EDITORS GO AFTER EACH OTHER

Choice Bouquets Hurled by Editorial Managers of Two Nova Scotia Papers.

Many Review readers, no doubt, recall in Pickwick Papers the amusing editorial fight between the editors of the Eatanswill Gazette and the Eatanswill Independent.

To show that fiction is not stranger than reality we append a recent editorial from the Amherst, Nova Scotia, News:

"If our readers will pardon our slang. We wish to remark that the Amherst Times gave it to us on the neck last night.

"Disreputable, despicable, low, dirty, villainous, were some of the choice brick bats that were hurled at our heads. No wonder that we feel down and out, but the Times might have spared us its last crushing remark that "nothing better than a grunt can be expected from a pig. Now, we admit right off the bat, that we are not pretty, we never expect to capture a red ribbon at a beauty show, but we leave it to our readers to the intelligent public at large, to pass judgment as to whether the Editor of the Times does not approach closer to the "Hog" line than the small, mild-mannered diminutive little individual that edits the News.

"If before he had called us a "pig" he had taken one glance in a mirror at his now well rounded proportions, and general physical structure, he would have at once concluded that the simile so far as the News Editor was concerned was not very apt, and would be more applicable to himself than to us.

"We feel quite convinced that if the Times Editor was entered as an exhibit in the "Hog" department of the Maritime Winter Fair that he would stand an excellent chance of capturing one of the prizes.

"Nature has amply endowed him with many of the qualities of a good 'Porker,' he revels in mush and dirt, and seems to thrive on a poisoned atmosphere. We know that after a brief reflection he will agree with us, and that when he desires to sit upon us that he will select some other animal for his comparison."

Now will the Editor of the Amherst Times be good.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rambling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

CUSTOMS RETURNS ARE NO BETTER

But Improvement is Hoped for as Result of Western Harvest.

Ottawa, Nov. 4.—The customs revenue of the Dominion does not show much signs of improvement as yet, though it is confidently expected that the present month will find a very considerable revival in business as a consequence of the large amount of money which is finding circulation in the west, as a result of the harvest.

The customs receipts for October were $4,316,473, as against $4,930,031 in October of last year, a decrease of $613,558.

For the seven months the receipts were $27,179,191, a decrease of $9,163,575.

OF INTEREST

THE LOVE LETTERS OF MRS. CARLYLE.

I have great pleasure in announcing that the Love Letters of Mrs. Carlyle are to be published at last. In ordinary circumstances nothing could be more deplorable than the publication of love letters, but the case of the Carlyles is so peculiar that the whole truth needs to be told. I am fully convinced that the letters will confirm those who believe that the marriage of the Carlyles was a genuine love marriage on both sides, and that it continued to the end. Mr. John Lane will issue the letters some time next year.

"THE MAKING OF CARLYLE."

There is literally no end to the publication of books about the Carlyles. I have received "The Making of Carlyle, an Experiment in Biographical Explication," by R. S. Craig, published by Mr. Eveleigh Nash. Mr. Craig has laboriously traversed the materials, and he is fair-minded. Many of our writers on Carlyle have not been fair-minded. But in reality he has very little to say. What he says rightly has been said before and by no one so well as Mrs. Oliphant. Some things he appears to say wrongly. For example, he assumes that the poor little estate at Craigenputtock, left by Jane Welsh's father to his daughter, was all that Dr. Welsh possessed. He argues that in this way Mrs. Welsh was entitled to one-third at least of the income derivable from Craigenputtock. Then he complains that Carlyle, when in pecuniary difficulties did not borrow from his mother-in-law. "At Craigenputtock we shall find that he did not accept a small loan from Jeffrey, promptly and proudly paid within a year or so, where it would have been kinder and nobler of his wife to have forced him to have recourse to the ever-generous Mrs. Welsh. The Carlyles were a peculiar pair, and it is never to be forgotten that Mrs. Carlyle was always legaly and morally entitled to money help from her father's estate and from her mother, which she refused to accept, even in their hardest struggles. It was unkind pride of no very creditable character which prevented Mrs. Carlyle from accepting her own money, because it had passed through the hands of her mother!" I doubt very much whether Dr. Welsh left his wife penniless. It is very unlikely. But if he had, and it was true, as Mr. Craig says, that on the revenue derivable from Craigenputtock, Mrs. Welsh depended for all her income it is most likely that she should have been able to lend £100. Alexander Carlyle lost money upon the farm, £300 at least, I think. Did Mrs. Welsh receive her rents regularly? It is not likely, and even if she had, the rent appears to have been less than £200 a year. Carlyle, it must be remembered, gave great help to his brother John, and to others of his family. I apologise for such a discussion as this, but Mr. Craig seems to be quite wrong. Another statement of his appears equally mistaken. Mr. Craig says: "From a passage in the 'Reminiscences of Jane Welsh Carlyle' it would appear that for some years after her marriage Mrs. Carlyle persisted in signing herself by her maiden name. The passage in question may be found on page 128 of Froude's edition, and is as follows:—'From her my Jeannie was called "Jane Baillie Welsh" at the time of our marriage, but after a good few years when she took in singing, "Jane Welsh Carlyle," in which I never hindered her, she dropped the "Baillie," I suppose as too long.' Is it necessary to think that Mrs. Carlyle after she was married signed with her maiden name? She used to sign Jane Carlyle, and afterwards took to signing Jane Welsh Carlyle, though some of her more affectionate letters are simply Jane Carlyle. Did she sign Jane Baillie Welsh Carlyle at one time? It is a trivial point. The representation of Jeffrey's relation to Carlyle appears to me inadequate. There is little doubt that Mrs. Carlyle was the attraction. Jeffrey was an old flirt. Whether he had any genuine appreciation of Carlyle may well be doubted by those who read his review of "Wilhelm Meister." It is hardly fair to blame Jeffrey for not appointing Carlyle to what Mr. Craig calls a "small astronomical post." The position was of more importance than Mr. Craig thinks, and it is impossible to deny that Carlyle had not the necessary qualifications, though, of course, he could have acquired them."—British Weekly.

The unprecedented welcome of the American battleship fleet in Japan is heartily returned by an immediate and almost universal appreciation upon the part of the American press. It will be remembered that when the fleet was first dispatched upon its world circling tour, the editorial writers were at pens points as to the advisability of what many considered a thinly-veiled threat to Japan. The constant reiteration from part of the press of the belief that the guiding mascot of the fleet was the Dove of Peace was met by others with the poignant statement that never before had this sacred bird's feathers bristled so ominously. The graciousness and eagerness of the Japanese welcome, however, seem to have blunted even the sharpest of the editorial quills.

The picture of ten thousand Japanese school children singing "Hail Columbia, Happy Land," in English, of the gorgeous marching pageants in which 50,000 of the populace participated, of the unbroken series of luncheons, dinners, and balls, and of the unprecedented setting aside of court etiquette and formality by the Mikado and Empress, have duly emphasized the fact that the final outcome of the cruise is a gigantic and wildly enthusiastic "Frolic."

A picturesque and unusual instance of this international comradery was featured in a scene on board the battleship Mikasa during a reception of the American naval officers. To quote from the New York Post:

"Toward the close of the reception, at a collation on the after deck of the battleship, Captain Okada drank the health of Ambassador O'Brien. Then followed a demonstration that will be long remembered by the Americans. The Japanese admirals and captains raised Ambassador O'Brien on their shoulders and marched around the deck with him, everybody on board wildly cheering. The same performance was repeated with Rear-Admiral Sperry and each of the other American admirals present."

"There is no parallel in history that we recall to the reception of the fleet in Japanese waters," remarks the New York Times. "The most wonderful greeting ever given foreigners by the Japanese," says the Philadelphia Ledger, while such epithets as "marvelous demonstration of sincere cordiality," "one of the finest things of all history," "most impressive demonstration of international amity," abound.

The natural disposition to discuss the probable effect of this visit and reception upon future international relations having to do with commercial and political affairs on the Pacific between the United States and Japan is apparent. The New York Tribune comments thus;

"Japan and America are, and are likely to remain for a long time, the chief,—we might say the only important—naval Powers in the Pacific. It is natural therefore, that each should be curious to measure in friendly observations the potency of the other. The result will be an increase of mutual good understanding and esteem. The Japanese Emperor's rescript emulates the frequent utterances of the American President in the earnest desire for lasting peace among all nations and there is reason to expect that what the Japanese have courteously called 'American week,' if it does not, as some extra-enthusiastic Japanese are saying mark a new era in the relations of the two Powers, will at least mark a gratifying confirmation of the cordial relationship which for half a century has existed between them, and will put a final end to the injudicious hints of friction and conflict, which have been intermitently put forth."

BACKACHE IS THE DANGER SIGNAL

This Simple Home Mixture Said to Prevent Serious Kidney Trouble

More people succumb each year to some form of kidney trouble than from any other cause. The slightest form of kidney derangement often develops into Bright's kidney disease, diabetes or dropsy. When either of these disease are suspected the sufferer should at once seek the best medical attention possible. Consult only a good, first-class physician.

There are many of the lesser symptoms of kidney trouble which can be treated at home is stated by a well-known authority. For some of these such as backache, pain in the region of the kidneys, weak bladder, frequency (especially at night), painful scalding and other urinary troubles, try the following simple home remedy: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple ingredients are harmless and can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them by shaking well in a bottle. The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and again at bedtime.

There is no more effective remedy known to relieve all forms of rheumatism, because it acts directly upon the kidneys and blood. It cleans the clogged up pores in the kidneys so they can filter and strain from the blood the poisonous uric acid and waste matter which if not eliminated remain in the blood, decompose and settle about the joints and muscular tissues, causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

Backache is nature's signal notifying the sufferer that the kidneys are not acting properly. "Take care of your kidneys," is now the physician's advice to his patients.

Cheese and Germs.

The microbe population of a twelve ounce piece of cheese has been estimated at 5,000,000,000.

The Tavernier Pearl.

The largest price ever asked and paid for a single pearl was $550,000 which was the value of the great Tavernier pearl. It is the largest and most perfect gem of its kind known. It is exactly two inches in length and oval shaped.

Pillars of Sand.

The deserts of Arabia are specially remarkable for their pillars of sand which are raised by whirlwinds and have a very close resemblance in their appearance to waterspouts.

Martyrs of Free Trade.

London, Nov. 3.—The Daily Express deals with the problem of the unemployed and denies that protected countries suffer as badly as free trade Britain suffers when times are hard.

"The pitiful unemployed processions in our streets are," it argues, "the condemnation of Cobdenism. Men who might be useful and happy mechanics are demoralised into hopeless casual laborers, each month less capable of any real work. They are the victims of an antediluvian theory—the martyrs of free trade."

Chorus of the Campers.

Camp, camp, camp; the boys are camping—
Camping where the poison trailers climb,
And they'll all come back to town
Insect peppered, blistered brown,
But there's naught like camping in the good old summer time.

WESTERN FAMILIES IN NEED OF ASSISTANCE FOR WINTER

Former Peterborough Man in Saskatchewan Writes Letter to Secretary of King's Daughters Here

Apparently there are many people in the Canadian Northwest who will need assistance to carry them through the coming winter. The secretary of the King's Daughters in Peterborough has received a letter from a gentleman in Saskatchewan who states that contributions of clothing, etc., would be greatly appreciated by many people in the part of the country where he resides. As the King's Daughters have all they can do to look after their charitable work here during the winter they are hardly in a position to render assistance to those in the West. Perhaps some other organization in the city will take up the work which is outlined in the letter received which is as follows:

Slager, Sask., Oct. 28.

Kind Friend—I hope you will pardon this liberty I am taking of writing you. I am a reader of the Review newspaper, and I read that you were secretary of the King's Daughters, and, being a resident of Peterborough for eight years, I knew of the good work that the King's Daughters do. There are a number of English families who came out to this part of the west, and they have very little clothing to face the winter with, and there is no work for a man here in the winter months. This place is thirty-two miles from any town. They are all homesteaders out here, and as you probably know you can't get any returns from the land for more than a year. It has got to be broken first, so that leaves a family dependent upon what the father can earn, so I thought some of you ladies might have cast-off clothing, any kind of which would be greatly appreciated by the people here. Bedding of any kind would also be appreciated. The winter is so very severe here, sometimes as low as 65 below zero, so it takes something to keep out that cold. These are all English people and deserve to be helped; good workers, temperate, but this country is overrun with men, and they all cannot secure work. So now, kind lady, if you wish to help a few poor people in the way of some clothing, I am sure God's blessing will ever be yours, as these people are in great need of clothing.

Hoping you can help some, be it ever so little, it will be appreciated. If you can send anything, send to my address. I will distribute them and send letters back to you from the people who get them. My address is Slager Post Office, Saskatchewan, N. W. T. (Halbrite Town).

PRINCIPAL OF COLLEGIATE SPEAKS TO SCHOOL BOARD

States That His Assistants Are the Best of Any School in the Province—Cadets Will be Inspected on Friday—Suggests That Bugles and Drums be Purchased for the Corps.

At the meeting of the Board of Education last evening Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, the new principal of the Collegiate Institute, at the request of the members, made a few remarks in reference to the school.

In beginning Mr. Kenner thanked the Board for the honor of making him principal. He stated that his assistants, so far as scholastic training and teaching power was concerned, were the best in any school in the province. He therefore could see no reason why good work should not be done.

Mr. Kenner, in speaking of the Collegiate lawn, said that the workmen on the armouries and the public in general were making it a common thoroughfare. On Friday the Collegiate Cadets, which was the largest cadet corps in the province, will be inspected at Riverside Park by the district commanding officer from Kingston. The boys had been well trained under the capable tutorship of Mr. J. E. Hodgson, assisted by Mr. R. N. Merritt. Mr. Kenner suggested to the Board that the government grant of fifty dollars for the cadet corps be given for the purpose of purchasing a few bugles and drums.

The principal invited the members of the Board to be present at the inspection.

CLOSING MEETING OF THE PETERBOROUGH CHEESE BOARD WAS HELD THIS MORNING

There was the largest attendance of the season at the closing meeting this morning of the Peterborough Cheese Board. Two thousand six hundred and one cheese were boarded, which amount is very satisfactory for the last meeting. All the factories sold but Killarney and Lang, and they turned down Mr. Gillespie's offer of 12 1-4 cents.

President John Coughlan occupied the chair, and the buyers in attendance were Messrs. Fitzgerald, Gillespie, Whitton, Cook, Weir, Morton, Watkin, Riddell, Gunn and Longlois.

The bidding was opened at 11 1-2 cents by Mr. Whitton, and was raised to 12 by Mr. Watkin. Mr. Fitzgerald made it 12 1-6, Mr. Gillespie 12 1-8, Mr. Fitzgerald 12 3-16, Mr. Watkin 12 1-43, Mr. Cook 12 5-16, and Mr. Martin 12 3-8, which was high and took Keene, Shearer, Warsaw, Myrtle, Bensport, Central Smith. At 12 3-8 Cook took Crown, Westwood, Villiers, Ormonde, Norwood, Brickley.

Mr. Watkin at 12 5-16 selected Warminster, Lakefield, Pine Grove, Young's Point and Trewern.

Mr. Cook bid 12 1-4 and got Oakdale, Fleetwood, Cavanville, East Emily. Selwyyn refused his offer.

At 12 1-4 Mr. Gillespie selected Maple Leaf, Selwyn, Daisy D., Otonabee Union, King Edward, Cedarville and Fleetwood.

Mr. Gillespie bid 12 1-4 for the balance of the board, and named East Emily, Cavanville, North Dummer and Fraserville. Killarney and Lang refused, and as no further bidding was done remained unsold. They were the only two factories on the board that did not sell.

At the conclusion of the meeting votes of thanks were tendered to the Bank of Montreal, the President of the board and the press.

The meetings throughout the year have been most harmonious and satisfactory.

REPORT OF FIRE CHIEF'S INSPECTION

Of the City Public Schools Read at School Board Meeting Last Night.

At the Board of Education last evening a report from Fire Chief W. A. Howard, on his official inspection of the public schools of the city was read

The report is as follows;

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education;

Gentlemen,—

I beg leave to advise your honorable body that on the 22th ult. I made a careful inspection of the public schools of this city, accompanied by His Worship Mayor Rush, Ald. W. J. Johnston, Mr. A. Mowatt, inspector of public schools, Mr. Robert Fair, Chairman of the Board of Education and Mr. VanWinkle, of the Fire Underwriters Association and submit herewith a report of the inspection.

At each of the schools, an alarm of fire was sounded, the children marched out in a remarkably short time, and I consider the principals and teachers of the public schools should be commented for the efficient way in which the fire drill is conducted.

The respective schools were cleared in the following time:

Central school with 400 scholars, 48 seconds.

Old Collegiate school 130 scholars, 45 seconds

East City school, 225 scholars, 35 seconds.

Queen Alexandra, 250 scholars, 38 seconds.

Park Street school, 180 scholars, 45 seconds.

South Central, 450 scholars, 57 seconds.

King Edward School, 325 scholars, 52 seconds.

The records in the three other city schools where I have been employed show the best time made to be 51 seconds for three hundred scholars. I am creditably informed that each of the schools have fire drill once a week. This accounts for a saving of from ten to twenty seconds, in time over other cities.

In some of your schools we notice the doors open inwards. This is contrary to law, and in many instances has proved dangerous; and therefore I would respectfully request the gentlemen of the Board to take immediate action and have the doors altered so that in every case they will open outward.

In two of the schools we found the fastenings on the outer doors did not work properly. This should also be attended to at once.

I find the smoke pipes leading from the furnace in all the schools have been constructed the regulation distance from the joists, thereby lessening the danger of fire.

We also observed the absence of combustible rubbish in the basement of the buildings, showing the precaution the janitors have taken in this matter.

The alterations I have suggested in this report will not entail the expenditure of large sums of money, but on the contrary can be made with very little expense.

I trust the gentlemen of the Board will accept the suggestions I have offered in the spirit in which they are given, and that you with me, will realize the responsibility that we are compelled to assume; and do everything in your power to safeguard the lives of the children entrusted to your care.

Mr. VanWinkle will submit his report of the electric wiring.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

I have the honor to be,
Your obedient servant,
W. A. HOWARD,
Chief Fire Dept.

Upon motion the report was received, but no action taken.

DEER REPORTED VERY PLENTIFUL

Reports have already been received in town from the back woods to the effect that deer this year are very plentiful, and that the hunters are looking forward to making a record-breaking hunt this year. Last season some hunters fared very badly, and left the forests without even a sight of the antlered tribe. The first glimpse they had of a deer was on reaching the railroad station to see piled high on the baggage trucks what other men had been fortunate enough in pulling down.—Lindsay Free Press.

DESCRIBED AS MARVELLOUS

The Laymen's Missionary Movement--General Secretary's Report

Toronto, Nov. 2—The most marvellous missionary campaign that has been seen in any generation as it solves potentially the problem for all nations, was the terse and emphatic way in which Mr J Campbell White, of New York, general secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement describes his impression of the work under the direction of that movement during the first year of its operation in Canada.

"The most remarkable seven weeks that I have had," was Mr. White's characterization of the campaign. Canada had, he said, adopted a national missionary policy. Twenty-four cities with 210,000 of the communicant church members, had given an unqualified affirmative answer to the question, "Shall Canada evangelize her share of the world." She was the first nation in history to do so and he has no doubt that her attitude on this matter would lead to be the inspiration that would lead every other nation in the world to do the same, up to their ability.

That the churches of Canada would do their share was Mr. White's firm belief. Only a few of the smaller and more conservative places were content to undertake only the aim of $5 per member. None would dare to promise less. The general average promised was $7.38 per member. While four and a half millions were required and only about one-third was given before of the remaining three million dollars the cities visited had undertaken just over one million dollars and they represented just 23 per cent of the membership. Three cities of the West had gone even one better than Toronto's and Montreal's guarantee last year, of $8.33 per member. Vancouver reached $8.62 and Calgary $8.88 and Winnipeg an even $10 per member. The financial undertaking was surely going to be realized.

Mr. White was surprised, he said, at the number of men who were willing to spend four or five hours each day for two days in conference about this work. From fifty to two hundred were thus in each place trained in these institutes.

Rev. Canon Tucker said that the recent campaign impressed him as most hopeful because the missionary undertaking was presented and was realized as a practicable thing, and no longer the indefinite and hopeless task it had been thought to be. The force of the united appeal had been exceedingly strong and had everywhere elicited the heartiest support. The fact that the Baptists have already accomplished the task for their denomination reaching not merely the $5 per member aimed at but $10, $15 or $20 even in some places $30 per member, was an encouragement and incentive to all other churches.

Toronto, Nov. 2—The last of a series of 26 Laymen's Missionary Movement conference held throughout Canada commenced at the St. James' Square Presbyterian church this afternoon, and continues tomorrow, winding up with a banquet in Excelsior rink tomorrow night at which one thousand men will be present. Hon. S. H. Blake, J Campbell White, Rev. Dr. Sandier and others spoke at this afternoon's and tonight's meetings, both of which were enthusiastic and attended by crowds.

Miss Amy L. Doty, of London, Directress of S.S. Entertainments, is training the children of Charlotte Street S.S. for an entertainment, to be given on the evening of Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 9th. Admission 15c and 25c. 4d

MASQUERADE PARTY HELD AT THE Y.W.C.A.

The masquerade party held at the Y.W.C.A. last night, was a great success and exceeded all expectations. A large number were present and the character representations were very fine. The young lady representing Topsy afforded much amusement, and was recognized as the best and consequently was awarded the prize. Those present had a most enjoyable time, playing old fashioned games, such as gathering nuts in May, musical chair, etc. Refreshments were served and were much appreciated.

A feature of the affair was that the invitations were sent out in verse and the acceptance was to be in rhyme also. For the best answer received, a prize was offered, and this was awarded to Miss Chambers.

Extra-Great News From The Carpet Department!

AN ELEVEN DAYS' SALE OF SHORT ENDS

COMMENCING TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3rd AND CLOSING SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14th, at 9:30 O'CLOCK, P. M.

Coming events cast their shadows before. We have been asked many times recently, "Why don't you have a sale in "Carpets?" But, sales cannot materialize simply on request. There must be stronger reasons than that. But now the Golden Opportunity is here and great will be the Saving for those who take advantage of it.

The Carpet Department has informed us that it is impossible to secure duplicates of many lots now in stock. Manufacturers seem to like to change patterns and colorings, simply for the sake of having something new. We have to keep step, so the remaining odd lots of Carpets must go, and a very vigorous reduction in the price is the motive power. So we put these patterns into a special sale, because it is expected that special prices encourage special buying, and we are quite sure that those who have single rooms or even an occasional suite to carpet, can find ample selection in this showing.

REPORT OF SUPERVISION COMMITTEE.

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education:

Gentlemen,—Your committee beg to report that on going into the cost of furnishing and equipping the Domestic Science room with Miss Steinhoff, they found that it would require a much larger expenditure than they anticipated. In view of this fact your committee communicated with the Department, and they sent Inspector Leake here on the 15th ultimo.

Your committee passed the following resolution, and forwarded the same to the Department:

"That in view of the misunderstanding that has arisen in reference to the cost of Domestic Science Equipment, and taking into consideration the amount the Board has already spent in connection with observation schools, be it resolved that this Board ask the Department to pay 20 per cent. of the cost each year for five years, such equipment not to cost any more than the equipment placed in the Normal School."

Your Committee have had an answer from the Honorable, the Minister of Education, stating that the Department would agree to this proposition and pay 20 per cent. of the cost each year for five years.

Your Committee consider this a highly satisfactory arrangement and have much pleasure in recommending its adoption.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. CRANE,
Chairman.

Upon motion of Messrs. Crane and Hill it was adopted.

JANITOR'S SALARY INCREASED.

It was moved by Messrs. Hill and Crane that the salary of the janitor of the Collegiate Institute be fixed on the basis of 15 occupied class rooms as per schedule dating from Nov. 1st, 1908, this to include the care of lawn and school grounds.—Carried.

It was moved by Mr. W. S. Robinson, and seconded by Mr. W. F. Nelson, that the secretary be instructed to have the lights and metre installed in the Collegiate Institute.—Carried.

It was moved by Mr. D. W. Dumble, and seconded by Mr. W. F. Nelson, that the outside door leading to the basement be made at the South Central School.—Carried.

WILL PLAY THE T. C. S. RUGBYISTS

P. C. I. Team Will Go to Port Hope on Saturday

The PCI. rugby team will go to Port Hope on saturday where they will play the Trinity College school aggregation. The TCS rugbyists recently won the inter-school league and the local boys will be up against a hard proposition. However, they are practising every day and are in the pink of condition. They feel confident of defeating the crack T.C.S. team.

EDMUNDS IS TO MEET TREMBLAY

Celebrated Lightweight Champion and Pocket Hercules will be Matched--Tremblay to Get Two Falls in Hour.

Artie Edmunds, the well-known Toronto wrestler and boxer, is in line for a crack at Eugene Tremblay, of Montreal, the lightweight wrestling champion of the world. Edmunds has been after Tremblay off and on for a year, but never could get a chance at him, because the Montrealer would not come down to the lightweight limit of 135 pounds for a bout. Edmunds challenged him again this fall, and the following reply from George Kennedy, the Montreal man, who handles Tremblay, Westergaarde, Maupas, Cazeau, and other wrestlers, explains itself;

"Montreal, Oct. 31, 1908.

"Dear Sir,—In reference to your challenge to Eugene Tremblay, I must say that the dates here in Montreal are all filled up for some time to come, but as you say you are lighter than Tremblay and in order to even up the match with you, I would be willing to bet any part of five hundred dollars, that Eugene Tremblay, champion lightweight of the world, and holder of the Police Gazette belt, would be willing to undertake to throw you two falls in one hour. If you could get some Toronto club to furnish a suitable purse, and for the winner to take all, I would bring Tremblay up to Toronto. Let me hear from you at your earliest. Yours truly.

GEORGE KENNEDY.

Edmunds has accepted the challenge, and the Riverdale Athletic Club will pull the bout off in two weeks' time.

Edmunds has posted $200 as a side bet, and the purse offered by the club will be divided 75 and 25. The match looks like a good one for Edmunds as Tremblay is anywhere under even the welterweight limit. The Toronto boy is a good defence wrestler, and is always pitted against heavier men than himself. He will make Tremblay step lively all the way, for he never contents himself with strictly defence work in a handicap bout.

Sidney Burke, of Blenheim, was drowned from his boat while duck hunting near Erieau.

HOCKEY

The Ottawa hockey club team is going to be so changed around this season, that old time rivals will hardly recognize it as the "Old Guard" that fought so many hard fights for the silverware known as the Stanley Cup. Alf. Smith, Harvey Pulford, "Rat" Westwick and Percy Lesueur, will be among the missing, and it is hardly likely that Tom Phillips will be on the job. The only two men whom the club figure on as sure are Marty Walsh and Fred Taylor. Strings are out for a number of players, including Rankin, who played with Stratford last season. He is said to be one of the fastest men in the game to-day. Vair, of Renfrew, will also be tried out.

W. A. HOAGLAND

World's Champion Walker, who will meet Prof. Genno and other skaters in Relay Handicap at Auditorium Roller Rink on Thursday and Friday Evenings, Nov. 5th and 6th.

BASKETBALL

This game has taken quite a firm hold in Canadian Y. M. C. A. athletics, and promises to be more popular than ever in Peterborough this winter. The two most important local games so far this year will be played on Saturday night between the Tigers and Rustlers and the Maple Leafs and Brownies.

LETTER FROM BURNS

Los Angeles, Ca., Nov. 2.—The heart of the Rialto was set athrob last evening through the receipt of a letter by Baron Long, manager of the Jeffries Athletic club, from the redoubtable Tommy Burns, now in course of training at Sydney, Australia, for the defence of his world's heavyweight title against Jack Johnson. The fight is soon to take place at Sydney, New South Wales. The whole Australian commonwealth is convulsed over the coming battle. In point of receipts and in the representative character and size of the attendance the coming fight between Burns and Johnson will eclipse any heavyweight struggle hitherto known in the land of the kangaroo.

Two months ago the American matchmakers scouted the idea of a $30,000 purse for Johnson and Burns. It was thought that nowhere outside of America could be realized such a huge tribute to the prize ring. However, it is now certain that the two American gladiators will draw at the least $3,000.

Burns writes interestingly just at the outset of his training. Here is the letter;

"Red Bull Inn, Little Tyne,
"Sydney, N.S.W., Sept. 10, 1908.
"Mr. Baron Long, Jeffries Athletic Club, Los Angeles, U.S.A.;

"My Dear Long,—Just returned from town, where, after a great search, I located an American sporting goods house. There I arrayed myself in a good old American sweater and hill-climbing boots. On November 12th I start in to work for my fight with Johnson. It may surprise you to know that I have grown since leaving California. I am now scaling at about 210, and expect to climb through the ropes at about 196 pounds. You will see the black man won't have much on me.

"Now as to the fight. The promoters are getting off well when they guarantee us $30,000, for the advance sale is one of the leading social athletic clubs will run into several thousand dollars. To-night I hear that there is $35,000 in sight. Talk about a fight-crazy country—this surely is the place.

"Now as I have always said, I expect to beat Johnson. It's going to be Nelson and Gans all over again. Johnson has never had a man who could go up to him, and I am sure when he finds someone forcing him he is going to back up. I believe I have the strength and the speed to keep ace with Johnson and to outgame him at the end.

"The papers are even now full of the fight. Fighting has received a great boom all over Australia as a result of this match. Win or lose, I shall make a couple of good fights in America, and an extended theatrical appearance. Then will come the big retirement.

"In my training I am taking a special electrical treatment in order to help me take off a ton or so of fat and blubber. I am getting fat and plainly see the husk of my usefulness in the ring to a few years. This is a tough thing to say, but I can say it without taking a long breath, inasmuch as I have had 'mine' in plenty and feel well able to weather the future storms of life.

"I want to tell you about Dunleavy, a lightweight here. He is as fast as any boy I ever saw, and can hit as hard as Kid Lavigne in his prime. The Australian people say he is a better man than Young Griffo ever hoped to be, and he will bring back the title from America.

"The Towns-Barry sculling race, which will be rowed shortly on the Thames, in England, is exciting great interest here. The people are backing Towns to retain the championship for almost a million pounds. In Barry he meets a grand sculler and a fine fellow. I met him in England.

"Recent American papers tell me of the Jeffries Athletic club. I have the kindliest recollection of Los Angeles, and hope to have one more fight before your people. It will be a sweet thing for me when I can hear you all say, Tommy Burns was surely underrated. Yours in the game,

"TOMMY BURNS."

"P.S.—I expect to return to California within a year, and may break a bottle with you by Washington's Birthday."

BASKETBALL

The Y.M.C.A. business boys played off two games of basketball last night, both games being well contested. Halpeny's team won from M. Laing's by a score of 6—2.

The second game between Hamilton's and McWilliam's teams resulted in a score of 10—2 in favor of Hamwell's.

PROF. GENNO

One of the speediest roller skaters in the business, who is one of the relay team to skate against Hoagland in Handicap Race on November 5th and 6th.

RUNNING

Quebec, November 3—The judges in Saturday's road race have ruled out the winner who entered under the name of Boland from all prizes giving the first prize to the second man, Robilliard, of the National without any question.

The judges are certain that he is not the party whom he represented himself to be.

Special efforts are being made to identify the runner for although he is disqualified that does not do away with the fact that hundreds of dollars were bet especially by Montreal parties on the fact of his coming in first. For this reason the Federation officers who have always objected greatly on betting on harrier-races are doing their best to make an example.

The method for those in the plot was to bet "that no Montrealer would come in first. The money was put in envelopes upon which the conditions of the bet were stated with these words added;

"And all protests waived."

So it seems that they were pretty certain of a protest.

ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME THE BEST

The setting of the production was appropriate and in good taste, and Stage Manager Stinson, of the Grand and his staff are to be complimented on the attractive arrangement they made of the furnishings at their disposal.

The story of "All the Comforts of Home" is an interesting one, and though it has appeared before in these columns it would perhaps be well to give it again in this reference to last night's play. It is outlined in the following:—

The scene of the piece is laid in a private drawing room of a residence in one of the residential quarters of London and one Pettibone, the owner of the house, has a young wife of whom he is very jealous, without cause, and in the midst of this heat and fury suddenly takes the entire family away on a three months' trip to Venice and other places, leaving his nephew, Alfred Hastings, a young doctor, who is always broke, to take charge of the house during his absence. Pettibone gone, Alfred is man behind the gun and after rapturously surveying his new surroundings and looking at the keys to the wine cellar, which his uncle has left him, calls in a partner, Tom McDow, the funniest ever, and they both decide to turn the Pettibone mansion into a lodging house.

A crude mode of rules and regulations are drawn up by Alfred in which a condition is enacted that children and dogs must keep off the grass, and Tom McDow, a jack of all trades, puts a sign out in front of the house announcing "Lodgings to Let," with a blazing footnote to the effect that lodgers will have "All the Comforts of Home." A lodging or boarding house in that locality is surely a new thing, and in a very brief space the house is full of all sorts and conditions of men and women; country, town folk and musicians, opera singers, English dudes and dead beats, dope fiends, men with minds and men without minds.

All sorts of complications arise and the fun at once becomes fast and furious. Old Bender falls in love with the opera singer. Alfred falls in love with Bender's daughter. Tom has his troubles with the mad musician and the dope fiend upstairs. Mrs. Bender is on the war path. The officers of the law come to arrest Langhorne and the queer entanglements that follow are just the funniest ever seen amid the glare of the footlights. Things are going from bad to worse when the Pettibones return home.

Alfred Hastings, whose name is first mentioned on the programme, was portrayed by Mr. Chas. Barber and he was seen to great advantage in the role. Mr. Barber had his part studied splendidly and his voice and stage mannerisms fitted the roll to a nicety. The irresistible George Lynch appeared in the Irish comedy part of Tom McDow, Hasting's partner, and it is the highest praise to say that Mr. Lynch was the same first class comedian that he always has proved to be when seen in other performances. The vehicle gave him plenty of opportunity to display his well known fun making qualities and he was responsible for a large measure of the laughter.

As Theodore Bender, a retired merchant, Mr. Irving Beers excelled himself. Mr. Beers is a character actor of marked ability and his work was above criticism. In the matter of humorous and dramatic expression he was an outstanding figure in the play.

Mrs. J. N. Barber in the co-part to Mr Beers, Mrs. Bender, gave ample evidence of having appeared for several seasons with professional companies and acted with noticeable confidence and naturalness of deportment. As the ill-tempered and suspicious Mrs. Bender, she was unusually good and was a fortunate selection for that exacting character.

Miss Pearl Morgan showed the true qualities of an actress in the role of Fifi Aritanski, the flighty singer of the Opera Comique. Her splendid interpretation of the part won her the appreciation of the entire audience. Her appearances on the stage were the signals for applause.

Dabney was not only a mad, but a very irritable, highly strung and altogether unreasonable and hard-to-get-along-with musician. Mr. Chris Graham in this difficult comedy character study, essayed the role to perfection. His actions and makeup combined with his pitch of voice which was the very keynote nervous fear supplied an hilarious comedy element, without which the play would have been incomplete.

During his appearances which were in the first act, and for part of remarkably good as Mr. Pettibone, an old man with a young wife, and who was in a perpetual state of ferment and suspicion. Mr. Johnston has a good speaking voice and to this is added a dramatic ability of considerable breadth.

The other characters in the production were as given in the programme at the commencement of this review, and were all cleverly taken.

Everything considered, "All the Comforts of Home" may be spoken of as the most successful comedy work put on in Peterborough. It will be repeated to-night and deserves a capacity house which doubtless will greet it.

Previous to the play itself will be a beautiful playlet adapted from Richard Harding Davis' "Vanbibber and Others," and entitled "The Littlest Girl." The cast chosen to present it is small and select and made up as follows:

Mr. Struthers—Mr. Irving Beers.
Mr. Vanbibber—Mr. Chas. Barber.
Davenport—Mr. Mort Johnston.
Miss Eleanor Gardner as "The Littlest Girl."

At last night's performance of the play Miss Lavina Hallihan sang "Tonight" with charming expression and in fine voice. She was enthusiastically recalled and gave a beautiful rendition of "The Last Rose of Summer."

Miss Pearl Morgan sang that pretty light classic "The Carnival," and had to respond to an encore.

Messrs. A. E. Cutting and Mr. Johnston gave a rollicking duet, "The Fisherman," to which an encore was also demanded.

These vocalists will also sing this evening.

Mr. Louis Mendel Presented With Rare Original Prints and Photo Gravures While in New York

While in New York last week Mr. Louis Mendel had the privilege of meeting many of the famous photographers and painters who reside in that city, and also of visiting their private studios. Among those he met were Gertrude Kaesebier, the greatest woman photographer in the world; Baron de Meyer, Steichen, Coburn, Stieglitz and other well-known artists.

Mr. Mendel was shown many courtesies by the artist folk of New York, and was presented with a number of original prints and photogravures, the equal of which have probably never been seen in Peterborough before. They are on exhibition in his studio, and the public is heartily invited to drop in and see them.

THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

CHAPTER XX.

I HAD plenty of time to run away. I do not know why I did not do so, but the fact stands that I remained where I was until they had finished Captain Selover. Then I took to my heels, but was soon cornered. I drew my revolver, remembered that I had emptied it in the seal cave and had time for no more coherent mental processes. A smothering weight flung itself on me against which I struggled as hard as I could, shrinking in anticipation from the thirsty plunge of the knives. However, though the weight increased until further struggle was impossible, I was not harmed and in a few moments found myself, wrists and ankles tied, beside a roaring fire. While I collected myself I heard the grate of a boat being shoved off from the cove and a few moments later made out lights aboard the Laughing Lass.

The looting party returned very shortly. Their plundering had gone only as far as liquor and arms. Thrackles let down from the cliff top a keg at the end of a line. Perdosa and the nigger each carried an armful of the 30-40 rifles. The keg was rolled to the fire and broached.

The men got drunk, wildly drunk, but not helplessly so. A flame communicated itself to them through the liquor. The ordinary characteristics of their composition sprung into sharper relief. The nigger became more sullen, Perdosa more snakelike, Pulz more viciously evil, Thrackles more brutal, while Handy Solomon, staggering from his seat to the open keg and back again, roaring fragments of a chanty, his red headgear contrasting with his smoky black hair and his swarthy hook nosed countenance—he needed no further touch.

Their evil passions were all awake, and the plan, so long indefinite, developed like a photographer's plate.

"That's one gone," said Thrackles.

"And now the diamonds," muttered Pulz.

"There's a ship upon the windward, a wreck upon the lee,
Down on the coast of the high Bar-
bare-e-e," roared Handy Solomon. "It's the best night's work we ever did. The stuff's ours. Then it's me for a big stone house in Frisco O!"

"Frisco!" sneered Pulz. "That's all you know. You ought to travel. Paris for me and a little girl to learn the language from."

"I get heem a fine caballo an' fine saddle an' fine clo's," breathed Perdosa sentimentally. "I ride and the silver jingle and the senorita look"—

"What you want, doctor?" they demanded of the silent nigger.

But the nigger only rolled his eyes and shook his head. By and by he arose and disappeared in the dusk and was no more seen.

"D— fool!" muttered Handy Solomon. "Well, here's to crime!"

He drank a deep cup of the raw rum and staggered back to his seat on the sands.

"'I am not a man-o'-war, nor a privateer,' said he.
Blow high, blow low; what care we!
'But I am a jolly pirate, and I'm sailing for my fee,'
Down on the coast of the high Bar-
bare-e-e,"

he sang. "We'll land in Valparaiso and we'll go every man his way, and we'll sink the old Laughing Lass so deep the mermaids can't find her."

Thrackles piled on more wood, and the fire leaped high.

"Let's get after 'em," said he.

"Tomorrow's jes' 's good," muttered Pulz. "Les' hav' 'nother drink."

"We'll stay here 'n see if our ol' frien' Percy don' show up," said Handy Solomon. He threw back his head and roared forth a volume of sound toward the dim stars.

"Broadside to broadside the gallant ships did lay,
Blow high, blow low; what care we!
Till the jolly man-o'-war shot the pirate's mast away,
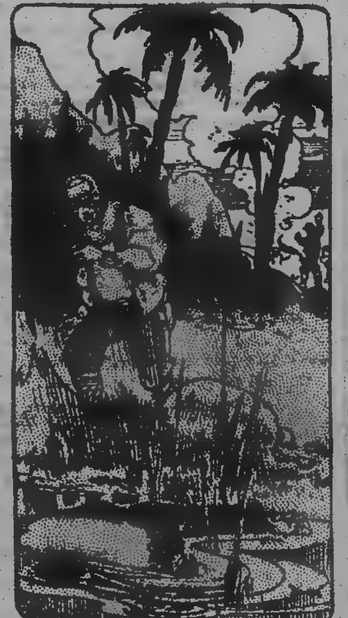
bare-e-e."

I saw near me a live coal dislodged from the fire when Thrackles had thrown on the armful of wood. An idea came to me. I hitched myself to the spark and laid across it the rope with which my wrists were tied. This, behind my back, was not easy to accomplish, and twice I burned my wrists before I succeeded. Fortunately I was at the edge of the illumination and behind the group. I turned over on my side so that my back was toward the fire. Then rapidly I cast loose my ankle lashings. Thus I was free, and selecting a moment when universal attention was turned toward the rum barrel I rolled over a sand dune, got to my hands and knees and crept away.



At the edge of the wash I could make out something prone, dim, limp.

Through the coarse grass I crept thus to the very entrance of the arroyo, then rose to my feet. In the middle distance the fire leaped red. Its glow fell intermittently on the surges rolling in. The men staggered or lay prone, either as gigantic silhouettes or, as tatterdemalions painted by the light. The keg stood solid and substantial, the hub about which reeled the orgy. At the edge of the wash I could make out something prone, dim, limp, thrown constantly in new positions of weariness as the water ebbed and flowed beneath it, now an arm thrown out, now cast back, as though Old Scrubs slept feverishly. The drunkards were getting noisy. Handy Solomon still reeled off the verses of his song. The others joined in, frightfully off the key or punctuated the performance by wild staccato yells.

"Their coffin was their ship, and their grave it was the sea,
Blow high, blow low; what care we!
And the quarter that we gave them was to sink them in the sea,
Down on the coast of the high Bar-
bare-e-e," bellowed Handy Solomon.

I turned and plunged into the cool darkness of the canyon.

CHAPTER XXI.

TEN seconds after entering the arroyo I was stumbling along in an absolute blackness. It almost seemed to me that I could reach out my hands and touch it, as one would touch a wall, or perhaps not exactly that, for a wall is hard, and this darkness was soft and yielding, in the manner of enveloping hangings. Directly above me was a narrow, jagged and irregular strip of sky with stars. I splashed in the brook, finding its waters strangely warm, rustled through the grasses, my head back, chin out, hands extended as one makes his way through a house at night. There were no sounds except the tinkle of the sulphurous stream. Successive bends in the canyon wall had shut off even the faintest echoes of the bacchanalia on the beach.

The way seemed much longer than by daylight. Already in my calculation I had traversed many times the distance, when with a jump at the heart I made out a glow ahead and in front of it the upright logs of the stockade.

To my surprise the gate was open. I ascended the gentle slope to the valley's level and stumbled over a man lying prostrate, shivering violently and moaning.

I bent over to discover whom it might be. As I did so a brilliant light seemed to fill the valley, throwing an illumination on the man at my feet. I saw it was the nigger and perceived at the same instant that he was almost beside himself with terror. His eyes rolled, his teeth chattered, his frame contracted in a strong convulsion, and the black of his complexion had faded to a washed out dirty gray, revolting to contemplate. He felt my touch and sprang to his feet, clutching me by the shoulder as a man clutching rescue.

"My Gawd!" he shivered. "Look! Dar it is again!"

He fell to pattering in a tongue unknown to me—charms, spells undoubtedly to exorcise the devils that had hold of him. I followed the direction of his gaze and myself cried out.

The doctor's laboratory stood in plain sight between the two columns of steam blown straight upward through the stillness of the evening. It seemed bursting with light. Every little crack leaked it in generous streams, while the main illumination appeared fairly to bulge the walls outward. This was in itself nothing extraordinary and indicated only the activity of those within, but while I looked an irregular patch of incandescence suddenly splashed the cliff opposite. For a single instant the very substance of the rock glowed white hot. Then from the spot a shower of spiteful flakes shot as from a pyrotechnic and the light was blotted out as suddenly as it came.

At the same moment it appeared at another point, exhibited the same phenomena, died, flashed out at still a third place, and so was repeated here and there with bewildering rapidity until the walls of the valley crackled and spat sparks. Abruptly the darkness fell. As abruptly it was broken again by a similar exhibition, only this time the fire was blue. Blue was followed by purple, purple by red. Then ensued the briefest possible pause, in which a figure moved across the bars of light escaping through the chinks of the laboratory, and then the whole valley blazed with patches of varicolored fire. It was not a reflection. It was actual physical conflagration of the solid rock in irregular areas. Some of the fire shapes were most fantastic. And with the unexpectedness of a bursting shell the surface of the ground before our feet crackled into a ghastly blue flame.

The nigger uttered a cry in his throat and disappeared. I felt a sharp breath on my neck, an ejaculation of surprise at my ear. It was startling enough to scare the soul out of a man, but I held fast and was just about to step forward when my collar was twisted tight from behind. I raised both my hands, felt steel and knew that I was in the grasp of Handy Solomon's claw.

The sailor had me foul. I did my best to twist around, to unbutton the collar, but in vain. I felt my wind leaving me; the ghastly blue light was shot with red. Distinctly I heard the man's sharp intaken breath as some new phenomenon met his eye, and his great oath as he swore.

"By the mother of God," he cried, "it's the devil!"

Then I was jerked off my feet, and the next I knew I was lying on my back, very wet, on the beach. The day was breaking, and the men, quite sober, were talking vehemently.

It was impossible to make out what they said, but as Handy Solomon and the nigger were the center of discussion I could imagine the subject. I felt very stiff and sore and hazy in my mind. My neck was lame from the dragging and my tongue dry from the choking. For some time I lay in a half torpor watching the lilac of dawn change to the rose of sunrise, utterly indifferent to everything. They had thrown me down across the first rise of the little sand dunes back of the tide sands, and from it I could at once look out over the sea full of the restless shadows of dawn and the land narrowing to the mouth of the arroyo. I remember wondering whether Captain Selover were up yet. Then with a sharp stab at the heart I remembered.

The thought was like a dash of cold water in clearing my faculties. I raised my head. Seaward a white gull had caught the first rays of the sun beyond the cliffs. Landward—I saw with a choke in my throat—a figure emerging from the arroyo.

At the sight I made a desperate attempt to move, but with the effort discovered that I was again bound. My stirring thus called Pulz's attention. Before I could look away he had followed the direction of my gaze. The discussion instantly ceased. They waited in grim silence.

I did not know what to do. Percy Darrow, carrying some sort of large book, was walking rapidly toward us. Perdosa had disappeared. Thrackles after an instant came and sat beside me and clapped his big hand over my mouth. It was horrible.

When within a hundred paces or so I could see that Darrow labored under some great excitement. His usual indifferent saunter had, as I have indicated, given way to a firm and decided step; his ironical eye glistened; his sallow cheek glowed.

"Boys," he shouted cheerfully, "the time's up. We've succeeded. We'll sail just as soon as the Lord'll let us get ready. Rustle the stuff aboard. The doctor'll be down in a short time, and we ought to be loaded by night."

Proof is inexhaustible that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures female ills and carries women safely through the Change of Life.

Mrs. Letitia Blair, Cannifton, Ont., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was sick for five years. One doctor told me it was ulceration, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor, and advised an operation. No one knows what I suffered, and the bearing down pains were terrible.

"I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"It has cured me of all my troubles, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me to pass safely through Change of Life."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Handy Solomon and Pulz laid hand on two of the rifles near by and began surreptitiously to fill their magazines. The nigger shook his knife free of the scabbard and sat with it in his left hand, concealed by his body. I could feel Thrackles' muscles stiffen. Another fifty paces and it would be no longer necessary to stop my mouth.

The thought made me desperate. I had failed as a leader of these men and I had been forced to stand by at debauching, cruel and murderous affairs, but now it is over I thank heaven the reproach cannot be made against me that at any time I counted the consequences to myself. Thrackles' hand lay heavy across my month. I bit it to the bone, and as he involuntarily snatched it away I rolled over toward the sea.

Thus for an instant I had my month free.

"Run! Run!" I shouted. "For God's sake"—

Thrackles leaped upon me and struck me heavily upon the month, then sprang for a rifle. I managed to struggle back to the dune, whence I could see.

CHAPTER XXII.

PERCY DARROW, with the keenness that always characterized his mental apprehension, had understood enough of my strangled cry. He had not hesitated nor delayed for an explanation, but had turned track and was now running as fast as his long legs would carry him back toward the opening of the ravine. My companions stood watching him, but making no attempt either to shoot or to follow. For a moment I could not understand this, then remembered the disappearance of Perdosa. My heart jumped wildly, for the Mexican had been gone quite long enough to have cut off the assistant's escape. I could not doubt that he would pick off his man at close range as soon as the fugitive should have reached the entrance to the arroyo.

There can be no question that he would have done so had not his Mexican impatience betrayed him. He shot too soon. Percy Darrow stopped in his tracks. Although we heard the bullet sing by us, for an instant we thought he was hit. Then Perdosa fired a second time, again without result. Darrow turned sharp to the left and began desperately to scale the steep cliffs.

To Be Continued.

MI-O-NA MEANS STOMACH COMFORT

Its of Special Value to Many Here in Peterborough

A notable discovery and one that appeals especially to many people in Peterborough, is the combination of stomach help in the Mi-o-na treatment. This preparation works wonders in case of indigestion or weak stomach.

It acts directly upon the walls of the stomach and bowels, strengthening and stimulating them so that they readily take care of the food that is eaten without distress or suffering.

So positive are the good effects following the use of Mi-o-na that the remedy is sold by W. Madill, druggist, corner George and Hunter streets, Peterborough, under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails to cure. A 50 cent box of Mi-o-na will do the good the stomach needs, which is simply to make it do its own good work.

During October 3,707,219 bushels of grain arrived at Kingston and was transhipped down the St. Lawrence.

Canada's customs revenue for October totalled $1,316,473 as compared with $1,930,031 for October of last year.

A REAPER RACE.

The Feat That Made William N. Whiteley Famous.

In the early days of the exploitation of various reaping machines a field demonstration, usually competitive, was a necessary occurrence. H. N. Casson in "The Romance of the Reaper" tells the following story of William N. Whiteley, "the Charlemagne of the harvest field:"

He was as tall as a sapling and as strong as a tree. As a professor in the great school of agriculture he has never been surpassed. He could outtalk, outwork and generally outwit the men who were sent against him. He was a whole exhibition in himself.

"I've seen Bill Whiteley racing his horses through the grain and leaning over with his long arms to pick the mice's nests from just in front of the knife," said an old Ohio settler.

The feat that first made Whiteley famous was performed at Jamestown, O., in 1867. His competitor was doing as good work as he was, whereupon he sprang from his seat, unhitched one horse and finished his course with a single surprised steed pulling the heavy machine.

His competitor followed suit and succeeded fully as well.

This enraged Whiteley, who at that time was as powerful as a young Hercules.

"I can pull that reaper myself!" he shouted, turning his second horse loose and yoking his big shoulders into the harness.

Such a thing had never been done before and has never been done since, but it is true that in the passion of the moment Whiteley was filled with such strength that he ran the reaper from one side of the field to the other, cutting a full swath, a deed that, had he done it in ancient Greece, would have placed him among the immortals.

That ten minutes in a horse collar made $2,000,000 for Whiteley. His antagonist, Benjamin H. Warder, was filled with admiration for Whiteley's prowess and at once proposed that they should quit fighting and work in harmony.

"Give me the right to make your reaper, and I'll pay you $5 apiece for all I can sell," said Warder.

"It's a bargain," responded Whiteley. And so there arose the first consolidation in the harvester business.

TUMULT IN THE SEA.

Terrific Force of a Marine Upheaval Off Cape Horn.

A sailing ship rounding Cape Horn was caught in a dead calm, something almost unprecedented in that stormy latitude. The sky was filmed with a light haze, and the sea was flat and lead colored. About 10 o'clock on the morning of the second day the ship began to shake violently, the masts whipped and bent like fish poles, and everything movable above and below came down with a clatter. It was like striking a rock, only the shock was less pronounced at first, but increased in violence during the thirty seconds it lasted. The sea heaved in oily swells with a strange, hoarse murmur, and it continued to be agitated after the tremors ceased.

Half an hour later fish by the thousands began to rise to the surface until it was covered with them. Forty-seven whales were counted, many cowfish fully eight feet across, sharks without number and seals by the hundreds. They were evidently stunned with the force of some terrific marine upheaval, and when struck with a pole by one of the sailors showed only faint signs of life. In twenty minutes after the first fish arose to the surface they began to drop out of sight like pieces of lead. Whether they were stunned and, on recovering, immediately dived beneath the waves in a panic, seeking safety in the depths, or whether they died from the shock and, instead of floating as dead fish do, were drawn under by some submarine whirlpool, were scientific questions too deep for the skipper, but half a dozen of the smaller fish hauled aboard by the cook for dinner were quite dead when examined. The calm continued twenty-four hours longer before the ocean resumed its usual aspect and a wind from the southeast permitted the ship to continue its course.

Behind the Times.

Four artillerymen were looking around the picture gallery in the Metropolitan museum the other day, but they did not seem particularly interested. When they got to Meissonier's "Friedland—1807" two of them, one a sergeant, paused for a second look. The sergeant went close to the canvas and gazed intently at the Old Guard in the background.

"Those guys are carrying old fashioned Springfield rifles," was the only comment he made.

The Boiler's Reasons.

Mother—Don't tease me, Johnnie. Can't you see I'm in a lot of trouble? The boiler has sprung a leak. Johnnie—What makes it leak? Mother—Because it's my day at home, your father has asked two men to dinner, the cook has left, and the butcher hasn't come with the meat. Now run and play.

A Big Difference.

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—See how nicely that team of horses go along. Why can't man and wife trot along pleasantly together like that? Mr. Crimsonbeak—Well, you see, there is only one tongue between those two horses.

Fundamentally there is no such thing as private action. All actions are public in themselves or in their consequences.—Hovey.

INTEREST IN COMING VISIT

More Than an Ordinary Event is Visit to Canada of English Vocalists

The success of the Sheffield Choir's visit to Canada was a foregone conclusion, not merely because of the great merit and world-wide fame of the organization nor on account of the great magnitude of the undertaking, involving the largest single party that has ever crossed the Atlantic on a visit to Canada, but because it represents another great heartbeat in the Imperial impulse and signifies how art and commerce, sentiment and business join in achieving something that is not alone aesthetic delectation, but a material benefit to the prestige of Canada. Crowded houses are now everywhere assured and the largest auditoriums will be overtaxed in the eleven cities which are to accommodate the throngs.

In Massey Hall, where the preliminary subscribers' list closed on Oct. 20th, the amount represented was nearly $10,000, although this is only a small fraction of the expense of the undertaking. Special trains from outside points are being arranged for every concert. The single fare rates on the railways, will bring a large number here on Thursday, Nov. 12th, when the concert will be held in the Grand Opera House.

Advertisements appeared in last night's Toronto papers asking for tickets for Sheffield Choir concerts, the supply having been exhausted.

CANADIAN CLUB MEETING IS POSTPONED

The meeting of the Canadian Club, which was called for to-morrow evening has been postponed until some night next week. It has been found impossible to secure a hall in which to meet tomorrow evening, hence the postponement.

Hamilton police commissioners will be asked to appoint a morality inspector.

OF INTEREST

THE SHEFFIELD CHOIR

The first part of the programme was devoted to selections from the "Messiah," and the difference between the rendition of these choruses by the Sheffield Choir and those that have been hitherto heard here, raised admiration everywhere. It was not merely in the rythm of the music, or in the exactness of attack or perfect balancing of the various parts. There was a keen appreciation of the meaning of the music that forced itself on the audience in every case. One of the most marked effects was in the enunciation of the singers which was so perfect that the words of every chorus could be followed. One curious effect was in the sybilant utterances of the "s" which came out most strongly in the chorus, "Surely He Hath Borne our Griefs" giving an extraordinary effect to the music. The choral work throughout the "Messiah," work was splendid, but it reached a majestic climax in the famous "Hallelujah," chorus, during which the entire audience stood, and interrupted the programme for several minutes afterwards with a tremendous outburst of applause which had to be acknowledged repeatedly by Dr. Coward before he could continue.

The second part of the programme consisted mainly of glees and part songs, which were splendidly rendered, and aroused more general applause than the oratorio numbers. This was especially the case in Jackson's "Sisters of the Sea," a glee in which English, Irish and Scotch melodic effects were intermingled in a semi-patriotic style which caught the fancy of the whole audience. Faning's part song "Moonlight," was also splendidly rendered, the gradual dying away of the melody in a crooning lullaby producing an effect that will not soon be forgotten.

Another charming part song was Vogt's "Indian Lullaby," for female voices. Fortunately this was not the American idea of an Indian song but was really harmonious. Elgar's "The Dance." was another selection which deserved all the applause it won, a rollicking dance song with strong effects in the arrangement of the voices.

Amongst the soloists Miss Gertrude Lonsdale easily won first honors. She not only has a beautiful contralto but sings with evidence of the most careful training and sympathetic appreciation of her music. Her singing of "He was Despised," was a revelation of sympathetic work. Miss Lonsdale also sang a couple of songs later with excellent effect.

Mr. Robert Charlesworth, the basso also created a most favorable impression with his dramatic rendition of "Why do the Nations," and "The People that Walked in Darkness."

Miss Emily Breare, the soprano soloist did not make so good an impression at first but amply atoned for it by her singing of "I Know that my Redeemer Liveth," which was worthy of all praise, as was also the singing of "Elizabeth's prayer," from Tannhauser.

The success of the first concert was only partly marred by its conclusion. First a flash-light photo was taken of the audience as a souvenir for the members of the choir, which naturally disturbed the audience. Then as a finale the choir sang an English version of "O, Canada," and Dr. Coward was visibly surprised that the audience did not join in the song, which, since the tercentenary has been generally regarded abroad as Canada's national anthem, and he evidently did not like the hurry the audience was in to get away to their cabs and cars while the really fine arrangement of the song was being given.

The general success of the concert however, augurs well for the audience that will greet the Sheffield Choir this evening, and during the rest of their tour on this side. Canadians should feel grateful to Dr. C. A. E. Harriss for his enterprise in bringing such a musical organization to this country.

During their visit to Montreal the members of the Sheffield Choir are being royally entertained by citizens as well as by the municipality. Yesterday afternoon they were entertained by Lady Allan at Ravenscrag. This morning at 11 o'clock they will visit the Chateau de Ramezay. At half past 11 they will attend a private recital by Prof. Dussault at Notre Dame church. At noon they will be the guests of Mr. E. S. Clouston, general manager of the Bank of Montreal at the Bank's headquarters. Later they will lunch at the Windsor as the guests of the Mayor and City Council. In the afternoon at three o'clock they will visit McGill University, and at four o'clock they will be received at the residence of Sir George and Lady Drummond for a private view of Sir George's collection of oil paintings and works of art.—Montreal Gazette.

A SOLID VOTE.

A vote of the whole Dominion of Canada to ascertain the best value to be had in the newspaper line would without question result in a solid vote for the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal. At twice, yes five times its present price it would still be considered good value, in fact it is just such a paper that most homes would have at any price. It costs but one dollar a year, and one can't go wrong in giving it a trial. It already reaches the majority of homes in this country, and those who receive it would not be without it.

TAFT'S MAJORITY IS GROWING MORE STATES GO REPUBLICAN

Will Have 309 Votes in College.

This is 67 Better Than a Majority —Maryland Goes in Taft Column.

New York, Nov. 5.—Practically complete returns received up to a late hour this morning indicate that W. H. Taft of Ohio as President-elect will have a vote of 309 in the electoral college. This is within sixteen votes of the forecast made by National Chairman Hitchcock, and 67 more than a majority out of the total electoral vote of 483.

The most important news of the late returns indicates that Maryland after vacilating during the day and apparently being safe for the Democracy has been swung into the Taft column. The figures gives Mr. Taft the state by 149 votes.

Maryland was the last of the doubtful states to be heard from. Indiana and West Virginia, as well as Montana, turned out to be safely Republican. Colorado went for Bryan.

Mr. Bryan has a total of 174 votes, two less than he received in 1896. In 1904 Mr. Parker received only 140 votes; in 1900 Mr. Bryan received 155 votes and in 1896 the Nebraskan received 175 votes. Mr. Taft's 309 electoral votes compared with 336 received by Roosevelt in 1904, 292 received by McKinley in 1900 and 271 received by McKinley in 1896.

No changes of material interest have been reported in the congressional returns. The Republicans will have about the same working majority in the 61st Congress as at present, and Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, undoubtedly will succeed himself as Speaker. Representatives Jesse Overstreet of Ohio, and Hepburn of Iowa, are the most conspicuous among those who have failed of re-election.

The Senate retains its Republican complexion, although there will be a material change in the personnel of the upper body of the National Legislature.

The states carried by Mr. Bryan are as follows: Alabama 11, Arkansas 5, Colorado 5, Florida 5, Georgia 13, Kentucky 13, Louisiana 9, Missouri 18, Mississippi 10, Nevada 3, Nebraska 8, North Carolina 9, Tennessee 12, Texas 18, and Virginia 12. Total 174.

All the rest of the states are safe for Taft, with the exception of Maryland, where the issue is so close that an official count may be necessary to finally determine the result.

National Chairman Norman E. Mack of the Democratic party issued a statement last night in which he declared that he did not believe Mr. Bryan would again be a candidate for the Presidency. He said he believed that the Nebraskan might be a candidate for the United States Senate in 1911, provided the Legislature of his state is Democratic in that year, when the first vacancy occurs.

Judge Taft's plurality in the State of New York, according to corrected returns late to-day, is 203,495, more than 28,000 in excess of President Roosevelt's plurality of four years ago.

Washington, Nov. 5.—President Roosevelt yesterday gave his interpretation of the victory of the Republican party at the polls when he said to the newspaper men whom he received in his office:

"This administration has made a steady effort, and progress should never be allowed to deviate into an unwise radicalism on the one hand, nor into an unwise conservatism on the other. The nomination of Mr. Taft was a triumph over reactionary conservatism, and his election was a triumph over unwise and improper radicalism."

London, Nov. 5.—The press of London regards the election of Wm. H. Taft as a matter for general and world-wide congratulation, as it "insures the continuance of a policy," which has been greatly approved in England.

"The policy which Mr. Taft has inherited," points out The Evening Standard, "is in a large measure accountable for the leap to the front made by America in recent years, and her present position as a power among the powers is due, to an unusual extent, to Mr. Taft's labors in close alliance with President Roosevelt.

"Englishmen must rejoice in the thought that the friendship between Great Britain and America, which President Roosevelt placed on a surer footing, gives promises of being increased and further assured under the new administration."

DEATH TO CAPTAIN

Huge Sea Boarded the Vessel

That Was Carrying Supplies to Dr. Grenfell's Station in Labrador

Halifax, November 4—The ninety-ton schooner, Lorna Doone, owned by famed Dr. Grenfell of Labrador arrived at North Sydney this morning having lost her captain during Sunday's storm. The Lorna Doone is loaded with a cargo of general supplies for the Grand Fall Mission Station. The little schooner left Boston Saturday morning. At 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon while about 50 miles off Cape Mouton, NS. Captain J W. Roberts was standing near the companion talking to the men at the wheel. The schooner was running before a gale when she was boarded by an immense sea which swept her from stem to stern carrying Captain Roberts overboard. The helmsman, seeing his captain washed overboard jammed down the helm, and at the risk of carrying out her spars and losing all hands, brought the little schooner to, with run, deluging her from end to end, but only a glimpse was caught of the unfortunate captain as he was washed astern on the crest of a large comber. Realising the impossibility of launching a boat in such a sea the mate brought the vessel before the gale again and after a hard experience never having navigated before, managed to bring the schooner to safe anchorage at North Sydney this morning.

It is understood that Dr. Grenfell, the Labrador missionary whose fame is now almost world wide, will visit Peterborough this winter. INDIAN TRAPPER FINED AT LINDSAY

Lindsay, Nov. 4.—This morning, before County Magistrate Moore, an Indian from down the river, appeared on a charge of trapping muskrats out of season, around Goose Lake. He was found guilty, fined and was given a severe lecture by His Honor. This should be a warning to others who so frequently forget the law with regard to trapping.

ACT OF A WOMAN

Elderly Lady Was Quite Giddy

And Married a Youth--Romantic Case Has Attracted Much Attention

New York, Nov. 4—Interesting details about her two marriages, an elopement at the age of fifty-one, with Charles Levee, the twenty-one year old French balloon chauffeur, came out when Mrs. Jennie Hawley Levee was put on the stand before Justice Erlanger in the supreme court.

Mrs. Hawley Levee was under examination the whole day in the suit brought against her by Alan R. and William Hawley, of Wm. Hawley and Co., brokers, of No. 90 Broad street, to recover $34,850 alleged to have been loaned to her.

It transpired that the first secret marriage with the young balloon chauffeur, Levee took place in January last. The second was on April 8th on which day the couple ran away together to Europe, as is alleged.

At this latter date, Mrs Hawley Levee admitted she had need of money for the honeymoon trip. In order to get this she raised a mortgage for $10,000 on her property in West 11th street. But before she could do so she had to obtain quit-claim deeds in accomplishing without letting them know why the deeds were needed or that she was already married.

Mrs. Hawley-Levee admitted that she took $4000 with her for her fortnight in Europe, and that her homecoming with her youthful husband, from their honeymoon, was anything but a happy one.

"When I reached the house, I could not get in," she said. "Finally I did get in and waited in the dining-room, and my brother Billy came in. 'Hello, back," he said. I said "yes.' 'Half an hour later Alan came in, and he said at once, 'I don't want any more to do with you.

"Next morning Alan called me into his room and said if I would give in and hand everything over to them they would allow me $2600 a year for life.'

"Billy said I had not a leg to stand on—in the case, he meant,' put in the witness, amid laughter.

While detailing her many purchases of real estate in New York City, Mrs. Hawley-Levee admitted that most of the money came from her brothers, but it was, she claimed, only part of her share of the profits of the firm of Wm. Hawley & Co.

On one occasion she said, she had to pawn her jewelry for $500 to complete the purchase of No 27 West Tenth street which she bought so well at $28,750 that she was able to raise $25,000 on it at once on a mortgage. Her brothers next day enabled her to get back her jewels.

DEER PLENTIFUL THIS SEASON

Hunters Are Having Splendid Luck--Dr. King and Mr. Fred. Clarke Return to the City

Dr. King and Mr. Fred Clarke have returned to the city after spending three to four days at Mr. Jackson's cottage, Eel's Creek, Stony Lake. The gentlemen had intended staying a week or ten days, but were unexpectedly called home. They will return to the lakes the beginning of next week. Owing to the shortness of their stay they were unable to do any shooting, but Mr. Clarke in speaking to the Review this morning, stated that the deer were very plentiful and hunters were going back to the north country in large numbers. This is the best deer hunting season for some years, the swamps and creeks all being dried up the deer have to take to the lakes and there they easily fall a prey to their chasers.

MARINE INQUIRY

At Ottawa Develops a Sensation.

Cement and Lumber Dealer Says Every Time He Sold Goods to Agent Five Per Cent. Was Tacked On.

Quebec, Nov. 5.—Mr. Justice Cassels commenced his inquiry into the organization and management of the Quebec agency of the Marine and Fisheries Department yesterday forenoon, and the investigation was not long in progress when Mr. J. J. Murphy, cement and lumber dealer of this city, sprang a sensation. For years past Mr. Murphy has sold considerable quantities of cement and lumber, principally the latter, to the Quebec agency of the Marine and Fisheries Department while Mr. J. U. Gregory was the agent, and he deposed yesterday afternoon that in every case where he sold goods to the agency he paid Mr. Gregory a commission of five per cent. on the amount of the orders. He not only paid Mr. Gregory, who gave him the orders, but paid in the way of "sweetmeats" $640 to Louis Gagnon, a yard foreman, who received and inspected the goods; likewise other amounts to other important officials whose names he did not know, but he thought Turgeon was the name of one of them.

The investigation, which will occupy about one week, is being conducted in the criminal chamber of the Quebec Court House. The Government is represented by Messrs. Watson, K.C., Toronto, and Perron, Montreal, while Senator Choquette is appearing in the interests of Mr. J. U. Gregory, the former agent of the Department in this city.

PAST SEASON HAS BEEN AN UNUSUALLY LONG ONE AT THE HAVELOCK ICE HOUSE

Havelock, Nov. 5.—Havelock's importance is not confined wholly to the operations of the C.P.R. at this point. Among the most prominent works in town is Swift & Co's. ice house.

The operations are about at an end for this season, as many of the cars do not need icing now, the weather being cool enough to keep the meats without icing them. This has been a very busy season at the ice house on account of the great heat, and also an increase in the number of cars sent over the line that need icing. In the middle of the summer as high as 250 cars were iced in a week, or an average of 36 cars per day, and as many as 62 cars have been iced in one day. Considering that these cars take from 6 to 15 cakes of ice each, according to the lowness of the ice in the tanks, it can be seen that a large amount of that congealed moisture called ice is consumed at this icing station in one season. Although once in a while during the winter months special cars have to be iced, the regular season commences about March or April and finishes in November.

The icing season does not stop abruptly, but from the last of September until the last of November the number of cars iced per day lessens, as some of the meats and fruits do not need to be kept very cold.

Although Swift & Co. ship most of the cars that pass through here, there are several other companies which have icing done here, among them the following: the Armour Packing Co., Chicago and Kansas City; Nelson Morris, Kansas City; Cudahy Packing Co., Omaha and Kansas City; National Packing Co., Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City; Cold Blast Transportation Co., Chicago and Kansas City; American Refrigerator Transportation Co.; John Morrel, Ottomwa; the C.P.R. Refrigerator Co. and several other smaller companies with shipping points in the United States.

Some of the cars only go as far as Montreal, where the contents are transferred to the steamboats which carry it to foreign countries. Other cars go down into the New England States and others to Providence, where they are transferred to the steamers and shipped away.

When the cars leave Chicago they are iced at Windsor, Ont., then at Havelock; sometimes at Montreal, and then at Providence or Newport. The icemen have considerable trouble in judging the time they must commence to prepare the ice for the cars. The cakes, which are packed in close together, are frozen to one another, and these have to be loosened up and separated. The ice is then hoisted to the platform, which is the same height as the cars, and is here broken by hand into pieces about the size of a man's fist. Considerable judgment is necessary, for the ice must not be gotten out too soon, or it will melt, or too late, as it will delay the train. A report is first received by mail that certain cars have left the shipping point, and the next report is received from Windsor by wire when the cars leave there, and it is then that the men begin to loosen up the cakes in the rooms. A report is also received when the car leaves Toronto, and again when the cars arrive in Myrtle or Burketon, and then they commence to pull the ice up, which work is done by a horse. Generally, if they start to pull up when the cars leave Myrtle, they have the ice fully prepared for the cars when they arrive at Havelock. But sometimes the train is delayed by some cause and a large amount of the ice is melted before the cars reach here.

COST OF THANKSGIVING DAY TURKEYS DEPENDS ON SATURDAY'S MARKET

Monday is Thanksgiving Day, and as a result many turkeys will get it where Mabel wore the beads. There is going to be a big demand for birds for the Thanksgiving Day dinner, and local dealers are preparing for it. It is expected that there will be a big supply of fowl on Saturday's market, but it looks as if prices were going to be rather stiff. Of course they may take a drop if the supply is big but as an indication of the way things are going it may be stated that good turkeys are now selling at 1.75 to $2.00 each.

The cost of the Thanksgiving Day turkey will all depend on Saturday's market.

DR. GRENFELL AT ST. JOHN'S

Has Started on Six Months' Tour of Canada and United States.

St. John, N.B., Nov 4—Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, M.D., CMG., whose work among fishermen on the Labrador coast is so well known throughout the world that it has been referred to as the greatest example of individual self-sacrifice of the age, arrived in St. John this evening and addressed a very large audience in Trinity church.

Though the meetings was arranged at short notice the number of people anxious to see and hear him was so great that the schoolroom of the church would not accommodate them all and an adjournment was made to the main auditorium. Senator Ellis presided.

Dr. Grenfell is starting on a six months tour of Canada and of the States in the interest of the work.

While here he received news of the drowning of Captain Roberts of the schooner Lorna Doone and was much affected.

It was the first fatality in mission work, he said.

MORE DETAILS ABOUT THE CONFLAGRATION AT PEMBROKE

Damage is Half a Million.

Flames Discovered in Early Morning--Insurance Less Than Half the Damage.

Pembroke, Nov. 5.—Fire swept the heart of the business section here yesterday morning, and when it was subsided, after eight hours' work, it has done between $450,000 and $500,000 damage.

On the destroyed property there was $225,000 insurance, all in British and Canadian companies. The chief losers are:

National Manufacturing Co., $140,000; insurance $90,000.
Mrs. J. W. Munro, $75,000; fully insured.
J. P. Millar, $20,000; only partially insured.
A. Millar & Son, $25,000; partly insured.
Moffatt estate, $10,000.
Pembroke Milling Co., $40,000; insured.
Mrs. W. W. Dickson, $12,000.
Branch Bank of Ottawa.
Branch of Quebec Bank.
Bell Telephone Co.'s office.
Dominion Express Co.'s office.
Two hotels.
Public library.
Half a dozen private residences.

About 250 men will be out of work as a result and business and professional men will have difficulty in securing quarters.

The origin of the fire, which was discovered at 4 o'clock, is unknown. It started in the foundry of the National Manufacturing Co., and, fanned by high winds, soon spread.

A gale was blowing from the lake towards the town. The Pembroke firemen were practically powerless to check the flames, which at many places leaped from 30 to 50 feet into the air and crossed the main street a few minutes after the blaze broke out. It then spread along the banks of the Muskrat river, which runs through the town.

Four of the leading business blocks, the Freeman block, Dickson block, Foster block and Cunningham block, are destroyed, while the Munro block escaped by a miracle. These blocks had over 40 tenants. The Pembroke Milling Co.'s flour mills, also the Pembroke woollen mills, are wiped out. Two hotels, the Leland and the Owens, are burned, while the Copeland House, the leading hotel of the town, was saved only by the heroic efforts of the fire-fighters. The barber shop and residence adjoining this hotel are burned; Alex. Millar's large wholesale and retail flour and feed supply store were also a prey to the flames.

The Ottawa Bank had a narrow escape.

Mackie & Ryan's hardware store is in ashes and the residences of Thos. Delahanty and Harry Irwin are among the burned.

The Renfrew fire brigade arrived by special train to lend a helping hand, but Ottawa declined to send assistance, though requested.

CATTLE THIEVES

At Work in Durham County--Several Farmers Suffer

Several farmers have lost cattle this fall and although they have been advertised in the local papers and diligent inquiries and search made in the localities no word of tehir whereabouts have been received. This is very unusual for this paper has usually found lost animals in this district when advertised, owing to its general circulation in every section. Mr. Peter Stalker has lost five head of young cattle, Mr. Fred S. Blackburn lost two three-year old heifers and a cow that has since calved, and Mr. Jas. Veale has missed 14 sheep. As these farmers live in the same locality, there is some suspicion that these animals have been stolen. We have not heard that suspicion is attached to any person, but the fact that no information has been obtained of their whereabouts gives reasonable ground for suspecting that some person is harboring them or has made away with them. The law about retaining stray animals is very clear.—Bowmanville Statesman.

COMPLAIN OF DISCRIMINATION IN THE PRICE OF POLES

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—The Railway Commission yesterday heard the complaint of John McKenzie, Ormsby, Ont., the Rideau Lumber Co. and others, that the freight rates charged by railway companies on telegraph, telephone and trolley poles are unjustly discriminative as compared with the rates charged on lumber and other forest products.

The complaint was laid more especially against the C.P.R., G.T.R., and Central Ontario and their interests were watched by M. K. Cowan, Grand Trunk solicitor, and G. F. Macdonnel, Toronto, for the Canadian Northern. A. W. Greene appeared for the complainants.

The defence of the railways was that these poles are far more difficult to handle, cause more accidents and are harder on rolling stock than lumber. Judgment was reserved.

MOREHOUSE'S COMET WILL SOON BE VISIBLE HERE

Morehouse's comet will soon be visible to the naked eye. This is the latest news from the astronomers and no doubt the appearance of the wandering celestial body will be watched for with considerable interest locally. Watch for the comet in the north-western sky about ten o'clock at night, of course.

Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, has received a letter from Prof. Pickering of the Cambridge University Observatory stating that he has been informed by Prof. Frost of the Yerkes observatory that Morehouse's comet was visible to the naked eye on October 29th. The comet was photographed by Prof. Frost and had a tale three or four degrees long.

Prof. Pickering states that the comet was recently photographed at Cambridge observatory and had a tail nine degrees long.

BIG CHEQUE FROM THE O'BRIEN MINE

Another Cheque of $55,000 for the Provincial Treasury

Toronto, Nov. 4.—A cheque for $55,000 from the O'Brien mine has been added to the Ontario treasury. It represents twenty-five per cent. of the profits of the company for the past three months. It also brings the total receipts from the mine for twelve months up to $109,915.

Under the act of last session ten per cent. of this goes to the Alpha Mining Company, which includes the Larose people. This act, which figured somewhat in the provincial campaign provided for the payment of $130,000, $30,000 being cash and the balance at the rate of forty per cent. of the returns until it is all paid off. At the present rate this should all be paid off next year, leaving a handsome balance in the treasury as well.

BY-LAW MAY BE REPEALED

Largely Signed Petition Handed to Clerk of Hope Township

A largely signed petition representing over twenty-five per cent. of the ratepayers of the township of Hope has been handed to the Clerk, Mr. W. H. McCallum, asking for the repeal of the Local Option by-law. This number makes it compulsory for the Council to submit the by-law and at the next meeting the Council will prepare the by-law and the vote will be taken on January 1st. A majority vote decides the question.

It is stated that ex-Reeve Lawson and ex-Councillor Leslie will face the electors as temperance candidates. —Port Hope Guide.

NEW ERA IN INDIA

At a grand durbar at Jodpur in India, on the 50th anniversary of the proclamation of Queen Victoria's becoming Empress, the Earl of Minto, vice roy, representing His Majesty, read an address to the assembled princes informing them that henceforth Indians shall have a greater share in their own affairs of government. While this no doubt will be considered as a concession to the agitators, it is a natural result of the progress India has made under British control. At any rate it will go a long way towards putting an end to the agitation for home rule in India, which of late has pretty nearly reached boiling point.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

The action of the Provincial Government in acceding to the request of the Peterborough Board of Education is commendable. For five years the government will bear 20 per cent of the cost of the new Domestic Science department. The teaching of this most necessary branch of education will be generally endorsed. The energy of the Board in this respect is worthy of all praise. There has everywhere been a disposition to cultivate "frills" at the expense of the utilities. It is high time also, that the various governments looked after the interior departments of their provinces instead of utilizing the people's resources for "national" schemes. Ontario should be practically free of municipal taxation for improvements if her resources were utilized for that purpose.

THE ELECTION OF TAFT

The electors of the U. S. are very tolerant. They have elected Mr. Taft in spite of the fact that he denies that Jesus Christ is the divine Son of God. Men may come and men may go, but we have been accustomed to suppose that the teaching of Jesus Christ, the veritable Son of God, who is the Creator of all things and the Father of all, would always prevail in the end. But in the end of the second millenium, two thousand years after the birth of that great Teacher, we find men sending to Washington as their first citizen and as their representative a man who regards the divinity of Christ, His crucifixion, death, burial and ascension, as a myth. The effect of such an event upon the civilised and uncivilised world is instantaneous. To emphasize it further and make it complete—potentates, principalities and powers vie with each other in sending congratulations. Jesus Christ has been set aside in the interests of business. The tariff has laid Christianity low. The principle of attending to business first and Christ afterwards is approved. Henceforth the banner with the strange device "The world for Christ" reads "The world before Christ." We do not presume to give our opinion as to the rightness or wrongness of it all. We simply draw attention to a remarkable fact. Where others have so signally failed who will presume to preach? When once the element of holiness is eliminated and pronounced unnecessary it becomes unnecessary. It is either before all or not at all. It is either the foundation of each man's life or it is not. To vote for Taft or not to vote for Taft becomes not a question of tolerance but of individual belief. The "tumult and the shouting" of the laymen's missionary movement or the stubborn differences of the Synod are scarcely stilled when men rush into the polling booth to deny Christ—truly a loyal band! To palm this off as tolerance is an insult to the Saviour. Tolerance is the permitting of Taft to believe as Taft pleases. Equal tolerance requires that Taft shall permit each individual to believe and vote as he may please. But if religion does not enter into the business affairs of the State at all, nor manifestly into the daily life of the people, what sort of a religion is it? The outstanding fact of the last American election is that Jesus Christ, not Bryan, was defeated. Henceforth the Sunday school and the Church are hobbies, not the serious business of the people. This new phase of unbelief has gradually developed in the human breast until in the eighth year of the last century of the second millenium of the "Christian era" it has overflowed everywhere. It is the triumph of philistinism. If faith without works is dead, it is certainly dead. In the future the man in the street will regard it as an ancient "figment of the imagination," a time-worn superstition, a hobby, a delusion, a humbug—a thing of the past. The election of Tuesday has proclaimed the fact of the dawning of the new non-Christian era and the setting of the old or so-called Christian era. Tempora mutantur et nos mutamur cum illis.

The separation of religion from business is now complete. It is even a moot question at the present time if it is not also separate and distinct from morality. It is surely not in politics. Where is it? We have had the greatest object lesson since Calvary.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The water in the river is very low. It is reported that the fish are putting in a claim for damages. The water has never been so low the oldest inhabitant says.

The coming protest will show the people of the West Riding of Peterborough what sort of a gang has got hold of the riding. There will be some painful surprises.

The party of high tariff has again triumped in the U.S. Taft's majority of the popular vote is a million and a quarter. This preponderance is significant and will give little comfort to our Liberal friends.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rambling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

OF INTEREST

One of the things in which the German woman differs from her English sister, is that every German girl when she reaches the age of seventeen or eighteen is sent away from home to some family a long way off, who send one of their own daughters in exchange. According to the Gentlewoman, this exchange lasts for about three years.

The girl is treated as one of the family is styled German, but in every other respects is a mere servant. She has to do all the work of the home, scrubbing, washing, cooking, mending—in fact, everything that a domestic servant is required to perform.

This does not leave her with much leisure for play, and the outdoor sports of an English girl are quite unknown in Germany. A German lady on being told that English girls played tennis and hockey, expressed her contempt for such foolery and asked who did the housework. On being informed that no English girl or matron would dream of turning to and doing the cooking, etc. She gasped out: "Oh, Lord! What a lot of lazy hussies!"

Every German woman has all the work of her home on her shoulders and by this is not meant the lower class woman. No German lady thinks of having more than one servant, who gets about £5 a year, and does the rough work, her mistress doing all the cooking and mending.

It is a sight to see a lady in a German town going to market. She knows what to buy and what to pay, and every Wednesday and Saturday you may see her trotting off to market with her servant behind her carrying a huge basket and examining the comestibles with a critical air.

About the only ray of sunshine she has, apart from the Kaffeeklatsch, is the visit on Sunday to some Kaffeegarten, rangl.ce tea garden, where she and her lord and master, surrounded by their olive branches, sit under the shade of a leafy tree and drink coffee and munch cakes or sour milk to their heart's delight.

A remarkable and almost incredible story of love, revenge and Indian vendetta lies behind the Luard mystery of the murder of Mrs. General tery, which embraced the double tragedy of the murder of Mrs. General Luard and the suicide of the general says a London cable to the American.

Only to a few outside government officials and detective circles is the real solution of the strange shooting in a lonely wood at Sevenoaks of Mrs. Luard known, and extra precautions have been taken by these to keep the facts secret. Clues have been abandoned and sources of information have been blocked notwithstanding the fact that public opinion was strongly against General Luard when the murder of his wife was discovered.

No crime for years has excited so much discussion and public interest. London newspapers devoted pages to the case. Mrs. Luard was found shot to death in the lonely woods adjoining their country mansion at Sevenoaks. Robbery was not the motive, but among the few articles of jewellery missing when the crime was discovered was a peculiar ring of Oriental workmanship and of an unusual design.

ROMANCE BEGINS IN INDIA.

It was a matter of much comment at the time that many days elapsed before Scotland Yard was called in to assist in unravelling the mystery. It was intimated in the papers that the perpetrator of the crime, but was withholding that information from the police. Hundreds of anonymous letters in this strain were sent to him, and the impression prevailed in many quarters, that when he took his own life by throwing himself under an express train, this opinion was justified.

The true story of the double tragedy is now said to be this:

Forty years ago, a British officer was stationed at Rawal Pindi, India. He was a dashing, daredevil young man, engaged in all the pursuits inseparably associated with an Indian frontier station. This was Lieut. Luard. He had influential connection in high circles and could look forward to certain advancement. One day at some military sports he met a beautiful native girl. She was the daughter of an old Indian money lender, and throughout the district was famed for her beauty and fascinating figure. Young Luard soon succumbed to the witchery of the girl, and before long he persuaded he to join him. A ring, said to possess mysterious charms, was given to the lieutenant by the girl as a love token.

The affair was common talk in the garrison, but as the girl never went near the officers' quarters, there was no official interference. Some of Luard's brother officers made repeated attempts to induce him to break off the liason, but without avail. He compromised, however, by sending the girl away to a bungalow in the hills, and gradually, it was thought, the two had dissolved partnership.

One day there was an addition to the household in the bungalow—an unwelcome addition—and after several troublous meetings the young officer left the girl-mother and her son to their fate.

The years went by and Lieutenant Luard became a general. In 1897 General Luard was in command at Rawal Pindi and announcement was made of his engagement to a lady of his own race. Shortly after the date of marriage was officially given and preparations were made for grand festivities in honor of the event. At a garrison ball an unhappy scene occurred when the function was in full swing. A commotion was heard at one end of the hall and a native woman was seen struggling with sentries in an endeavor to gain entrance. Her cries stopped the dancing. When he caught sight of the intruder, General Luard turned deathly white and hurriedly escorted his wife from the scene.

"What are you going to do with our boy," cried the women to the retreating general and then the scandal was out. The native woman was ejected but as she went out she swore that she would be revenged if she had to wait a thousand years. Time went on, General Luard rose rapidly in his country's service, a son was born who entered the army, and then eight or ten years ago the general retired to his estate at Sevenoaks, a pretty spot about twenty miles from London.

About six months ago a strange story was reported from Southampton. A grey-haired Hindoo woman, accompanied by a swarthy man, made application to a magistrate for assistance. A story of abandonment was told and a famous general's name was mentioned. The magistrate declined to go into the matter and the two Hindoos were next traced to the Franco-British exposition in London, where they were taking part in one of the native village performances.

Next General Luard received periodical letters at Sevenoaks of a threatening nature and more then one story got abroad of domestic differences in consequence. Then came the murder of Mrs. Luard and the discovery that the oriental ring of peculiar workmanship which the general had given her years ago had been stripped from the dead woman's hand.

It is a significant fact that since the day of the murder the two Hindoos of the Franco-British exhibition have disappeared.

In the light of this remarkable story which was given to the writer by a high official it is equally remarkable why the romance was not revealed, proper precautions taken, and the stigma of reproach lifted from the unhappy general.

FAREWELL! BUT WHENEVER—

Farewell—but whenever you welcome the hour
That awakens the night song of mirth in your bower,
Then think of the friend who once welcomed it too,
And forgot his own griefs to be happy with you.
His griefs may return—not a hope may remain
Of the few that have brightened his pathway of pain—
But he ne'er can forget the short vision that threw
Its enchantment around him while lingering with you.

And still on that evening when pleasure fills up
To the highest top sparkle each heart and each cup,
Where'er my path lies, be it gloomy
or bright,
My soul, happy friends! will be with you that night;
Shall join in your revels, your sports and your wiles
And return to me beaming all o'er with your smiles—
Too blest if it tell me that mid the gay cheer
Some kind voice has murmured, "I wish he were here!"

Let Fate do her worst, there are relics of joy, Bright dreams of the past, which she cannot destroy;
Which come in the nighttime of sorrow and care
And bring back the features which joy used to wear,
Long, long be my heart with such memories filled!
Like the vase in which roses have once been distilled—
You may break, you may ruin, the vase, if you will,
But the scent of the roses will hang round it still.

THE CROPS IN THIS COUNTY

Interesting Reports Published in an Agricultural Journal

The following Peterborough County reports appear in the Canadian Dairyman and Farming World for November 4th;

Otonabee—Threshing is almost completed and most crops have good returns. Oats yielded about 30 bushels to the acre, while barley did a little better, yielding on an average 35 bushels. Fall wheat is good and will yield about 35 bushels. No spring wheat grown.—G. R.

Douro—Ploughing is about the only thing to be done. The threshing is over for another year. Oats yielded 30 bushels to the acre; barley, 25. Wheat was only a middling crop, yielding around 20 bushels. Feed will be very scarce this winter. The pastures are bare and the milk flow is far below the average. Cheese factory owners are receiving only half their usual quantiti. Winter apples are a failure, although I had a very good crop. Early varieties were good. Potatoes, roots and mangels were below the average.—J. S.

North Monaghan.—The milk flow is very low. The pastures are bare and cattle can hardly get sufficient to eat. Feed will be scarce this winter. Corn is grown quite extensively, but there are not many silos. Those farmers that have silos do not seem to use them, complaining that it is too expensive. They prefer to leave it in the shock in the field. A little plowing was done after the rain of three or four weeks ago, but the ground is now dry again and nothing can be done. The clay land is very hard. Potatoes are good in some sections but poor in others. Mangels and turnips were very poor. The drought affected the latter badly. Nearly all farmers are through threshing. Oats were not very good and the same may be said of barley. These crops yielded about 25 bushels to the acre. Fall wheat is extra good and will yield about 30 bushels to the acre where not winter killed.—R. W.

Newfoundland elections are today. During the year 12 new Baptist churches have been opened in Ontario and Quebec.

The Imperial service medal has been awarded to James Dennery and J. E. Scott, foremen on the Welland canal.

Hamilton's building permits for October show an increase of $100,150 over the corresponding month last year.

PETERBORO, Nov. 4.—At the last meeting of the Peterboro Cheese Board held here to-day, 2801 colored cheese were boarded. Sales at 12⅛c, 12 5-16c, 12¼c. Two factories unsold.

Ceremony at Kingston.

Kingston, Nov. 5.—In a flurry of snow yesterday afternoon, Bishop Gauthier laid the corner-stone of the Novitiate and Orphanage of St. Mary's-at-the-Lake. Among those present for the ceremony were Rev. Mons. Masherson, Prescott; Very Rev. Dr. Teefy, Toronto; Rev. D. Murray, Brockville; Rev. Father Twoomey, Belleville; Fathers Kehoe and Craig, Gananoque; Father Staley, Smith's Falls, and Father Myrand, Ottawa.

The new orphanage will cost $50,000.

Fumes Kill Physician.

Syracuse, Nov. 5.—Dr. J. J. O'Neil, 33 years old, an interne at a local hospital, was found in a dying condition in the dispensary yesterday. An open bottle of cyanide of potassium stood on a shelf near him. The coroner says that death was accidental; that the young physician knocked over the bottle and fumes of the poison caused death.

Six Stores Burglarized.

Brockville, Nov. 5.—Six places of business were burglarized Tuesday night, but not much loot was secured, amounting only to three revolvers at Smart's hardware store, $2 at Davies' meat store, $3 at McDermott's cigar store, six pairs of mitts at Davis & Sons, and $1 at Johnston's grocery store.

Representatives of the Y M C A movement occupied 22 pulpits in London on Sunday.

YANKEES POACHING.

Vancouver Protests Against Depletion of Halibut Fisheries.

Vancouver, Nov. 5.—The Board of Trade has addressed a strong resolution to Ottawa regarding the importance of conserving and protecting the halibut fisheries of the Pacific coast.

H. H. Watson declared the halibut was absolutely depleted, that single fish were being caught weighing only from ten to twelve pounds, whereas a few years ago they weighed fifty to sixty pounds.

This was due to the invasion of American poachers. He declared 130 vessels were now poaching in Canadian waters. Last year 39,000 tons of halibut caught in Canadian waters were shipped east from Seattle, as against 13,000 tons from Vancouver.

Brokers Help McCallum.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—The shortage in the accounts of D. Cameron McCallum, teller at the head office in this city of the Farmers' Bank, is now $8,000, having been reduced by thousands of dollars by city brokers who came to his assistance yesterday. Over $4,000 was turned into the bank in cash and scrip by certain brokers, who, when informed that McCallum had speculated with the bank's money, paid over the amounts invested through them. An inspection of his running accounts with the brokers indicates that the teller in many deals made considerable money and in one or two instances had sufficient to his credit to about clear off the amount of the shortage.

Fight With Robbers.

Montreal, Nov. 5.—The branch of the Eastern Townships Bank at Marieville, Que., was entered by robbers Tuesday night, but they were beaten off. The noise of their entry aroused two clerks sleeping in the rear of the building, and hastily dressing, they took up arms and entered the room where the burglars were at work. The miscreants fired at them, and an exchange of shots followed. A bullet grazed the head of one clerk, but his condition is not serious. The bandits then fled without any booty being secured. They are being pursued by Chief McCaskill of the Provincial police and his assistants.

George Brown's Body Found.

Guelph, Nov. 5—After being shrouded in mystery for a little over two years the fate of George Brown, an old resident of Guelph and for many years postmaster at a small place north of here, has been cleared up by the discovery in South River, New Ontario, of the decomposed body of a man, which, although denuded of all clothing excepting the boots, is identified as that of Mr. Brown. His son-in-law, Mr. Nairn, of this city, has gone up to look after the remains.

Money-Making Tramway.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 5.—For the year ending June 30, the British Columbia Electric Railway, which operates the tramway and lighting systems in Vancouver and Victoria, had net earnings of 157,704 pounds sterling. At the annual meeting Monday a dividend of eight per cent. was declared on the ordinary stock.

PILOT COULDN'T LAND.

Rough Weather In St. Lawrence Forces Him to Cross the Ocean.

Montreal, Nov. 5.—For the first time in many years the weather has been so rough in the river below Quebec that vessels have not only been delayed for hours awaiting a chance to board their pilots, but at least one pilot has been carried over to the other side, being unable to land.

This happened to the pilot of the steamship Ionian, which left Montreal last Saturday. She took on her lower river pilot at Quebec, but when Father Point was reached it was found that the weather was so rough that he could not land because the tender could not come near the boat.

The Ionian then proceeded to sea, with the pilot on board, in hope that he might be transferred to an incoming vessel down the gulf. This does not appear to have happened, and the pilot is now well on his way to Glasgow.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

HOW TO CURE A HEADACHE

To attempt to cure a headache by taking a "headache powder," is like trying to stop a leak in the roof by putting a pan under the dripping water. Chronic headaches are caused by poisoned blood. The blood is poisoned by tissue waste, undigested food and other impurities remaining too long in the system. These poisons are not promptly eliminated because of sick liver, bowels, skin or kidneys.

If the bowels do not move regularly—if there is pain in the back showing kidney trouble—if the skin is sallow or disfigured with pimples—it shows clearly what is causing the headache.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure headaches because they cure the cause of headaches. "Fruit-a-tives" act directly on the three great eliminating organs—bowels, kidneys and skin. "Fruit-a-tives" keep the system free of poisons.

"Fruit-a-tives" come in two sizes—25c and 50c. If your dealer does not have them write to Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

THE ELECTRIFICATION OF THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

Distinguished Scientist Talks Interestingly on Possible Project of the Future

Just what the electrification of the Canadian Pacific Railway would mean were it undertaken—not at once, for that would be impossible—but within a measurable period of years, was the subject of an interesting talk with a very distinguished electrical authority, Dr. Charles Siemens, electrical engineer, a member of the great London and German house of that name.

Dr. Siemens, who has had practical personal experience of the application of electricity to mountain railways in Switzerland, was here on his way home from Japan, where he has been employed in an advisory capacity by the Japanese Government with regard to the introduction of electricity in the railways of Japan, where some of the lines which are owned by the government traverse mountainous country in which waterfalls and swift-flowing mountain streams would supply abundant power.

Mr. Siemens observed that as his mission to Japan was necessarily of a confidential character, he did not feel at liberty to discuss electrical progress in that country, but having on his way east from Vancouver made mental note of the physical features of the C.P.R., he had no objection to giving his views on the electrification of the Canadian Pacific Railway as a practical proposition.

ITS IMMENSE COST.

"When you speak of the electrification of the Canadian Pacific Railway," said Dr. Siemens, "it must be understood that I do not postulate the introduction of electric power over all its ten thousand miles, I would not regard that as a practical proposal to-day, having regard to the cost it would entail, and the vast amount of expensive equipment that it would throw out of service. Not $00,000,000, buth undreds of millions would have to be espent in new equipment or throw away in the already existing rolling stock that would have to be discarded in order to make way for the electrical equipment which would have to be specially built—locomotives and cars of unique design.

"I am not surprised to find that it is the mountain section of the system that is spoken of as offering a possibly advantageous start for the introduction of electricity, for not only does the enormous quantity of water-power running to waste offer an inviting prospect in the economic sense, but the operation of that part of the line by steam is of necessity extremely costly. The initial expenditure, supposing the whole of the mountain division were electrified, would on the lowest computation be very great, so great that it would have to be taken up in sections, assuming that the principal difficulty were overcome."

"And that difficulty is—"

"The difficulty—and it has to be faced at once—is the certainty of permanency of water supply in winter. Suppose the source of power in the mountains get frozen up. The freezing up of all the waterfalls is impossible; but the waterfalls would not be the only source of power. There would be artificial dams across the rivers and other works of a structural character. The problem of the constancy of supply at high altitudes is certainly a grave one, probably the most serious that has to be encountered."

"But could it not be overcome by long-distance transmission?"

"That is what would have to be consideration — the limit that would—have to be assigned to distance. This would have to be subjected to economic as well as engineering tests. Then there is the application of the current to the purposes of traction."

"Wouldn't it be the trolley?"

QUESTION OF CURRENT.

"Oh, yes, it would have to be the trolley, but there is the question of whether it would be direct current, two-phase or three-phase alternating current. With a three-phase alternating current, which is the principle adopted by the New York Central with satisfactory results. I understand, there would have to be three wires, with two-phase four wires and with direct current two wires.

"The trouble with direct current as applied to long-distance traction is that safety necessitates a low voltage, because there could be no transformer on the train. The transmission of the current at high voltage introduces elements of danger that you avoid with the alternating current. You have seen the sparks flying from the street cars during a rainstorm? That will illustrate what I mean. I mention these things just to show how little they know who talk about the electrification of the Canadian Pacific Railway as if it were a thing that could be done in a day or even in a single generation."

"I sit to be assumed that the electrification of the prairie section would be more difficult than the mountain?"

"More difficult in the practical sense, inasmuch as it would be the more costly to operate. If you are to rely on water power it would have to be carried enormous distances, and you would have to depend upon that or manufacture the power from steam which would mean that the coal would have to be mined in the mountains and hauled to the centre where you produce the power.

"One thing is sure, that if the company decides to electrify it will mean the creation of an enormous demand for electrical machinery, so that there will probably be great times ahead for the manufacturers of highly specialized electric equipment. It will mean this, even if carried out, asI think it would have to be by instalments of comparatively small sections at a time."

SERIOUS RIOTS IN HONG KONG SEVERAL PERSONS ILL-TREATED

Hong Kong, Nov. 4.—The rioting which resulted here Monday from the attempt of those involved to force the local merchants to continue the boycott against Japanese goods, has been suppressed by the soldiers who were called out to patrol the business districts. One Chinese who offered armed resistance, was shot.

The riots were organized primarily by the students of this city and the disturbance is evidently widespread.

At Singapore similar riots have occurred and a number of merchants said to have shown a desire to discontinue the boycott and otherwise favor Japan have been branded as traitors and in several instances marked by having their ears slitted. It is alleged that a league has been formed secretly and has pledged itself to give any man who slits the ears of a so-called "traitor" $15 and should he be thrown in jail, to see that he is held up to the public as a martyr and to pay him a dollar a day while in prison. Should one of the traitor merchants be killed it is alleged the league agrees to pay his slayer $200.

At Canton there have been hints of the same trouble and a number of ruffians have been hired to attack merchants. Vigorous measures to suppress the rioting have been taken.

DEER REPORTED VERY PLENTIFUL

Reports have already been received in town from the backwoods to the effect that deer this year are very plentiful, and that the hunters are looking forward to making a record-breaking hunt this year. Last season some hunters fared very badly, and left the forests without even a sight of the antlered tribe. The first glimpse they had of a deer was on reaching the railroad station to see piled high on the baggage trucks what other men had been fortunate enough in pulling down.—Lindsay Free Press.

Two foreign navvies were killed at Parson's camp on the N. T. R. near Kenora yesterday.

We are constantly receiving shipments of late styles, thus keeping our stock up to the times.

CREDITED TO CHAS. DICKENS

Famous Author is Accused of Originating the Remark "23"

A very erudite fan, who writes on violet scented [illegible] blue vellum, hands us the only really truly source from which grew the expression, "twenty-three," that he adds to the very long list and like all the others draws rather on his imagination than on his memory or knowledge for his facts, says Gym Bagley.

I will set this much disputed origin of "twenty-three" at rest right here And it has no cause to blush for that same origin, for it was fathered by no less a literary guy than Chas. Dickens, It occurs in 'A Tale of Two Cities." Sydney Carlton has his neck under the guillotine. There was a bunch of them that day who lost out by a head. The 22nd victim had checked his topper in the basket, when Carlton's turn came. Then to quote, "The pressing in of many footsteps in the outskirts of the crowd so that it swells forward in a mass, like one great heave of water, all flashes away. Twenty-three."

DEER TIES UP SOO RAIL MILL

Thousands of Men Idle for Several Hours as, Result

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Nov. 2—A frightened deer dashed into rolling mill at the plant of the Algoma Steel Company today and leaped into the rolls which were turning out steel rails. As a result 1000 men were idle several hours.

A buck and doe emerged from the river near the plant and wandered about the yards. When a yard engine came steaming by the buck deserted his companion and plunged into the river again but the doe trembling with fear, dashed in the diretoin of the mill. Rushing along the tracks and leaping over the heads of the startled workmen she landed on the steaming rolls and was so badly injured that she had to be killed.

The doe was one of the finest specimens ever seen in the north country.

THE HOOK

This combination of balloon and automobile that was tried out in Indiana yesterday leaves nothing in the line of horrors to be discovered.

Now that nearly everybody has heard that story about being friendly to England the Kaiser might tell it to the marines.

Airship inventors who want to soar should see that their machines closely imitate the motions being made in Cobalt stocks.

The inspector was examining Standard I. and all the class had been specially told beforehand by their master, "Don't answer unless you are almost certain your answer is correct."

"Now tell me," said he inspector "who was the mother of our great Scottish hero, Robert Bruce."

He pointed to the top boy, then around the class. There wasn't an answer. Then at last the heart of the teacher of that class leaped with joy. The boy who was standing at the very foot of the class held up his hand

"Well my boy," said the inspector, encouragingly, "who was she."

"Please sir, Mrs. Bruce."

"What do they do at the Chaucer Club

"Oh, the members talk about one another."

"And what if all the members are present."

"Then they have to talk about Chaucer."

ONE ON THE REV. HUGH REDLEY

A Good Joke on the Well Known Congregational Minister

Many in this vicinity know personally Rev. Hugh Pedley, now of Montreal, one of the most gifted men in Canada. They will therefore be able to appreciate the following, which we take from the Canadian Congregationalist:

During my Cobourg and Cold Springs pastorate I was invited to preach a Sunday school anniversary sermon in the Methodist Church, Camborne. To me it was quite an important occasion, and I made strenuous preparation. I was kindly received at the church, and the young preacher who was in charge came with me into the pulpit. A little before sermon time I whispered to him that I would like him to take the prayer after the sermon, and he consented to do this. The sermon was preached, a special sermon, an anniversary sermon, and then came the prayer. With the exception of the one underscored petition, I cannot give the exact phrasing of his prayer for the preacher of the day, but it was somewhat after this manner: "O, Lord, do Thou bless him who has spoken to us this day. Bless him in his church, and bless him in this. Enrich his soul, strengthen his body, and O Lord, be mercifully pleased to brighten his intellect."

WEDDING BELLS

NORISH---PRESTON

A very pretty and interesting wedding was solemnized on the evening of Nov. 4th at Cedar Lodge, the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. William Norish, Lakefield, when her daughter Mary was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Bruce Preston, Smith. The ceremony, which took place at 7 o'clock, was performed by the Rev. J. Bedford, of Lakefield, beneath a bower of green and white. The bride was dressed in a cream liberty satin sheath gown with a tucked net yoke and trimmed with Parisian silk lace and French knots, the whole dress being hand made, and wore the conventional Brussels net veil with bridal roses in her hair, and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and smilax, and was given away by her uncle, Mr. James Bickell. Little Miss Hertha Preston, niece of the groom, acted as maid of honor and looked charming in a white silk dress over blue. While Master Elwood Girven, cousin of the bride, acted as page and carried the ring in a silver basket. Miss Roxie Bickell, Miss Eva Alford, Miss Freda Preston and Miss Olive Jory made pretty ribbon girls. The bridal party entered the parlor to the strain of Mendelssohn, played by Miss Lillian Montgomery. After the ceremony Mr. Charles Blyun, from London, sang "O, Promise Me," after which the guests, numbering about seventy, repaired to the dining room and sat down to a sumptuous dejeuner. A few hours were then spent in social intercourse. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome set of furs; to the maid of honor a gold ring, and to the page a gold monogram stickpin. The popularity of the young couple was evidenced by the number of many costly gifts she received, among which were a dinner set and an oak bedroom suite from the bride's mother, and a well-filled purse from the groom's mother. Presents were sent from Winnipeg, Essex, Toronto, Woodstock, Whitby and other places. The bride's going away suit was made of brown medena stripe, with a white net waist over white silk and a white satin felt hat with plumes. The happy couple drove to Peterborough amid showers of rice, and left on the early train for Woodstock, Whitby and other points west.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Preston will reside in Smith, and they have the best wishes of a large circle of friends for their future happiness and prosperity.

Mrs. Preston will receive at her home, Maple Lane, in Smith, on and after Dec. 1st.

THEATRICAL

BONNIE BRIER BUSH

The Bonnie Brier Bush was the offering at the Grand Opera House last night, and was presented by a capable and well balanced company, to a large and appreciative audience. Mr. J. Palmer Collins, in the roll of Lachlan Campbell, for many years personated so ably by the late veteran actor, J. H. Stoddard, scored a distinct success. Mr. Collins is by his artistic ability and admirable interpretation of the stern, ruggid Scotch shepherd, a worthy successor of his great and renowned predecessor. His work last night was of a most finished character, and faithful in every detail. Mr. Ward E. Rennselien, as "Posty," a character so conspicuously portrayed for many years by Mr. Reuben Fax, his bright, original and quaint and demonstrated strong individualism and independence in his personification servant of the crown. The work of Mr. Collins and Mr. Rennselien cannot be too highly commended. Miss Adelaide Matthews as Kate Carnegie gave a delightful and pleasing representation of the earnest American girl, whose heart is in the right place. Miss Marion Macdonald as Flora Campbell, and Mr. Daniel Jarrett, jr., as Lord Hay, won many friends by their efficient delineations. The remainder of the cast evidenced much skill and proficiency and the production gave unbounded satisfaction.

As the name indicates, "The Bonnie Brier Bush" is a Scotch rural play telling of how the son of an earl, Lord Donald Hay, wins the heart of the old shepherd's daughter Flora Campbell, and weds her in the Scotch fashion before being taken away by his father. Lachlan Campbell, the shepherd, finds that his daughter is writing to Lord Donald Hay, and not believing in the marriage story, he casts her from the house with bitter reproaches, afterwards erasing her name from the family Bible. But his old heart is sore troubled and he is on the verge of breaking down with wretchedness and the reproaches of his friends, when his daughter returns, as well as Lord Donald to claim his wife. The legality of the Scotch marriage is established by Archibald McKitlick, known as "Posty," the mail carrier who has witnessed the wedding from behind the convenient hay stack.

"The Bonnie Brier Bush" will be presented at the Grand Opera House again Thanksgiving Day, matinee and evening, and should attract a bumper house.

Extra-Great News From The Carpet Department!

AN ELEVEN DAYS' SALE OF SHORT ENDS
COMMENCING TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3rd AND CLOSING SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14th, at 9:30 O'CLOCK, P. M.

Coming events cast their shadows before. We have been asked many times recently, "Why don't you have a sale in "Carpets?" But, sales cannot materialise simply on request. There must be stronger reasons than that. But now the Golden Opportunity is here and great will be the Saving for those who take advantage of it.

The Carpet Department has informed us that it is impossible to secure duplicates of many lots now in stock. Manufacturers seem to like to change patterns and colorings, simply for the sake of having something new. We have to keep step, so the remaining odd lots of Carpets must go and a very vigorous reduction in the price is the motive power. So we put these patterns into a special sale, because it is expected that special prices encourage special buying, and we are quite sure that those who have single rooms or even an occasional suite to carpet, can find ample selection in this showing.

MEN UNITED IN PRAYER THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

Week of Prayer Being Held Under Auspices of Y.M.C.A. From November 8th to 15th.

A week of prayer is being held by the Young Men's Christian Associations in North America, Nov. 8th to 15th, and in connection therewith the following circular has been issued;

A CALL TO PRAYER

By act of the Washington Convention and its predecessors, the Young Men's Christian Associations of North America, are asked to unite with the Associations throughout the world in setting apart the week beginning with the second Lord's Day in November and continuing through the following Lord's Day, November 8th to 15th to emphasize the use of the mighty spiritual force of prayer in our work for young men.

Our need as Associations of more emphasises on prayer life and prayer work is most urgent. We are living in an intense age of practical materialism. Despondence on things material, forgetfulness of things spiritual prevail upon us. Will you not seize this opportunity to so wield the forces of the prayer kingdom as to make them, though unseen by the senses, mightier than what the senses can grasp, and effective in accomplishing for young men the best that the Association can offer them.

Your are urged to join in this effort the brotherhood is now making to enlist each and every department and agency of the Association, within and outside of the building, in that sort of prayer, worship, communion and intercession which brings divine power into the lives and characters of Association workers, and into the quality and quantity of our work among young men.

The International Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations,

LUCIEN C. WARNE,
Chairman.
RICHARD C. MORSE,
General Secretary.

124 East 28th Street, New York.
September 25, 1908.

The subjects for daily prayer are as follows;

Sunday, Nov. 8th—

1. The Associations of Europe.
2. The World's Committee and its Secretaries.
3. The Young Men of Europe, especially of France, Spain, Portugal, Russia, Belgium, Austria, Italy and the Balkan States.

Monday, Nov. 9th—

1. The Metropolitan and City Association of America.
2. The International Committee and its Secretaries.
3. The Young Men and Associations of Africa.

Tuesday, Nov. 10—

1. The Boys and Boys' Departments of North America,
2. The State and Provincial Committees.
3. The Young Men and Associations of Cuba, Mexico, Panama and Central and South America.

Wednesday, Nov. 11—

1. The Student and Student Associations of North America.
2. The Boards of Directors and Committees of Management.
3. The Young Men and Associations of India, Ceylon, China, Japan, Korea.

2. The Physical and Educational Directors and the Departments they promote.
3. The Young Men and Associations of Turkey, Asia Minor, The Levant.

Sunday, Nov. 15—

A day of thanksgiving and evangelistic endeavor.

INFORMATION FOR THOSE WHO PRAY.

Sunday, November 8.

The Associations of Europe.—

1. In the twenty nations of Europe, speaking twenty-two languages, Associations exist. Besides vigorous city organizations in Britain there are similar Associations in Berlin, Barmen, Elberfeld, Stuttgart, Stockholdm, Paris, Geneva and many other cities. The great need is more trained efficient secretaries. The 130 Associations in France have hardly a dozen such officers. Italy, with twenty-five Associations, has only one. Equal need exists in Spain, Portugal, and Belgium. The Austrian Empire at 120 points, has only three Secretaries among its German Tcheck, Polish and Italian speaking young men. The great Magyar Nation has with forty Associations one only YMCA. Secretary

2. The Greek Catholic countries like Greece, and the Balkan States, Roumania, Servia, Bulgaria, Bosnia, Dalmatia, Macedonia, Montenegro, etc. with their millions of people, have but one Association Secretary, and there are only two, both at St. Petersburg, for the one hundred and thirty million people of the Russian Empire. Yet a new day is breaking. The Czar has given promise of long desired religious freedom, and an opening has been made for God-sent laborers.

3. Pray for the more trained leaders of all departments, for more and better buildings, and for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit in the quickening of religious work and Bible study.

The World's Committee.—

1. This Committee is composed of representatives of the Associations in all nations; is appointed by the World's Conference. Its headquarters are in Geneva, Switzerland, where last August at its annual meeting 12 nations of Asia, Europe and America were represented. Its field of service has hitherto consisted chiefly of the continent of Europe, where it has promoted successfully a trained secretaryship, better Association equipment and the invigoration of many of the Associations in smaller cities and towns, and in Latin countries, where their weakness urgently calls for help from the stronger members of the Association brotherhood.

2. From many of these countries multitudes of young men are coming to North America as immigrants, and a work of correspondence, visitation and hospitality on their behalf is being happily undertaken by the Worlds Committee in co-operation with various European National Committees, our own International Committee and with City Associatoins on both sides of the Atlantic.

The Offering.—

The offering to be taken today is devoted to the prosecution of the peculiarly difficult but most important work of the World's Committee. In view of the special emphasis the Committee is placing on the immigration work at the ports whence so many thousands are leaving for North America, the Associations are urgently requested to make a generous response.

R. L. Borden will not announce till the session opens whether he will sit for Carleton or Halifax.

Parliament will not assemble till January as the House will not be ready for occupancy before then.

$100 FINE AGAINST HORSE AND OWNER, $50 FOR DRIVER

Peterborough Turf Club's Judgment in Protest Made at the Fair Races—Case of Great Interest in Local Turf Circles Dealt With—Turf Club's Winter Races

The most important matter considered at last night's meeting of the Peterborough Turf Club at the City Hotel parlors was dealing with the protest against Walter G., the horse that was suspected of being Little Hector at the races at the Peterborough Fair last fall, and against whom a protest was lodged by Dr. Leach, the owner of Holland Boy, and Gerald Dunsford, the manager and driver of Hazel Belle. He did not identify the horse in the thirty days given him to do so. The Turf Club extended the time to Nov. 1st and ordered the owner to pay over the first prize monies he had wrongfully obtained. No identification was attempted, however, and the money was not returned, so a disposal of the affair at last night's meeting was in order. There were about seventeen members of the club in attendance and a long discussion and consideration of the affair took place.

Secretary Gauthier of the National Trotting Association empowered the Peterborough Turf Club to settle the protest as their judgment would dictate. They accordingly imposed a fine of $100 against the owner of the horse, T. Hodgins, of Orillia; $100 against the horse, and $50 against Sid. Passmore. The two men and the horse were suspended until the fines have been paid and the identification of the horse established.

WINTER RACING.

It was decided to hold a matinee at the Driving Park on Dec. 24, when two classes will be contested for. The first field will step mile heats and the other class half-mile heats.

A winter meeting will also be held on Jan. 13th and 14th. Preparations have been made to make the matinee and meet the most successful ever held in Peterborough, and a great field of horses will start in both.

Further particulars concerning the race fixtures will be given in to-morrow's Review.

BEN SIMPSON IS NOTABLE FIGURE IN RUGBY CIRCLES

The Ottawa Free Press says: Outside of some good stiff line bucking, Tigers only have one dangerous spot, viz., right half back Ben Simpson.

Simpson is a finished back, punts, catches and runs equally well. Therefore he is one of the men the Ottawa wings will have to watch next Saturday. He is on Jack Ryan's side of the line, but when his side is in possession he plays centre half so close to the scrimmage it is a wonder many of his kicks are not blocked. Like most backs he is good with lots of protection, and so the Tigers have been able to accord him that protection. His scrimmage and wings envelope him in a semi-circle that makes it very difficult to reach him.

Although the Ottawa backs will avoid him when kicking, as much as possible, the ball is bound to find its way Simpsonward, and it is right here the mettle of the crack punter will be tested. If he stands the following up of Ryan and Stronach, and breaks away before they get him, he is a good one.

The Ottawa line will also have to watch Simpson's short kick to enable centre half Burton or Biggs, which ever plays, pushing up on-side and gettin gthe ball. That stunt was worked several times in Hamilton for big Tiger gains and accounted for one of their touchdowns

BURN CROOKED SAYS STAR; KNOCK FOR PETERBOROUGH

From Quebec today comes a wire to the effect that the officials there are sure that the ringer, "W. Beland," who won the Quebec Daily Telegraph road race is Fred Meadows and that he was identified by Montreal people.

In an interview, yesterday morning in Guelph, Meadows indignantly denied that he was the man and said he had not been out of town. In the evening he refused to talk at all about the race, confining himself to generalities about the press. He will not say whether or not he was in Quebec but it is understood that he was out of the city. He says the papers never did give him a fair shake, and they can do what they like now to investigate the charge. Telegrams have been sent to him by nearly all the leading papers in the country. He states that he was in the city yesterday, although inquiry at his boarding house elicited the information that he was out of the city. 'If the charge was true nothing could be done but to professionalise me,' he said, "and I am not taking any chances of injuring another runner."

The Quebec despatch says:

Fred Meadows of the Toronto West End is alleged to be the young man who won the Quebec Telegraph road race under the name of Walter Beland brother of a local runner named Dave Beland. The judges of the race in question after a careful investigation, have this day declared that they have discovered the identity of the winner of the race to be Fred Meadows of Toronto, who participated in the Olympic games.

To make matters worse, the winner on Saturday night last at the conclusion of the race, under examination said he was born at Sillery, Quebec, and baptized in St. Patrick's church. He said he was an amateur, and never raced before. Prior to coming here he lived in Toronto, but came here four weeks ago, he said.

It was remarked on Saturday that "Walter Beland" did not wait in the QAA clubhouse with the other runners until told to get ready for the start by the officials, but appeared for a moment and disappeared, appearing again however, when the runners lined up on Grande Alle. It appears that David Beland applied at the door of a resident near the QAA clubhouse to allow his brother to enter the house out of the cold, and there wait until the runners were notified to line up for the start. He said, the clubhouse was too cold. The request was granted and Dave Beland asked the man of the house not to speak to his brother as he (his brother) was foolish.

Those on the inside say the deal was practically framed up on the return voyage of the Olympic team, but the Toronto members of the team are loth to believe that it was Meadows. They would rather believe it was Art Burn of Calgary who has been mixed up in queer races before He and Dave Beland both are well known in Peterborough which for crooked foot racing has Hamilton or Brantford chased back to the kindergarten. Beland, Meadows and Burn were cabin mates on the Victorian coming home. —Toronto Star.

SIMPSON LOOKS GOOD TO THEM

Hamilton Paper Thinks He Has Good Chance on Thanksgiving Day

Fred Simpson, the Peterborough Indian, is thought to stand an excellent chance. The redskin is showing more speed since his trip to England and if he has one of his good days on Monday, he should be right up. In fact, it looks like Parsons, Coley and Simpson as the big three to make all the running, although big Tim O'Rourke, of the Irish-Canadians, claims that Percy Sellen will cut quite a figure in the race, despite the fact that 19 miles is just a trifle more than he cares to go. Sellen had a good seven mile trial yesterday and should be right up if he can last the distance. —Hamilton Spectator.

WRESTLING

Jim Parr, the famous English wrestler, and Westegardt, the Swiss, will furnish the headline attraction at the regular Friday night entertainment at Sohmer Park this week.

It had been intended that Eugene Tremblay should wrestle Mack, the Irishman, but Tremblay has developed blood poisoning, and will probably be out of the game for a few days. He injured his knee during a recent bout and through a lack of sufficient attention the injury has become serious, but his doctor says that he will be in shape to meet Art Edmunds in Toronto, Friday, Nov. 20th.

Parr has just returned from England, where he had gone to claim $12,000 which he inherited under the will of his father. While he was on the other side he took part in many bouts, and came out of them all with flying colors.

Westegardt will be up against a wrestler of his own class in Jim Parr, and should be pressed to the limit.

DEER AND LONGBOAT

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Matthew Deerfoot, said to be a relative of the famous Deerfoot, the great Indian runner, has arrived here from Colorado on the way to New York, where he proposes to issue a challenge to the Italian runner, Pietro Dorando, the hero of the Marathon fiasco, who is expected in the Metropolis soon.

Deerfoot, who is said to be a greater distance runner than Shrubb or Longboat, is being sent East by a Syndicate of Western mining men, who are prepared to back him heavily against any professional runner in the world.

Young Deerfoot, who is twenty years old, lanky in build and with all the characteristics of the distance performer, is thought to be one of the best runners ever produced in the West. He has beaten many good men in the events in which he has competed, but little has been heard of him in the East. His record in Indian races in his native State is remarkable, according to report. Recently he ran five miles in competition in 24.52, which, if authenticated, is a very fine performance.

The Western Indian, while East, will probably not turn his attention to Dorando, but will try to inveigle Shrubb and Longboat into matches, which he believes he can win.

A DESPERATE SITUATION

New York, Nov. 4.—The single ray of hope in the present gloomy racing situation is the fact that the Westchester Racing Association and the Coney Island Jockey Club have both announced that they will hold meetings next year.

There is a long hard winter intervening, however, and when Jamaica closes its gates to-day, and winds up the metropolitan season of 1908 it will leave hundreds of horsemen and horses idle and in want. Few have money with which to ship their stables, and if they had there is practically no place to ship to.

Transportation across the continent to 'Frisco is prohibitive in cost, and the track is already overcrowded, as is that at Los Angeles. Promises of racing at New Orleans and Hot Springs meet with little confidence. The only hope for the majority fo those here is to trust to getting stalls at Latonia, where the outcome of the game is indefinite, or to try a chance for the tiny purses on the Florida and State fair tracks. The Texas meeting may be extended, but this is not certain.

As a result of the present situation it is likely that another blow may be dealt the turf game by the inauguration of a series of outlaw tracks in various States. These courses may give temporary relief to a number of horsemen, but such institutions have always killed the racing game everywhere winter racing flourished. The idea is to have a string of such courses in Maryland and West Virginia. Small meetings are talked of for Savannah, but if the game is to be revived this winter to any extent it will have to be on the Texas circuit.

Where the California element is alarmed is over the statement that Tammany interests here may decide to start a series of outlaw tracks along the coast. Half-mile merry-go-rounds can be built at little cost, and unless the Lelislature wipes out the game next spring they could flourish without interference.

Rossland last week shipped 6,193 tons of ore and for the last year to date 237,417 tons.

HOAGLAND HERE FOR RELAY RACE TO-NIGHT AGAINST TEAM OF 4 ROLLER SKATERS

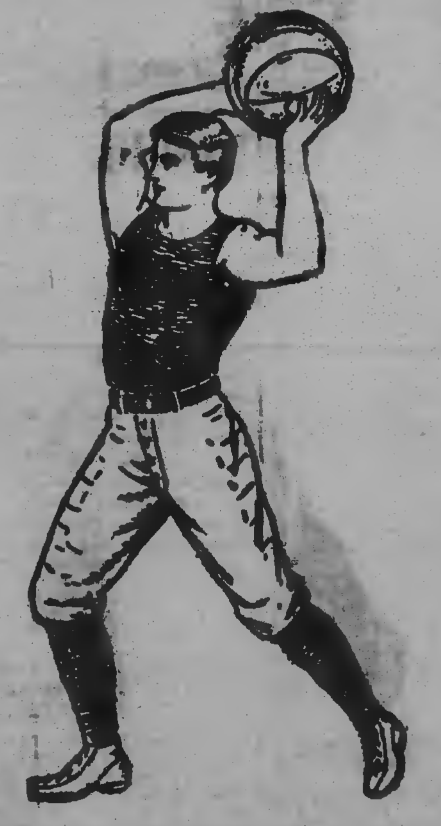
Champion Walker Will Have to Perform at Top Speed—Will Walk Two Miles at Auditorium Roller Rink to His Opponents Four—Commences at 9.30

Hoagland, the champion pedestrian, is in the city for his relay race to-night at the Auditorium roller rink, when he will meet a relay team of four roller skaters in a handicap match. He will endeavor to beat them in a handicap, the skaters to go two miles while he is going one, and each skater will skate a mile relay so they will have to travel four miles while Hoagland does two. It will keep the famous walker hustling to win out, as Prof. Genno has picked an exceptionally speedy quartette, and he himself will do a relay burst in the race. The public of the city will be glad to welcome back the popular walker, and no doubt a crowd of large proportions will be there to see the race. It was easy money for him when he won the big six day walking tournament here last spring, and while he let out some awful clips then, the speed he showed will be nothing to what he will have to make this evening, for he will have to sprint the limit from the word "go" to pull in ahead of the flyers on the rollers, and will be competing with a fresh man for every mile. The race starts at at 9.30 sharp, and since the galleries have been constructed at the rink comfortable accommodation for 1,500 people has been provided.

Mr. Hoagland paid a friendly call to the Review this morning and chatted in his unassuming way about walking and other matters. He is in good condition for his contest this evening, and fresh from a race at the Auburn armories, N.Y., where he met Ed. Weire, the clever walker, in a handicap match. Hoagland gave Weire a quarter of a mile in 10 miles and undertook a little too much, the latter winning from him by less than 100 yards. It was a great race and the champion made the distance in wonderfully fast time. His performance showed that he was able to handily beat his opponent in an even match, but the handicap was a little too great.

Hoagland anticipates walking against a roller skater at the Coliseum in Buffalo next week, but has not yet made final arrangements. He states to-day that walking races of three hours a night are planned to take place in Auburn, Trenton and Philadelphia.

To-morrow night he again starts against a relay team of four men at the roller rink, the race to commence at 9.30 o'clock.



Basketball has taken quite a firm hold in Canadian Y.M.C.A. athletics and promises to be more popular than ever in Peterborough this winter. The two most important local games so far this year will be played on Saturday night between the Tigers and Rustlers, and the Maple Leafs and Brownies.

BOXING

Tommy Daly was given the decision in Brantford on Monday night by Referee Mills, although his opponent clearly had the better of the ten-round affair. Evidently Tommy and Mills had a prior arrangement, as both would be very eager to pick up a little soft stuff and open to such a deal. These queer doings will hardly boom the game in Brantford.—Hamilton Spectator.

It is about time that the C.A.A.U. looked over the boxing and wrestling field. There is just a little too much of this mixing of amateurs and pros. in view of the stand taken by the C.A.A.U. on other matters.—Hamilton Spectator.

LACROSSE

Mr. W. J. Elliott, captain of last year's St. Catharines lacrosse team, is in the city to-day. He is representing the Whitman Barnes Co., of that city. He has numerous acquaintances, and is being warmly greeted by them. He is one of the best lacrosse players in the province and was a member of the St. Catharines champion lacrosse teams of 1904 and 1905.

HIS MAGIC FAILED.

The Result Was Physically Painful and a Blow to His Reputation.

"One of the funniest things that ever happened to me," said the old magician, who was in a reminiscent mood, "occurred a number of years ago while I was making a tour of the country. At that time my favorite card was the box trick, where I allowed myself to be put in a sack, after which I was locked in a box, which was tied up and put in the cabinet, from which I emerged a moment later, bowing and smiling. It always brought down the house and was a subject for discussion long after I had left.

"Well, I gave my performance one night at a small town, and after the show was over I went to the little hotel and retired for the night, the old man who kept the hotel showing me to my room with all the deference that he would give to a king. The bed in the room was a folding one, and no sooner was I in than it closed up like a jackknife. Fortunately for me, I realized what was happening in time to roll to one side, so that when the bed closed it left my head out. But otherwise I was powerless, and there was nothing to do but yell for help, which I did to the best of my ability. Finally I succeeded in making the landlord hear me, and he came to the door and wanted to know what the matter was.

"'This cussed bed has shut up and caught me in it!' I shouted.

"'Waal, why don't ye git out?' he drawled.

"'I can't!' I bawled.

"'Humph! A feller what kin git out of a sack after he has been put in a box and locked up ought ter be able ter git out of a bed,' he answered.

"It took fifteen minutes' steady argument on my part to convince the old man that my skill in getting out of difficult places did not include folding beds, and even then he seemed to think I had caused him a lot of unnecessary trouble.

"All he said when at last he released me was:

"'Humph! Ye ain't ez big a man ez I thought ye wuz!'"—Detroit Free Press.

Baseball Fans.

"Dear me," remarked the perspiring old lady who was making her first visit to a baseball game, "I don't see how people can tell such terrible fibs."

"What now, auntie?" asked the city niece, in surprise.

"Why, the paper stated that there were thousands of 'fans' out here every afternoon, and I am suffering with the heat and can't find one."—Chicago News.

Wise Precaution.

The mercury was trying to ooze out at the top of the farmhouse thermometer, and the old farmer was pitching chunks of ice in the pond.

"What are you doing that for?" queried the summer boarder.

"That's t' keep th' pesky ducks from layin' hard, b'iled eggs," answered the rural philosopher.—Pittsburg Post.

Inconsistent.

"Ye lazy loafer," cried big Mrs. Hoolahan, "stroike or no stroike I'll not hov ye standin' round doin' nothin'!"

"Well, well," meekly replied little Hoolahan, "'tis most onr'asonin' ye are. Last Chewsd'y ye told me if I didn't behave mesel' ye'd make me stand round, an' now thot I'm doin' it ye kick."—Philadelphia Press.

A Matter of Policy.

"I observe," said the friend, "that you always speak kindly of your political opponent."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "It is just as well. It conveys the impression that I have him beaten and can afford to be generous."—Washington Star.

A Fakir.

THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

I once took part in a wild boar hunt on the coast of California. Our dogs had penned a small band at the head of a narrow barranca, from which a single steep trail led over the hill. We, perched on another hill some 300 or 400 yards away, shot at the animals as they toiled up the trail. The range was long, but we had time, for the severity of the climb forced the boars to a foot pace.

It was exactly like that. Percy Darrow had 200 feet of ascent to make. He could go just so fast; must consume just so much time in his snail-like progress up the face of the hill. During that time he furnished an excellent target, and the loose sandstone showed where each shot struck.

A significant indication was that the men did not take the trouble to get nearer, for which maneuver they would have had time in plenty, but distributed themselves leisurely for a shooting match.

"First shot," claimed Handy Solomon, and without delay fired offhand. A puff of dust showed to the right. "Nerve no good," he commented. "Jerked her just as I pulled."

Puls fired from the knee. The dust this time puffed below.

"Thought she'd carry up that distance," he muttered.

The nigger, too, missed, and Thrackles grinned triumphantly.

"I get a show," said he.

He spread his massive legs apart, drew a deep breath and raised his weapon. It lay in his grasp steady as a log, and I saw that Percy Darrow's fate was in the hands of that dangerous class of natural marksman that possesses no nerves. But for the second time my teeth saved his life. The trigger guard slipped against Thrackles' lacerated hand almost at the instant of discharge. He missed, and the bullet went wide.

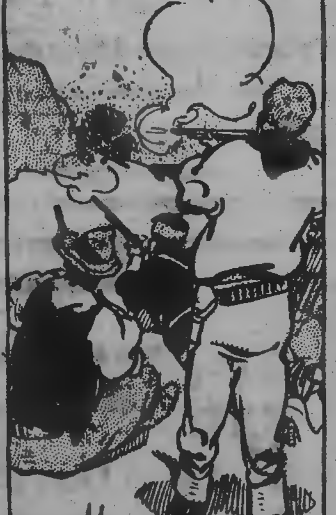
Darrow had climbed a matter of twenty feet.

Now, the seamen distributed themselves for more leisurely and accurate marksmanship. Handy Solomon lay flat on his stomach, resting the rifle muzzle across the top of a sand dune. Puls sat down, an elbow on either knee for the greater steadiness. The nigger knelt, but Thrackles remained on his feet. No rest could be steadier than the stonelike rigidity of his thick arms.

The firing now became miscellaneous. No one paid any attention to any one else. Each discovered what I could have told them, that even the human figure at 500 yards is a small mark for a strange rifle. The constant correction of elevation, however, brought the puffs of dust always closer, and I could not but realize that the doctrine of chances must bring home some of the bullets. I soon discovered by way of comfort that only Thrackles and Handy Solomon really understood firearms, and of those two Thrackles alone had had much experience at long range. He told me afterward he had hunted otter.

About halfway up the cliff Thrackles fired his fifth shot. No dust followed the discharge, and I saw Percy Darrow stagger and almost lose his hold. The men yelled savagely, but the assistant pulled himself together and continued his crawling.

The sun had been shining in our faces. I could imagine its blurring effect on the sights. Now abruptly it was blotted out, and a semitwilight fell. We all looked up in spite of ourselves. An opaque veil had been drawn quite across the heavens, through which we could not make out even the shape of the sun. It was like a thunder cloud except that its under surface instead of being the usual gray black was a deep earth brown. As we looked up a deep bellow stirred the air, which had fallen quite still, long forks of lightning shot horizontally from the direction of the island's interior, and flashes of dull red were reflected from the canopy of cloud.



The firing now became miscellaneous.

The men stared with their mouths open. Undoubtedly the change had been some time in preparation, but all had been so absorbed in the affair of the doctor's assistant that no one had noticed. It came to our consciousness with the suddenness of a theatrical change. A dull roaring commenced, grew in volume, and then a great explosion shook the very ground under our feet.

We stared at each other, our faces whitening.

"What kind of hell has broke loose?" muttered Puls.

The nigger fell flat on his face, uttering deep lamentations.

"Voodoo! Voodoo!" he groaned.

A gentle shower of white flakes began, powdering the surface of everything. Far out to sea we could make out the sun on the water. Gradually the roaring died down. The lightning ceased. Comparative peace ensued. We looked again toward the cliff. Percy Darrow had not for one instant ceased to climb. He was just topping the edge of the bluff. Handy Solomon with a cry of rage seized another rifle and emptied the magazine at him as fast as the lever could be worked. The dust flew wild in a half dozen places. Darrow drew himself up to the sky line, raised his hat ironically and disappeared.

"D— his soul!" cried Handy Solomon, his face livid. He threw his rifle to the beach and danced on it in an ecstacy of rage.

"What do we care?" growled Thrackles. "He's no good to us. W'at I want to know is w'at's up here anyhow!"

"Did you ever see a volcano go off, you swab?" snapped Handy Solomon.

"Easy with your names, mate. No, I never did. We better get out."

"Without the chest?"

"S'pose we go up the gulch and get it, then," suggested Thrackles.

But at this Handy Solomon drew back in evident terror.

"Up to that hole?" he objected. "Not I. You an' Puls go."

They wrangled over it, Puls joining. Pendosa, shaken to the soul, crept in and made a bee line for the rum barrel. He and the nigger were frankly scared. They had the nervous jumps at every little noise or unexpected movement, and even the natural explanation of these phenomena gave them very little reassurance. I knew that Darrow would hurry as fast as he could back to the valley by way of the upper hills. I knew that he had there several sporting rifles, and I hoped greatly that he and Dr. Schermerhorn might accomplish something before the men had recovered their wits to the point of foreseeing his probable attack. The uncanny cloud in the heavens, the weird half light and the explosions, which now grew more frequent, had their strong effect in spite of explanation. The men were not really afraid to venture in quest of the supposed treasure, but they were in a frame of mind that dreaded the first plunge. And time was going by.

But the fates were against us, as always in this ill starred voyage. I, watching from the sand dune, saw a second figure emerge from the arroyo's mouth. It appeared to stagger as though hurt, and every eight or ten paces it stopped and rested in a bent over position. The murky light was too dim for me to make out details. But after a moment a rift in the veil enabled me to identify Dr. Schermerhorn carrying, with great difficulty, the chest.

CHAPTER XXIII.

I TOOK no chances, but began at once to shout as soon as I saw the men had noticed his coming. It was impossible for me to tell whether or not Dr. Schermerhorn heard me. If he did he misunderstood my intention, for he continued painfully to advance. The only result I gained was to get myself well gagged with my own pocket handkerchief and thrown in a hollow between the dunes. Thence I could hear Handy Solomon speaking fiercely and rapidly.

"Now you let me run this," he commanded. "We got to find out somethin'. It ain't no good to us without we knows, and we want to find out how he's got the rest hid."

They assented.

"I'm goin' out to help him carry her in," announced the seaman.

A long pause ensued, in which I watched the deep canopy of red black thicken overhead. A strange and unearthly light had fallen on the world, and the air was quite still. After awhile I heard Handy Solomon and Dr. Schermerhorn join the group.

"There you are, perfesser," cried Handy Solomon in tones of the greatest heartiness. "I'll put her right there, and she'll be as safe as a babby at home. She's heavy, though."

Dr. Schermerhorn laughed a pleased and excited laugh. I could tell by the tone of his voice that he was strung high and guessed that his triumph needed an audience.

"You may say so well," he said. "It iss heafy, and it iss heafy with the world desire, the great substance that can do efferythinng. Where iss Percy?"

"He's gone aboard."

"We must embark. The time is joost right. A day sooner and the egsperiment would haf been spoilt, but now"—he laughed—"let the island sink, we do not care. We must embark hastily."

"It'll take a man long time to carry down all your things, perfesser."

"Oh, led them go! The eruption has alretty swallowed them oop. The lava iss by now a foot deep in the valley. Before long it flows here, so we must embark."

"But you've lost all them vallyable things, perfesser," said Handy Solomon. "Now, I call that hard luck."

Dr. Schermerhorn snapped his fingers.

"They do not amoundt to that!" he cried. "Here, here, in this leetle box iss all the treasure! Here iss the labor of ten years! Here iss the Laughing Lass and all the crew and all the equipmendt comprised. Here iss the world!"

"I'm a plain seaman, perfesser, and I suppose I got to believe you, but she's a main small box for all that."

"With that small box you can haf all your wishes," asserted the professor, still in the German lyric strain over his triumph. "It iss the box of enchantments. You haf but to will the change you would haf taig place—it iss done. The substance of the rocks, the molecule—all!"

"Could a man make diamonds?" asked Puls abruptly. I could hear the sharp intake of the men's breathing as they hung on the reply.

"Much more wonderful changes than that it can accomplish," replied the doctor, with an indulgent laugh. "That change iss simple. Carbon iss coal; carbon iss diamond. You see? One has but to change the form, not the substance."

"Then it'll change coal to diamonds?" asked Handy Solomon.

"Yes; you gather my meanings"—

I heard a sharp squeak like a terrified mouse. Then a long, dreadful silence; then two dull, heavy blows, spaced with deliberation. A moment later I caught a glimpse of Handy Solomon bent forward to the labor of dragging a body toward the sea, his steel claw hooked under the angle of the jaw as a man handles a fish. Puls came and threw off my bonds and gag.

"Come along!" said he.

All kept looking fearfully toward the arroyo. A dense white steam marked its course. The air was now heavy with portent. Successive explosions, some light, some severe, shook the foundations of the island. Great rocks and bowlders bounded down the hills. The flashes of lightning had become more frequent. We moved, exaggerated to each other's vision by the strange light, uncouth and gigantic.

"Let's get out of this!" cried Thrackles.

We turned at the word and ran, Thrackles staggering under the weight of the chest. All our belongings we abandoned and set out for the Laughing Lass with only the tatters in which we stood. Luckily for us a great part of the ship's stores had been returned to her hold after the last thorough scrubbing, so we were in subsistence, but all our clothes, all our personal belongings, were left behind us on the beach. For after once we had topped the cliff that led over to the cove I doubt if any consideration on earth would have induced us to return to that accursed place.

The row out to the ship was wet and dangerous. Seismic disturbances were undoubtedly responsible for high pyramidic waves that lifted and fell without onward movement. We fairly tumbled up out of the dory, which we did not hoist on deck, but left at the end of the painter to beat her sides against the ship.

CHAPTER XXIV.

OUR haste, however, availed us little, for there was no wind at all. We lay for over two hours under the weird light, overcanopied by the red brown cloud, while the explosions shook the foundations of the world. Nobody ventured below. The sails flapped idly from the masts; the blocks and spars creaked; the three cornered waves rose straight up and fell again as though reaching from the deep.

When the men first began to sweat the sails up, evidently in preparation for an immediate departure, I objected vehemently.

"You aren't going to leave him on the island!" I cried. "He'll die of starvation."

They did not answer me, but after a little more, when my expostulations had become more positive, Handy Solomon dropped the halliard and drew me to one side.

"Look here, you," he snarled, "you'd better stow your gab! You're lucky to be here yourself, let alone botherin' your thick head about anybody else, and you can kiss the book on that! Do you know why you ain't with them carrion?" He jerked his thumb toward the beach. "It's because Solomon Anderson's your friend. Thrackles would have killed you in a minute 'count of his bit hand. I got you your chance. Now, don't be a fool, for I ain't goin' to stand between you and them another time. Besides, he won't last long if that volcano keeps at it."

He left me. Whatever truth lay in his assumption of friendship, and I doubted there existed much of either truth or friendship in him, I saw the common sense of his advice. I was in no position to dictate a course of action.

After the sails were on her we gathered at the starboard rail to watch the shore. There the hills ran into inky blackness, as the horizon sometimes merges into a thunder squall. A dense white steam came from the creek bed within the arroyo. The surges beat on the shore louder than the ordinary, and the foam even in these day hours seemed to throw up a faint phosphorescence. Frequent earthquakes oscillated the landscape. We watched, I do not know for what, our eyes straining into the murk of the island. Nobody thought of the chest, which lay on the cabin table aft. I contributed maliciously my bit to their fear.

Refused to Close for Four Years --Zam-Buk Healed Them Inside Two Weeks

Have you some eruption or sore, or ulcer, or wound, on any part of your body which has hitherto refused to close, no matter how treated? If so, that is a case for Zam-Buk, the great herbal balm. The herbal saps and essences in this balm are so powerful that they can heal the worst cases of chronic sores, ulcers, blood poison and skin diseases. Here are proofs of this:

Mrs. W. H. Taylor, of North Bay, Ont., says: "I had a scaly spot as big as a ten cent piece on my face. I had it for four years, and hardly a night during that time went by but what I applied cold cream or some ointment or other, but it would always be there. I recently applied Zam-Buk and in a little over a week's time the spot had disappeared completely."

Mrs. S. J. Holden, of 343 West Hannah street, Hamilton, says: "My little girl has a running sore on her leg which defied all treatment. I applied Zam-Buk, and in about a week's time the wound was closed. I have found Zam-Buk just as good for other skin troubles and injuries."

Mr. J. H. Hamilton, of Thornbury, says: "A friend of mine had an obstinate sore on her temple. It had been treated once or twice by a doctor, and would heal up for a short time, but would break out again. Zam-Buk healed it permanently and it shows no sign whatever of returning."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for all skin disease and injuries, such as cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, psoriasis, ulcers, scalp sores, cold sores, chapped hands, itch, rashes, tetter, face sores, etc. It is also an unequalled embrocation, and rubbed well into parts affected cures rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, cold on the chest, etc. All druggists and stores sell it, at 50c a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price.

A LECTURE FOR HIM.

Why the Bright Little Woman Scored Her Thoughtless Husband.

A bright little woman was recently overheard lecturing her husband as follows:

"Now I'll tell you why I wouldn't go into the restaurant and have a cup of coffee with you while we were waiting for the train. I didn't like the way you asked me. Not half an hour before you said to Mr. Puffer, 'Come, let's get a cigar,' and away you went, holding his arm and not giving him a chance to decline.

"When we met John Howdy on our way to luncheon you said: 'Just in time, John. Come take lunch with us.' And then tonight, when we had to wait an hour for the train, you looked at your watch, turned on me and said in a questioning way, 'Would you like a cup of coffee?' And I did want it. I was tired and a little hungry, but I would have fainted before I would have accepted such an invitation. And you went away a little bit vexed with me and had your coffee and bread and butter by yourself and didn't enjoy them very much. In effect you said to me, 'If you want a cup of coffee, if you really want it, I will buy it for you.'

"You are the best husband in the world, but do as nearly as all the best husbands do.

"Why do you men seem to dole out things to your wives when you fairly throw them to the men you know? Why didn't you invite me heartily as you invite men? Why didn't you say, 'Come, let's get a little coffee and something,' and take me straight away with you?

"You wouldn't say to a man, 'Would you like me to go and buy you a cigar?' Then why do you always issue your little invitations to treats in that way to me?

"Indeed, if men would only act toward their wives as heartily, cordially and frankly as they do toward the men whom they meet they would find cheerier companions at home than they could at the club."

PRICE OF A THRONE.

Luxury Expenditures at the Court of Napoleon.

One of the oldest Paris firms for gold and silk embroideries, a house which had already served Louis XVI. and his court with highly artistic needlework, is still in possession of its accounts of former centuries. An inspection of these books reveals a good summary of the luxury expenditures of the French court, the Bonapartistic as well as the legitimistic. Napoleon I., who for his own wants was, in contrast to the spendthrifty Josephine, very economical, went, though, to a large expense when it was for representative gala dresses. The 10,000 francs which he had to pay for the embroidery on his coronation robe he did not consider too high a price. But his embroidered frock coat that had cost him 3,500 francs and which became too tight for him not long after its first year he ordered to be widened by pieces of cloth and the new seams to be covered with embroideries. The bill for his throne, however, foots up to a pretty considerable amount. The outer drapery of purple velvet, trimmed with gold lace, was 10,200 francs. The red velvet panels were strewn with inworked golden bees at 5 francs apiece, and above the fauteuil the emperor's coat-of-arms was seen in raised embroidery; total cost, 16,200 francs. The inner drapery consisted of blue satin with gold lace at 9,600 francs. Gold embroidered stripes for the inner trimming cost 8,500 francs. Embroidery on the blue velvet fauteuil amounted to 3,020 francs, the foot cushion to 1,200. In addition there were 1,050 bees on the unembroidered panels of the baldachin at the price of 5,250 francs. Altogether the price of Napoleon's throne was 53,970 francs.—Harper's.

Delightful Gift.

Little Miss Hamlin is a grateful soul, and her many relations find it a pleasure to do her kindnesses and present her with appropriate gifts.

"You certainly were well remembered on your birthday," said a friend. "What did your uncle, Dr. Grantham, give you?"

"He hasn't given it to me yet," said little Miss Hamlin, "but next month, when he isn't quite so busy, he's going to give me my appendicitis operation. Isn't that good of him?"

Qualified to Do It.

"Did you know," said the tooth carpenter, looking up from his paper, "that the Indians practiced dentistry in the earliest times?"

"I didn't know it," replied the man who had once sat in a dentist's chair, "but I am not at all surprised. The Indians have always been a brutal and cruel race."

Then he laughed gleefully, forgetful of the fact that there was still time for the dentist to add $15 or $20 to his bill.

SPEAKERS SELECTED FOR FARMERS INSTITUTE

For Meetings in Ennismore and Lakefield—Are W. F. Kydd and Mrs. Campbell—Board Meets Saturday

The first two meetings this fall under the auspices of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute will be held in Ennismore on Wednesday, Dec. 9th, and at Lakefield on Thursday, Dec. 10th. The speakers will be W. F. Kydd, Simcoe, Mrs. Campbell, Windsor. Mrs. Campbell's subjects have not yet been announced, but Mr. Kydd will speak on the following subjects:

1. Am I raising the most profitable horse?
2. The dairy cow, her summer feed and winter care.
3. Small fruits and care of grape vines, peach and plum trees.
4. Cultivation and manures.
5. Evening—A stitch in time.

Mr. Kydd talks on horses, dairy cattle and small fruits. He has had a large and practical experience in all these departments, and being an aggressive and forceful speaker, his words carry weight. He has also had a wide experience in Fair matters, being the superintendent of the horse department of probably the largest agricultural show in the province. He is also a judge of light horses, and as such has been invited to place awards in many parts of Ontario. He is one of our most acceptable institute speakers.

A meeting of the Institute Board will be held on Saturday afternoon in the council chamber, when details in connection with the meetings will be arranged. Six meetings altogether will be held in different parts of the riding.

ALD. GEO. GILLESPIE WAS RE-APPOINTED DIRECTOR OF DAIRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION

For Eastern Ontario—Enthusiastic Meeting Held in County Council Chamber Yesterday Afternoon—Splendid Address.

The dairymen of Peterborough district have again chosen Mr. Geo. A. A. Gillespie as their representative to the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, and a better man could not be found. He has represented the dairy interests of this section for the past couple of years and has rendered good service.

A special meeting of the dairymen was held in the County Council chamber yesterday afternoon and a large number were present. Among the speakers present were Senator Dan Derbyshire, Mr. Glendenning and Mr. Murphy, as well as Mr. Ward the instructor and sanitary inspector for this district.

The object of the gathering aside from choosing a representative was to further the interests of the dairy industry in this district. The chief features of the addresses were the reduction in the cost of production and the advocacy of winter diarying.

It was pointed out that cows can be fed as cheaply in the winter as as they can in the summer.

Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, as chairman, opened the meeting, and requested that Senator Derbyshire be chosen to preside over the meeting in his stead. On motion this was adopted.

Mr. Derbyshire stated that it was a good thing to get together and talk over the business of the past year. There was one thing which all must admit and that was the shortage of cheese, and it would be well to consider for a few minutes what was the cause. The quality of cheese in Eastern Ontario this year was certainly the best that has ever been produced in this section.

One thing which caused the shortage was the lack of milk, and the fewer number of cows. Milk never brought so high a price as it did this year. Now the question is, what scheme can we devise to produce more milk at less cost and thus retain our position as the leading producers.

Mr. Derbyshire advocated the erection of modern cheese factories to replace the present structures, which are sitting on stilts with the wind blowing under, through and around, and thus altering the temperature of the factory every time the weather changes. Under present conditions the best cheese and the best work cannot be secured.

The next improvement was the condition of the cow. She must be given every consideration so that she can do the best possible work.

INSTRUCTOR'S REPORT.

Mr. Ward, the cheese factory instructor for the district, was called upon to make his report. In opening he emphasized the fact that it was necessary now for the cheese man to be wide awake and up to date in every respect.

In his report he stated that there was a decided improvement in the cheese factories this year; that the milk is delivered in better shape and that old rusty cans have been discarded and replaced by new ones. Still he visited one farm this summer where the delivery cans were good, but on the farm were several rusty old pails with rags drawn through holes. He hoped this was the exception and that that farmer would soon replace his pails.

Mr. Ward then read the result of a four days' delivery of milk to one factory showing the effect of changeable weather upon milk and the great loss to the farmers from delivering too hot milk to the factories. He pointed out the great necessity of providing now cold storage rooms for cooling the milk next summer.

Someone asked what the loss in milk would be in making a pound of cheese by using the over ripe milk. Mr. Ward stated that every pound of cheese made from over ripe milk meant the loss of at least one pound of milk.

SECRETARY MURPHY.

Mr. Murphy, Secretary of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, was present in place of Mr. Publow who was unable to be present. He said he had been 40 years on a farm and had once 32 cows to milk, which was indeed no small job. Mr. Murphy then took up several little matters which would help to make dairying profitable to the farmer. First was to reduce the cost of production. Be sure to house the cows every night as soon as the weather turns a little cool so they will be comfortable. Have a well and windmill at the barnyard where the cattle come up at night. He had always salt in front of his cows in the stable. He pointed out that if a farmer got angry at his cow and struck her or twisted her tail she would give a pound less milk.

Mr. Murphy then called for the election of a representative to the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association. Mr. Gillespie made a splendid representative and did great work on the board. He was highly respected by all.

Mr. Derbyshire stated that a district was looked upon according to the class of representative sent to the association. Mr. Gillespie was a bright, clear, wideawake fellow, and he always served the district well.

Mr. George A. Gillespie was elected unanimously upon motion of Messrs. J. J. Hogan and G. Rancier.

Mr. Gillespie thanked his fellow-cheesemen for again honoring him with election. He expressed his pleasure at seeing so many cheese makers present. Speaking of the season's work, he sated that the quality of the cheese this year was the best in the history of the Peterborough section. He also hoped that next year would see as great an improvement.

MR. GLENDENNING.

In introducing Mr. Glendenning, Senator Derbyshire referred to him as the most successful milk producer in Eastern Ontario. He also thought that a practical address from him on a reduction in the cost of production of milk would be valuable.

In opening Mr. Glendenning said he would refer to the practice adopted on his own farm. There were not so many cows in Eastern Ontario this year on account of the scarcity of fodder. This year, however, things were even worse as hay, straw, and roots were scarce although corn was very good and the farmer who planted corn last spring was indeed lucky.

Mr. Glendenning stated that there was not much winter dairying in Peterborough and this he considered was a big mistake. The farmers should dairy the year round, especially if they have to hire help. To hire help for a few months cost the farmer nearly as much as it would for the whole year. A yearly engagement would also overcome the labor difficulties. He also advocated feeding cows well all winter and especially before she calves. The making of a cow is before she drops her calf not after. He also stated that a cow would be fed just as cheaply in the winter as in the summer if properly looked after.

The chief item of feed for milk production was bulk and he did not know of anything so good as corn silage. Only give an animal that quantity of food which she will eat readily and the food must be palatable. It takes two-thirds of what a cow consumes, at full ration, to maintain herself and the farmer gets only profit for one-third. Besides silage for winter food, a farmer must provide abundance of good clean water, and lots of salt. He also strongly recommended that farmers grow alfalfa hay as that produces a large quantity of protein and no cow will produce a large flow of milk without being fed foods containing a large quantity of protein.

Mr. Glendenning gave an illustration of a test he made in feeding a cow last winter which proved that it cost 66 cents for seven days feeding, while she produced butter to the value of nearly $3.75. This was to prove the value of dairying the year round, either of cheese or butter.

Senator Derbyshire then addressed the dairymen very earnestly beseeching them to wake up and adopt all the modern methods of farming, instead of sitting around all winter, while their farm and stock were going to waste. They should make money the year round.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr Glendenning, Mr. Murphy and Senator Derbyshire, and was unanimously carried.

The old man was the worse of liquor when the offence was committed and his week in jail allowed him to sober up.

Even better than the presentation of the first night was the second presentation of "All Comforts of Home" at the Grand Opera House last night. The audience was again thoroughly appreciative.

Mr Irving Beers in putting on "All Comforts of Home," under the auspices of the Peterborough Hockey Club succeeded in demonstrating that the dramatic talent of Peterborough is easily equal to that of any place its size in the Dominion. It was indeed a pleasant surprise for the citizens to realize that a cast so uniformly good as that which presented "All the Comforts of Home" could be chosen from purely local talent.

At the conclusion of the play, a one act playlet, "The Littlest Girl," was presented. It was very cleverly and sympathetically interpreted and is as touching a sketch as has been seen here.

CITY MERCHANTS UNITE TO PROTECT THEIR INTERESTS

Banquet Was Held Last Evening.

Over 125 in Attendance---Retail Merchants Association Organized---Several Good Addresses.

Every line of business in Peterborough was represented last evening at the informal dinner of the retail merchants at the Hotel National. It was one of the finest gatherings that has taken place in this city for some time. Over one hundred and twenty-five of Peterborough's leading business men were there, and if the enthusiasm and interest manifested by them last night is any medium by which to go, the future success of the association is assured. As a result of last night's meeting those present signed their names to become members of the local branch of the association. A capable secretary in the person of Mr. William Barstone was appointed to act solely in the interests of the merchants. An Executive consisting of Messrs. W. E. Conway, A. Gibson, J. H. Connal, A. H. Stratton, R. A. Kingan was also appointed.

The meeting last night was in every way encouraging, and a great success. At 6.30 o'clock the merchants gathered in the beautiful dining hall of the Hotel National and sat down to an excellent repast prepared by mine host Dennison. The affair was quite informal, the business men of Peterborough meeting together in a social manner to discuss affairs of vital importance to each one of them. The speakers of the evening were: Messrs. B. W. Ziemann, of Preston, and E. N. Trowern, of Toronto, President and Secretary of the Dominion and Provincial Retail Merchants Association. Their addresses awakened a great deal of interest among those present and called forth numerous manifestations of approval.

Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's Church, who is a strong believer in citizenship and takes a deep interest in the affairs of the community, was present and made a few remarks.

Mr. R. Kingan, who was instrumental in bringing about the reorganization of the local association, occupied the chair. In introducing the speakers he referred to the dormant condition that the Peterborough organization was in and briefly enumerated benefits to be derived from a splendidly working union of merchants.

MR. B. W. ZIEMANN.

Mr. B. W. Ziemann, of Preston, President of the Dominion Retail Merchants' Association, was the first speaker introduced. In beginning he expressed his pleasure at being present, meeting as he did such a representative gathering of merchants. He was sure that they had not come together to hear long speeches, but to organize a good live association. He had heard that the local branch of the Retail Merchants' Association in the past had not met with much success. The same had been the experience in many towns. Judging from the material gathered at the dinner last night, the speaker was of the opinion that a very successful organization could be formed in this city. The benefits to be derived from such were manifold. "We have been negligent in looking after our own interests," he said. "Our object should be to bear one another's burdens. We should strive to make it easy to do right and hard to do wrong. In these days when we are up against fakes and schemes we have to be on our guard. Business men must discard fake methods."

By means of the association merchants become acquainted with each other. It showed that the competitor was not such a bad fellow after all, and that there are a great many things that merchants have in common.

In the opinions of many persons business men in their several lines of trade were one great combine. Their minds must be disabused of this idea.

One thing the association might do

MAYOR RUSH
One of the City's Veteran Business Men

IN RECOGNITION OF JESSE AIRRIESS' ACT OF BRAVERY

Will be Awarded the Parchment of the Royal Canadian Humane Society by Mayor Rush at the Next Meeting of the City Council.

Jesse Francis Airriess, 88 McDonnel street, has been awarded the parchment donated by the Canadian Humane Society for heroic conduct in saving a young lad from drowning in the Otonabee river, a few months ago. The parchment arrived here this morning and will be presented by His Worship Mayor Rush at the next meeting of the City Council.

It will be remembered that on Tuesday, August 18th, while working on the logs in the Otonabee river Jesse Airriess was attracted by the cries for help, from the companions of little James Butler, who was in swimming near an old dam and had got out beyond his depth. Mr. Airriess went to the young lad's assistance. Encumbered as he was by his heavy clothing, he became exhausted when about twelve or fifteen feet from shore, and both he and the little fellow went down. However, through the assistance of another man, both were got to shore in safety.

Mr. Airriess did an act of bravery which many thought deserved some recognition. The facts were laid before the Royal Humane Society, by Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, with the result that the parchment was received here this morning from Mr. C. A. P. Powis, secretary of the Society;—

The letter accompanying the parchment read as follows;—

Hamilton, Nov. 5th, 1908.

Dear Sir,—I have pleasure in sending you by this mail the parchment awarded to Jesse Francis Airriess for heroic conduct.

Will you kindly arrange to have this award presented in as suitable a manner as possible, and if circumstances permit, I would suggest that the presentation be made by the Mayor, or other prominent gentleman in you locality.

Please send me a newspaper clipping or other account of the presentation to complete the records of this case,

Yours truly,
C. A. P. POWIS,
Secretary.

TWO DYNAMITE ACCIDENTS RESULT IN TEN DEATHS

Kenora, Ont., Nov. 6.—A dynamite explosion, resulting in the death of three men and terrible injuries to another, took place on Tuesday morning at Olsen and Larson's Camp No. 20, on the G.T.P. construction, about twenty-four miles north of Ingolf.

The killed are Nelson P. Strube, aged 25, a native of Denmark; F. Elertoun, aged 22, a Norwegian, and Olaf Christianson, aged 26, a Dane. All three were single men. The injured man is Andrew Coleberg, a Dane. His right hand was blown off and he sustained injuries to his head. Two other men received minor injuries from falling rock.

It appears that the men were drilling a hole in the face of the rock cut, and in so doing struck the base of another hole, which had been exploded a few days before, but in which apparently some dynamite remained. The explosion was terrific. Larson, one of the partners in the firm of Olsen and Larson, was fixing the drill up to a few minutes before the explosion occurred. He had only gone a short distance from the cut.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 6.—Seven laborers were instantly killed on the line of the Transcontinental Railway, 18 miles north of Dryden, Ont., by being buried under tons of rock which were hurled upon them by the premature discharge of a large quantity of dynamite.

Four others were terribly maimed or injured in the same accident.

"CROOKED NECK" SMITH NOW PUTS IN PLEA OF SELF-DEFENCE

Montreal, Nov. 5.—"Crooked Neck" Smith made a solemn declaration in his cell at the Montreal jail, as to just what took place in the opium den, where the shooting tragedy was enacted in July last, when James Enright, alias "Mike" Malone, met his death.

The condemned man in his deposition, which was taken down in writing, and which covers many typewritten pages, states that the shooting was committed in self-defence, and he gives a detailed account of what he say stook place in the room of the opium den when he appeared at the door and saw Malone and his two pals sitting on the opium smokers' benches.

With this document in his possession, Mr. R. A. E. Greenshields, K.C., has gone to Ottawa to interview Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, the Minister of Justice. Mr. Greenshields also has the affidavits he had been expecting from the two men who saw the shooting, and who have promised to leave the United States to give evidence on behalf of Smith.

It will be claimed that this promise of additional evidence should be sufficient to justify a new trial, especially in view of the fact that during the trial in the Court of King's Bench last September, there was no direct evidence regarding what occurred in the room of the opium den at the time of the shooting.

A HUNTING STORY FROM THE WOODS OF GALWAY

Galway, Nov. 5—The woods are full of hunters and mighty ones, too. There are some tall hunting stories told, but the men who are in the lumber jobbing camps, can get off some fairly tall yarns. There is the one about a jobber who took two men into the woods one day, and it was such a day of fog that he got lost, and could not get back to the camp, for at night fall he was on the edge of a cranberry marsh and had nothing but cranberries to eat. Next day the fog lifted and he got his bearings. While making his way to the camp he found a pine tree with a bee hive in it. He knew honey was there for he saw a fine big bear eating the honey. Having his axe with him he drove the bear away, though it went very reluctantly for a bear loves honey, and then set to chopping the tree.

Just as the tree was falling the bear came back the tree fell on him kerflop and killed him right there. It was no trick to locate the hive in a hollow part of the tree and then blazed his way to a land mark, and soon reached the camp. Going back with help and pails, they got six big pails of splendid honey and later on sold the bear pelt, which was a fine one, at twenty dollars. That was something like a hunt. Sweet to the taste and pleasant to the pocket, and the bear hams boiled were more tasty than any pork that was ever grown. A pail of the cranberries was got, and the bear ham and cranberry sauce were as good as peaches and cream.

CONVICTED OF FRAUD

Morse and Curtis Found Guilty.

Jury After Twenty-Four Hours Brings in Verdict Against Prominent Men.

New York, Nov. 6.—C. W. Morse, until a year ago a dominant figure in the world of finance, with millions of dollars at his control, and Alfred H. Curtis, former president of the National Bank of North America, were found guilty last night in the criminal branch of the United States Circuit Court of misapplication of funds and falsifying the books of the bank.

There was also the additional charge of conspiracy against the prisoners, but the jury acquitted the men on this count.

Within five minutes of the time the jury had rendered its verdict, Judge Hough had refused to entertain a motion for bail and had committed the two bankers to the Tombs.

The federal statues provide a minimum penalty of five years' imprisonment for falsifying the books of a bank and a penalty of two years' imprisonment for misapplication of funds. No alternative but imprisonment is provided for conviction on the charge of falsifying the books of a bank. The maximum penalty on this charge is ten years' imprisonment.

CHAS. W. MORSE.

The jury recommended clemency for Curtis.

The scene in the court-room was a dramatic one. Morse and Curtis had remained in the court-room nearly the entire day awaiting the verdict. They stood while the foreman was reading the verdict and their wives sat near them, leaning forward in tense attitude to catch every word.

A stifled sob of relief escaped Mrs. Curtis as she heard the recommendation for mercy for her husband. Curtis took the verdict like a stoic, but Morse was unable to conceal the disappointment he felt, while his wife showed no sign of emotion. She kept her eyes on her husband.

There had been wide interest in the joint trials of Charles W. Morse and Alfred H. Curtis on charges growing out of the failure of the National Bank of North America. It was brought out in the testimony that Mr. Morse had made large loans from the bank through so-called "dummies," and that President Curtis had enabled him to do so. The money thus obtained was used to finance the Morse ice pools and steamship operations, which later failed.

PROGRESS OF CANAL

What Has Been Accomplished at Glen Ross

Trenton, Nov. 5.—Since operations began in the spring, work on the section of the Trent Valley Canal at Glen Ross has progressed on a large scale. The locks and walls of the old canal were removed and a great amount of blasting and excavating done in widening and deepening the former waterway. This has been accomplished by the aid of a steam shovel and a large gang of workmen. A dam of reinforced concrete is being constructed across the river. A coffer dam was built half way across the stream and the foundation of the piers laid. A bridge built of large timbers was also erected and a double track for steel dump cars laid thereon. About three-quarters of the dam has been completed and the remainder will be finished in a short time. The large number of laborers, chiefly Italians, are quartered at Glen Ross, mostly in huts and shacks, erected by themselves.

Seven men were killed in McLean's camp on N.T.R. 18 miles north of Dryden by a premature dynamite explosion.

POWERS AT LOGGERHEADS OVER CASABLANCA AFFAIR

SHOOTS GIRL AND SELF A TRAGEDY AT HAMILTON

Chester Johnston Takes Girl to Room in Boarding-House and is Found Later Unconscious From Bullet Wounds, But May Recover.

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 6.—A double tragedy was enacted last evening at 180 Rebecca street, the home of Mrs. Camille. It is believed that it will turn out to be a murder and suicide.

The police know very little about the affair, which occurred about 9.30. The first word the police got was when a man came around to say that there had been some shooting in a house on Rebecca street.

He was so excited the police could get little information out of him, and they spent an hour in locating the place.

When the police finally did reach Mrs. Camille's house they said it looked like a slaughter house.

They found Chester Johnston, a young Hamilton man, about 26 years of age, unconscious from bullet wounds, and a girl who was known as Rose, suffering from five or six bullet wounds. They were hurried off to the City Hospital.

The doctors said there was no hope of Johnston's recovery, and that he had but a short time to live. There appeared to be some chance of saving the girl's life, and she was promptly placed on the operating table.

At midnight the police had not been able to unravel the mystery, but they are working on the theory that Johnston shot the girl and then turned the revolver on himself.

The police believe that Johnson was employed at a rolling rink, and Mrs. Camille says he came to her house yesterday afternoon and engaged a room, returning in the evening with a pretty girl, Rose Ouimet.

They had hardly been in the room an hour before Mrs. Camille heard five or six shots in quick succession. She rushed to the room to find the door locked. She broke it open, and found Johnson lying stark naked on the floor, a revolver clutched in each hand. He was unconscious, but the girl, although she had five bullet wounds, was fully conscious. She said Johnson had shot her because he could not marry her.

She was shot in the head, in both breasts, and had two wounds on one arm. She was lying on the bed. She is described as a very pretty girl about 20 years of age.

The girl was positively identified as Rose Ouimet, 14 Windsor street, and Johnson is said to be a brother-in-law of Manager Thomas of the Alexandra Roller Rink.

PARK COMMISSION IS AGITATED BY LOCAL HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

Would be of Great Value in City—Annual Meeting of Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society Was Held Last evening.

Very satisfactory reports were presented at the annual meeting of the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society held in the city council chamber last night. There was a fair attendance and the meeting of the most harmonious nature.

In connection with the Society the past year was an uneventful one The weather was very dry and it was most difficult to keep things in shape. At Central Park a great many things interferred with progress, among which was the decision of teh water commissioners to cut down the hours for using the water. The building operations were also a serious drawback.

The society also intendst o advocate for a parks commission to take over Central park, the new park in the south end and also the society's lease of a commission are very numerous, and will be brought before the public from time to time.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

President Col. Rogers stated that the first year had been an uneventful one, and owing to the very dry weather the several parks which the society had been interested in did not look very well. A deputation had waited upon the County Council twice during the past year and succeeded in getting a grant, on the understanding that the upper part of Victoria Park should be put in the same condition as the lower part. This, however, is to be done by degrees as the funds warranted.

Col Rogers stated that he certainly thought that as the Central Park had been greatly disfigured during the past year, this Society should give it up until such time as the City Council either takes it up or makes a substantial grant. He thought in fact that the Central Park should be placed in the hands of a park commission as it was altogether too big a job to look after with the small assistance from the city. The past year, however, was a hard one on the parks, although the flowers looked well.

Col. Rogers added that if the Society was to look after Central Park they must have greater control over it and protect the use of it. Wires had been put up but hoodlums have cut the wires and trampled them down, destroyed the sod and trampled on the tulip beads. As soon as the park is closed up men and boys break them down. They will not keep out of the park. He hoped the next executive would take some action.

Secretary Beal stated that now that this society had secured a lease from the county he certainly thought they had a right to place signs on the grounds forbidding trespassing.

ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP

Sensation at Orillia---Entered House at Night.

Orillia, Nov. 6—About two o'clock this morning the home of Mr. George Walker a rough-cast house on the corner of West and Coldwater Sts., was broken into and an attempt made to kidnap a two year old child. The intruder was one Wm. Lawler a painter, who formerly lived in Orillia, and a warrant has been issued for his arrest. Mr. Walker was absent from home and his wife was awakened by some person moving about in her room, and immediately afterwards. Lawler attempted to snatch the child from the bed. Mrs. Walker held the child tight, and after a short tussle she screamed so lustily that Lawler became frightened and decamped.

Back of the attempted kidnapping, is quite a story. The child is the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Weeks, the latter being the sister of Mrs. Walker. They were married about four or five years ago but separated and Mrs Walker took the child to live with her. Later, the police say, Mrs Weeks and Lawler have been living in the same house and the latter's attempt to get the child was at the instigation of its mother.

Lawler's entering the house at midnight for the purpose of kidnapping is so serious an offence under the law that it is punishable up to imprisonment for life.

Different at Norwood

A number of young men were up before the Police Magistrate at Peterborough Monday morning for pulling up portions of street crossings and indulging in other such pranks on Hallowe'en. They were obliged to contribute a good round sum to the city exchequer for their fun. We understand that portions of street crossings were pulled up in several places here on Hallowe'en, but so far we have failed to hear of any prosecutions. They do things differently in Peterborough.—Norwood Register.

France and Germany Embroiled.

Germany's Demand That Deserters be Released Again Causes Friction.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—The relations between France and Germany are again disturbed through Germany's seeking from the French Government the release of the Germans who deserted from the foreign legion at Casablanca, and additional satisfaction for an alleged assault made upon a subordinate official of the German consulate at that place.

The French Foreign Office wishes to submit the matter to arbitration, and M. Jules Cambon, the French ambassador at Berlin, is endeavoring to reach an agreement with the German Foreign Office to this end, but so far without success.

Several of Wednesday evening's papers took up the subject and declared that it is now necessary for Germany to insist upon her rights. The German Government made serious representations to France early in October with reference to this affair, which was prior to the controversy which arose from the publication of the Emperor's interview, but the raising of the controversy in the newspapers is regarded by some of Chancellor Von Buelow's critics as a device to divert public attention from the Emperor and the chancellor to a foreign quarrel.

The viewpoint of Germany was explained officially by the Foreign Office yesterday.

"All we demand," said an official of the Foreign Office, "is a simple expression of regret from France for the violence against the German consular officials at Casablanca. Unless this is forthcoming there would be no object in conducting further negotiations.

"Concerning the other points of the difference we are prepared to arbitrate."

The German newspapers, which hitherto have been almost silent upon the recent phases of the Casablanca incident, have suddenly placed this question in the position of first importance. The controversy is treated as being extremely disquieting and as involving the national honor.

Public feeling is appealed to by various influential journals in the provinces, as well as by those in Berlin.

The summoning of the Foreign Affairs' sub-division of the Bundesrat, the Federal Council, which is of rare occurrence, is required under the constitution, the Government communication regarding the state of the negotiations between France and Germany is considered to indicate that the present situation is serious.

Paris, Nov. 6.—Paul Cambon, the French ambassador in Berlin, has been instructed to notify Germany that France maintains her view that the whole question should be arbitrated, and that in the meanwhile she declines to release the deserters, to reprimand the officers concerned, or to exchange regrets with Germany.

Premier Clemenceau declared yesterday that he was ready to go before the Chamber of Deputies on the issue and resign if he was not upheld. The press of every shade of opinion, with singular unanimity, voices approval of the Government's attitude and declares that a backdown would be equivalent to the moral end of France.

An extraordinary session of the Cabinet was held yesterday afternoon, and the decision not to accede to the German demands was unanimously ratified.

The Temps is of the opinion that the present situation in Europe makes it absolutely impossible for Germany to risk an armed conflict.

"It would be a crowning imprudence," this paper says, "for Prince von Buelow to risk a war when Austria-Hungary is absorbed in the near east, when the Balkan states are ready to close the German roads to the eastward, and when Russia, aroused by a wave of Slavism, is prepared to seek a national revenge. France, morally and from a military point of view, is capable of defending her dignity; Great Britain is indisputably supreme at sea, and Italy is less and less disposed to sacrifice herself in the cause of another state."

In conclusion, The Temps advises the Government to publish the French case to the world.

THE NICHOLLS MONUMENT

There is a more or less wide-spread feeling in the city amongst Roman Catholics that a civic memorial to Mrs. Nicholls would misrepresent them. It is true they urge that the Nicholls parks are open to all citizens without distinction in favor of any in particular, but the Nicholls Hospital is not. This great institution is on a different basis. While various provisions are made looking to the placing of the onus of supporting the Nicholls Hospital where it justly belongs and while every creed is welcome to the wards of that excellent institution the exclusion of Roman Catholics from the management necessitated their erecting a hospital which did not exclude them although it excluded others, from the financial management, while all doctors of whatever creed or none, have equal privileges within its walls. This is not the case with the Nicholls Hospital. What then may we justly say is the present state of affairs? It is simply that the Nicholls Hospital is, in the eyes of many Roman Catholic laymen and taxpayers, not a citizens' or truly public hospital, and therefore, while they do not care to fyle a remonstrance, they do think that the memorial bearing words of universal gratitude on the part of all citizens, is at once a monument that ignores their feelings and sentiments and a standing misrepresentation of them. Such being the case, although we are not prepared to say that it is a general Roman Catholic protest it might be advisable for provision to be made not only consistent with their wishes and with Mrs. Nicholls' trust, but with the facts of the case. It is not a subject for prolonged discussion, but we feel that in so delicate a matter as a memorial there should be no room for a just protest or discontent. Mrs. Nicholls deserves the recognition which she deserves and no less. It would, therefore, be well to erect something that could not be pointed at in future by any citizen, as an example of contempt for the rights of others. We should be glad to hear that our remarks are unnecessary, but the facts we cite are not mere fancy. They represent the feelings of a large number who have rights that must not be ignored. We must be strictly just. Now is the time to look into this matter and to see what may or should be done about it.

RIOT OR TREASON, WHICH?

"We want the alliance of the two great races of this country, but we want an alliance which will respect the customs and sentiments of both equally. We want our English-speaking and Protestant brothers to know that we have the right to be represented not only because of the number of our votes, but because, being the sole masters of our destiny, etc."—(Bourassa.)

Is this not the doctrine of French autonomy? Is this not race squaring up to race? Is Canada composed of individuals or races? This everlasting beating of the war drum on some one pretense or other shows how far we are in Canada from being one people, and never farther than under Sir Wilfrid Laurier. What sort of a household would it be where wife continually cried out that before all things, wife or mother, she was French, and where the husband was requested to govern himself accordingly. Truly wives are rising up against their husbands and husbands against their wives. In one breath we are told that Canada is the most tolerant country under the sun that British institutions give freedom and fair play, etc. Yet the threat is still being made that if we, etc., and the war drum continues to throb. What is the fire or where, that is creating all this boiling discontent? Let us come to an understanding now since the Treaty of Paris seems to have been a failure. If we are to have peace let us have it, but in the name of common sense let us not make it sometimes a greater nuisance than a state of war. Underneath all this agitation there is a determination. What is it? And what makes it so popular with the French that nothing else, no other consideration is in the same class? That phrase, "the sole masters of our destiny" is flinging in the face of Canada the boast that no matter how the opinion of the country at large may be expressed at the polls, French Canada is independent of that opinion and is the sole master of her destiny. This is treason, or it is nonsense. Undoubtedly it has a strong flavor of the latter, but it remains to be dealt with all the same. Since French Canada deliberately makes this cry the issue, let it be the issue, and when it has been settled for good and all, we shall perhaps know where we are, whether Canada is Canada or only French Canada. The oratory of Bourassa serves its purpose every 4 years in providing a mock attack on Sir Wilfrid. Sir Wilfrid replies with a charge of patriotism and "smooth" talk, and so the farce goes on.

THE RETAIL MERCHANTS

One thing that struck us as very apt in the proceedings of this Association at its inaugural dinner on Thursday evening was the remark, or rather injunction, of Mr. Zieman, the principal speaker, that it was necessary for merchants to discard fake methods. We may say at the outset that we know nothing about the fake methods adopted by merchants here, or elsewhere, but we do know that the whole country considered socially, financially, morally and above all, politically is run by fake methods. The craving to attain an end by sharp practice is the disease of the hour in Canada. Such bad work has long since been buried in other countries to a very large extent with the blocks, dells, etc. of those countries while we in Canada are as yet wedded to humbug because it seems to pay. No one, however, pretends that it pays other than the few who succeed in preying upon the rest. But the temptation to petty robbery is so great that like the little boy and the bun, we can't resist it. This is the fake substratum on which the Canadian nation is built. Above all, we are victims of expediency. It is a mere matter of money. One dollar will buy a man. One thousand will buy—well!— There is no tainted money any more. It is money and that is all that is necessary. We live on the produce of our own shame. Hence everything from religion to racquets is getting to be a fake. The basis, that men stigmatize, as Mr. Zieman does, so courageously, of everything is not morals but money. We should like to have another visit from Mr. Zieman. The Canadian Club might well invite him so that all could hear him. He is in the swim, and cannot be denied or scoffed at, jeered as a pessimist or howled down by a gang. Such men are the real saviours of the nation.

THE GLOBE AND THE SENTINEL

"What the people of the proposed new provinces in the west want now, what the British North American Act intended to give each new province and what the Federal Parliament should give, is the right to deal with the subject of education as each province thinks fitting. The people of the west want no class legislation, no special privileges for any church, sect, institution or nationality. They believe in friendship towards all legitimate institutions, malice towards none—justice everywhere, favoritism nowhere. The people of the west have given their representatives a practically unanimous mandate to secure provincial autonomy, but they have not given, have not been asked to give, will not give, a mandate in favor of separation in education.

There are now in the Federal Parliament men who understand the problem awaiting solution and who have the courage of their convictions. There are men from Ontario and Quebec who know what the dual system involves. There are men from Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Manitoba Provinces that fought for the right to manage their own educational affairs and won. There are men from British Columbia and Nova Scotia—Provinces which have always had that right. To such men the west appeals with confidence for assistance at this critical period of her history. —The Toronto Globe, Feb. 13th, 1905.

It is interesting to note the recent action of the Globe in relation to its former sentiments. The above extract would have made excellent material for a dark lantern pamphlet during the late contest—if any Conservative had cared to stoop so low. Why pillory the Sentinel and let the Globe go free? The answer is that pillorying the one serves a purpose. Pillorying the other would not. A poor excuse is better than none.

FORESTRY IS BEING TAUGHT

Two Canadian Universities Now Training Forest Engineers

There are few subjects of greater importance to-day in Canada than the preservation of the country's forest wealth. Never, probably, has the question been brought home to the people at large more emphatically than during the present season, marked as it unfortunately has been by a series of most destructive forest fires which have wrought so many millions of dollars' worth of damage. How to prevent such devastation in future how to preserve this great asset to the country and improve it it for future generations are questions of paramount importance. It is timely, therefore, that the study of the science and art of forestry should be encouraged and developed.

To this end a school of forestry was inaugurated a year ago in the University of Toronto under the principalship of Dr. B. E. Fernow, who is now assisted by a staff of two lecturers and one assistant.

Dr. Fernow, is well equipped for his work, being a graduate of the Forest Academy at Muenden and having received additional training at the University of Koenigsberg, Germany, of which country he is a native. For twelve years (186-1898) he held the position of chief of the Division of Forestry in the United States Department of Agriculture, which he left to become head of the College of Forestry connected with Cornell University. Later, after several years passed as consulting forest engineer, he organized the forestry department of the Pennsylvania State College, leaving there last year to undertake the organization of the Faculty of Forestry at Toronto.

The University of Toronto confers the degree of Bachelor of Science in Forestry (B.S.F.), obtainable after a four years' course, and there is a post-graduate degree of Forest Engineer (F.E.) to obtain which a graduate of the forestry course must have two years' practical experience and submit an approved thesis to the faculty.

This fall the University of New Brunswick has inaugurated a four years' course in forestry, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Forestry (B.S.F.). The department has at its head Prof. R. B. Miller, M. A., M.F., a graduate of the Yale Forest School, one of the foremost schools of forestry in the United States.

A third school is about to be established in the Province of Quebec, and courses in forestry or preparatory thereto are offered in other universities and agricultural colleges.

NERVY THIEF AT HASTINGS

Walked into Cellar and Helped Himself to Preserves

One night last week one of the nerviest pieces of thieving took place at the home of Mr. George Barrie that we have heard of for some time. While the occupants were asleep some party walked in through the woodshed during the night, opened the cellar door and helped himself to a feed of preserves and vegetables, after which he dumped out a basket which was filled with onions, filled it up with eggs, fruit, etc., and decamped.

The party must have had his nerve all with him, as he stood in front of the shelf and ate a part of a sealer of plums, placing the pits in a pile on the floor.

He also tried some other preserves which he only partly ate, and very carefully set the half empty vessel down on the floor.—Hastings Star.

OF INTEREST

"No, the casual laborer is here because he is wanted here. He is here in answer to a perfectly well-defined demand. He is here as the result of economic causes which have been too long unregulated. He is not the natural product he is an article manufactured called into being, to suit the requirements in the Prime Minister's telling phrase, of all industries at particular times, of particular industries at all times. I suppose no Department has more means of warning about these things than the Board of Trade, which is in friendly touch at every stage all over the country both with capital and labor. I publish this fact deliberately, I invite you to consider it, I want it to soak in. It appears to me that measures to check the growth and diminish the quantity of casual labor must be an essential part of any thorough or scientific attempt to deal with unemployment, and I would not proclaim this evil, to you without having reason to believe that practicable means exist by which it can be greatly diminished.

BOY LABOR.

"If the first vicious condition which I have mentioned to you is lack of industrial organization, if the second is the evil of casual labor, there is a third not less important—I mean the present conditions of boy labor. The whole underside of the labor market is deranged by the competitions of boys or young persons who do men's work for boy's wages, and are turned off as soon as they demand men's wages for themselves. How does it affect the boys, the youth of our country, the heirs of all our exertion, the inheritors of that long treasure of history and romance of science and knowledge—age, of national glory for which so many valiant generations have fought and toiled—the youth of Britain, how are we treating them in the twentieth century of the Christian era. (Are they not being exploited. Are they not being demoralized. Are they not being thrown away.

"Whereas the youth of the wealthier class is all kept under strict discipline until 18 or 19, the mass of the nation runs wild after 14 years of age. No doubt at first employment is easy to obtain. There is a wide and varied field; there are a hundred odd jobs for a lad; but almost every form of employment now open to young persons affords them no opening is of no use to them whatever, when they are grown up and in a great number of cases the life which they lead is demoralizing and harmful. And what is the consequence. The consequence may be measure by this grim fact that out of the unemployed applying for help under the Unemployed Workmen Act, no less than 28 per cent. are between 20 and 30 years of age—that is to say, men in the first flush of their strength and manhood already hopelessly adrift on the dark and tumultuous ocean of life. No boy or girl ought to be treated merely as cheap labor, that up to 18 years of age every boy or girl in this country should, as in the old days of apprenticeship, be learning a trade as well as earning a living.

"And now, I say to you Liberals of Scotland and Dundee two words — 'Diligence and Daring,' concludes Mr. Churchill. "Let that be your motto for the year that is to come. 'Few it is written, and evil are the days of man.' Soon, very soon, our brief lives will be lived. Soon, very soon, we and our affairs will have passed away. Uncounted generations will trample heedlessly upon our tombs. What is the use of living if it be not to strive for noble causes and to make this muddled world a better place for those who will live in it after we are gone. How else can we put ourselves in harmonious relation with the great verities and consolations of the infinite and the eternal. And I avow my faith towards better days. Humanity will not be cast down. We are going on —swinging bravely forward along the grand high road—and already behind the distant mountains is the promise of the sun."

Mr. Winston Churchill made a very remarkable speech to his constituents at Dundee a few days ago, which the London papers did not report at the length it deserved except the Times.

There was a deep note running through it which characterizes Mr. Churchill's speeches to-day, and which bodes well for the belief that in the days to be Mr. Churchill will be Prime Minister. Then once more we shall have an orator as Prime Minister.

"What is the problem of the hour?" he asked. It can be compressed in one word—unemployment.

VICIOUS LABOR CONDITIONS

"I discern in the present industrial system of our country three vicious conditions which make us peculiarly susceptible to any outside disturbance of international trade. First, the lack of any central organization of industry, or any general and concerted control either of ordinary Government work or of any extraordinary relief works. It would be possible for the Board of Trade to foretell with a certain amount of accuracy the degree of unemployment likely to be reached in any winter. It ought to be possible for some authority in some Government office to view the whole situation in advance authority in some Government office to view the whole situation in advance and within certain limits to exert a powerful influence over the general distribution of Government contracts. There is nothing economically unsound in increasing temporarily and artificially the demand for labor during a period of temporary and artificial contraction.

WHAT IS WANTED.

"There is a plain need of some averaging machinery to regulate and even up the general course of the labor market in the same way as the Bank of England, by its bank rate, regulates and corrects the flow of business enterprise. When the extent of the depression is foreseen the extent of the relief should also be determined. There ought to be in permanent existence certain recognized industries of a useful but uncompetitive character, like, we will say, afforestation, managed by public departments, and capable of being expanded or contracted according to the needs of the labor market, just easily as you can pull out the stops or work the pedals of an organ.

"In this way you would not eliminate employment, you certainly would not prevent the creation of unemployables; but you would considerably limit the scale of unemployment.

THE EVIL OF CASUAL LABOR.

"The second vicious condition is positive and not negative. I mean the great, and, I, sometimes fear, increasing evil of casual labor. We talk a great deal about the unemployed, but the evil of the under-employed is the tap-root of unemployment. There is a tendency in many trades, almost in all trades, to have a fringe of casual labor on hand, available as a surplus whenever there is a boom, flung back into the whirlpool whenever there is a slump. Employers and foremen in many trades are drawn consciously or unconsciously to distribute their work among a larger number of men than they regularly require, because this obviously increases their bargaining power with them, and supplies a convenient reserve for periods of brisk business activity.

"And what I desire to impress upon you is that the casual unskilled laborer who is habitually under-employed, who is lucky to get three, or at the outside, four days' work in the week, who may often be out of a job for three or four weeks at a time, who in bad times goes under altogether, and who in good times has no hope of security and no incentive to thrift, whose whole life and the lives of his wife and children are embarked in a sort of blind, desperate fatalistic gamble with circumstances beyond his comprehension or control, that this poor man, this terrible and pathetic figure, is not as a class the result of accident or chance, is not casual because he wishes to be casual, is not casual as the consequence of some temporary disturbance soon put right.

Glen Haden, a 7-year-old boy, who was standing near the church, was struck by a brick falling from the chimney, which was wrecked by the balloon, his skull being fractured, and he may die.

A strong wind was blowing and efforts were made to persuade the aeronaut not to attempt an ascension. In reply he said: "I will make the jump to-day if I break my neck doing it."

GRAIN TIED UP.

Millions of Bushels Are Stalled and Westerners Are Angry.

Edmonton, Nov. 6.—Provincial Inspector C. S. Hotchkiss has been investigating the grain trouble along the Calgary and MacLead line, and is now reporting to the Government.

He declares that over a million bushels of grain are at Claresholme, half a million at Stavely and three-quarters of a million at Granum, awaiting cars. It is alleged that, taking advantage of a technicality in the Manitoba Grain Act giving jurisdiction only over eastbound cars, the company is supplying only 300 cars to the first named and one hundred between the latter points. It is alleged the elevator men and the company are consigning all cars west, although there is a suspicion they are turned and sent east from Calgary.

Indignation meetings are being held and stormy resolutions forwarded to the authorities. Many farmers are hauling to Lethbridge and MacLeod.

Justice Magee will pass sentence to-day.

The prisoner claimed that Constantine had drawn a knife on him, but this was not substantiated. The jury was out an hour.

Dean Reeve to Resign.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—The resignation of Dr. R. A. Reeve as dean of the medical faculty of Toronto University, is to take place very shortly, according to a report, which appears to be well founded. Dr. Reeve has occupied the important office for 12 years, and should he carry out his intention, there will be widespread regret among members of the medical professions.

As to the report that Dr. Charles Clark, superintendent of Toronto Asylum, may be appointed, no verification can be obtained.

It is believed that Dr. Reeve has found himself unable to devote as much time to his duties as he considers their importance warrants, owing to the extent of his private practice. He is one of Canada's foremost eye-specialists.

Scott Loses Point.

Regina, Sask., Nov. 6.—The plea entered by Premier Scott in a case brought against him by H. W. Laird that the court at Regina had not jurisdiction to try the criminal libel charge was thrown out by Judge Johnstone yesterday, the court stating that the Attorney-General's Department had preferred the charge and could lay it anywhere in the province.

Scott had contended that as the alleged offence took place in Moose Jaw Judicial District, it must be tried there. To this the judge could not agree.

Rumpus In Ecuador.

Quito, Ecuador, Nov. 6.—The extraordinary session of the Ecuadorian Congress has just been concluded with riotous scenes that ended in a serious fight. A number of the Ministers, and particularly the Minister of Finance, were warmly attacked by the minority in the House, who accused them of being participants in extensive frauds. The supporters of the Government retaliated by assaulting the minority deputies, while they were leaving the Congress, many of whom were wounded in the encounter.

He'll Be Deported.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 6.—Judge Forbes yesterday refused to convict for theft an Englishman named Geo. Jones, who came to Canada in 1906. He declared the Dominion had no right to spend a hundred and fifty dollars annually keeping this man in the penitentiary. Jones will be detained in the county jail until the first sailing of a steamer for England, and will then be deported by order of the court.

Socialist Vote Decreases.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—The Socialist vote in Tuesday's election showed a great falling off from the record in 1904 in the three principal cities of the country in which the Socialism is strongest. The total vote for Mr. Debs, it is estimated, will not exceed 500,000, in place of 1,000,000, which was predicted by enthusiastic Socialists. Gompers influence is blamed for the result.

Sleeps For Weeks.

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 6.—Miss Louisa Pietta, who has at various times astonished physicians by her long slumbers, is again asleep. She has not been awake for five weeks.

Miss Pietta seems to suffer no ill effects from her long sleeps, and when she wakes is under the impression that she has slept but a single night.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 6.—John McKay, who was stabbed at Minto on Sunday evening by an Italian, John Endine, died Wednesday night. He received fifteen wounds from a stiletto in the hands of the Italian, who was incensed at McKay for attention to the landlady.

CHEESE SOLD AT 12 1-8 CENTS

Price Paid at Final Meeting of Lindsay Board

Lindsay, Nov. 5.—The meeting of the Lindsay Cheese Board this morning was not only void of enthusiasm but very poorly attended. The Board, however, introduced a new buyer, who made the highest bid of 12 1-2c as a curtain raiser. There were only 1063 cheese boarded, and these were taken by the new buyer, Mr. Archie Beavis, and Mr. W. Flavelle.

The meeting was honored with the attendance of Senator Derbyshire and Mr. Glendenning, and the former made a short address on the price of cheese.

Before the bidding began considerable discussion took place as to how cheese should be allowed for shrinkage. The salesmen were not willing to allow any, and the buyers wanted a pound, so they decided on one-half pound.

The bidding then commenced. Mr. Gillespie started off at 11c and was followed by Mr. Brown at 3-4. The Peterborough man went 1-4c higher, and the bidding came to a standstill. The buyers were urged to go higher, but refused, and Mr. Archie Beavis, a new man, called out 12 1-8c to the satisfaction of the salesmen.

Mr. Beavis called Star, Dunsford, Red Rock and North Verulam.

Mr. Flavelle, at the same price, called Omemee, Mariposa, North Harvey and Reaboro.

In his sermon in the Methodist church on Sunday evening, Rev. W. H. Adams, noted the fact that of the twenty-five pastors who had preceded him in the seventy years of the church's history no less than twenty had passed away. They are; Revs. R Taylor, James Anderson, John S. Clark, D F Gee, Richard Clarke, W. M Pattyson, Joseph Hill, S C Philp, Samuel Wilson, Wm. Briden, H. McDowell, John Goodfellow, George Carr James C Slater, George F. Playter, W Morton, John Sanderson, Richard Phelps, Wm. Young, and John Williams. Mr. Adams also read some beautiful verses on the state of the faithful departed, which he had received the previous day from the pen of his father, who is himself upwards of seventy years of age, but still uses his pen with as much vigor as in his prime.—Norwood Register.

SHEFFIELD CHOIR AT MONTREAL

What the "Herald" Has to Say About the Concert at the Arena

The plan for the Sheffield Choir is now open at the Grand Opera House. Subscribers should be on hand early.

Yesterday was Guy Fawkes Day, and in England many celebrations took place. It is the custom to burn in effigy the notorious individual; and the failure of the plot to kill King James and blow up Parliament is commemorated.

Fawkes was born in England, and was a soldier of fortune in the Lowland wars, and seems to have been a man of good parts and quality. He became mixed up in the plot organized by Catesby to destroy the King by blowing up the Parliament buildings with gunpowder. It fell to Fawkes' lot to set a torch to the barrels of gunpowder stored in the basement of the Parliament buildings. Fortunately a man who was in the plot warned a friend of his not to attend Parliament. This aroused suspicions and search was made and Fawkes was found concealed in the basement of the House.

Two clerks of the Eastern Townships Bank at Waterville, fired at burglars they heard at the vault, beat them off.

PORT HOPE MAY GET AN INDUSTRY

Report That Large Smelter Will be Erected There

There is a current report among mining men that a huge smelter will be erected in Port Hope.

So far as can be learned the men behind the project are English capitalists who have been for some time investigating the mineral resources of Ontario, more especially the future and possibilities of a permanent camp being established at Cobalt and in and around that district.

The need of a smelter in this part of the country is not disputed and that such a proposition materialized would be a great saving of money to Cobalters is not doubted.

At present a lot of ore and in fact the most of it goes to Colorado and transportation expenses prove to be a heavy item.

While nothing definite as to the identity of the capitalists can be ascertained yet the rumour appears to be well-founded and generally looked upon by interested people as the logical outcome of a mining industry being established in Ontario. —Toronto World.

CONSULT OUR OPTICIAN

The eye is such a delicate organ that it should never be trifled with.

This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses, costing from $7.50 to $25 each. With this limited knowledg it is little wonder that so many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others who do not require them.

If you have eye trouble you should only consult an optician who has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the optical business.

Such a man is our Mr. Taylor.

FIRES BURNING AT STONY LAKE

Likely to Burn Bridge on Stony Lake Road

Stony Lake, Nov. 5.—Fire is still burning on the 9th line on lot 25 in the 9th concession and is likely to burn a bridge on the Stony Lake road and also to destroy quite a lot of timber. Fire is also still burning at the east of Mrs. Frank Newall's. There has not been sufficient rain to stop it from spreading, and has spread to the old Harry Hughes place, but the lake will keep it from spreading further in that direction.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows;—

Vice-President—D. W. Dumble.

that this society had secured a lease Jas. English, Walter Stocker, F. Wise, T. A. S. Hay, Col. Rogers D. W. Dumble, Wm. James H. Nesbitt, B. Coon, S. Jordan, Adam Hall, Thos. Tucker.

Park Committee—Walter Stocker, F. Wise, Dr. Burnham, H. Nesbitt, S. Jordan, Wm. James.

Auditors—Messrs. T. A. S. Hay, Arthur Stevenson.

Col. Rogers stated, that the Secretary, Mr. H. Beal, was deserving of the sincere thanks of this society. He had really taken the burden of the whole Society upon his shoulders. He was possessed of a love for the beautiful and spent a great deal of time.

Mr. Beal was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer with authority, to engage an assistant.

It is proposed to have the council order the band to play in Central Park next year and then take the upper half of Victoria Park, and fence it off, then level it down and seed it, then keep it closed all year. The next year, it will be opened up and the lower half treated the same way. Mr. Beal also pointed out that the practice of last year of distributing advertising matter on band night must be stopped.

Mr. T. A. S. Hay suggested that the Executive of the Horticultural Society formulate a request and present it to the City Council to have Central Park laid out, and that arrangements be made to have that park and all other parks protected from hoodlums.

Mr. Pousette suggested that the society make a request to the city council to appoint a park commission to handle all the city parks. The city could hand over to the commission its lease of Victoria Park and thus the police will have authority over both the Victoria and Central Parks.

CITY MERCHANTS UNITE TO PROTECT THEIR INTERESTS

there is to get rid of the dust in the streets. (Applause.) Mr. Ziemann remarked that he noticed that it was quite bad yesterday, and merchants' goods were covered.

In conclusion he hoped that when the annual meeting of the Dominion Association was held next year Peterborough would report a flourishing branch.

MR. TROWERN'S ADDRESS

Mr. E. N. Trowern was the next speaker. His address was a decidedly interesting one and much valuable information was given the merchants of Peterborough. After expressing his pleasure at being present he stated that every merchant should be a member of the Retail Merchants' Association. This organization was first formed twelve years ago, because retailers' interests were being neglected.

Mr. Trowern began to point out reasons for a strong union of the merchants. He stated that the farmers, the manufacturers, the laborers, every class but themselves, —for the speaker himself spent 29 years behind the counter —were well organized.

The labor section is very strong "They have a labor bureau at Ottawa which costs $40,000 to run it, and the receipts amounted to but $1-200. and the deficit was paid out of the Government treasury. Mr. Trowern said "And by far the larger portion of it was contributed by the retail merchants."

NATION BUILDERS.

"Wherever the woodmen open up new territory by clearing the primeval forest and a few families begin to till the soil, the merchant is among the first at the place, and to him, in a large measure, is due the growth and prosperity of the town which is gradually built up." In Toronto he said the merchants pay 45 per cent of the taxes. "You are the most highly assessed of all the classes" Mr. Trowern emphasized, and yet the merchants as a body have no voice in the government. The reason, he said, was that the merchant had never made any demands, and the legislators do not know what they want.

THE SOFTEST CLASS

The retail merchant knows that all the profits have been paid on an article by the time he comes in possession of it, and the speaker urged the merchants to see that they were in a position to receive a just and fair price. "You paid $40,000,000 to the Government last year and you got not a single thing in return. Yet the labor party can obtain anything they wish."

Mr Trowern told his fellow merchants that they were the softest class of people on the earth. As a slight example, he referred to the men "whom they have rambling around the country examining scales: in many cases they simply put them out of order," said Mr. Trowern. He knew of one case of a merchant who had a brass measure embedded in his counter, and every year for 25 years it was examined and the proprietor paid a fee of $2.25 for each visit of the official.

"Our aim is to clean out the fakir, to make it easy to do right, and more difficult to do wrong. The great trouble is that one man will sell close to cost, or at cost, and then reduce earnings of his fellows. "I would sooner be a good engineer on a railway receiving a wage of $125 a month than own some of the retail business which I know of."

Mr. Trowern dealt at length on the Trading Stamp question which was finally stamped out and on the Co-operative Society plan which is still under discussion. He pointed out how the latter is dubbed, the help to the poor man, whereas in reality it robs him, robs the merchant and fills the pockets of those who are at the back of such societies. He referred to Mr. Monk, one of the members of Parliament who has been strongly advocating the scheme and whom, he said, had $25,000 of stock in such a society.

He spoke highly of the Senate, and in this connection, said, "God help Canada if the Senate is done away with. They may be old and their legs weak, but their heads are clear and their judgment wise."

CANON DAVIDSON.

Rev. Canon Davidson was greeted with applause. He had listened with pleasure to the splendid addresses given. He thought that the clergy should stand shoulder to shoulder with the business men. The speaker said that he was present both as an insider and as an outsider. As an insider because he believed in citizenship, and the more people became educated in that he felt assured of their advancement. As an outsider he was there that he might raise men up to their proper place in the community, that they might serve the public honorably and usefully.

THE ASSOCIATION.

Mr. Kingan then announced the names of the members of the Executive and explained that when the association got working well it was the intention to divide it into sections, each different line of business having its own chairman, these chairmen to form the Executive. Mr. Kingan imparted much valuable information to his fellow merchants.

Others who made brief remarks were His Worship Mayor Rush, the new secretary, Wm. Harstone, Robert Fair and T. F. Matthews.

HELPS POOR MAN.

The retail merchant is the friend of the poor man, he continued. He tides him over when the Co-operative Society turns from their door to the little corner grocery. If it were not for many of our big-hearted retailers many of the poor people would have to be left dependent on the State.

After dealing with several other important questions of current moment to the merchant, Mr. Trowern, concluded by sounding this motto; "Shop in your home town; keep your money in circulation in your own home town."

FALL FAIRS.

Speaking of the merchants' position in regard to fall fairs, the speaker remarked, "Why not one and a good one." In Toronto the merchants studied out the great National Exhibition got at the back of it, and they have made it the great success that it is.

All organized branches of business are represented on the board of fair directors.

In conclusion Mr. Trowern urged his hearers to elect a bright, active executive and let every member work in the interests of the Association.

THEATRICAL

"THE WOLF"

The dramatic treat of the season was the presentation of "The Wolf" at the Grand Opera House last night. It was greeted by a large audience who were thoroughly delighted.

"The Wolf" is a drama of the Hudson Bay country in three acts and three scenes, by Eugene Walter, and therefore the action has a peculiar fascination for Ontario audiences, many being more or less intimate with that life and scenes depicted.

The play is intensely natural and forceful. Hilda McTavish, the 18-year old daughter of Andrew McTavish, a Scotch settler and hunter, was splendidly taken by Miss Estelle. Treated harshly by the farmer because of her resemblance to her dead mother who left him years before because of his cruelty. Hilda is wooed by Jules Beaubien, a manly young French-Canadian half-breed, his rival being Wm McDonald an American railway engineer, who was locating a line into the Abitibi country; he sought her ruin and the father was led to unconsciously aid his plans by reason of his cupidity. Batiste le Grand, a typical trader and woodsman, and George Huntley, McDonald's assistant, aid Jules in delivering the maid from her peril: they escape by canoe and being followed by McDonald, Jules remains behind, is attacked, and slays his opponent after a desperate fight in the dark, about an extinguished camp fire.

The acting of Severin DeDeyn, as Jules, was worthy of the highest commendation and he shared with Miss Estelle the plaudits of the audience present. Henry Duggan as Wm. McDonald, made a cynical and clever villain while J. T. Challie as Batiste, could not well be improved upon.

Frank Dee, as the assistant surveyor, won the good-will of the audience once by his good-humored raillery, backed by many principles. The part of McTavish was well taken by Geo. O. Nicholls.

The appropriate scenery and stage setting and language, the yelping of the wolf pack, and other bits of coloring contributed greatly to the effectiveness of the play.

It is hoped that the boys will turn out to-morrow morning and meet the trains on which the delegates will arrive. Badges can be secured at the Y. M. C. A. The first delegates will arrive by 8 o'clock, so the boys will have to get around early to welcome the visitors.

REV. J. H. KEITH'S LECTURE ON INDIA

Interesting Event at Knox Church Last Evening

At Knox church last night, Rev. H. J. Keith gave an illustrated lecture on Judea, which was given under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society. The lecture was exceedingly interesting and was greatly enjoyed by those present. A short programme was rendered by the choir and Miss Kathleen Wallis rendered two violin solos in a most artistic manner.

Sheffield Choir at Montreal

It was in the Demons' Chorus from Elgar's "Dream of Gerontius," however, that the choir's greatest achievement stood revealed. This chorus has become the dread of every great choir and choral society in England since the Sheffield Choir showed the others how to sing it. Presenting technical difficulties of an unusual and most puzzling and disconcerting nature, demanding a positive dramatic interpretation to save it from being grimly humorous and at the same time probably including the most extraordinary juxtaposed assortment of words to enunciate in quickly sung passages of any composition in the English language, it is as full of pitfalls as anything could be.

Yet, to the Sheffield Choir it was all easy. No single section of the chorus faltered for an instant. Every difficult entry was taken up with absolute precision. Technically it was perfect. But one did not consider the technique until after. It was the terrific vehemence of the dramatic expression from the first bar to the last that held one spellbound, almost hypnotised. The air seemed surcharged with overpowering malignity, defiance of fiendish intensity, and threatenings of most heart chilling and sinister type. The choir sang as if possessed. They—both conductor and singers—might have got their tone-color from Hades itself, so demonize was the whole thing. The jeering laughter was hissed rather than sung, and to those who could understand it, who knew their Newman and the meaning of the wonderful music Sir Edward Elgar has written—the whole performance will stand for a long time as the most remarkable achievement of dramatic expression in choral singing one could hear, or wish to hear. It is a tribute to Dr. Coward's training—for the interpretation is his — of which any conductor will be rightly proud. —Montreal Herald.

Michael Pouzi, on trial at Woodstock on a murder charge, cannot speak a word of English.

The Newfoundland Government seems to have thirteen seats to the Opposition's twelve.

HOAGLAND WON RELAY RACE IN FAST TIME AT ROLLER RINK

There was a large crowd at the auditorium roller rink last evening the special attraction being the relay race in which Hoagland, of Auburn, N.Y., the world's champion pedestrian, walked against four roller skaters. The race was fast and exciting but Hoagland easily won the event. Hoagland walked two miles on foot while his opponents on rollers went four. Those who competed against Hoagland were Prof. Genno, Jack Seymour, Percy Farrington, Martin Kenneally and Ben Clute.

Prof. Genno took the first 16 laps and gained a lap on the walker, but the other skaters did not do so well. The speed at which Hoagland travelled can well be imagined when our velled can well be imagined when one realizes that he beat out four of the fastest roller skaters in Peterborough. The race was very exciting. It kept the famous walker going some but his remarkable stride covered the distance in fast time and the roller quartette failed to go more than four miles when he walked two.

The event will again be one of the features at the rink this evening, in addition to a band concert. It is expected that there will be a large number present.

Hoagland's time in the race was 16 minutes and that of the skaters was 16 minutes 10 seconds.

THE LATEST DOINGS IN THE BIG HOCKEY LEAGUES

The first official notification of what is likely to prove a lengthy list of changes in the personnel of the hockey teams the coming winter was received by the secretary of the E.C.H.A. yesterday, Montreal notifying Mr. T. Emmett Quinn that they had signed Riley Hern, late of the Wanderers, and Pitre, late of Shamrocks. These are the first contracts of the year to be fyled with the league under the regulations put in force towards the end of last season.

It has been known for a couple of weeks, of course, that Hern would be with Montreal, but until yesterday there was doubt in the case of Pitre.

Wanderers, it is understood, made a big effort to land the Frenchman, but negotiations fell through when they thought they had landed their man.

Ross and Montreal have not yet come to terms, and as a result of the hitch Ross is said to be inclined to reconsider his decision not to go to Ottawa. He is now considering a plan under discussion whereby the players would run the team on the basis of a joint stock company. Secretary Gales declares he is out of the club for good, and until the annual meeting comes off next week it is difficult to say where the club will land up. Everything is in confusion just now, and another rumor has it that Messrs. Jennings and Hodge, who resigned some weeks ago, may be back in the club.

Whatever the changes in the Wanderer Club's executive are, they do not interfere with the fact that a Wanderer seven will probably have to get out on the Arena ice and defend the Stanley Cup before the regular series are started.

The actual challenger for the Stanley Cup is not a team from Nelson, B.C., but the Edmonton Hockey Club. Their challenge has been received. It is in the hands of the cup trustees, and Wanderer, and definite dates for the matches have been suggested.

What will cause special local interest is the announcement that Lester and Frank Patrick are likely to come east as members of the Edmonton team to play against men with whose tactics they should be familiar.

Three games have been agreed upon by the two teams, instead o ftwo, While negotiations between the two teams have been started, however, the challenge will have to be accepted by the league, and no official notice has yet been received by the league officials.

More resignations than were at first expected will have to be considered at the annual meeting of the Wanderer Club, which will probably take place next week. It is definitely announced, as stated above, that George Gales, the present secretary, will return, and will not take an active interest in hockey management this winter. The work of managing the team was an arduous one for the club's executive last winter, and Mr. Gales has given it to be understood that he will confine attention to his own business, which he has recently extended.

This means that Messrs. Jennings, Hodge and Gales have announced their decision to resign. Of course, there was similar tale of resignations but in any event it is regarded as certain that the Wanderer Club will have to get a new secretary.

MORE ON BELAND AFFAIR

The Quebec Telegraph has this to say regarding its road race won by a ringer.

"While all this excitement was rampant throughout the streets in the expectancy and anticipation of the race, the scene in the MAA. clubhouse was a no less lively one. Suddenly a rumor was bruited about to the effect that runner No. 14, of the Zouaves, one Walter Beland, was no other than the Western crack runner, Meadows, who figured at the Olympic games, and who on several occasions gave Tom Longboat, himself, a run for his money; others maintained that the runner was Art Burns of Calgary, and the man in question was thus surveyed, but no one recognized him, except those who were handling him, and according to them, he was no other than Walter Beland.

"The rumor that he was a fast man, and altogether the fastest runner ever seen in Quebec, as was afterwards proved by his winning the race and breaking previous records for the course, was strengthened by the fact that certain local men were going around with handfuls of money offering to take No. 14 against the field and other such wagers upon the results of which the running of No. 14 had a particular bearing. Much excitement was aroused on this score, but the race was in no way delayed and No. 14, W. Beland, whose card was in the hands of the local representative of the Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada, by which organization the race was sanctioned, was entered, and all who saw him know in what a splendid manner he completed, and how easily he won the race."

The description of the race shows the ringer to have been a veteran. He let the others take the early pace then went at them and beat them to a standstill in the last three miles. He won by a quarter mile doing the six miles of a hilly course in 32.56, and breaking the course record by two minutes.

The Telegraph gives no description of the ringer but an outside description says the unknown had fair curly hair. Meadows' hair is dark and curly. Burn has fuzzy fair hair, but the description says that the winner was only 5 feet 8 inches high. That is Meadows' height. Burns is 5 feet 10 or more.

A Quebec despatch says:

"The judges are satisfied that the man who won first place in the race is Fred Meadows, of Toronto, and not Walter Beland, under whose name the former ran. Consequently the judges have awarded the first prize to A. Robillard, National AAA. Montreal; 2nd, Menard, Zouave AAA, of Quebec; 3rd, E Fatter, National A. AA, Montreal; 4th, P. Royal, MAAA. As Meadows ran under Zouave colors and was vouched for by Dave Beland, as his brother, the latter has been requested by the Zouave Association to send in his resignation."

A young man very warm in the neighborhood of the Adam's apple, blew into the Sporting Editor's office this morning.

"Say, what right have you to say I'm foolish," he exclaimed, pointing to a paragraph in the write-up of the Quebec "ringing" case, in which it was said that Dave Beland told the proprietor of the house where the ringer was sheltered before the race was started that the runner was his brother, Walter Beland, and not to talk to him because he (his brother) was foolish.

"I'm Dave Beland's brother, Walter Beland, and I want it distinctly understood that I am not a candidate for the bughouse."

"Did you run in the Quebec road race," was asked.

"Me," exclaimed Beland. "I wasn't in Quebec. I was here in Toronto. Anyway I could not run from here to the corner without stopping for refreshments. Dave is the only one in the family who runs. Another brother is Arthur Beland, who is manager of the Crown Pressing Company. Neither one of us is a runner. Dave is the only athlete in the family. I have lived here since I was three years old, while Dave was brought up in Quebec by an aunt. The idea of him telling people the phoney runner was his brother Walter, and that Walter was foolish. My father is very sore about this crack of Dave's, too."

In view of the real Walter Beland's denial that he was in Quebec and his acknowledgement that he could not run a block fast enough to catch his breath, the following despatch is interesting.

Harold Patterson, shot at Longueuil, was "murdered by some person unknown," the coroner's jury found.

MEADOWS ACKNOWLEDGES THAT HE WAS THE "MYSTERIOUS"

Fred Meadows writes to Secretary Crowe, of the C.A.A.U., acknowledging that he competed in the Quebec Telegraph race. His letter is as follows:—

"Guelph, Nov. 4, 1908.

"Mr. N. H. Crowe, Secretary C.A.A.U., Toronto, Ontario:

"Dear Sir,—I take the liberty of writing you regarding the race which was run in the city of Quebec last week, and in which I took part and won out under an assumed name.

"I first heard of the Quebec Telegraph race on the boat coming from England after the Olympic Marathon, and I decided to take part in it. I went down to Quebec, paying all my expenses, but when I arrived there I found that I could not run unless I had a Federation card. I had gone to a great deal of expense in going there, and was greatly disappointed at the result, and some of my friends suggested the only remedy, and I availed myself of the chance, not thinking for one moment that it would suspend me from the association. I had run and won the race, hence all the consternation. If I had lost the race there never would have been a word about it. I have nothing further to say in defence of my action.

"I would be deeply grateful if you will place my explantion before your honorable body, and, if necessary, would appear in person.

"You, I think, know my career as a runner. I have taken part in amateur races during the past five years, and and have always tried to raise the sport to a clean and healthy standard. I conscientiously cannot say that I was wrong. The race was represented to me, and after I arrived in Quebec I found out my mistake. I make this appeal to you in remonstrance and protest at the manner in which some of the press has described the action. I have neither denied nor maintained any of the charges made by the press. You are at perfect liberty to make any statement for the benefit of the public if you wish to do so, or see fit. I leave the matter entirely to your judgment and that of your colleagues. I would further ask you to advise me fully by return mail so that there will be no objection to my entering the annual Thanksgiving Day races here. Yours very sincerely.

(Signed) "Fred. Meadows."

Quebec Nov. 4.—At their meeting Saturday evening, the officials made every effort to clear matters up, and during the evening called the mysterious Mr. Beland before them and put questions to him. They also put questions to Dave Beland, and some of the answers of these two men will prove interesting reading. The Maze.

By HARRIET LUMMIS SMITH.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The maze was located a few rods from the hotel, its compact walls of evergreen rising ten feet high. The little opening which revealed a narrow curving path possessed the undeniable charm of mystery. But Lettice, recalling tales she had heard of tourists wandering for hours in those intricate windings unable to find their way out, was inclined to be skeptical.

"It's so little," she criticised. "I imagined that a maze would cover acres."

Inwardly she felt convinced of her ability to walk triumphantly to the center and out again. She looked at the clock. It was three-quarters of an hour before the coaching party was to start. Bigger things than the conquest of a maze had been accomplished in that time.

Lettice stepped through the opening into the narrow path with its high, green walls, promising herself that she would turn back before there was any likelihood of losing her way. And almost on the moment she forgot that possibility. The path was very narrow, so narrow that the most amicable pair could not have walked abreast. The dense foliage of the evergreen was for all practical purposes impenetrable as granite. Overhead was the blue California sky, and the breeze was weighted with the odors of uncounted millions of blossoms.

"What a delicious place!" thought Lettice. The big outside world was no longer in evidence. She seemed to herself a solitary pilgrim, following life's winding paths, not knowing where they led, satisfied with a glimpse of the sky overhead and the odors of unseen flowers.

In this peaceful, almost philosophical frame of mind Lettice turned a corner and came face to face with a young man. And the encounter was sufficient to work an immediate change in the current of her thoughts. She swayed against the wall of evergreen as if about to fall.

"Jack!" she murmured faintly.

"Lettice!" cried the young man, and his tones were rapturous.

As he advanced with outstretched hands Lettice drew herself up. A sudden amazing dignity radiated from her slight figure. An expression of extreme hauteur replaced her previous look of agitation.

"I beg your pardon," said Lettice, gazing at some indefinite object over the young man's head. "I am afraid you misunderstand me."

The young man might have replied that the break in her voice and her sudden pallor were sufficient excuses for the indiscretion into which he had been betrayed. He did nothing of the kind, however. He only stood and looked at her as if even at her haughtiest the sight of her rejoiced his eyes.

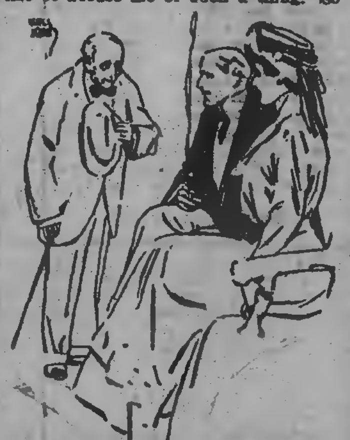
"If you will kindly let me pass," continued Lettice, and the young man obligingly flattened himself against the wall of foliage. But owing to the narrowness of the path her arm brushed his sleeve as she swept by, and something in the contact weakened her resolution. She felt the tears rushing to her eyes, and her knees were unsteady.

Suddenly she decided that she hated mazes and all that pertained to them. She would hurry back to the hotel and lie down for a few moments before the coaching party. She was absurdly nervous and unstrung. Still she excused her weakness on the ground that there is something disconcerting in the sudden apparition of a person whom you have every reason to believe thousands of miles away. If by any chance you have ever been engaged to the person in question that, of course, adds to the complications.

Lettice quickened her pace. She walked with a rapidity that brought the color to her cheeks and rendered her breathless. She was reflecting that she did not realize she had followed the winding path so far when she again found herself face to face with the young man whom she had met ten minutes before. On this occasion, however, she did not cry "Jack!" or give similar indications of weakness. She drew back and looked him over with an air divided between surprise and contempt.

"If you will allow me to say so," Lettice began, "I should hardly expect you to take advantage of the situation to dog my footsteps in this way."

"And if you will allow me to say so," returned Jack, with more spirit than he had evidenced on the previous occasion, "it is like your customary injustice to accuse me of such a thing. So far from dogging you, I am only interested in getting out of this wretched place."



"I SEE, AND I BEG YOUR PARDON," SAID THE ELDERLY MAN.

"Perhaps you will allow me to pass, then," said Lettice, with great dignity.

"Certainly," Jack replied. Again he flattened himself against the evergreen, and again Lettice swept past him.

"Your customary injustice!" What a disagreeable phrase it was, and yet perhaps not undeserved! She had condemned him unheard. Possibly if she had given him a chance to explain the past two years would not have been so difficult and sad. To smile when your heart is heavy, to laugh when sighs are crowding to your lips, to hide a bitter regret under the pretense of gayety, is not an easy programme to carry out. Lettice gave way suddenly to the luxury of self pity, and the blinding tears ran down her cheeks.

Half an hour later a young man, flushed and frowning, came face to face with a young woman who held her handkerchief to her eyes. Both stood still. The only break in the silence was a little muffled sob, and at the sound the young man's face contracted as if he were in pain.

"Lettice!" he exclaimed. "Oh, Lettice! Why are you crying?"

It was a moment before a stifled voice replied, "Because I can't find my way out."

"Is that all?" This time the silence was longer than before. "Is that all?" Jack hesitated. "Tell me, dear."

"No-o." The uncertain syllable was so faint that Jack bent his head to be sure. Then he put his hand gently over the girl's trembling fingers.

"Dearest, you wouldn't give me a chance to set myself right with you. My letters came back unopened. I went to see you, and you had left for Europe the day before. You wouldn't listen"—

Lettice looked up at him. Through her tears something bright and beautiful looked out, like the sunshine sifting through the raindrops.

"I'll listen now," she said.

It was some time before the desirability of leaving the maze occurred to either, and then they could not agree as to the direction in which the exit lay. Lettice, however, was sweetly submissive.

"I've had my own way long enough," she said. "Now I'll follow you wherever you choose to take me." And Jack, who had found her bewitching even in her willfulness, could only doubly adore her in her enchanting new role.

A few minutes later they walked into a circular space, where a bench stood back against the hedge. The two looked at each other.

"We've got to the center," Lettice cried happily. "And now we're farther from getting out than ever." She regarded the bench with approving eyes. "It looks so comfortable," she said.

They were still discovering new charms in their circular paradise when an elderly man with stooping shoulders came into view.

"I beg your pardon," he said, addressing the pair on the bench. "But will you tell me how to get out of this confounded trap?"

The lovers looked at him and then at each other.

"We haven't the least idea," Lettice acknowledged in tones of extreme cheerfulness.

"The fact is," Jack confessed shamelessly, "we're not in any hurry to get out."

"I see, and I beg your pardon," said the elderly man. And he obligingly vanished. Again they were alone with their happiness, and the mystery of the maze kept guard.

Felicitous.

An Iowa man says that shortly after the election of a governor of that state some years ago the governor paid an official visit to the state prison, in the course of which he was ushered into the chapel where the convicts were assembled in a body.

Before the governor could realize what was going on the chaplain had presented him to the company, with the remark that he would doubtless have something to say.

"But my dear sir," whispered the startled governor, "I haven't anything to say, and I couldn't say it if I had! You know what a wretched speaker I am!"

The chaplain could only reply, "I beg your pardon, sir, for being so premature, but as I have committed you so decidedly I see no way out of it and feel confident that you will not mind addressing a few remarks to the men."

Whereupon, with a sigh of apprehension, the governor delivered himself as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen— No, no, I don't mean that! Gentlemen and fellow citizens— No, I don't exactly mean that either, but—but—well, men and fellow prisoners, I can't make a speech. I—I don't know how to make a speech —and so—so—well, about all I can say is that—that I'm very glad to see so many of you here!"—Harper's Weekly.

Cold Storage.

How long it is possible to keep meats in a frozen state is unknown, but in chemical and microscopic examinations of beef and poultry W. D. Richardson has detected no alteration after a year and a half. As muscular tissue cools to just above 30 degrees F., the water separates as ice, contracting the fibers and forming an armor that it is impossible for bacteria to penetrate. The solution remaining in the fiber becomes very concentrated, so that bacteria already present cannot multiply or remain active, and it is almost certain, though not absolutely proved for all cases, that all germs artificially introduced into frozen meats must lose their vitality and die. Muscular tissue returns to its normal appearance when thawed slowly, though the meats must look changed if the thawing is rapid.

THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

"These volcanic islands sometimes sink entirely," I suggested, "and in that case we'd be carried down by the suction."

It was intended merely to increase their uneasiness, but, strangely enough, after a few moments it ended by imposing itself on my own fears. I began to be afraid the island would sink, began to watch for it, began to share the fascinated terror of these men.

The suspense after a time became unbearable, for while the portent—whether physical or moral we were too far under its influence to distinguish—grew momentarily, our own souls did not expand in due correspondence. We talked of towing, of kedging out, of going to any extreme, even to small boats. Then just as we were about to move toward some accomplishment a new phenomenon chained our attention to the shore.

In the mouth of the arroyo appeared a red glow. A moment later a wave of lava, white hot, red, iridescent, cooling to a black crust cracked in incandescence, rolled majestically out over the grassy plain. Each instant it grew in volume until the ravine must have been flowing half full.

Before its scorching the grasses even at the edge of the sea were smoking, and our camp had already burst into flames. We had to shield our faces against the heat, and the wooden railing under our hands was growing warm.

Pulz turned an ashy countenance toward us.

"My God," he screamed, "what's going to happen when she hits the sea?"

She hit the sea, and immediately a great cloud of steam arose and the hissing as of a thousand serpents. We felt the strong suction under our keel and staggered under the jerk of the ship's cable as she swung toward the beach. The paint was beginning to crackle along the rail. We could see nothing for the scalding white veil that enveloped us. We could hear nothing for the roar of steam, the bombardment of explosions and the crash of thunder, but our nostrils were assaulted by a most unearthly medley of smells.

We were clinging hard as the ship reeled. Huge surges were racing in from seaward, growing larger with each successive billow.

Handy Solomon raised his head, listened intently and struck his forehead.

"Wind!" he screamed at the top of his voice and jumped for the halliards.

Thrackles followed him, but no one else moved. In an instant the two were back, striking and kicking savagely, rousing their companions to the danger. We all laid into the canvas like mad, and in no time had snugged down to a staysail and the peak of our mainsail. Thrackles drew his knife and jumped for the cable, while Handy Solomon, his eyes snapping, seized the wheel.

We finished just in time. I was turning away after tying the last gasket on the foresail when the deck up ended and tipped me headforemost into the starboard scupper. At the same time a smother of salt water blew over the port rail, now far above me, to drench me as thoroughly as though I had fallen overboard. I brushed out my eyes to find the ship smack on her beam ends and the wind howling by from the sea.

I had company enough in the scuppers. Only Handy Solomon clung desperately to the wheel, jamming his weight to port in the hope she might pay up. Thrackles, too, his eye squinted along some bearing of his own, was waiting for her to drag. Presently it became evident that she was doing so, whereupon he drew his knife across our hawser.

"My God," chattered Pulz at my ear, "if we go ashore"—

He did not need to finish. Unless the Laughing Lass could recover before the squall had driven her to leeward a scant half mile we should be cooked alive in the boiling caldron at the shore's edge.

For an interminable time, as it seemed to me, we lay absolutely motionless. The scene is stamped indelibly on my memory—the bulwarks high above me, the steep, sleek deck, the piratical figure tense at the wheel, the snarling water racing from beneath us, the lurid glow to landward crawling up on us inch by inch, like a hungry wild beast. Then almost imperceptibly the brave schooner righted. The strained lines on Handy Solomon's carven features relaxed little by little. Thrackles, staring over the side, let out a mighty roar.

"Steerage way!" he shouted and executed an awkward clog dance on the reeling deck.

She moved forward, there was no doubt of that, for gradually we were eating toward the wind, but we made considerable leeway as well. Handy Solomon, taut as the weather rigging, took his little advantages one by one like precious gifts. Light there was none. The land was blotted out by the steam and murk which had crept to sea and now was buried back by the wind. All we could do was to hang there, tasting the copper of excitement, waiting for these different forces to adjust themselves. Inch by inch we crept forward; foot by foot we made leeway. The intensest of the lava glow worked its way from directly abeam of the quarter. By this we knew we must be nearly opposite the cove. At once a new doubt sprang up in our minds.

A moment ago all the energy of our desires had gone up in the ambition to avoid being cast on the beach. Now we saw that that was not enough. It was necessary to squeeze around the point where lay the Golden Horn in order to avoid the fate that had overtaken her. Handy Solomon yelled something at us. We could not hear, but our own knowledge told us what it must be, and with one accord we turned to on the foresail. With the peak of it hoisted we moved a trifle faster, though the schooner lay over at a perilous angle. A moment later the fogs parted to show us the cliffs looming startlingly near. There were the donkey engine and the works we had constructed for wrecking, and there beside them, watching us reflectively, stood Percy Darrow.

For ten minutes we stared at him fascinated, during which time the ship labored against the staggering winds, gained and lost in its buffeting with the great surges. The breakers hurling themselves in wild abandon against the rocks sent their backwash of tumbling peaks to our very bilges. The few remains of the Golden Horn, alternately drenched and draining, seemed to picture to us our inevitable end.

I think we had all selected the same two points for our "bearings," a rock and a drop of the cliff bolder than the ordinary. If the rock opened from the cliff to eastward, we were lost; if it remained stationary, we were at least holding our own; if it opened out to westward, we were saved. We watched with a strained eagerness impossible to describe. At each momentary gain or rebuff we uttered ejaculations. The nigger mumbled charms. Every once in awhile one of us would snatch a glance to leeward at the cruel white waters, the whirl of eddies where the sea was beaten, only to hurry back to the rock and the point of the cliff whence our message of safety or destruction was to be flung. Once I looked up. Percy Darrow was leaning gracefully against a stanchion, watching. His soft hat was pulled over his eyes. He stroked softly his little mustache. I caught the white puff of his cigarette. During the moment of my inattention something happened. A wild shout burst from the men. I whirled and saw to my great joy a strip of sky westward between the cliff and the rock. And at that very instant a billow larger than the ordinary rolled beneath us, and in the back suction of its passage I could dimly make out cruel, dangerous rocks lying almost under our keel.

Slowly we crept away. Our progress seemed infinitesimal, and yet it was real. In awhile we had gained sea room; in awhile more we were fairly under sailing way and the cliffs had begun to drop from our quarter. With one accord we looked back. Percy Darrow waved his hand in an indescribably graceful and ironic gesture, then turned square on his heel and sauntered away to the north alley, out of the course of the lava. That was the last I ever saw of him.

As we made our way from beneath the island the weight of the wind seemed to lessen. We got the foresail on her, then a standing jib; finally, little by little, all her ordinary working canvas. Before we knew it we were bowling along under a stiff breeze, and the island was dropping astern.

From a distance it presented a truly imposing sight. The center shot intermittent blasts of ruddy light; explosions, deadened by distance, still reverberated strongly; the broad canopy of brown red, split with lightnings, spread out like a huge umbrella. The lurid gloom that had enveloped us in the atmosphere apparently of a nether world had given place to a twilight. Abruptly we passed from it to a sun kissed, sparkling sea. The breeze blew sweet and strong; the waves ran untortured in their natural long courses.

At once the men seemed to throw off the superstitious terror that had cowed them. Pulz and Thrackles went to bail the extra dory alongside, which by a miracle had escaped swamping. The nigger disappeared in the galley. Perdosa relieved Handy Solomon at the wheel, and Handy Solomon came directly over to me.

CHAPTER XXV

HANDY SOLOMON approached me with a confidence that proclaimed the new leader. A brace of revolvers swung from his belt; the tatters of his blood stained garments hung about him.

"Well, here we are," he remarked.

I nodded, waiting for what he had to disclose.

"And lucky for you that you're here, at all, say I," he continued. "And now that you're here w'at are you going to do? That's the question—w'at are you going to do?" He cocked his head sidewise and looked at me speculatively as a cat might look at a rather large mouse. "We been a little rough," he went on after a moment, "and some folks is straitlaced. There might be trouble. And you know a heap too much."

"What do you want of me?" I demanded.

"It's just this," he returned briskly: "If you'll lay us our course to San Salvador, we'll let you go as one of us and no questions asked."

"If not?" I inquired.

He shrugged his shoulders. "I leave it to you."

"There's always the sea," I suggested.

"And it's deep," he agreed.

We looked out to the horizon in a diplomatic silence. I did not know whether to be angry, amused or alarmed that the man estimated my cleverness so slightly. Why, the hook was barely concealed and the bait of the coarsest. That I would go safe to a sight of San Salvador I did not doubt. That I would never enter the harbor I was absolutely certain. The choice offered me was practically whether I preferred being thrown overboard now or several hundred miles to southeastward.

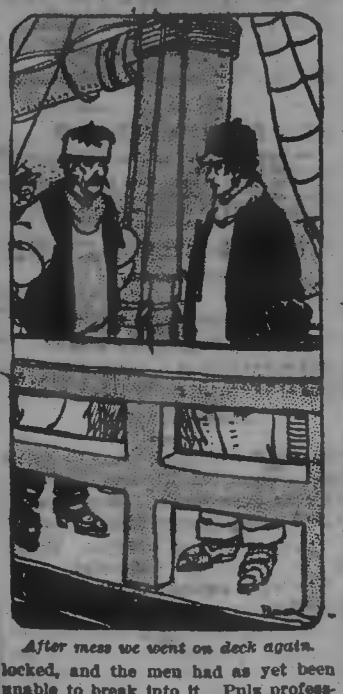
I thought rapidly. It might be possible to announce a daily false reckoning to the crew, to sail the ship within rowing distance of some coast and then to escape while the men believed themselves many hundred miles at sea. It would take nice calculation to prevent suspicion, but as it was the only chance I resolved upon it immediately.

"That's all very well," I said firmly, "but you can't get anywhere without me, and I'm not going to put in two years and then keep my mouth shut for nothing. I want a share in the swag—an even share with the rest of you."

"Oh, that'll be all right," he cried. "You can have it."

If anything was needed to convince me of the man's sinister intentions, this too ready acquiescence would have been enough. I knew him too well. If he had had the slightest intention of permitting me to go free, he would have bargained.

The nigger called us to mess. We ate in the after cabin. The chest was locked, and the men had as yet been unable to break into it. Pulz professed some skill in locksmithing and promised to experiment later. After mess we went on deck again. The island had dropped down to the horizon and showed as a brilliant glow under a dark canopy. I leaned over the rail, looking at it. Below me the extra dory bumped along. The idea came to me that if I could escape that night I could row back to Percy Darrow. The two of us could make shift to live on fish and shellfish and mutton. The plan rapidly defined itself in my brain. From the remains of the Golden Horn we could construct some kind of a craft in which to run free to the summer trades. Thus we might in time reach some one or another of the Sandwich Islands, whence a passing trader could take us back to civilization. There were many elements of uncertainty in the scheme, but it seemed to me less desperate than trusting to the caprices of these men, especially since they now had free access to the liquor stores.



After mess we went on deck again.

While I leaned over the rail engrossed in these thoughts one of the black thunderclouds that had been gathering and dissipating over the island during the entire afternoon suddenly glowed overhead with a strange white incandescence startlingly akin to Darrow's so called "devil fires." Strangely enough, this illumination, unlike the volcanic glows, appeared to be cast on the clouds from without rather than shot through them from within, as were the other volcanic emanations. At the same instant I experienced a sharp interior revulsion of some sort, most briefly momentary, but of a character that shook me from head to toe.

I had no time to analyze these various impressions, however, for my attention was almost instantly distracted. From the cabin came the sound of a sharp fall; then a man cried out, and on the heels of it Pulz darted from the cabin, screaming horribly. We were all on deck, and as the little man rushed toward the stern Handy Solomon twisted him deftly from his feet.

"What is it?" he cried as he pinned the sufferer to the deck.

But Pulz could not answer. He shivered, stiffened and lay rigid, his eyes rolled back.

"Fits," remarked Thrackles impatiently.

The excitement died. Rum was forced between the victim's lips. After a little he recovered, but could tell us nothing of his seizure.

After the dishes had been swept aside from supper Handy Solomon announced a second attempt to open the chest.

"Pancho, here, says he's been a mechanic," said he. "I right well know he's been a housebreaker, so he's got the sabe for the job, and you can kiss the book on that."

Perdosa, with a grin, leaned over the cover from behind and began to pick away at the lock with a long crooked wire. The others drew close about. I slipped nearer the door, imagining that in their riveted interest I saw my opportunity. To my surprise I caught a glimpse of legs disappearing up the companion. I took stock. Pulz had gone on deck.

This surprised me, for I should have thought every man interested enough in the supposed treasure to wish to be present at its uncovering, and it annoyed me still more. The success of my plan demanded a clear deck. However, there was nothing for it now but to trust that Pulz had wished to visit the forecastle and that I might find the afterworks empty.

I paused at the foot of the companion and looked back. A breathlessness of excitement held the pirates in a vise. From above the hanging lamp threw strong shadows across their faces, bringing out the deep lines, accentuating the dominant passions. With their rags and blood, their unshaven faces, their firearms, their filth, they showed in violent antithesis to the immaculate white of Old Scrubs' cabin, its glittering brass and its shining leather. I darted up the steps.

The contrast of the starry night with the glare of the cabin lamp dazzled my eyes. I stood stock still for a moment, during which the only sounds audible were the singing of the winds through the rigging, the wash of the sea and the small, sharp click of Perdosa's instrument as he worked at the chest.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

A MIND READER.

His Analysis of the Character of the New Boarder.

"I can tell you all about yourself," said the boarding house Sherlock Holmes to the new boarder after the landlady had introduced them across the roast mutton.

The boarding house sleuth prided himself on his keen observation of human nature and his ability to make deductions therefrom.

"You're a mind reader, are you?" asked the new boarder.

"To a great extent," replied the sleuth. "For instance, I never met you before, but I know you are from the east."

"Good guess," said the new boarder.

"You come from a family of extraordinary ability and good antecedents, although none of your family possesses great wealth."

The new boarder smiled his approval.

"A peculiar thing about you is that your beard is of remarkable toughness. Your face, on the contrary, is very tender, so that you experience great difficulty in shaving. Few razors are made of fine enough steel to overcome the texture of your beard."

"True again," said the new boarder, "although I don't know how you guessed it, but my beard is the toughest I have ever encountered."

"Also you are a rough and ready humorist, able to snap out a funny remark in almost any situation that can arise."

"Say," said the new boarder, "you make me feel uncanny. How do you do this stunt of character reading?"

The boarding house Sherlock smiled broadly and speared a "French fried."

"It's this way," he elucidated. "Simple enough when explained, like all really great detective work. I knew you were from the east by the way you worked the salt shaker. Westerners pick up the salt shaker with the right hand and plunge it at the food. Easterners seize the shaker with the left hand, invert it and tap it briskly on the bottom with the right hand."

The boarders gasped in admiration of the sleuth's genius.

"I knew you came from a remarkable family because that's the kind we all come from. I concluded your relatives were not overburdened with wealth or you wouldn't be living in this hashery. I knew your whiskers were remarkably tough, for every man living thinks he has the toughest whiskers going. The barber tells him so. Somehow or other a man takes it as a high compliment to be told his whiskers are the toughest the barber ever tackled. Then it helps reconcile the victim to having his face torn off.

"Lastly, I knew you were a humorist on the same broad and general principle. Every American thinks he is a second Bill Nye with additions and improvements. The small boy at the ball game yells 'Get a basket!' when a ball is fumbled. When the street car conductor says, 'Plenty of room up in front!' half a dozen wits reply, 'Plenty of room, but it's all taken.' When you find a citizen of this great republic who doesn't think he's a jolly wag you've discovered something."

The new boarder was silent in mental cogitation.

Crocodile Worship.

It was in the very ferocity and terribleness of the crocodile that the Egyptians found the inspiration for the cult they devoted to him. They were mightily afraid of the monster and therefore instituted in his honor the supposedly appeasing worship as though they had said, "Be good enough not to eat us and we will build temples to you and bow down to you as to a god." The students of early history have clearly proved that the earliest worships of every sort took the shape of offerings intended to appease the elementary forces of nature, or the real or imaginary beings of whom men were afraid.

Curious Russian Law.

Russia has a law which to outside observers seems almost to put a premium on theft by which stolen goods become the property of the thief if he can prove that he has had possession of them for over five years. In the thieves' market—which is, of course, licensed by the police—goods that admittedly have been stolen (more than five years before) are openly offered for sale, and the place is a veritable Mecca for the light fingered gentry and their enterprising friends, as also for the more honest members of society, who secure many a tempting bargain.

Constant Squeezing.

"Now, Algernon," said Miss Fussanfeather, as she was tightly held in the embrace of her fiance, "they tell me that men get tired of squeezing after they are married. Will you promise me not to give it up after we are man and wife?"

"Oh, I assure you it is not necessary to make any such promises," replied the young man. "I guarantee you'll have all the squeezing you want to do to get along on $7 a week."—Exchange.

Flattered Him.

Magistrate (about to commit for trial)—You certainly effected the robbery in a remarkably ingenious way—in fact, with quite exceptional cunning. Prisoner (deprecatingly)—No flattery, yer honor; no flattery, I begs on yer.—London Fun.

Unruffled.

Master—Mary, I wish you would be more careful. I'm sorry to hear my wife has to scold you so often. Mary—Oh, it's all right, sir. I seldom takes any notice of her.—London Telegraph.

Black care sits behind the rich man on horseback.—Horace.

The big starch factory at Hunter River, P.E.I., was burned with $1,000 loss.

International Hens.

The advantages that people who live exactly on the line between two countries have in escaping the customs and other regulations of both countries have often been recounted. Probably the most picturesque instance of this kind of evasion occurred in the town of Nogales, which lies exactly on the boundary between Mexico and Arizona.

On the United States side of the line in this town eggs were at one time made costly by the revision of the tariff schedule pertaining to that product, inasmuch as the hens in that region were chiefly owned on the Mexican side and were fed by the peasants on cheap Mexican grain.

One year a Maine Yankee arrived in Nogales with an eye to business. He was convinced that his opportunity lay in the high price of eggs. Accordingly he put up a long henhouse exactly across the boundary line. At the Mexican end he regularly fed his hens with low priced Mexican grain.

The fowls ate their grain in Mexico and then walked across the line into the United States to lay their eggs. The transaction was, of course, perfectly legitimate, for the proprietor of the hennery smuggled neither grain nor eggs. But he availed himself of high prices on one side and low prices on the other.—New York Tribune.

Loafer—Yer gave me a nasty look.

Bystander—You certainly have a nasty look; but I'll swear I did not give it to you.

Do you know you talk in your sleep, Henry? said his wife.

Well, was the meek response, do you begrudge me even those few words?

Ah, kind friend, said the minister, it is deeds, not words, that count.

Oh, I don't know, replied the woman. Did you ever send a telegram.

Then I have your permission to visit your daughter, sir?

Um—yes. But you must understand, young man, I turn the gas off at the meter at ten o'clock! o'clock!

Very, well, sir. I won't come before that hour!

LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT WILL BE PROMOTED ACTIVELY

Meeting of Representations of Peterborough Churches Will Be Held in the Near Future.

A meeting of representatives of the churches of the city will be held in the near future to make arrangements for promoting the work of the Laymen's Missionary Movement in Peterborough. The preliminary steps towards such a meeting were taken at a meeting of the Ministerial Association held at the YMCA. yesterday.

Rev. H. J. Keith, the president, was in the chair and there was an interesting and profitable discussion on the Laymen's Missionary Movement, a number of those present having been in attendance at the convention held in Toronto this week.

Rev. Mr. Keith gave an outline of the address given by Rev. Canon Cody at the convention.

It was decided to have a meeting of representatives from the churches, in the near future to arrange for a more active promotion of the cause of the Laymen's Movement in Peterborough.

Hospital visitation for the month of November was arranged and some other business transacted.

Rev. Mr. Keith was to have given a paper on the Book of Phillippians but on account of lack of time it was postponed until the next meeting.

GIRL SHOT BY SWEETHEART AT HAMILTON PASSES AWAY

LATER.

Hamilton, Nov. 6.—Rose Ouimet, the French Girl who was shot by her sweetheart, Chester A. Johnson, in a room at Mrs. Camille's lodging house on Rebecca street last night, died at the City Hospital shortly after 4 am. today. Johnson had died of his self-inflicted injuries just before midnight. The attending physicians had little hope from the first of saving the girl owing to her having lost much blood before being found. Miss Oumlet, regained consciousness shortly before the end and recognized her mother, and brother who were by her bedside. She asked if Chester was dead and being told that he was, said, "Well, I am glad of it." These were her last words. The police are satisfied that the affair was a murder and suicide and will make no arrests.

LARGEST AND BEST CADET CORPS IN THE PROVINCE

The Peterborough Collegiate Cadets passed a very creditable inspection this morning, Col. Hemming, of Kingston, district commanding officer, being here for that purpose. The cadets have been under the capable training of Lieuts. Hodgson and Merritt and their showing this morning was indeed a splendid tribute to the capable instruction they received at the hands of these two gentlemen.

The cadets, 124 strong, in four companies, marched to the Riverside Park where the inspection took place. They were put through the different military manoeuvres in excellent manner, going through the exercises in a quick, soldier-like fashion.

At the conclusion Col. Hemming expressed himself as being agreeably surprised with the corps. He thougth that he would fine only one company but instead of that he found four. In his opinion it was the best and largest cadet corps in the province.

Col. Miller and Major L. M. Hayes were present at the inspection.

The teachers and girls of the school were also there. The Collegiate has a half-holiday to-day.

RECORD EXPORTS FROM MONTREAL

Twenty Two and Half Million Bushels of Wheat Went Out in October

The exports from the port of Montreal during the month of October according to the statistics compiled by the Secretary of the Board of Trade indicate few changes from the general tendency in the month of September.

Exports of wheat, peas, barley, rye, buckwheat, butter and lard, show considerable increases over those of the corresponding month last year.

As will be noted in the figures given below, there was in October this year an increase of about 5,000 000 bushels in wheat exports. This can be readily accounted for by the fact that this year's Western crop is much heavier than last year's. The fact that the increase in wheat exports has evidenced itself so early in the autumn is accounted for by the enlarged facilities for handling the western grain crop. The daily haulings of wheat this fall have broken all previous records.

Eggs continue to show an ominous decrease, the exports of October, falling short of those for the corresponding month last year by over ten thousand cases. Butter shows a slight increase, but cheese has suffered a further decline of nearly 300-000 boxes.

Cattle and dressed meat exports show slight decreases.

The following is a statement of the exports of leading commodities from this port during the past month, with comparisons with the exports of the corresponding months last year;

October 1908.

Have You Ever Figured
WHAT AN IMMENSE AMOUNT OF WORK YOUR EYES HAVE TO DO?

Every moment you are awake you use them steadily and those who read much or sew a great deal, or whose duties require close application of the eyes, are almost sure to stand in need of an Optician sooner or later.

To wait until a more convenient time is an injustice, as the trouble is being increased every day. Decide right now to see us about the matter. NEW REVELATIONS IN THE MARINE INQUIRY GOING ON AT QUEBEC

Number of Hardware Firms Testifies to Checks Given to Agent Gregory Payable to Bearer—He Paid the Commission—Overcharges Were Sometimes Twenty-five Per Cent.

Quebec, Nov. 7.—More light was let yesterday afternoon into the system pursued by the dealers who furnished supplies to the Marine and Fisheries Department, a system which Mr. Watson, K.C., described as one of "bribery, corruption and boodling."

Mr. Lemieux, a partner of the Samson hardware firm, occupied the witness stand during the greater part of the afternoon, and being shown a number of checks payable to bearer, issued by his firm, admitted that most of them were given to Mr. Gregory. There was one in September, 1905, for $180, in 1906 two for $250 each and one for $50; and in 1907, two for $250 each and three for $150 each. The stubs of these checks being produced, it was shown that the name of Mr. Samson, the head of the firm, was marked opposite to them.

Mr. Perron asked why this was done, when the checks were intended for Mr. Gregory, and whether it was not possible that it was because they did not want Mr. Gregory's name to appear.

Witness said that might have been the reason. In August, 1907, witness had transactions with Gregory and paid the 5 per cent. commission by check. He said he had placed Mr. Samson's name on the stub.

"Is it not true, speaking according to your heart and conscience, that the name of Mr. Gregory was not to appear?" asked Mr. Perron.

"Yes," he replied.

Asked whether the overcharges in dispute between the firm and the Department had been settled, witness replied in the affirmative, but being asked for the statement of the settlement, said he had not got it. Mr. Gregory might have it.

Questioned as to the difference between the charges made to the Government and others by his firm, witness said he knew little. Wholesale prices were charged merchants and retail ones to others. The Government was treated as ordinary persons and not as merchants, though the firm sold $77,000 worth of goods to the Government in three years and no merchant bought as much. He could not tell the difference between wholesale and retail prices; perhaps Mr. Samson could.

Mr. Perron pressed for an answer as to whether the difference was 15 or 25 per cent. between the wholesale and the retail prices, and witness reluctantly replied that in some cases it was 25 per cent. He said Mr. Gregory sometimes cut their prices. In some cases they charged the Government more than others.

"Lawyers do the same," said Senator Choquette.

"Speak for yourself," returned Mr. Perron.

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, is at present on a tour of inspection of the St. Lawrence waterway.

In his absence there is no likelihood of an order being issued from the Department suspending the officials of the Quebec agency, who are alleged to have taken commissions from F. X. Drolet and other business men of the Ancient Capital.

It is quite probable that Mr. Brodeur will order the suspension of a number of the officials when he arrives in Quebec.

PERISH IN FIRE

A Terrible Tragedy in Manitoba.

Five Daughters, One Son and School Teacher Trapped in Burning Building.

Swan Lake, Man., Nov. 7.—One of the most terrible tragedies in the history of Manitoba, and one which nearly wiped out an entire family, occurred yesterday morning on the farm of Edward Carey, near here, when Mrs. Carey, her five daughters, one son, and Miss Gillespie, a teacher in the Lake View school, who boarded with the Carey family, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home, while Mr. Carey himself was so terribly injured in the awful holocaust that he cannot long survive. Very little is known of how the fire, which cost eight lives, originated, as none of those who may have seen it remain to tell.

Mr. Carey and his eldest son, Herbert, arose at an early hour, and the latter at once proceeded to the barn to attend to the stock while his father lighted the fires. A few minutes later he was shocked to notice the house in flames, and rushed back just in time to rescue the charred body of his father from the flames before the roof fell in, burying all who were near and dear to him in the raging fire. It is believed from the position in which the charred remains were found amidst the ruins yesterday afternoon that all had perished in their beds, and some of the smaller ones probably never awakened to realize their terrible fate.

While nothing definite as to the cause of the fire can be learned, it is presumed that Carey had attempted to use coal oil in lighting the fire, and that an explosion followed, which not only enveloped him in flames, but set the house on fire, the flames spreading with such rapidity that the escape of the sleeping members of the family was cut off almost instantly.

Six other people have been burned to death as a result of coal oil explosions in Manitoba within two weeks, and it is believed that an inferior grade of oil, below the regulation flash point, is being sold here, with murderous results. Some of it has actually been tested and will explode like gasoline.

STRANGE REPORT

Hindus in B.C. Making Bombs.

For Use of Revolutionaries in India—Money Subscribed for Firearms.

Vancouver, Nov. 7.—That a conspiracy having for its object the manufacture of bombs and supplying them, together with arms, to malcontents in Calcutta and other disaffected districts in India exists among the Hindus at Millside, near Westminster was the startling information yesterday conveyed by a sikh to a police official in this city who formerly resided in India, who speaks Bengali and who has befriended numbers of these people since their arrival in British Columbia.

To what lengths the plot has already gone, it is difficult to learn, for reason that the heads of the conspiracy are comparatively few in number and very closely guard the innermost secrets of their work. In a general way, however, scores of Hindus, now living at Millside, are aware that the manufacture of bombs is proceeding in a secret guarded room at that place. They also have general knowledge that money secured from them by subscription from time to time is ultimately converted into firearms, with which the "yoke" of Great Britain is to be thrown off by India's millions.

One of the principals in the conspiracy is a Hindu working at the saw mills at Millside, but the chief plotter is a resident of Seattle. The latter formerly lived in Vancouver, and always affected to have great influence over his countrymen.

PAYING TAXES

Busy at the Collector's Office

Five per Cent Will be Added After Saturday of Next Week —Pay up Early

"Come early and avoid the rush, and bring your tax bill and money with you," is the slogan of City Tax Collector Green these days.

Five per cent will be added to all taxes not paid on Saturday of next week, so every one with a penchant for economy should call at Mr. Green's office and settle up before Saturday.

About $25,000 are still to come in and there were quite a number of persons paying up at at the tax collector's office this morning. Those who have not yet paid up should rty and call on Mr. Green early in the week and prevent congestion on Friday and Saturday.

WILL BE SCARCE

May be Hard to Get Teachers

To Replace Those Who Leave Positions in Schools at Christmas

Indications point to a scarcity of public school teachers for the term commencing in January. There will be a number of teachers in Peterborough county leaving their positions at that time and the question is where are their successors to be obtained.

In former years the Mdoel schools at Norwood, Madoc and Lindsay always turned out a large number of teachers at Christmas but such is not the case this year. The Model schools have been done away with with the exception of the one at Lindsay and there are not many students attending it at the present time. The Normal school in this city will not turn out any teachers until June so it will be seen that teachers will be scarce at the close of this year.

It is understood that the abolition of the Model schools will have much the same effect throughout the province. It will only be for one year however.

NO PAPER MONDAY.

Monday being Thanksgiving Day and a public holiday there will be no issue of the Review. Tuesday's edition will contain complete reports of the happenings in the city on Sunday and Monday.

His Majesty King Edward VII. of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India, on Monday, Nov. 9th, celebrates his 67th Birthday. His Majesty was born at Buckingham Palace, on Nov. 9th, 1841; succeeded to the throne on Jan. 22nd, 1901, on the death of Her Majesty Queen Victoria. He married Princess Alexandra, of Denmark, March 10th, 1863. His Majesty is the eldest son of the late Prince Consort, His Royal Highness Prince of Saxe-Cobourg-Gotha.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN CITY

Monday is Thanksgiving Day—a day set apart by the Dominion Government for public thanksgiving fir the national and other blessings of the season. The people of Canada, and the people of Peterborough in particular have much to be thankful for, and it is well that the claims of a kind Providence should receive recognition, both in public and private manner.

Thanksgiving Day, next to Christmas, is the greatest day in the year for family re-unions, the home-coming of absent sons and daughters, and the visiting of relatives and sons. The railways have assisted in promoting this spirit by giving reduced rates, so that it is a comparatively easy matter, financially, to travel on the holiday, and for a day or so before and after scores of Peterborough "Old Boys" and "Old Girls" are coming home for Thanksgiving while many local people will eat the Thanksgiving turkey with friends and relatives elsewhere.

"How are you going to spend Thanksgiving?" is probably the question that has been engaging the minds of many for the past few days. For the benefit of those remaining in the city, some appropriate way of spending the holiday might be found in the following events.

On Monday morning a senior and junior road race will be held, commencing at 10 o'clock, the course being from Lakefield, to Peterborough. It is expected that the winners will reach the city shortly after 11 o'clock.

In the afternoon at two o'clock, a walking match between W A. Hoagland of Auburn, NY., and Jim Harrison of this city is billed to take place at the Brock street rink. It will be a nine hour handicap walk and promises to be keenly contested. Harrison is in great shape, having been training hard for some time, Hoagland will have to go some to beat him, and Harrison is confident of winning out. The event should attract a large crowd.

The attraction at the Grand, matinee and evening will be the "Bonnie Brier Bush." This is a beautiful play and should draw large houses.

The Boys' YMCA convention which opened here today, will be in session on Monday and the boys of the city ought to avail themselves of these meetings.

On Thanksgiving evening, a fowl supper will be held at St. Andrew's church.

INDUCTION OF REV. H. R. TROMPOUR LAST NIGHT AS THE RECTOR OF ALL SAINTS'

Interesting and impressive Ceremony Performed by Ven. Archdeacon Warren of Toronto—An Able and Applicable Sermon by Rev. Canon O'Meara of Wycliffe College, Toronto.

All Saints' church was the scene of a most interesting and important ceremony last night, when Rev. H. R. Trumpour was inducted into the incumbency of the parish.

There was a large congregation present to witness and take part in the ceremony, which was conducted by Ven. Archdeacon Warren, of Toronto. The choir, which was strengthened for the occasion, led the singing with excellent effect, the offertory anthem, "O give Thanks unto the Lord," being especially effective.

The ceremony began with a brief address by Rev. Archdeacon Warren. He said the present was a very important occasion to the parish and to the minister, and augured a happy future for both. The people should remember that their minister was called of God, that he had behind him the concession for authority of the church of God, and he should be regarded by his parishioners in the light of these facts, and they should stand by him and support him loyally. He urged the congregation to study the will of God and its demands upon them. They now had a leader, and it was their duty to uphold him and make him stronger for effective service.

THE CEREMONY.

The ceremony then proceeded, the Ven. Archdeacon, who represented the Bishop of the Diocese, stating the object of the assembly. Rev. Mr. Trumpour thereupon read aloud the following declaration of assent:—

I, Harry Ralph Trumpour, do willingly subscribe to and declare that I assent to and abide by the Canons which have been or shall be from time passed by the Provincial Synod or the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto.

Rev. Canon Davidson then read the Episcopal Mandate of Induction, and Ven. Archdeacon Warren said:—

"In the name and on behalf of this parish, and in obedience to the Mandate of the Lord Bishop of this Diocese, we do now induct you into the real actual and corporal possession of the Incumbency of the said Parish, and of all the rights, privileges and emoluments thereto pertaining. And in token thereof, we give into hands the keys of this church."

Mr. Edgar, the People's Warden, then presented the keys to the minister, who accepted them with these words:—

"I receive these keys of this House of God at you hands, as the pledges of my induction, and of your reception of me as your appointed minister. And I on my part do promise by God's help to be a faithful shepherd over you, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

The inducting clergyman presented Rev. Mr. Trumpour with the Bible and the Book of Common Prayer, saying:—

"Receive these books and let them be the rule of thy conduct in dispensing God's Holy Word, in leading the devotions of the people, in administering the Sacraments of Christ, and in exercising the discipline of the Church. And be thou in all things a pattern to the flock committed to thy care.

THE SERVICE.

The service for Evening Prayer followed, taken by Rev. H. D. Raymond, M.A., of All Saints' church, Toronto. The lessons were read by Rev. Dr Langfeldt, of St. Luke's, and Rev. F. J. Lynch, of Wycliffe College, Toronto. The Psalms and anthems were special.

TRAFFIC IS LARGE

Busy Time for Railways —Many Persons Come and Go

The local railway ticket agents report a heavy Thanksgiving traffic. The reduced rates went into effect yesterday and the outgoing trains last evening carried a large number of Peterborough people going to spend the holidays. Many have also arrived in the city to spend the week, and with relatives and friends here.

The change in the holding of Thanksgiving from Thursday to Monday has resulted in a large increase in the amount of railway traffic.

THANKSGIVING TURKEYS IN ABUNDANCE AT THE MARKET

the largest that has been for weeks, and the Thanksgiving turkey was in much demand. Despite the large quantities of products offered for sale, the prices were high. The tables were piled high with chickens, ducks, geese and turkeys. By noon nearly all were sold and it is safe to say that there will be few homes in Peterborough on Thanksgiving day without some kind of fowl on their dinner table.

Turkeys were sold at from $1 to $2, geese at 80 cents to $1, ducks at 80 and 90 cents a pair and chickens at 60 and 75 cents. Butter retains its high figure, selling this morning at 28 and 30 cents a pound. Eggs brought 25 cents a dozen.

"THE KING! GOD BLESS HIM"

Monday is his Majesty's birthday and every British subject, whether at home or in British dominions beyond the sea, will rejoice at his continued good health. As a constitutional monarch, a man of peace, a lover of concord, and a friend of the great mass of the people, he has no rival. As a diplomat he has served a greater and a prouder purpose than any of Britain's foreign agents and he has not been too proud, though a king, to take his instructions from his constitutional advisers in those matters of diplomacy in which he was engaged. Professor Goldwin Smith was the King's tutor in history and he has been heard to say that Edward VII. is a man of ability as rare as his personal charm.

THANKSGIVING

In giving thanks for our health and strength we must not forget that there are others who have not the same cause for rejoicing. That we have all good reason to thank God does not obscure the fact that much of our misery is due to ourselves. However, it is a good thing to look happy. It betokens a stout heart and a firm courage. The world is a workshop, not a play house, and we must face it accordingly. To live without work would be unendurable and detrimental to health. The finest form of Thanksgiving, however, is that which our improved condition of moral well-being denotes. God is not mocked with the mere fulness of the mouth or by the blatant rejoicing of a rotten heart.

THE COW QUESTION

It used to be a sign of fitness or unfitness for office that the proposed candidate was sound on the goose question or otherwise. The goose has now been succeeded by the cow. For sixty-six cents per week it is possible to feed a cow, which will in return give $3.75 worth. This is something like 600 per cent. and beats Cobalt to a finish. It is also possible, Senator Derbyshire informs the farming world, to feed a cow as cheaply in winter as in summer. Even if he had not said so we should have thought so. There is no difference between 66 in winter and in summer. However, the cow does not live up to the $3.75 return the whole year. Nevertheless, when the Senator appealed to the farmers to wake up he must have thought them asleep. This is too bad. One striking confession made by the Senator especially attracted our unsophisticated attention. He said that the shortage of cheese was due to a shortage of milk, which in turn was due to a shortage of cows. There's a chain of reasoning for you!

MR. TROWERN'S REMARKS

"OUR AIM IS TO CLEAR OUT THE FAKIR, to make it easy to do right and more difficult to do wrong." Mr. Trowern at the Retail Merchants' banquet.

In our last issue we dilated upon the bold and striking address of Mr. Zieman at the Retail Merchants' dinner in the Hotel National on Thursday evening. His scathing remarks upon the fake methods of the day were, as reported, so pat and apt that they fitted the general situation in Canada like the proverbial glove. Mr. Zieman's remarks apply to the present condition of the public mind. Mr. Trowern's do likewise. We are in a fake age in Canada, in a fake state of mind and morals and optimistically proud of it and nowhere more so than in Peterborough.

The scent of a dollar bill is like the footprint of a deer on the morning dew to a hungry dog. Off we go howling like mad and snapping, scoffing, jeering and snarling at all who stand in the way. Mr. Trowern's text might well have been taken from the Scriptures, yet it is only the practical experience of business men. Religion and Utility meet at the same point. The basis of life is and must be the general good. To fake is to rob. It is a lie, a sneer, a menace to honor, chastity and even the commonest sort of common decency. On the outside, like the bad egg, it looks all right. Break it and the disgusting fact is apparent. Fake, farce and funk all go hand in hand. They are one of one breed. They were borne of moral rottenness and cowardice. They live in an atmosphere of guile on which they thrive. Their motto is deceit and their humor the hollow laugh of the moral leper or the smirk of the canting hypocrite. Mr. Trowern, like Mr. Zieman, is on a mission to darkest Canada. They throw our idols down with the hurling vigour of the conquering hero. While the laymen pipe their lay abroad, these men strike us where we are weakest, here at home. We send missionaries to Japan and live in the midst of crookedness with complacency and delight, at home. Away with the cant of the corrupt. Let us have more of Messrs. Trowern and Zieman. The day of the wooden nutmeg in morals, business, religion and elsewhere, is drawing to a close. It reminds us of Mrs. J. A. Roden and Regnal, of the last scene of Faust where hell opens, and the depraved disappear. It is not given to us all to be good, but it is open to us all to try.

KINGSTON STANDARD

Some few months ago the Kingston Standard decided to adopt the role of the candid friend which consists largely of pretending to be a member of the Conservative party while really being out of sympathy with it. This journal saddles all sorts of misfortunes on the backs of its Conservative friends and then with its best air of lordly condescension informs the said friends what it will do so if the said friends do not dance to its piping. It refuses to follow the lead of the News. Surely, nobody asked it to do so. It could if it would, find plenty of food for fury in the Globe of 1905, on the very subject which it now shrinks from with such loathing, but it declines to find it. The Standard is not even an independent journal. It is, as we observed some months ago a wolf in sheep's clothing and we think so still. If the circulation of the Sentinel in 1896 excited no especial censure from the Liberal party which helped in every way in its power to increase that circulation amongst Orangemen—why we ask should it be a heinous and unforgivable sin for even Conservatives, to assist in the circulation of it in 1908. The Liberal party, at least that part of it that is Protestant, is guilty of a childish hypocrisy in this matter which is born of a desire to catch the Roman Catholic vote since it had lost the Orange vote of 1896 and not of a desire to censure a journal, a party, or a people for the mere circulation of the Sentinel's opinions in any form thought necessary. To combat the views of the Sentinel is one thing but we would remind the Standard that to seek to change the Conservative party, the Orange Society or any other respectable body with some form of criminal guilt is quite another.

That pamphlets embodying the Sentinel's views were circulated, is no truer today than it was in 1896 and later. It was not the Sentinel that changed. It was Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his following. In 1896 the Sentinel's attitude in support of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on the Manitoba school question met with the most ardent support of those Liberals who are now denouncing it for sticking to the very same policy that it advocated at that time. The attitude of the Standard today is identical with that of the Liberal party to which it quite evidently belongs. While we fought in 1896 for the upholding of the decision of the highest court in the realm respecting Manitoba Schools and while as a consequence we fought, as we supposed, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that gentleman committed the most audacious act of apostasy to enunciated principles ever recorded in Canada. He forfeited all confidence in his word, or acts, when for a future political advantage he advocated one thing and prepared to bring about its direct opposite. Is it to be wondered that anybody tricked by his specious if eloquent orations can find no room for forgiveness of him. The extreme violence of a platform speaker may provoke irritation and resentment, but the principles of a whole society when declared opposed to it should be treated as the final decision of that society in that respect. The action of the Orange body in 1896 showed that they were only too true to their avowed principles. When we analyze the situation, we find that it is only too plain that the language of a few has been utilized as a cover by the astuteness of others. We ourselves have heard Roman Catholics in good standing and in their sober senses use language of the most disreputable and extremely violent kind in which the sword and stake for the extermination of Protestantism, were freely advocated but Protestants did not take this as the decision of the vast majority of Roman Catholics. Nor did they seek to use it as a pretext for other plans.

THE DARK LANTERN

We have had a surfeit of the dark lantern in politics lately, especially as applied to the Conservative party. Wouldn't the following have provided fine material for circulation and "judicious" comment, if the Conservative Executive of West Peterborough had deemed itself worthy of so picayune a performance;

"If all Catholics have the duty of instructing themselves in matters, either remotely or immediately connected with the faith, how much more the Catholic teacher of the Public schools! She has an immense opportunity of doing good in the most effective way possible, that of removing prejudice by making known the truth, and, above all, the historic truth underlying and surrounding the changing fortunes of our unchanging church.

"The Catholic teacher in the Public school coming in contact, not only with her pupils, but also with her fellow teachers, can do much by tactfully substituting fair views out of her own store of knowledge, for the biased ones of the text-book."—The Monitor.

The extract is from the Monitor, the official organ of the archdiocese of San Francisco published under the authority of the Roman Catholic Church. If there was ever a covert and to Protestants a dangerous proposal it is here. Moreover it is a proposal to make an unfair use of a public position. But instead of gathering the clans or seeking so to do with sectarian cries and intolerant warnings, Conservatives have let these matters drift by as the foam that floats past on the current of every day life. To seek to make capital out of a comment by pamphletizing it and surrounding it with all the horrors of a crime instead of an opinion whenever an opinion happens to be against us is illogical. No matter how strong an opinion may be, to be tolerant we must tolerate it. Toleration is not simply an affair for one side, section, race or creed. It is just as well to bear this in mind. If everything that anybody says is to be seized upon as a pretext for accomplishing our ends, the above extract will serve the purpose. Like others of the same ilk, it should be put into the great common pot of nationhood and allowed to simmer with the rest. It may make good soup after all. But it is such things as this that keeps up the turmoil.

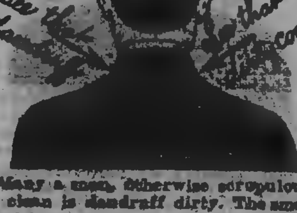
Mr. James R. Stratton, MP, has been returned as elected for West Peterborough by the returning officer. This of course is subject to the right of protest proceedings leading to which are now under weigh.

MUNICIPAL TALK GROWING AT HAVELOCK

Citizens are Picking Their Reeve for 1909.—Promises are Being Made by Aspirants

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Nov. 6.—If interest in the municipal elections increases at the rate, it is doing now, the excitement will indeed be intense by the first of January. A most important question, that of local option, is to be decided on that date and that makes matters still keener. The citizens have already picked on several to be their reeve for 1909, and talk is growing big. The tax rate at the present time is 30 mills on the dollar, and one man aspiring for the reeveship has promised to decrease it by five mills if he is elected. The school tax is 16 mills and this he can not alter as the trustees have full control. Then there is the county rate, electric light rate, park rate, park board rate, etc., over which the council has no control. There is therefore only 7 mills left for the Council to build sidewalks and make all necessary improvements with. How this gentleman is going to build sidewalks, pay constable salary, and make all necessary improvements on two mills is a question that will take considerable fine figuring. Instead of cutting the rate down five mills it is very likely that it will go up about two mills. We therefore patiently wait until nomination day when the plans of the tax reducer will be given to the electors.



A Filthy Condition

Many a man, otherwise scrupulously clean is dandruff dirty. The small persistent germs of dandruff working all day as well as night are constantly throwing off the small white dandruff scales which falling on the shoulders of a coat gives it a filthy appearance, which is repulsive to the friends of the victim.

Many men allow this condition to exist because they believe there is no cure for dandruff; they have tried various so-called cures with unsatisfactory results and naturally condemn all.

The famous prescription called Parisian Sage now put up in America, but only by the Giroux Mfg. Co., of Buffalo, N.Y.. It is for sale in Peterborough by Wm. Madill druggist, who guarantees it to cure dandruff in two weeks or money back.

Parisian Sage is guaranteed to do more; it will make short, thin hair, grow long, lustrous and luxuriant; it will stop hair from falling out; it will cure all diseases of the scalp. W. Madill guarantees it —every bottle of it. The price is only 50 cents and if you want to stop the filthy dandruff flakes from lodging on your coat and disgusting your friends, get a bottle at once.

Plasters and Cuts.

Although court plaster is useful in protecting small scratches or abrasions of the skin from harm, it should not be used over any considerable cut or wound in process of healing. These will heal much faster if simply covered with a bit of soft linen held in place at the ends with strips of surgeon's plaster.

Polite to Lightning.

When a native of Quito sees a flash of lightning he reverently removes his hat.

Kissing Spreads Disease.

San Francisco, Nov. 7.—Tuberculosis, spread through a rite of their church, is said to be thinning the population of the Aleutian Islands at an alarming rate.

Dr. Robert Oleson of the revenue cutter McCulloch, who arrived here Thursday from Alaska, states that 40 per cent. of the natives in the islands are afflicted with consumption.

He expressed a belief that the ceremony of kissing the dead is, in part, responsible for the spread of the disease.

In the middle of October the editors of American Industries sent out letters to all association's members asking about trade conditions at that time, prospects for the near future, and what suggestions they had to make as to means of restoring the country's prosperity. LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

For proof of this statement read the following letter.

Mrs. Letitia Blair, Cannifton, Ont., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was sick for five years. One doctor told me it was ulceration, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor, and advised an operation. No one knows what I suffered, and the bearing down pains were terrible.

"I wrote to my sister about it, and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"It has cured me of all my troubles, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me to pass safely through Change of Life."

Earthquake In Germany.

Plauen, Germany, Nov. 7.—The most violent earthquake ever experienced here terrified the inhabitants of the city at 5.40 o'clock yesterday morning. Houses were shaken, and the people fled panic-stricken into the streets. The shock, which lasted for several minutes, was accompanied by sharp explosions and thunderous rumblings in the earth.

Sixty or seventy earthquake shocks have been felt here daily the past week. They are now becoming less frequent but more violent. The temperature of the medicinal springs in the vicinity has increased fifteen degrees.

Crew May Be Lost.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 7.—The schooner Ida May, bound from New York for St. John, with a cargo of coal, is ashore at Brownie Island, Me., and it is feared the crew may be lost, as there is no sign of them or of a boat.

It is just possible they have reached land somewhere, or may have been picked up by a passing vessel. Capt. George E. Gale of St. John is in command of the Ida May, which is owned here.

Wreck at Danby.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—One killed and thirteen slightly injured is the result of a wreck yesterday at Danby at 10.50 a.m. No. 5 passenger train from Island Pond due at Montreal at 1.10 p.m. collided with a freight train at the east end of Danby yard, and the combination mail and coach on the passenger train was telescoped.

One passenger, an old man, name unknown, was killed, two of the train crew and eleven passengers slightly injured.

The cause of the accident was the engineer of passenger train ran past signals which were against him. The track was damaged and the main line blocked temporarily.

Shortage Reduced.

Toronto, Nov. 7.—D. Cameron McCallum, the teller of the Farmers' Bank, whose shortage was discovered Monday, has not yet been officially arrested. His liberty, it is said, is being extended to allow the bank to realize upon his accounts with various brokers. The amount has now been reduced to between $4,000 and $6,000. A restitution of $2,000 was made yesterday.

It is now broadly hinted in inside circles that his confession has involved another man not in the employ of the Farmers' Bank.

Boy Eats Strychnine.

Barrie, Nov. 7.—The two-year-old son of W. A. Boys died yesterday morning from eating bread spread with strychnine for the destruction of mice. The child was at the residence of his grandfather, Judge Boys, and entered the pantry, where he found the poisoned bread. He had swallowed a portion before the fatal error was discovered, and he died at noon. The father is an ex-warden of Simcoe County, and was tennis champion of Canada for a year.

Two Others Are Badly Hurt In Collision Near Bowmanville.

Romaine Gauthier, fireman, aged 55, Belleville.

Robert Young, inspector of pumps, Belleville, was scalded and his arm was broken, while William Rushcliffe, fireman, also of Belleville, was bruised.

David E. Wilson Gets Three and a Half Years at Cornwall.

Cornwall, Nov. 7.—David E. Wilson, late clerk in the Molsons' Bank, Chesterville, pleaded guilty to six indictments of burglary before County Judge O'Reilly yesterday and was sentenced to three and one-half years on each, the sentences to run concurrently.

Wilson, who is the black sheep of a respectable Western Ontario family, came to Chesterville last June. He robbed four stores of some $250 worth of gents' furnishings, etc., was tripped up by the merchants, and, restoring the goods, was given a chance to turn over a new leaf. He went to Brockton, Mass., but returned on Oct. 18 and robbed two stores to the extent of $81 and $25 in cash.

CONSUMPTIONS STARTING POINT

Lies in Weak, Watery Blood—Dr. William's Pink Pills Make the Blood Rich and Red

Bloodlessness is the starting point of consumption. When your blood is thin and watery your whole health declines. Your face grows pale, your appetite fails, and your heart jumps and flutters at the least exertion or excitement. You are always weak and wretched and lose interest in everything. This is the point from which you may easily step into that hopeless decline that leads to consumption and the grave. What is actually needed to bring back health and blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. In all the world there is no other tonic medicine like them, and all who feel weak and easily tired should take these pills at once and regain new health.

Miss Ada Burke, The Range, N.B., says—"I feel that I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In March, 1907, I was attacked with whooping cough, which clung to me for several months and when the cough disappeared I was ailing, but when the autumn came I seemed to be completely worn out. For a whole month I never moved outside the house and could scarcely walk about the house. I was so weak. I had no appetite, my color was a greenish yellow. I had severe headaches and would be almost breathless at the least exertion. I took several bottles of medicine but it did not help me, and then my mother got me three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I had used them I was much better, and by the time I had taken another three boxes I was again enjoying the best of health, and a hearty appetite, good color and renewed energy."

If you want new health and new strength, try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills: a fair use of this medicine will not disappoint you. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Dr. Grenfell, the great missionary worker among the Labrador fishermen, is at St. John, N.B.

The eye is such a delicate organ that it should never be trifled with.

This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses, costing from $7.50 to $25 each. With this limited knowledge it is little wonder that so many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others who do not require them.

If you have eye trouble you should only consult an optician who has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the optical business.

PUBLIC LIBRARY

Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I saw in the Examiner of Thursday night a letter advocating the purchase of the James Stevenson residence on Simcoe street for the public library. The writer, of this has evidently written without prejudice and has offered a suggestion well worth consideration. The Stevenson property, now for sale, is the most central of any now mentioned for the library and I found yesterday can be bought at a price that would save the city several thousand dollars over other places yet in view. A library should not be located on George street unless so far from the centre of the city that it would be too inaccessible to the majority of our citizens. Should such a building be on a street with heavy traffic the noise and dust would be a perpetual nuisance. The Stevenson property is as central and well adapted to library purposes as could be purchased for any reasonable figure an next door to the Y.W.C.A.

Yours truly,
RATEPAYER.

ATTENDED BY FIVE DOCTORS

But Got No Relief Until He Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Wonderful Cure of A. F. Richard, Who Was Tortured by Rheumatism and Kindred Pains. Sets Kent County Talking

St. Ignace, Kent Co., N.B., Nov. 6.—Special—After being tortured for four years with Backache, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the joints and Pains in the Loins, and getting no relief from five doctors whom he called in, Mr. Antoine F. Richard, a well-known farmer living near here, is spreading the good news that he is once more a well man, and that he owes his cure to Dodd's Kidney Pills. Speaking of his wonderful cure Mr. Richard says;—

"I was a helpless man in July, 1907. For four years I had endured the greatest torture from Backache, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints and Pains in the Loins. I had dark circles under my eyes, my head ached and I was often dizzy. I was attended by five doctors, but not one of them could help me.

"Then I began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and after the first few doses I began to improve. I used four boxes in all and now I am working every day on the farm a well man. I owe my wonderful cure to Dodd's Kidney Pills and nothing else."

There is no case or kind of Kidney Disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure.

THANKSGIVING

Written for the Review.

The Thanksgiving season is again upon us and on Monday next we are called upon as a Dominion to lay aside our usual business and "give thanks" to the Author of every good and perfect gift for his blessings manifold. The fall time of the year is appropriate to let our voices ascend in paens of thanksgiving. The restless winds and softer haze tempt us to meditation and serious thought. As a people our lot has been one of happiness and contentment, and although what are commonly called the good things of this world may not have been showered upon us with open window profusion, still the poorest have had enough and to spare. Enough to supply the immediate personal and home necessities and even to spare to those in deeper need. And it is the grandest spectacle of our earthly existence here below that humanity goes out from the poor to the poorer upon whom misfortune weighs heavier for the moment. The harvest has been gathered and there has been no lack of enough and to spare. The commercial world has enjoyed general prosperity, if not fatness in some cases, and it thus becomes, yea even demands of all joyous acclaim to Almighty God on this special day of Thanksgiving of praises to his holy name for his many benefits. Sickness and plague have not lurked in our pathway to any extent and even in the homes that trouble may have lingered, may there not bet be clearer joy of thanksgiving, as we see how all has worked out for the best. Some homes have been darkened by the destroying angel, but while sorrow reigned for a season, there is the brighter home beyond where the angel of light leads now and where He is, who is the comfort and joy of those called to His presence. But to those upon whom providence has smiled, whose basket and store have been filled, let not this annual thanksgiving pass without remembering the needy.

John Bunyan said:

"Here little and hereafter bliss,
Is best from age to age,"

and if that be true the gift that you may extend at this time, while it may make your pile less, will bring its reward hereafter in the bliss that will be yours. The Thanksgiving song and the anthem story of hope and plenty will be echoed from many lips on Monday next. All through this great Dominion may the occasion be one of rich and unalloyed blessing to us all and to our nation, in that our hearts and pockets may respond to our voices.—Com.

AFTER TH' BATTLE

The following clever verses by a Peterborough man, appears in this week's Toronto "Saturday Night."

"Well the 'lections is over and Laurier's in,"
Said Paddy O'Grady to Micky O'Flynn,
"Be jabers thim Frinch is the divils to win;
But they naicent be crowin'
For faith we be knowin'
If it wasn't for us they'd be losing their skin."
"You're right O'Grady," said Micky O'Flynn.

Said Larry McSweeny to Terrence O'Shea,
Whose bye holds a job in the Government pay,
"I suppose ye are feelin' light-hearted to day?"
"It's true for you Larry,
For by the Lord Harry,
Thim tories got after us in sich a way
It med me quoite narvous," said Terry O'Shea.

"Be hivins twas awful," said Danny McBride
Who happened to get in a word on the side—
"To think how them rascals blackguarded and lied,
And by all the capers
They cut in their papers
I thought that fer shure they'd hev Laurier's hide—
Come over to Tooley's, said Danny McBride.

And there they met Grogan, and Clancy and Finn
A mixin' up politics, whiskey and gin,
An' fighting the battle all over agin.
For money was plenty
Faith, Grogan had twinty—
And wan thing was shure, now the government's in
A job should be had for both Murphy and Flynn.

Jist lave that to me, friads, says Alderman Doyle,
Wid a wink av his eye, an' a bit av a smoile—
(Be jabers and isn't he dressin' in style)—
Oh ! glory av glories !
Betwane Grits and Tories
We'll hev home rule for Canady after awhile,
Here's lookin' at yez, says Alderman Doyle.

INDUCTION OF REV. H. R. TROMPOUR

THE SERMON.

Rev. Dr. O'Meara, principal of Wycliffe College, Toronto, was the preacher. He took for his text the last four verses of the 2nd chapter of St. Paul's second Epistle to the Corinthians. He said that the one question absorbing the world at the present time was "How can I make a success of my life?" This applied from the school boy to the graduating student, or in all the walks of life—in the business or professional world. A question of similar importance confronted us all in relation to the Christian life, and the work of the church. The present was an important epoch in the life of the new incumbent and the people of All Saints' parish, and the question arose how they could make the best of the work of the church. The answer came in the words of St. Paul as in the text: "Now thanks be unto God which always causeth us to triumph in Christ." It was the will of God that they should make a success of their work—that that church and their minister should make a success of their work. He prophesied success for their new minister; he knew him well and he assured the congregation that they had made no mistake in accepting Rev. Mr. Trumpour as their clergyman, and the Bishop had made no mistake in appointing him. In this world there was no greater joy than that given their rector in the ministry of the church over which he had been placed—and in the world comforting all who needed help—a savour of life unto life in them that believed, and of death to those who rejected his teaching. A higher privilege could not be conferred, and the preacher prayed that his ministry would be attended with great success—a saviour of life to those who believed, and of death to those who rejected the message he was sent from God to deliver. The greatest demand in the ministry was for manly sincerity, and their new minister was a sincere man, a man to be trusted. "Treat your minister," said the preacher, "as you would have him treat you." If as is seen to be the case they should have some fault to find, they should go to their minister and speak honestly—should treat him as a man. The preacher said he knew their new minister well and knew that he never wrote a line or lifted a finger to get the appointment he had received—he was sent by God, and if he should say things of which they did not quite approve, they should remember that he was not responsible to them, but to those that sent him. When their rector preached in that pulpit or ministered in their homes he had behind him the authority of God and the church which sent him. There would be cloudy seasons in the life of the parish, seasons of discouragement. Then they should remember that, in the words of St. Paul, they were "in the sight of God," as they should look up to him for help and encouragement. The preacher concluded an earnest sermon by the prayer that the church under its new minister should be one in which Christ entered into ever one of its activities, there there mioght not be a church organization in which they were not seen Christ was the centre. They should trust God, trust their minister, pray for him, help him, support him, and the days of his ministry, the days of of their work and of their help under his ministry would win from the brightness of the blessed world he looked back upon with joy.

Then followed the offertory for the building fund of the proposed new church, pronounced by the regularly and duly inducted rector of All Saints', Rev. H. R. Trumpour, brought an important and impressive ceremony to a close.

At the conclusion of the ceremony an informal reception was held in the basement of the church and refreshments served.

During the evening the following address of welcome was presented to Rev. Mr. Trumpour on behalf of the congregation;

To Rev. H. R. Trumpour, M.A., B.D.,
Rector of All Saints' Church,
Peterborough, Ont.

Reverend and Dear Sir.—

It affords us much pleasure and gratification to extend to you words of welcome on behalf of the members of the congregation of All Saints' church. Not only as a group of people sincerely anxious for your welfare and prosperity, but as individuals ready and anxious to greet you in your new relations, but to assist that your life amongst us may be pleasant and profitable.

We are assured that you bring to the service of the faith and of All Saints' talent of a high order, an untiring zeal and most earnest effort that nothing on your part may be lacking.

Under your zealous care we feel that the work of the church will go on gathering ever increasing momentum and gaining in importance. In our mutual relations we have implicit trust, that we shall find in you a friend, advisor and helpmate, that you will hold a torch to light our spiritual life and guide our steps in the temporal world. We will earnestly endeavor to share with you the responsibilities which the church entails on all who gather within its fold, responsibilities which are a joy when undertaken in spirit and hopefulness.

We look forward to many years of pleasant association and as the borders of the parish enlarge and the duties increase in importance both will stand as evidence of your devotion, energy and faithfulness in your chosen work.

We again welcome you to your charge, with joy and gladness, in a spirit of confidence and helpfulness, offering you freely and willingly our respect, love and devotion.

Signed on behalf of the congregation of All Saints' Church. The address was signed by all the wardens.

A PLAY THAT IS TRUE TO LIFE

"The Bonnie Brier Bush" Which Appears Here on Monday

The very popular stage adaption of Ian Maclaren's tales, "The Bonnie Brier Bush," with a notable company comes to the Grand Thanksgiving Day for matinee and night. "The Bonnie Brier Bush," is an exposition in four acts of the most interesting features of the book, and the plot mainly centers around the Scotch marriage entered into by Flora Campbell and Lord Hay. The father Lachlan Campbell, not believing the girl's story of the marriage, drives her from the home only to find out his mistake after much mental suffering. The charm of the play lies in its simplicity and naturalness. It faithfully represents Scotch life as it really is, and for this reason it is particularly pleasing to all who are familiar to Dr Watson's stories

The acting company is promised to be of exceptional strength and will include many who have been connected with the play ever since its first performance. The original La Shelle production is carried and a company which includes many notable players.

REVIVAL OF THE MIKADO

Looked Upon With Greater Favor Than Any Other Opera

Starting to-day's matinee the Imperial Opera Company will present a gorgeous revival of "The Mikado," probably the greatest comic opera ever written. This piece well and favorably known, represents the best efforts of Gilbert and Sullivan, and so good and so popular has it been that to-day, more than twenty years since it was first presented to the public, "The Mikado" is looked upon with greater favor than any other opera.

This opera is not characterized as most others of its class, with local local or timely flavor which wears out. Its greatest strength and merit lies in its music and the keen satire which strikes at the weaknesses and foibles of mankind, giving to the opera a universal interest and makes it thoroughly enjoyable at any time and in any clime.

The plot of the opera is well known to all theatre-goers and needs no explanation. All are acquainted with the humane ruler of the Flower Kingdom and his son, Nanki Poo, the wandering minstrel and Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner and the three little maidens. Also with Pooh Bah, always greedy for more offices to fill and more money to gain as well as with Katisha and her love for Nanki Poo.

The musical numbers of the piece are to-day as bright and pleasing as at the time when all were singing or whistling their merry tunes on both sides of the ocean. Among the most popular and pretty are such as "He's Going to Marry Yum Yum," "The Flowers that Bloom in the Spring Tra-La," and "The Penalty Fits the Crime."

Miss Agnes Cain Brown, the prima donna, will be seen in the roll of Yum Yum; Miss Carrie Reynolds as Pitti Sing, Miss Rubie Leslie as Peep Bo, Miss Elvia Crox as Katisha, Clarence Harvey, the irresistable comedian, as Koko, the Lord High Executioner, Harry Girard, as Pool-Bah, George Le Sair as The Mikado, Carl Hayden as Nauki Poo and W. H. Pringle as Pish Tush.

This production has been handsomely staged by the Imperials, the picturesque scenery and the rich costumes presenting a rich picture of great beauty and so perfectly are the effects carried out, the audience seems to be transported into the very atmosphere of far-away Janap.

MAN OF MYSTERY LEFT AN IMMENSE FORTUNE TO CHARITY

Although Wealthy, Frederick Hewitt Lived by Himself—Few People Permitted to See Inside of Home.

Oswego, N.Y., Nov. 5.—Frederick O. Hewitt, who died here the other day, bequeathing $2,000,000 to the New York Post-Graduate school and hospital, $1,500,000 to the Metropolitan Museum of Arts, besides making this association his residuary legatee; over $500,000 to charitable institutions, and over $300,000 to relatives was known here as the Man of Mystery. Although he had spent the greater part of 69 years of his life in this village, he was radically different from any man here, and, it is said, the town possesses more than 57 distinctly different varieties. He had few intimate friends here, although he was gracious in manner toward all with whom he came in contact.

He cared nothing for display, politics or society. He never married, but lived alone in this stately old house situated across the street from the Ahwaga house, where he was fatally stricken by Bright's Disease, while calling on an old friend, and where United States Senator Thomas C. Platt still retains his voting residence. During the last seven years of his life Mr. Hewitt became an ardent and discriminating art collector. His home contains a remarkable collection of paintings, ceramics, etc., in the gathering of which he had expended about $150,000

When exhibiting his paintings to his intimate friends, which he rarely did, Mr. Hewitt illuminated the room with an electric searchlight, which he carried in his hand. Little sunshine was allowed to enter the Hewitt home. Nearly all the shutters were kept closed and the curtains drawn. It is doubtful if more than 30 of the local residents ever caught so much as a glimpse of the interior of Mr. Hewitt's home until the day of his funeral. He visitors were mostly bond agents, whom he received in his office.

After a heavy fall of snow it was not an unusual task for Mr. Hewitt himself to shovel off the snow from his long stretch of sidewalk. Summer evenings he invariably read the newspapers, seated on the narrow stone steps of his office, which was in the wing of his house. Mr. Hewitt was extravagantly fond of flowers, and in the spring his garden blazed with the gorgeousness of many thousands of tulips and hyacinths in full bloom.

A fine specimen of horseflesh never failed to elicit his admiration. He spent a fortune for fast horses, but never permitted any of them to race under his ownership. He delighted in attending the large race meet, where invariably he would be found, stop watch in hand enjoying the sport from an inconspicuous point of vantage. A few years ago he built a brick stable, the most expensive one in this part of the state. In his younger days he exhibited great skill at billiards. Hunting and fishing also appealed to him, and his collection of guns and rods includes many examples of the finest workmanship.

Miss Amy L. Doty, of London, Directress of S.S. Entertainments, is training the children of Charlotte Street S.S. for an entertainment, to be given on the evening of Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 9th Admission 15c and 25c. 4d

The new smelting works at Deseronto will be completed by April.

Tilbury will likely be included entirely in the riding of West Kent.

IF HARRISON WINS HE WILL ACCEPT WOOLFE'S CHALLENGE

To Walk Any Man in Canada at Any Distance From 40 Miles up—Will Meet Hoagland in Handicap Match at Brock Street Rink Monday—57th Band in Attendance.

The outcome of his race Monday afternoon with Hoagland means much to Jim Harrison. If he wins he will be much encouraged and if he loses he will be a disappointed walker. He has been training with the greatest of energy and care and will step onto the track in a condition to suit a faster walk than he has ever done yet during his career as a pedestrian. Should he win he will take the challenge of Woolfe of Montreal, who is out with a challenge to meet any walker in Canada in a match from 40 miles up.

Hoagland, as was shown by his magnificent walking at the roller rink on the past two nights is the same old Hoagland as ever with an illimitable resource of speed and a great store son a mile handicap in a nine hour of generalship. He is giving Harriwalk. The race will be held at the Brock street rink commencing at 2 and lasting until 11 o'clock. It will be for $250 a side and Mr. Geo. N. Graham has been selected as final stake holder. Mr. Dick Baker has been elected as referee.

Music will be supplied by the 57th Regimental Band, under the direction of Mr. Giddon.

ROLLER SKATERS WON FROM HOAGLAND LAST NIGHT

It was just a little too big a handicap that Hoagland gave to the relay team of five skaters that opposed him last night at the roller rink and they succeeded in beating him out by half a lap after a race that had the spectators highly interested from start to finish.

The night before last the fast pedestrian won from his field after a close go, walking two miles to the relay team's four. Last night he undertook to cover 2 1-4 miles to the relay men's four, with the result as given. The skaters had the additional privilege of starting at any time they wished to so the champion was pretty much handicapped all round. He let loose at a very high rate of speed and gave the prettiest exhibition of walking ever seen in Peterborough. The result was never certain till the finish and the big audience cheered for the walker to win.

The relay team was composed of the same men as the night before, viz; Prof. Genno, B. Clute, M. Kenneally, Percy Parrington and J. Seymour.

The exhibition of roller skaters against a speedy walker were new to Peterborough until last night and the evening previous and provided intensely interesting and exhilariting contests.

CHAMPION WALKER TELLS OF VERY ROUGH BOUT BETWEEN CHAS. KISER AND WAR EAGLE

Most wrestling matches are more or less strenuous but very few are exceptionally rough as the one that took place on Wednesday night at Auburn, N.Y., between Charlie Kiser, the man who defeated Gene Burtubise in Hamilton and War Eagle, an Indian wrestler. Both men weighed about 170 pounds and the rivalry that existed between them was intense. Hoagland, the walking champion, was among the spectators and he says it was the fiercest battle he ever saw in his life. War Eagle is not the original big heavyweight of that name but a lighter Indian who is known by that name also.

In the early part of the match War Eagle threw Kiser off the stage five times and it looked as though he had it too much on the white man in the matter of strength. The referee remonstrated with War Eagle for slinging his man off the stage, and the Indian replied that he always had to do that before he got warmed up. At length the men went to the mat with War Eagle on the aggressive. He gave Kiser's face such a severe rubbing that the latter's nose began t obierd. Kiser took the top position and commenced giving the red man some of his own medicine. All kinds of rough tactics were resorted to by both men and the match became altogether too much like a rough and tumble fight to suit the crowd. When Kiser was working over War Eagle the Indian threw back his head and caught Kiser in the mouth smashing his lips and causing the blood to run freely. Foul holds of various kinds were taken by both wrestlers and the referee was kept very busy cautioning the men. At last War Eagle and the referee became engaged in a short dispute. The red man made a pass at the official and the latter struck him twice in the mouth. The excitement and confusion became general and the police jumped on the mat and stopped the bout.

Both grapplers were a sight to behold. War Eagle was chopped up very badly while Kiser had a nose like an apple and one of his eyes was completely closed. The mat was blotched with blood.

Hoagland says the bout was probably the roughest ever seen in Auburn and did not do the game a great deal of good in that city.

A NUMBER PUZZLE.

Clever Trick by Which a Boy Gained Twelve Marbles.

Jack and Harry are brothers. Jack is noted for his practical jokes, of which Harry is often the victim, being an easy going, unsuspecting boy. One day Harry was showing to Jack thirty-two new marbles that had been given to him, when Jack said:

"Say, Harry, I want to show you a good trick with those marbles."

And then he arranged them in a big square thus:

That is to say, one at each of the four corners and a cluster of seven in the middle of each side.

"Now," said Jack, "you see that there are nine marbles on each side of the square, but only thirty-two marbles in all. If I take away four marbles at three different times and each time arrange what are left in a square, with nine on a side, will you give me the twelve marbles that I take away?"

Harry, believing the thing impossible, at once agreed to the proposition, and Jack at once proceeded to make the following squares:

2 5 2   3 3 3   4 1 4
5   5   3   3   1   1
2 5 2   3 3 3   4 1 4

In the first of these squares, you see, he used twenty-eight marbles, in the second twenty-four marbles and in the third twenty marbles, and yet there are nine on each side of each square. So the quick witted Jack got the twelve marbles, which Harry gave up willingly for the privilege of learning the clever trick.

CREATING FIRE.

Curious Methods Employed by Savages to Make a Light.

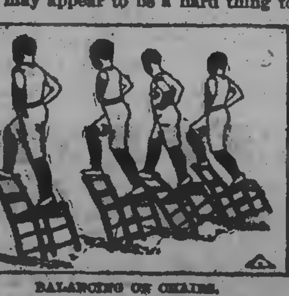
It is rather difficult for us to imagine people who know nothing about fire, and, as a matter of fact, there are no people now on the face of the earth, no matter how barbarous, who do not know how to make fire. We make it easily enough by striking a match, but years ago our ancestors were compelled to resort to flint, steel and tinder.

The forest dwelling people of the farther east have an odd instrument for making fire. Near the coast every man carries a bit of crockery in the box of bamboo slung at his waist, a chip off a plate, and a handful of dry fungus. Holding the tinder under his thumb upon the fragment of earthenware, he strikes the side of the box sharply and the tinder takes fire. But this method can only be used by tribes which have communication with the foreigner who supplies them with European goods.

The inland people use a more singular process. They carry a short cylinder of lead, hollowed roughly to cuplike form at one end, which fits a joint of bamboo. Placing this cylinder in the palm of the left hand, they fill the cup with tinder, adjust the bamboo over it, strike sharply, remove the covering as quickly, and the tinder is alight.

A Balancing Feat.

Among the numerous physical exercises is the feat of balancing on the two rear legs of a chair while one foot rests on the front part of the seat and the other on the back of the chair. This may appear to be a hard thing to do, yet with a little practice it may be accomplished. This exercise is one of many practiced by the boys of a boys' home for an annual display given by them. A dozen of the boys will mount chairs at the same time and keep them in balance at the word of a commanding officer.



BALANCING ON CHAIRS.

By Rail to the Sun.

M. Camille Flammarion has just published a most interesting little work on astronomy for children and, in fact, for everybody who wishes to read the science in a plain form. M. Flammarion says that if the moon were removed to the same distance from the earth as the sun is then the moon would be invisible. If a railway train traveled to the sun at the uniform rate of 37½ miles an hour, it would take 149,000,000 minutes to reach the sun, or 103,472 days, or 283 years. As a matter of fact, the train would never reach the sun, for it would be a molten mass in the planetary space and reduced to vapor by the sun's heat before it reached the sun.

A ticket to the moon would cost only $7,680. A ticket to the sun would cost $2,880,000 and a ticket to the nearest star $820,000,000,000.

BEFORE TREATMENT — AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

Presently I could see better. I looked forward and aft for Puls, but could see nothing of him and had just about concluded that he had gone forward when I happened to glance aloft. There, to my astonishment, I made him out huddled in silhouette against the stars close to the main truck. What he was doing there I could not imagine. However, I did not have time to bother my head about him further than to rejoice that he could not obstruct me.

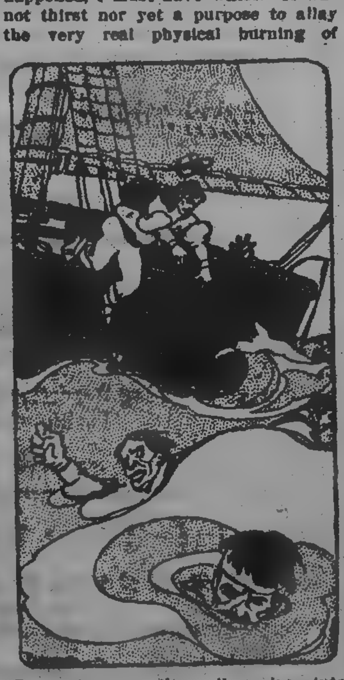
I should very much have liked to get hold of a rifle and ammunition or at least to lay in biscuit and water, but for this there was no time. It was not absolutely essential. The dull glow of the island was still visible. I had my pillar of fire and smoke to guide me. Without further delay I jerked loose the painter and drew the extra dory alongside.

I had proceeded just so far in my movements when the most extraordinary thing happened. I shall try to tell you of it as accurately as possible and in the exact order of its occurrence. First a long, straight shaft of white light shot straight up through the cabin roof to a great height. It shone through the wooden planks as an ordinary light shines through glass. By contrast the surrounding blackness was thrown into a deeper shade, and yet the shaft itself was so brilliant as almost to scotch the sight. Curiously enough, it was defined accurately, being exactly in shape like one of the rectangular tin air shafts you see so often in city hotels. At the instant of its appearance the wind fell quite calm.

Almost immediately the rectangle on the roof through which the light made its passage began to splay out like lighted oil, although the column retained still the integrity of its outline. The fire, if such it could be called, ran with incredible rapidity along the seams between the planks forward and aft until the entire deck was sketched like a pyrotechnic display in thin, vivid lines of incandescence. From each of these lines then the fire began again to spread, as though soaking through the planks.

All took place practically in an instant of time. I had no opportunity to move or to cry out. Indeed, my perceptions were inadequate to the task of mere observation. Up to now there had been no sound. The wind had fallen. The waters passed unnoticed. A stillness of death seemed to have descended on the ship. It was broken by a sharp double report, one as of the fall of a metallic substance, the other caused by the body of Puls, which, shaken loose from the truck by a heavy roll, smashed against the rail of the ship and splashed overboard. Some one cried out sharply. An instant later the entire crew struggled out from the companionway, rushed in grim silence to the side of the vessel and threw themselves into the sea.

My own ideas were somewhat confused. The fire had practically enveloped the ship. I thought to feel it, and yet my skin was cool to the touch. The ship's outlines became blurred. A dizziness overtook me, and then all at once a great desire seized and shook my very soul. I cannot tell you the vehemence of this desire. It was a madness. Nothing could stand in the way of its gratification. Whatever happened, I must have water. It was not thirst nor yet a purpose to allay the very real physical burning of which I was now dimly conscious, but a craving for the liquid itself as something apart from and unconnected with anything else. Without hesitation and as though it were the most natural thing in the world I vaulted the rail to cast myself into the ocean. I dimly remember a last flying impression of a furnace of light, then a great shock thudded through me, and I lost consciousness.



The entire crew threw themselves into the sea.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Over the wardroom of the Wolverine had fallen a silence. It held after Slade had finished. Captain Parkinson, stiff and erect in his chair, staring fixedly at a spot two feet above the reporter's head, seemed to weigh as a judge weighs the facts so picturesquely set forth. Dr. Trendon, his sturdy frame half in shadow, had slouched far down into himself. Only the regard of his keen eyes fixed upon Slade's face unwaveringly and a bit anxiously showed that he was thinking of the narrator as well as of the narrative. The others had fallen completely under the spell of the tale. They sat as children in a theater, absorbed, forgetful of the world around them, wrapped in a more vivid element. At the close they stirred and blinked, half dazed by the abrupt fall of the curtain.

Slade had told his story with fire, with something of passion even. Now he felt the sharp reflex. He muttered uncertainly beneath his breath and glanced from one to another of the circled faces.

"That's all," he said unsteadily.

There passed through the group a stir and a murmur. Some one broke into sharp coughing. Chairs, shoved back, grated on the floor.

"Well, of all the extraordinary"— began a voice ruminatingly and broke off short as if abashed at its own infraction of the silence.

"That's all," repeated Slade, a note of insistence in his voice. "Why don't you say something? Confound you, why don't you say something?" His speech rose husky and cracked. "Don't you believe it?"

"Hold on!" said the surgeon quietly. "No need to get excited."

"Oh, well," muttered the reporter, with a sudden lapse, "possibly you think I'm romancing. It doesn't matter. I don't suppose I'd believe it myself in your place."

"But we're heading for the island," suggested Forsythe.

"That's so," cried Slade. "Well, that's all right. Believe or disbelieve as much as you like. Only get Percy Darrow off that island. Then we'll have his version. There are a few things I want to find out about, myself."

"There are several that promise to be fairly interesting," said Forsythe under his breath.

Slade turned to the captain. "Have you any questions to put to me, sir?" he asked formally.

"Just one moment," interrupted Trendon. "Boy, a pony of brandy for Mr. Slade."

The reporter drank the liquor and again turned to Captain Parkinson.

"Only about our men," said the commanding officer after a little thought.

Slade shook his head.

"I'm sorry I can't help you there, sir."

"Dr. Trendon said that you knew nothing about Edwards."

"Edwards?" repeated Slade inquiringly. His mind, still absorbed in the events which he had been relating, groped backward.

Trendon came to his aid. "Barnett asked you about him, you remember. It was when you recovered consciousness. Our ensign. Took over charge of the Laughing Lass."

"Oh, of course. I was a little dazed, I fancy."

"We put Mr. Edwards aboard when we first picked up the deserted schooner," explained the captain.

"Pardon me," said the other. "My head doesn't seem to work quite right yet. Just a moment, please." He sat silent, with closed eyes. "You say you picked up the Laughing Lass. When?" he asked presently.

"Four—five—six days ago, the first time."

"Then you put out the fire?"

The circle closed in on Slade, with an unconscious hitching forward of chairs. He had fixed his eyes on the captain. His mouth worked. Obviously he was under a tensity of endeavor in keeping his faculties set to the problem. The surgeon watched him, frowning.

"There was no fire," said the captain.

Slade leaped in his chair. "No fire! But I saw her, I tell you. When I went overboard she was one living flame!"

"You landed in the small boat. Knocked you senseless," said Trendon. "Concussion of the brain. Idea of flame might have been a retroactive hallucination."

"Retroactive rot!" cried the other. "I beg your pardon, Dr. Trendon, but if you'd seen her as I saw her— Barnett!"

He turned in appeal to his old acquaintance.

"There was no fire, Slade," replied the executive officer gently. "No sign of fire that we could find, except that the starboard rail was blistered."

"Oh, that was from the volcano," said Slade. "That was nothing."

"It was all there was," returned Barnett.

"Just let me run this thing over," said the free lance slowly. "You found the schooner. She wasn't afire. She didn't even seem to have been afire. You put a crew aboard under your ensign, Edwards. Storm separated you from her. You picked her up again, deserted. Is that right?"

"Day before yesterday morning."

"Then," cried the other excitedly, "the fire was smoldering till the time. It broke out, and your men took to the water."

"Impossible," said Barnett.

"Fiddlesticks!" said the more downright surgeon.

"I hardly think Mr. Edwards would be driven overboard by a fire which did not even scorch his ship," suggested the captain mildly.

"It drove our lot overboard," insisted Slade. "Do you think we were a pack of cowards? I tell you, when that hellish thing broke loose you had to go. It wasn't fear. It wasn't pain. It was—what's the use? You can't explain a thing like that."

"We certainly saw the glow the night Bill Edwards was—disappeared," mused Forsythe.

"And again night before last," said the captain.

"What's that?" cried Slade. "Where is the Laughing Lass? Isn't she in tow?"

"In tow?" said Forsythe. "No, indeed. We hadn't adequate facilities for towing her. Didn't you tell him, Mr. Barnett?"

"Where is she, then?" Slade fired the question at them like a cross examiner.

"Why, we shipped another crew under Ives and McGuire that noon. We were parted again and haven't seen them since."

"God forgive you!" said the reporter. "After the warnings you'd had too! It was—it was"—

"My orders, Mr. Slade," said Captain Parkinson, with quiet dignity.

"Of course, sir. I beg your pardon," returned the other. "But you say you saw the light again?"

"The first night they were out," said Barnett in a low voice.

"Then your second crew is with your first crew," said Slade shakily., "And they're with Thrackles and Puls and Solomon and many another black hearted scoundrel and brave seaman. Down there!"

He pointed underfoot. Captain Parkinson rose and went to his cabin. Slade rose, too, but his knees were unsteady. He tottered, and but for the swift aid of Barnett's arm would have fallen.

"Overdone," said Dr. Trendon, with some irritation. "Cost you something in strength. Foolish performance. Turn in now."

Slade tried to protest, but the surgeon would not hear of it and marched him incontinently to his berth. Returning, Trendon reported, with growls of discontent, that his patient was in a fever.

"Couldn't expect anything else," he fumed. "Pack of human interrogation points hounding him all over the place."

"What do you think of his story?" asked Forsythe.

The grizzled surgeon drew out a cigar, lighted it, took three deliberate puffs, turned it about, examined the ash end with concentration, and replied:

"Man's telling a straight story."

"You think it's all true?" cried Forsythe.

"Humph!" grunted the other. "He thinks it's all true."

An orderly appeared and knocked at the captain's cabin.

"Beg pardon, sir," they heard him say. "Mr. Carter would like to know how close in to run. Volcano's acting up pretty bad, sir."

Captain Parkinson went on deck, followed by the rest.

"ONLY MEDICINE THAT DID ME ANY GOOD"

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Backache After Doctors Failed Utterly.

"I have received most wonderful benefit from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered for years from backaches and pain in the head and I consulted doctors and took every remedy obtainable without any relief. Then I began taking "Fruit-a-tives" and this was the only medicine that ever did me any real good. I took several boxes altogether, and now I am entirely well of all my dreadful headaches and backaches. I take "Fruit-a-tives" occasionally still, but I am quite cured of a trouble that was said to be incurable. I give this testimony voluntarily, in order that others who suffer as I suffered may try this wonderful medicine and be cured."
Mrs. Frank Eaton, Frankville, Ont.

EAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rambling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

MRS. S. F. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ONT.:

Dear Mrs. Currah,—Your letter of the 24th received to-day. Please find enclosed $5.00 for 6 boxes of Orange Lily. I would not think of discontinuing its use, as I know that 6 more boxes will produce a permanent cure. Even now I am an entirely new creature since using O. L. I intend sending you my photo and testimonial letter later, for I feel we cannot say too much in favor of Orange Lily, and know if more of same was used among suffering womankind the surgeon's knife would be cheated of its many baptisms in the blood of suffering women. KINGSTON, ONT., July 15th, 1903

INTHON BIBLE CLASS SOCIAL

Enjoyable Time Spent at George St. Church Last Evening

The Inthon social held in the Sunday school of the George street Methodist church last night was a great success. About one hundred ladies and gentlemen were present. Before the entertainment started a card was handed to each one on which was printed a letter contained in some vegetable. The idea of this was to get the ladies and gentlemen mixed up in groups, containing as many as there were letters in the various vegetables. At about 8.15 the social was opened amid the excitement of all looking for the complement of their little societies.

The Inthon's orchestra and quartette were on hand and rendered some very nice pieces.

The social started with a sentence contest. A number of letters which marked the beginning of words were up in sentences. Some queer combinations followed.

Next a chair walking stunt was brought forward. Four or five chairs were placed in a row. The participants were taken from the room and brought in one at a time to walk over the chairs. Each one was then blindfolded and required to perform the same stunt. Of course the chairs were silently removed while the party was being blindfolded, and then, much to the amusement of the rest of the gathering, he gracefully (?) walked over imaginary chairs.

A smiling contest was then held, the ladies taking part this time. The winning lady's smile was about five and a half inches long.

Ice cream and cake was then passed around, after which the Inthon's friendly hand shake brought the all too short evening to a close.

Chairman "Good Times" Proctor is certainly worthy of his nick-name after the way in which he prepared the good time last night.

The Inthon's will meet as usual Sunday afternoon. Don't be backward, fellows pay us a visit next Sunday. You'll enjoy it.—Com.

OF INTEREST

Mr. Winston Churchill made a very remarkable speech to his constituents at Dundee a few days ago, which the London papers did not report at the length it deserved except the Times.

There was a deep note running through it which characterizes Mr. Churchill's speeches to-day, and which bodes well for the belief that in the days to be Mr. Churchill will be Prime Minister. Then once more we shall have an orator as Prime Minister.

"What is the problem of the hour?" he asked. It can be compressed in one word—unemployment.

VICIOUS LABOR CONDITIONS

"I discern in the present industrial system of our country three vicious conditions which make us peculiarly susceptible to any outside disturbance of international trade. First, the lack of any central organization of industry, or any general and concerted control either of ordinary Government work or of any extraordinary relief works. It would be possible for the Board of Trade to foretell with a certain amount of accuracy the degree of unemployment likely to be reached in any winter. It ought to be possible for some authority in some Government office to view the whole situation in adthority in some Government office to view the whole situation in advance and within certain limits to exert a powerful influence over the general distribution of Government contracts. There is nothing economically unsound in increasing temporarily and artificially the demand for labor during a period of temporary and artificial contraction.

WHAT IS WANTED.

"There is a plain need of some averaging machinery to regulate and even up the general course of the labor market in the same way as the Bank of England, by its bank rate, regulates and corrects the flow of business enterprise. When the extent of the depression is foreseen the extent of the relief should also be determined. There ought to be in permanent existence certain recognized industries of a useful but uncompetitive character, like, we will say, afforestation, managed by public departments, and capable of being expanded or contracted according to the needs of the labor market, just easily as you can pull out the stops or work the pedals of an organ.

"In this way you would not eliminate employment, you certainly would not prevent the creation of unemployables; but you would considerably limit the scale of unemployment.

THE EVIL OF CASUAL LABOR.

"The second vicious condition is positive and not negative. I mean the gross, and, I sometimes fear, increasing evil of casual labor. We talk a great deal about the unemployed, but the evil of the under-employed is the tap-root of unemployment. There is a tendency in many trades, almost in all trades, to have a fringe of casual labor on hand, available as a surplus whenever there is a boom, flung back into the whirlpool whenever there is a slump. Employers and foremen in many trades are drawn consciously or unconsciously to distribute their work among a larger number of men than they regularly require, because this obviously increases their bargaining power with them, and supplies a convenient reserve for periods of brisk business activity.

"And what I desire to impress upon you is that the casual unskilled laborer who is habitually under-employed, who is lucky to get three, or at the outside, four days' work in the week, who may often be out of a job for three or four weeks at a time, who in bad times goes under altogether, and who in good times has no hope of security and no incentive to thrift, whose whole life and the lives of his wife and children are embarked in a sort of blind, desperate fatalistic gamble with circumstances beyond his comprehension or control, that this poor man, this terrible and pathetic figure, is not as a class the result of accident or chance, is not casual because he wishes to be casual, is not casual as the consequence of some temporary disturbance soon put right.

"No, the casual laborer is here because he is wanted here. He is here in answer to a perfectly well-defined demand. He is here as the result of economic causes which have been too long unregulated. He is not the natural product he is an article manufactured called into being, to suit the requirements in the Prime Minister's telling phrase, of all industries at particular times, of particular industries at all times. I suppose no Department has more means of learning about these things than the Board of Trade, which is in friendly touch at every stage all over the country both with capital and labor. I publish the fact deliberately, I invite you to consider it. I want it to soak in. It appears to me that measures to check the growth and diminish the quantity of casual labor must be an essential part of any thorough or scientific attempt to deal with unemployment, and I would not proclaim this evil, to you without having reason to believe that practicable means exist by which it can be greatly diminished.

BOY LABOR.

"If the first vicious condition which I have mentioned to you is lack of industrial organization, if the second of the nation runs wild after it is the evil of casual labor, there is a third not less important—I mean the present conditions of boy labor. The whole underside of the labor market is deranged by the competitions of boys or young persons who do mens work for boys wages, and are turned off so soon as they demand men's wages for themselves. How does it affect the boys, the youth of our country, the heirs of all our exertion, the inheritors of that long treasure of history and romance of science and knowledge—aye, of nations' glory for which so many valiant generations have fought and toiled—the youth of Britain, how are we treating them in the twentieth century of the Christian era. 'Are they not being exploited. Are they not being demoralized. Are they not being thrown away.

"Whereas the youth of the wealthier class is all kept under strict discipline until 18 or 19, the mass years of age. No doubt at first employment is easy to obtain. There is a wide and varied field; there are a hundred odd jobs for a lad; but almost every form of employment now open to young persons affords them no opening, is of no use to them whatever, when they are grown up and in a great number of cases the life which they lead is demoralizing and harmful. And what is the consequence. The consequence may be measure by this grim fact that out of the unemployed applying for help under the Unemployed Workmen Act, no less than 28 per cent. are between 20 and 30 years of age—that is to say, men in the first flush of their strength and manhood already hopelessly adrift on the dark and tumultuous ocean of life. No boy or girl ought to be treated merely as cheap labor, that up to 18 years of age every boy or girl in this country should, as in the old days of apprenticeship, be learning a trade as well as earning a living.

"And now I say to you Liberals of Scotland and Dundee two words — 'Diligence and Daring,'" concludes Mr. Churchill. "Let that be your motto for the year that is to come. 'Few' it is written, 'and evil are the days of man.' Soon, very soon, our brief lives will be lived. Soon, very soon, we and our affairs will have passed away. Uncounted generations will trample heedlessly upon our tombs. What is the use of living if it be not to strive for noble causes and to make this muddled world a better place for those who will live in it after we are gone. How else can we out ourselves in harmonious relation with the great verities and consolations of the infinite and the eternal. And I avow my faith towards better days. Humanity will not be cast down. We are going on —swinging bravely forward along the grand high road—and already behind the distant mountains is the promise of the sun."

FAT IS OUT OF STYLE

To paraphrase Caesar's remark, the directoire gown came—was seen—and has conquered. So fat ladies are reduced, so to speak, to the necessity of either reducing at a very rapid rate or eliminating themselves from public view until the fashion dies out. Otherwise they risk being ridiculous.

Since many fat ladies will not eliminate themselves, however, but per contra, will insist on wearing the curveless gown, no course is open to this well meaning scribe other than how they may eliminate the fat.

What is there, then, that reduces fat safely? What pleasant, inexpensive article is there on druggists' shelves that can reduce a pound a day without causing wrinkles or stomach ache? What can the pharmacists offer as an improvement over scanty victuals or ten mile walks without breakfast? Is there anything pleasant to take and inexpensive to buy that will reduce one uniformly, quickly and innocently thirty pounds a month? Here is the answer— Either write the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., or ask your local druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets, and for 75 cents they or he will give you one large case of these safe fat reducers, containing so generous a quantity of tablets that sometimes one case only is needed to produce the desired results. Can you match that for a simple solution of your problem?

WILL GIVE EXHIBITONS

Reckless, Recklaw & Co. fancy roller skaters and bicyclists, will give exhibitions at the Auditorium roller rink on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening of next week.

THANKSGIVING

By S. Jean Walker.

O, Lord, the Giver of our days
Of changing seasons as they move,
To Thee we offer prayer and praise
Proclaim Thy mercy, power and love,
Our thankful hearts shall ever own
Our gratitude to Thee alone.

For loss we thank Thee as for gain
For griefs our souls have sanctified,
For joy Thy love wrought from our pain,
For hopes our hearts have been denied,
Thy presence every day made bright,
And gladdened every sorrow's night.

Though tempests round our pathway rolled,
We felt Thee our defence and guide,
In thy great goodness love controlled,
Our every want Thy hand supplied.
Our souls from storm and conflict freed,
Rested in Thee our strength, our need.

When fettered, blind, with worldly care,
Thy sacred touch our vision cleared,
Our Sins forgiven, rose in prayer,
The angel of Thy peace appeared
Breathing the gift Thy love imparts,
Claiming our wild and wayward hearts.

Our feeble tongues for utterance fail
To tell Thy goodness; sing thy praise;
But when we pass death's shadowed vale,
A song eternal we shall raise.
And share in a new, wondrous way,
And endless, true Thanksgiving Day.

Every moment you are awake you use them steadily and those who read much or sew a great deal, or whose duties require close application of the eyes, are almost sure to stand in need of an Optician sooner or later.

TEN HORRIBLE DEATHS BY FIRE AND SCALDING

Instantly Killed in Gas Explosion.

Little Girl Perishes in Fire in Woods---Six Sleeping Inmates of a House Burned to a Crisp.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—Crawling under the floor of his house in Deer Park yesterday afternoon in search of a leak in a gas pipe, George Frost, 66 years of age, and janitor of Upper Canada College for 36 years, lit a match and was instantly killed by the explosion which followed. His body was burned to a crisp.

His daughter, Mrs. Georgina Mann, who was in the house, crawled to the aid of her father. She found him dead and his body in flames, but could not get him out of the hole, though she burned her hands in the attempt. Her hair was also badly singed. The charred remains were not recovered till the firemen arrived.

The cellar had been excavated only where the furnace stood, while the gas pipe was beneath the front part of the house, where the floor was only a couple of feet above the ground. Mrs. Mann had often complained to her father that the smell of gas was in the house and he had answered that he would go down and see about it one of these days.

The door leading to the kitchen was split from top to bottom, and several windows were shattered by the explosion.

Mrs. Mann rushed to the cellar and courageously attempted to crawl to the help of her father, whom she could see among the flames and smoke. When she came near the spot where he lay she clutched at his clothes, but was compelled to desist after she had burned her fingers and face and received a gash in the neck.

Belleville, Nov. 10.—News reached the city yesterday of a sad fatality near the village of Gilmour, this county, on Thursday last, resulting in the death of the seven-year-old daughter of George Sprackett. He went out to burn some brush heaps, and his little daughter accompanied him. He left her for a few moments and returning found her in flames. Efforts to save her life were unavailing.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—Two-year-old Tilley Pearce, who was burned Saturday afternoon at her home, 55 Trinity street, while playing with matches, died in the Sick Children's Hospital at 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—Four-year-old Russell Purdy, who was severely scalded Sunday while his mother was filling the tub to bath him at his home at 505 Dufferin street, died early yesterday morning in the Sick Children's Hospital.

Deadwood, S.D., Nov. 10.—Six sleeping inmates of a resort here were burned to a crisp, while a dozen others were perhaps fatally injured in attempting to escape from the building yesterday.

THE FAMOUS DRAMATIST

Victorien Sardou, Passes Away at the Age of Seventy-Seven.

Paris, Nov. 10.—Victorien Sardou, who had been ill for a long time, died Sunday from pulmonary congestion. He was the dean of French dramatists and a member of the French Academy. The man whose first play was hissed and who then wanted to go to America to seek his fortunes, died rich and honored, with the proud title of France's greatest and most prolific contemporary dramatists.

M. SARDOU.

Sardou was born in Paris in 1831.

He wrote in all more than seventy plays and farces, among which are Irving's Dante and Robespreire, Sarah Bernhardt's Gismonda, Fedora, Theodora La Tosca and Cleopatra, and Mme. Bejane's Madame Sans Gene. He was elected to the French Academy of Immortals in 1878.

DEPRESSION WILL SOON CEASE IF PEACE CONTINUES

British Premier Addresses a Big Banquet in London—He Says That Powers Are Really Animated by Peaceful Spirit and the Clouds of War Will Not Last Long.

London, Nov. 10.—The Prime Minister, Herbert H. Asquith, was the principal speaker at the Guild Hall banquet last night, which marked the inauguration of the new lord mayor of London, Sir George Wyatt Truscott, and brought to a fitting close the celebration of the King's 67th birthday.

The Prime Minister devoted his observations mainly to the European situation. After congratulating Turkey, in the person of the Turkish ambassador, on the success of the most amazing revolution in the annals of history, he declared that, subject to the important principle that international treaties could not be altered except by the consent of all the signatories, the British Government had no prejudice against, or preference in favor of, any particular settlement. It has never objected to direct negotiations between Austria and Bulgaria and Turkey, always provided that Turkey, as the most prejudiced, should have a settlement consistent with her honor and interests, and that the agreement must be countersigned by all parties to the Berlin treaty.

One of the happiest results of the Russo-Anglo convention, he said, was that both countries had been able to approach the near eastern question from the same viewpoint and discuss frankly and satisfactorily the sudden crisis that had arisen. His Majesty's Government considered that Russia had behaved with the greatest restraint under exceedingly trying circumstances in following a policy of non-intervention in Persia.

Just a year ago, the German Emperor, while on a visit to England, emphatically declared himself animated by a desire for friendship with Great Britain and the maintenance of the peace of Europe.

"It was that spirit," said Mr. Asquith, "that guided all the negotiations between the two countries concerning the present difficulties, and as I believe, the other powers are animated by a similar spirit the clouds that are now darkening Europe will soon disappear without a storm.

"There ought to be no talk of isolation," continued the Premier, "or of hostile grouping among the powers, who are the joint trustees of civilization and peace."

Mr. Asquith referred briefly to the commercial outlook and thought that if peace was maintained there was no reason why the present depression should be of long duration.

Both the Premier and Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty, dealt with the question of national defence, especially with reference to the navy, in almost similar words. They declined to anticipate the next naval estimates, but the Premier hinted that the cost of the navy was not likely to diminish, but rather increase, since having attained supremacy, the Government was firmly determined to maintain it. The navy, said Mr. Asquith, was now equal to any responsibility that could be thrown upon it, but its indisputable superiority was not for aggression or adventure, but to fulfill the duty of protecting British commerce, industry and homes.

London, Nov. 10.—The suppression by The Century of an interview with the Kaiser by W. B. Hale, formerly editor of Current Literature, formed one of the leading features of the news in yesterday's papers, several of which published lengthy despatches on the subject. The morning papers did not comment directly on the topic, but several of the editorials, dealing with the subject of King Edward's birthday, drew complacent though veiled comparisons between his safe constitutionalism and the impulsive personalism of his Imperial nephew.

New York, Nov. 10.—The suppressed Century interview was obtained by William Bayard Hale during the summer, he having gone to Germany for the sole purpose of procuring an authorized statement from the Emperor.

Like all other magazines The Century is printed some time in advance of its appearance on the newsstands.

The interview was put in type at the DeVinne Press nearly two months ago, and was proceeding by regular stages when it was stopped presumably by the request of the Kaiser.

MANY PHASES OF BOYS' WORK THOUGHTFULLY DEALT WITH

At Third Annual Provincial Boys' Conference of the Y.M.C.A.

Distinguished Workers in Boys' Field Gave Addresses---One Hundred and Fifty Delegates in Attendance---Fifteen Associations Represented.

The third annual Y.M.C.A. Boys' Conference, just concluded in this city was the most successful ever held. From every standpoint it prove to be that for which it was intended, and every delegate must have gone away, taking to his Association at home, some of ideas expressed and lessons taught at the convention here.

The meetings were well attended, there being over one hundred and fifty boys present from outside points, in addition to the large number who were in attendance from the city. Prominent speakers were present, including Messrs. T. H. J. Ritchie, Boys' Work Secretary for Canada; C. C. Robinson, State Secretary, Maine and R. W. Waite, International Secretary, New York City. Their addresses were on subjects of special interest to boys, dealing with the spiritual and social sides of their lives.

The staff of the local Y.M.C.A. are deserving of credit for the splendid manner in which the delegates were handled. Every boy spoke in the highest terms of the treatment received during his stay in the city, and the third annual convention will long be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to be present.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

The Saturday session was opened at two o'clock in the afternoon by devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. Canon Davidson. Mr. Ritchie occupied the chair until the Nominating Committee returned their report. The first topic was on Bible study, which was treated by delegates who gave addresses on the following branches of the subject;—"Why Should a Boy Study the Bible?" by Charters Sharpe, of the West End Y.M.C.A., Toronto; (b) "How Should a Boy Study the Bible?" by Clifford Meadows, of the Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto; (c) "Why Should a Boy be a Bible Class Leader?" by Gavin MacFarlane, Ottawa; (d) "What Kind of a Boy Should be a Bible Class Leader?" by A. Wilson, of Ottawa.

The addresses were of ten minutes' duration and were followed by a ten minute discussion on each. Mr. Sharpe's reasons for a boy studying the Bible were in part that it supplied all our wants. It is a source of encouragement, strength, comfort and encouragement. Without it it is impossible to live the Christ life. A complete knowledge of it is necessary to appreciate the many allusions to its passage found in the best literary works. Its influence will manifest itself in the building of a strong character in the boy that be of service to him all his life.

Clifford Meadows in his address said that the same earnestness and concentration of thought was required in the study of the Bible as in mathematics, Greek or other subject. A definite plan must be pursued, and when parts have been mastered they must be reviewed and with renewed thought, as there is nearly always a new interpretation to be found. Gavin MacFarlane pointed out that a boy of good character the boy who by natural dispositions shows himself a leader, teaches those younger than himself with more effectiveness than would an adult leader. He is nearer him in his daily life and knows all his difficulties, troubles and trials, and by real friendship can be of an assistance to him that a parent could scarcely be. If the boy leader is strong of character he will impress the other boys by his personality and strengthen him by the influence of his companionship in the class. Mr. MacFarlane stated that exceptional boys were required for the duties of a Bible class leader, one who not only could control them and know how to teach them, but who who also took an interest in their worldly affairs and assisted them in this respect.

Mr. A. Wilson in his paper said that the boy who should be a Bible class leader must have a fine conception of the work he had undertaken. If the class is composed of employed boys, it is preferable that the leader be an employed boy, and similarly if the class is of school boys they should be one of their own kind. In any case the boy must be right. He must be sincere in his actions, and should be of that disposition and character which will stand the test, and which the members of his class may safely follow, as an example. He must not be of the long-faced kind, but should be capable of joining in the sports and games of the others, and must fit in right so that the boys will not perceive that he is a leader, except when it comes to class work. In other words, he must be a boy with the boys, but quietly setting them an example for good. He must make sacrifices for the boys and should be able to study their wants, study the work he is called on to teach them and possess the systematic nature necessary to share in all their trials.

Mr. C. M. Copeland was the next speaker, summarizing the points touched upon by the boys in their addresses and the subsequent discussions. At the conclusion of this session the Nominating Committee brought in their report as follows:—

Chairman—J. A. Sully, Ottawa.

Vice-Chairman — J. Bainbridge, Hamilton.

Secretary — Charters Sharpe, Toronto West End.

Asst. Secretary—Murray Grant, Orillia.

Reporter — Mark Cohan, Toronto West End.

Recommending Comittee—G. MacFarlane, Ottawa; T. Statten, Toronto Central; G. S. Chesom, Brantford; Murray Grant, Orillia.

This committee was appointed for the purpose of considering the most important questions brought up in order that action might be taken along those lines considered the most important.

At the conclusion of the Saturday afternoon session the delegates went in a body to the lift lock, which, to all those who had not before seen it, was of special interest. Returning they paid a visit to the fire hall, where they were courteously received by Chief Howard, who took them through the building and had the men give an exhibition of their rapid hitch-up.

ANNUAL BANQUET.

One of the features of the third annual boys' conference now in progress at the Y.M.C.A. building, was the banquet held in the gymnasium on Saturday evening. About one hundred and fifty boys were in attendance, and the event was an enjoyable as well as an instructive gathering. At 6.30 o'clock the boys set down to a sumptuous repast prepared by the ladies of the Y.M.C.A. Auxiliary, and the boys were loud in their praise of the excellent things provided. The supper was interspersed by club yells and songs from the different ones represented.

After justice had been done to the dainty viands, Mr. W. Sully, of Ottawa, took the chair and called upon Mr. Max Dobbin for a few remarks. On behalf of the Boys' Association here Mr. Dobbin extended a hearty welcome to the visiting delegates. He stated that when it was announced that the conference would be held here, he did not think there would be more than thirty or forty delegates present. Instead of that there were 150 in attendance. He was sure that much would be learned as a result of the conference.

Messrs. John Bainbridge, of Hamilton; P. Huffman, Toronto West End Y.M.C.A.; James Pedley, Toronto Central, and A. W. Milks, of Ottawa, responded to the welcome, expressing their delight at being present and speaking in the highest terms of the reception accorded them and of the city of Peterborough.

Boys representing the different associations then extended invitations to the conference to meet in their towns next year.

Mr. Clarence Dunn, of Toronto Central, spoke on the subject of "Our Business in Peterborough." He said that some boys had come to Peterborough to see the city an to have a good time. That should not be the motive in attending a boys' conference. Our business here should be to learn something of boys' work that they might go back to their several institutions and impart to the ones there some of the instruction they had received.

Mr. C. C. Robinson, State Boys' Secretary, Maine was the next speaker. He addressed the boys on the subject of "Leadership." He said that leadership was a subject that was engaging the minds of many people at the present time. He thought that if the boys who had come to Peterborough did not know more when they returned home than when they came, they had lost their time. "If you are going to lead you must excel," he said. He urged his hearers to let Jesus Christ be the supplement of their lives and to fight sin and vice in His name.

Mr. Waite also addressed the boys, after which the gathering was brought to a close.

SUNDAY SESSION.

At 10 o'clock on Sunday morning Mr. F. H. T. Ritchie gave an address on the "Model Bible Class and at 11 o'clock the delegates attended service at the churches.

At four o'clock a mass meeting was held in the Conservatory Music Hall The hall was nearly full of young men and boys including many local fellows as well as the delegates. It was purely a mens' meeting and the addresses were all directed by young men to young men, with the result not a little good was accomplished.

Soon after three o'clock the delegates began to arrive and a short preparatory service was held before the general session was opened.

The principal speaker of the afternoon was Mr. R. A. White, jr., of New York, who is taking a leading part in the Y.M.C.A. work in that city. His address was full of interest and was closely followed by all present. Several other young men also spoke and the object of all the addresses was to point out the great necessity of young men to denounce the worldly life and to proclaim themselves soldiers ready to fight for the great Leader. It was pointed out that to join a Y.M.C.A. and enjoy a'l the pleasures and privileges of that institution and to join the church and still disown the real Head was a mockery, and one day every man would feel the shame of it.

An interesting feature of the afternoon was the musical programme, which was led by the orchestra and taken part in by all present. The affair was a decided success and every young man will be benefitted by it.

In the evening some of the conference leaders preached in the city churches.

MONDAY'S SESSIONS.

Monday morning saw another large attendance of the boys and in fact all through the conference they showed great enthusiasm in the subjects that were introduced and it was most pleasing the manner in which they entered into the work. Rev. E. A. Pearson led in the devotional exercises, following which the main subject of the day was dealt with. "The Employed Boy." Papers were read on this topic by three of the delegates as follows; "The Association and the Office Boy," by Chas. Aldred, Toronto West End; "Apprentices," by E. Sterne, Brantford; "Store or Sales Boy," by Stanley Watson, of Orillia. Other delegates dealt with additional needs and Mr. Robinson followed with a bright talk on how to meet the needs of the employed boys.

He stated that there were ten times as many employed boys as High school boys and therefore they needed that much more attention. Many never got any higher than a public school, but then some of them have chosen their life work. It is one of the aims of the association to better these boys as much as possible hence the good reason for the formation of trade clubs and classes for study in order to help them increase their ability also the lines they most require help. The boys who require special attention Mr. Robinson said were those that are apprentices or office boys and who do not know where they are at. They are typical boys of the class who may have a job, but who have no idea of what they are going to do next year. Mr. Robinson then dwelt upon the evolution of the average boy's education, recreation and social life. He dwelt upon the change from the boy of six or seven who likes individual prestige until he arrives at the period where he cooperates with the rest of his fellowmen, being a unit in society. Mr. Robinson's treatment of this subject was thorough, but so expressed that all the boys could not fail to grasp his meaning.

At noon there was a Thanksgiving dinner at Hooper's for older boys. At the conclusion Mr. Robinson gave an address on the problem of the employed boy, his particular subject being "How the Employed Boys' Needs Be Met." He dealt in his characteristic manner with the educational, religious and social requirements of the employed boys and gave many good suggestions to be carried bmeo in regard to the best ways of meeting them.

The concluding meeting of the conference was held on Monday afternoon, and was a most inspiring assemblage. The boys considered the many problems and policies that had been discussed, determined to return to their respective associations to them into practice and brought the session to a close by a general farewell. The devotional service was conducted by Mr. R. A. Waite, after which the various delegations assembled in different rooms to form their plans for the future from the suggestions received during the conference. They met again in the main hall and the chairman of each delegation presented the resolution that had been adopted.

These might be expressed in the following summary; They would go back home determined to train leaders for Bible study work, to arrange for systematic and daily Bible study, to give more attention to the unemployed boys securing expert tradesmen to give talks to the boys who are following the same occupations, to enlarge the number of periodicals in the library especially procuring journals that will be of use to the employed boy, to arrange for trips through the large factories, to broaden the bonds between the business and school boy, especially to try and win boys for Christ through the medium of the association, to enlarge the membership of the Bible study clubs and to form live educational classes.

Mr. C. C. Robinson's parting words to the boys were to persevere in the resolutions they had formed and to carry out the policies which they felt would be of most benefit to their own associations. The members of the different delegations had shown a most intelligent grasp of the situation and in this respect it was the best boy's conference he had ever attended. One little advice he gave the boys was to give the local secretary every assistance. Any things which the member considers are not going along smoothly should be reported to the secretary. In fact each boy should be a kind of assistant secretary thereby giving the association his best interest and helping to make a success of the whole work. Mr. Robinson urged the boys to persevere in the carrying out of the policies they had resolved to adopt and should the most desirable results not be achieved during the first year, this should not discourage them but be an increased incentive to attempt more the next year, and at least to begin the work again and with renewed determination.

Mr. Waite's last words were to the effect that he hoped each delegate would return home an assistant secretary. A concluding hymn was sung, after which the boys all joined hands and sang "Blessed be the Tie that Binds." The farewell was one of the most impressive parts of the whole conference at least in some respects, the boys singing the old favorite hymn in a manner that showed that it came straight from the heart.

On behalf of the resolution committee we wish to convey our sincere thanks;

A NOBLEMAN IS CHARGED WITH ATTEMPED MURDER

HOW THE HOLIDAY WAS SPENT IN PETERBOROUGH

More pleasant weather than that which graced Thanksgiving Day in Peterborough could hardly have been hoped for or desired. With skies of Azure and the sun shining brightly, it was veritable king's weather and well befitting His Majesty's 67th birthday. Peterborough people spent the day in various ways, there being a number of attractions, each one being worthy of a large patronage.

A great many left the city, while the trains brought numerous visitors to town.

In the morning the road races attracted large crowds, while in the afternoon the Opera House was crowded, and the Walking Match at the Brock St. Rink was also well attended. In the evening both of these events had big houses.

The Auditorium Roller Rink also had large attendances, both afternoon and evening.

Gladman Party

Mr. B. A. Lillie returned last night after a week's hunting with the Gladman party at Parry Sound. The party are having splendid luck, having shot fifteen deer up to Friday night. They will return home next Monday.

Sholto Douglas is Held at Nelson.

The Younger Son of Marquis of Queensberry is Arrested in British Columbia.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 10.—A despatch from Cranbrooke says that Lord Sholto Douglas, a young son of the eighth Marquis of Queensberry, is under arrest at Nelson, charged with attempted murder. Lord Sholto owns a fruit ranch near Creston, and upon returning unexpectedly found a man named Rowland, a former British officer, there, who refused to go away when told. When the man refused to leave Lord Sholto picked up a gun and shot him in the back of the head and neck. The victim, according to the last report, is not expected to live. Lord Sholto has been committed for trial at the next Assizes. Bail has been refused, and he is now a prisoner in the provincial jail at Nelson.

Lord Sholto's father became famous through framing the Queensberry rules under which prize fights are now conducted. Lord Sholto has been in Canada some twelve years, coming out shortly after the Oscar Wilde case, in which he was one of the principal witnesses for the defence.

ANNUAL SUPPER A BIG SUCCESS

Held Last Night at St. Andrew's Church Under Auspices of Ladies Aid Society

A greater success than ever, is what may be said of the annual supper given by the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's church. As is customary the affair took place on Thanksgiving night and between 400 and 500 people gathered in the lecture hall between the hours of 5.30 and 8 o'clock and partook of the good things which had been provided. The first tables were set at 5.30 and they were filled, and from that time on there was hardly time to clear away the dishes before the empty chairs were taken again. Fortunately a bountiful supply of food had been provided and everyone was enabled to have a good supper. As a result of the affair the society will have a large sum of money to place in their treasury.

After the dinner was over a short programme was given in the church and a large number remained and enjoyed it.

The programme was as follows:—

Hymn 486, "Come Ye Thoughtful People."
Duet, Messrs. Cutting and Mortimer Johnston.
Reading, Mr. Robertson.
Solo, Miss B. King.
Reading, Mr. B. McD. Robertson.
Solo, Miss Florence Manning.
Reading, Mr. Robertson.
Solo, Mr. Gordon Wright.
Address, Rev. E. A. Pearson.

A motion of thanks was moved to Mr. Andrew McFarland and John Stanger, and was carried.

National Anthem.

Mrs. P. A. Kerr and Mrs. C. S. McClelland, pianists.

Mr. Regnar delighter the audience with several well rendered selections on the pipe organ of which the following are a couple;—"The Statesn Herdsman's Hymn," the Roman March," "The War March of the Priest," and "Esquisse Militaire."

Elected Grand Secretary

The Review has received the annual communication of the Saskatchewan Grand Lodge, A.F. and A. M. In the list of officers elected is noticed the name of Dr. J. M. Shaw, of Regina, who was appointed Grand Secretary. The Grand Lodge met in the Masonic Temple, Regina, on Wednesday, the 17th day of June. Dr. Shaw is a former resident of Keene.

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, NOV. 10, 1908.

'TWAS EVER THUS

In 1896 the great majority of Orangemen were on the side of Laurier. Did the Conservatives then go amongst the Roman Catholics with the fiery torch of the Sentinel's condemnation of Sir Charles Tupper and with the Liberal onslaughts upon the hierarchy? They did not. They declined to make capital out of the circumstance They went down to defeat and met political death like men. Now in 1908, when Orangemen are ranged largely against Sir Wilfrid, because he deceived them in 1896, the Sentinel's editorials are utilized to arouse Catholics against Conservatives and lure them to the Liberal web. Every effort has been made all the way down from the Globe even unto the Examiner to consolidate the Catholic vote by dramatically pointing to the Orangemen's change of front. In 1896 Catholics and Orangemen were not too proud to vote together. In 1908 the Liberal newspapers, from the Kingston Standard to the Winnipeg Free Press, cry out that Conservatives are in league with crime, that they have become intolerant and abusive because the Orangemen vote with them. The tolerance of the Conservatives from 1896 on, has been in glaring contrast with the sinister malevolence of the Liberal machine. In 1896 Orangemen believed that they were serving their country by voting with Catholics for a Catholic Premier. In 1908 their conduct in voting against him was an outrage, so it is affirmed. So the world wags. The violence of the Globe against Laurier's Separate school policy in 1905 is forgotten.

Lo! we have served our purpose and have been thrown aside. To being thrown aside Conservatives probably have but mild objections. They are not dependent upon class or creed. They rely upon their policies which from time to time they have created in case of their country's dire need when Liberal leaders had not an idea of their own, unless it were annexation to the United States or asking pardon for Riel. The Conservative party seeks no favours of those who deserted it, when it had stood by them in the name of the law as they believed it to be nor will it stand for the abuse of those who ally themselves with it in 1908, when it still holds its steady course in the name of that same law.

THE RACE QUESTION

The solidarity of the French-Canadians in support of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1908, as in 1904, 1900 and 1896, has provoked a great deal of irritation. The frank acknowledgement of it by Le Nationaliste is the one redeeming feature of it. The fair and open use of power to bring about a desired result is permissible. The use of it on a variety of specious pretences for the accomplishment of a concealed end is wholly unjustifiable. These are the things that make for the downfall of government. If the broadmindedness of British institutions is to be turned to their own undoing that will settle it. If French-Canada is going to stick out its stomach and cry defiantly. "We are sole masters of our destiny," a large number will be found to disagree with them. English-speaking Canadians live and must live in obedience to the laws of Canadian mutual well-being and if they were to cry aloud from the hilltops that they too were "sole masters of their destiny," what sort of a Canada would this be? The next thing will be the Irish rising up and proclaiming their racial rights with the accompaniment of a variety of forceful arguments probably too strong to be resisted. So it will go. It is the old adage of "Scratch a Russian and you will find a Tartar, a Slav, a Finn, etc." applied to Canada. Scratch a Canadian and you will find a—— scratch cat. Meanwhile tolerance or no tolerance, nothing can harness mind. Hence our editorial prayers will continue to ascend regardless of French, English, Irish or Scotch combinations. An alliance of the French and Doukhobors would produce results of a serious character likely to be offset only by an alliance between the English and the Chinese laundrymen. A skilful manoeuvre might result in the union of the Chemong Indians and the Bourrassavians. Meanwhile we will hope for the best and will resent all efforts to coerce the office boy.

THE GLOBE AND THE SENTINEL

The day after Sir Wilfrid Laurier introduced the Autonomy Bills, viz., February 22nd, 1905: The Globe said;

"The question at issue is this: Is it right or wise for the Dominion Parliament t[o] attempt to make the maintenance of Separate Schools a permanent and constitutional obligation on the new Western Provinces? The Globe's answer to that is not the answer given in the measure now before Parliament. We are convinced that the spirit and intention of the British North America Act concede to the Provincial Legislatures full control of their educational systems."—The Globe.

But the Globe said more.

On February 25th this statement appeared in the Globe;—

"So it is that on all these grounds, theological and practical, constitutional and historical, the Globe feels itself constrained to withhold support from the Autonomy measures now before Parliament in so far as they interfere with the rights of Provinces in the matter of education. The highest interests of all parties, for the present and for the future, will be served by Parliament dealing only with Federal matters."

Three days later our contemporary said: "It is not a question of religious or racial controversy. It involves the principle of Provincial Rights. On that ground all classes and creeds can stand together."

Again, on March 2nd, 1905, after the resignation of Mr. Sifton, the Globe said;—

"Why, in all reason, should it be acknowledged a startling thing that on a great public question involving a fundamental principle, a public journal should find itself out of sympathy with a public man, and should express its own views with distinctness and regard solely to what it conceives to be the essential truth and public duty? In the present instance the Globe holds to what it believes to be a historically Liberal principle, and to the policy calculated to serve most surely the highest interests of the country. When essential principle is involved there can be no compromise in this matter there is involved the question of a principle and of public policy so vital and so far-reaching that each man must judge for himself and no party interests or political attachments can intervene."—The Globe.

Wouldn't it have looked well for a Conservative to have embodied the above in a dark-lantern pamphlet, and then busied himself distributing it with comments suitable to the occasion. But no Conservative stooped so low. If opinions are free and to be tolerated, they must not be made suspicious use of by dark or otherwise? Why may we ask did not those who circulated the front page of the Sentinel in its form of a pamphlet not also circulate the Globe of the above date? Why? Because it did not or would not serve the sinister purpose. That's why? It is easy to find an excuse for any action when one is being looked for diligently. Meanwhile all these things have their amusing side. People see the drift of it. "The play's the thing."

THE RECENT CRISIS

They do things differently abroad. When Germany made ready to attack France recently and knocked the chip off her shoulder as a preliminary Great Britain loomed up as the latter's ally and the attack by Germany did not mature. France we may fairly say owes her preservation from a great war to Britain. Yet there are only two and a quarter millions of Catholics in England. Recently Premier Asquith refused to allow the carrying of the Host in the streets of London. The Coronation oath is anathematized as an insult to Catholics. Yet in a world crisis Protestant Britain joins Catholic France against Protestant Germany. There is no deep-seated bigotry in this proceeding, surely. It all goes to show that Protestant bigotry is not so bad as it has been made to appear. In fact, if Roman Catholicism owed its freedom of worship to the power of Roman Catholic nations to enforce it there would be no Roman Catholic worship worth the name. To cry intolerance at the least show of difference of opinion is to be intolerant of the opinions of others and nothing else. Broadmindedness is a virtue but it is being "more honored in the breach than th' observance." If one chose to delve in the tomes of Catholic historians one could meet charge by charge but to do so would be neither desirable nor proper. The cause of progress is not best served by continually harking back. It is just as well to give credit where it is due rather than to give discredit where it also may be due. One plan makes for disintegration, the other for peace and unity. We are firmly convinced that right-thinking men of all communions are of one mind. It is to them that the world must look for freedom. Fairplay and the development of the highest type of civilization. Bigots of whatever cast are to be avoided and never more than when attacking others for the same fault.

POWDER ON PEANUTS

Used to Make the Goobers Look Clean and Pretty.

LONG AND CAREFUL TOILET.

Besides Being Powdered, the Nuts Are Brushed and Polished and Sized Before They Are Roasted—Cooked at the Mill by Experts.

There is not much to a peanut, to look at it. It grows on a farm and is ready to eat after it has been roasted. A careless deduction would link up the farmer, the commission merchant, then the grocer or Michelangelo. That would be a mighty careless deduction, though. The first time a lot of unroasted peanuts are encountered rub one on a piece of dark cloth and observe the white mark it leaves. That is talcum powder. They powder peanuts to make them look pretty, which is just why sister powders her face, and in that particular peanuts and girls are both alike.

Any farmer can grow peanuts, but no farmer can sell them to the consumer. The peanut he grows is not fit to put on a stand, at least not until it has been touched up. Look at the peanuts on the next push cart and see how even they run as to size. They have all been sorted. Observe how clean they are and how white this lot is, how gray that lot is and how uniform all the different lots are. They have been sorted.

When the peanut is grown it is gathered and carried to a miller, who puts it in a great bin and later carries it over to his mill, where he has a contrivance just chock full of brushes. These brushes get almost every fleck of sand and dirt out of the peanuts, which is more than the farmer could have done if he had spent the summer trying. Then the brushed peanuts go on to another sort of mill, and by being tossed about they get their hulls polished, and while that is being done they are peppered with talcum powder, so that by the time they come out of this machine they are as white as they are to appear in public.

But the peanut is not ready for market yet. It is alongside a lot of larger or smaller ones, hurting the appearance of the larger ones, while it does not enhance the value of the smaller ones. To even up matters the output of the talcum powder polishing machine is run out on to a great canvas belt, which travels for fifty feet or more slowly. On either side of this belt are boys and girls. These sort the peanuts as they pass; this squad picking out the biggest, that squad taking the next largest, and so on down till the smallest are left. Shells that have dodged the powder rag are thrown back into the mill, and broken hulls are thrown away.

That is about all for the peanut now, excepting the roasting. It has to be roasted. There is a popular superstition that the Italian vender roasts the peanuts in his little push cart. All he does is keep them hot. They are roasted at the mill, tons at a time, cooked to a nicety by experienced men, who have thermometers and all sorts of appliances to show them when a peanut is "done." This roasted product is the one that the Italian buys, and when he gets it he pops it into his little fake roaster and warms it over. It takes a long time and a lot of work and hosts of boys and girls to get the nickel's worth of hot roasted peanuts in the red and blue striped bag, but there is a reason for it all, and the reason is that a sack of even run small sized peanuts will find a buyer quicker than a sack of big and little ones all mixed up together. The stomach likes the eye to make a good report, and the peanut commission merchant understands that a shining shell, with indentations filled with talcum, pleases the eyes, and he has no compunctions about the powder box, because he has found out that in roasting the heat drives off the surplus talcum, so that is why if one wants to find out for true about this trick of the trade it will be necessary to get hold of an unroasted and not a roasted peanut.

By way of good measure it might be added that the shelled peanuts, generally sold salted, have been run through a thrashing machine, which breaks the hull and blows it out of the way. Only "Spanish shell" nuts can be so treated. The tougher hulls have to go to Signor Italiano.

The Long Lived Pear.

The pear is easily more hardy than the apple and needs less coddling. There are trees still standing near Monroe, in the state of Michigan, which were planted by the French settlers before Penn founded Philadelphia. Pear trees can be kept in good bearing condition for 300 years and apples for at least 150 years. I have an apple tree 115 years old and its annual fruitage is as perfect as it was sixty years ago.—E. P. Powell in Outing Magazine.

CANADA STILL HEADS.

Despite Restrictions It Is Favorite With Britons Seeking Homes.

The British Board of Trade has issued a White Paper, which throws an interesting light upon the decrease which is to be noted this year in emigration, the recent restrictions instituted in Canada, in addition to those in America, having brought about a very remarkable difference in the total of emigrants leaving or passing through the United Kingdom.

Taking first the returns for the month alone, one finds that 14,437 persons left the British Isles for places within the boundaries of the British Empire; last July the total was 23,424. Of the total of 14,437 emigrants, 12,794 were of British origin. The foreign emigrants, except for a negligible proportion, went to Canada and South Africa, the former country taking 1,344 and the latter 219 out of a grand total of 1,643. In the case of the emigrants of British origin, Canada, despite the recent restrictions, which are stemming the tide of emigration to the extent of one-half the total for July, 1908, being 7,446, against a total for July, 1907, of 14,787, has the largest total of any country, though the tide of emigration during the month set almost as strongly to the United States, to which 7,327 Britishers emigrated in the month. Australia and New Zealand came next to the States, with a total of 3,067 emigrants of British origin. In this case the rate of emigration is on the way to doubling itself, the figures for the month in 1907 being 1,808. South Africa showed little change, there being 1,432 emigrants in July, 1908, against 1,407 last year. India attracted 301 persons, compared with 333 in July, 1907, and other British possessions are credited with a total for the month of 528 British emigrants, compared with 433 in 1907.

SNAKE IN LIQUOR STORE.

Winnipeg Merchant Horrified by the Sight of Huge Reptile.

How would you feel it, when you went to business in the morning and on opening your safe, you saw a big snake, five feet in length, coiled up in a corner beside your money and books?

That was the sight that met the gaze of J. Rosenthal recently at his store in Winnipeg, when he started work. Mr. Rosenthal was opening a wholesale liquor store and had been getting the place put into shape.

Though it would seem that a liquor store is the proper place to see snakes, the proprietor hardly expected to have that feeling himself, and when he first spied the reptile he could hardly believe his eyes. To make sure he was awake and not dreaming he promptly called a policeman, and with the aid of the law found that his eyes had not deceived him and that he was perfectly sober. The two then turned the snake out of his adopted home and killed it. The sight of the dead reptile lying on the corner of Market and Main streets drew the attention of many people.

The presence of the snake is accounted for by the fact that during the exhibition the premises were rented by a man who held an exhibition of snakes. One of his pets must have escaped from his keeping and showed up that morning for the first and last time.

Prince and the Ducks.

The fact that Lord Grey, Governor-General of Canada has been in the west on a hunting trip and was the guest of Senator Kirchoffer, will serve to remind many, who are "in the know," of the time that the Prince of Wales went duck-hunting in Manitoba.

As everybody knows, the prince is a remarkably good shot, standing perhaps second only to King Alfonso of Spain as a wing-shot among the royalties of Europe. Many a big bag had fallen to the gun of H.R.H., but it was left for Manitoba to provide a record for the royal sportsman.

He was entertained by Senator Kirchoffer in splendid style and was more than delighted to accept the invitation of the Senator to vary the monotony of receiving addresses and laying corner-stones, by a little run out after the birds.

The distinguished party proceeded to the Senator's preserve and as the dawn broke on the appointed day the heir-apparent was in the bow of a canoe being carefully and silently paddled along the shore.

How many ducks fell before the unerring aim of the royal hunter is still a question, but his bag was a record one, even for Manitoba.

"Splendid sport," H.R.H. is said to have remarked, "but I always understood that your ducks here rose rapidly and drove at a tremendous pace. I found them a trifle slow on the rise and very heavy in getting away."

And then the prince winked in a most unroyal fashion, for he had investigated a little and found his ducks were full of wheat!

How the wheat came there has yet to be officially explained.

New Ticket System.

Hamilton's new street railway is to be fashioned after the Pittsburg system, on the advice of George Blanchard, the American expert, who is here in the interests of the financial backers of the Dominion Power & Transmission Co.

One of the drastic changes to be made at once on his recommendation will be the abolition of fare boxes and tickets. Instead cards good for six and eight trips will be issued, and these will be punched by the conductor. A register system will be used in connection with the system. The company says it loses much money with the present arrangement on account of the inability of conductors to collect all fares on crowded cars.

Egyptian Head in Cathedral Wall.

A carved head, said to be of Egyptian workmanship, has been extricated from a crack in the south tower of Exeter (Eng.) Cathedral, which is undergoing repair. Some time between the eleventh and fifteenth centuries the head had been built into the wall with other rubble.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 7 were 2956 cattle, 2812 sheep and lambs, 3855 hogs and 562 calves, while the supply for the local trade this morning consisted of 1400 cattle, 1500 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 200 calves.

Owing to the somewhat limited supply of good to choice stock, a stronger feeling developed in the market for cattle, and prices for the above class advanced ¼c to ½c per pound, but the lower grades show no change from a week ago, as the offerings were plentiful and rather in excess of the requirements of the trade. Cables from Liverpool on Saturday stated the trade was slow and the weather cold, with prices firm at last week's advance; in consequence there was some demand from exporters here, but, as suitable stock was scarce, they found it difficult to fill their wants, and trade in this respect was slow. The demand from local and outside butchers was good on account of the more favorable weather for keeping stock, and a fairly active trade was done. A few choice steers sold at 5c, but the bulk of the trading in top quality cattle was done at 4½c to 4¾c, while good beeves sold at 4¼c to 4½c; fair at 3½c to 4c; common at 2½c to 3¼c, and inferior at 1½c to 2¼c per pound.

There was a stronger undertone to the market for lambs, owing to the fact that the demand from local buyers for supplies was keener, and an active trade was done, with sales of choice lots at 5c to 5¼c, and good at 4½c to 4¾c per lb. In sheep the feeling was stronger, and prices advanced ¼c to ½c per lb., on account of the increased demand for local consumption, and sales of choice lots were made at 3¾c to 4c, and the culls at 3¼c to 3½c per lb., while mixed lots of sheep and lambs brought $4.35 per 100 lbs. There was a fairly good demand for calves, of which supplies were rather limited, and prices ruled firm, at 4½c to 5c per lb. for choice, and at 3c to 4c for the lower grades.

In sympathy with the continued weak advices from European sources for Canadian bacon, and the fact that prices scored a further decline last week of 1s to 2s per cwt., an easier feeling prevailed in the local market for hogs this morning. The supply was fair, which met with a good demand, and sales of selected lots were made at $6.25 to $6.50 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

CONSULT OUR OPTICIAN

The eye is such a delicate organ that it should never be trifled with.

This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses, costing from $7.50 to $25 each. With this limited knowledge it is little wonder that so many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others who do not require them.

If you have eye trouble you should only consult an optician who has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the optical business.

Such a man is our Mr. Taylor.

WORDSWORTH'S POEM "MICHAEL"

Subject of Essay at First Meeting of Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S.

On Friday night the members of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S. held their first regular meeting. Miss Annie Fagan occupied the chair, and during the evening the Mandolin Club was heard in several numbers. The essayist was Miss Aileen Coughlin, who treated the audience to a charming literary analysis of Wordsworth's poem, "Michael." She first sketched briefly the poet's career, his fondness for the simple things of life, and his claim to the title of "The Great Nature Poet." In "Michael" he presents a pastoral poem of rare simplicity and beauty, both of thought and diction. The scene is laid in the valley of Grasmere, Westmoreland, and embodies the spirit of the dalesmen. The quiet splendor of the rugged green-tufted mountains of the smooth grass valleys and of the placid Grasmere Lake were fully portrayed, as well as of the simple Christian lives of the shepherds.

Miss Coughlin dwelt at some length on the story of the poem, but pointed out that Wordsworth did not intend that it should be read merely for the interesting narrative it contains, but that the beauty of it should be understood and appreciated. Michael was an old shepherd, who, with his helpmate, Isabel, dwelt among the mountains of England, and tended his sheep on the neighboring mountain alone. They had one son, Luke, who was born to them in their late years, and Wordsworth drawns a pretty picture of Michael's cottage, "The Evening Star," and of the old "clipping tree" which stood in front of the dwelling, where the shepherds were wont to gather their flocks for the purpose of shearing them. After Luke had grown to manhood he was forced to go to a distant city to work and help pay off a debt contracted by a relative of his father, and for which Michael had gone surety. At first all went well, but in time the temptations of the city caused Luke to forget his old home and even his parents and, after disgracing the honored name of his forefathers, he was forced to flee from justice to a country beyond the seas. Perhaps the most beautiful part of the poem is Wordsworth's description of the old couple's grief and mortification and his picture of Michael by the unfinished sheep fold, where

"'Tis believed by all
That many and many a day he thither went,
And never lifted up a single stone."

is particularly touching.

"It is the touch of nature," writes Sykes, "the pathos of work unfinished, that given Michael the humble shepherd, his share in the universal heart."

A CATHOLICS VIEWS

Editor of the Review

Sir,—I have just read your editorial on "the Nicholls Monument" in your issue of yesterday. While the honesty of purpose, liberality, and higher sense of justice which it expresses are characteristic of you, and worthy of the best traditions of the Review, it is not from this standpoint that I wish to add a few observations.

As you say, the question of a memorial is a very delicate one, no one with any sense of manhood cares to speak discouragingly of an enterprise having for its object the perpetuation of the memory of any of the world's benefactors. Far be it from me to do anything that would tend, in the most remote way, to pull the wreath of laurels from the deserving brow. Mrs Nicholls' bequest was munificent; it was perhaps, according to her light, charitable; that it deserves recognition goes without saying; that the generous donor is worthy of a monument no one will deny. The only question is, How should such a monument be provided.

That there are people of all religious denominations who have, wholly apart from the tenets of their belief, a disposition towards what is called "bigotry," or "intolerance," need not be asserted need not be denied. It need not be denied, neither need it be asserted that the Catholic is not spared the humiliation. But when it concerns the poor, the weak, the feeble, the infirm, the sick, and the destitute of the race, he will have none of it. In the administration of Catholic hospitals, homes for the aged, houses of Providence, and institutions of charity we are never accused of any discrimination. The doors of such institutions must be oped on the same conditions to those of all classes, creeds and colors if the ideal of the Catholic in regard to them is to be realized. God forbid that it should be otherwise.

It is perhaps through considerations of this kind that the feelings and sentiments of Catholics are so much wounded by the bequest of the late Mrs. Nicholls, or by the interpretation given to her will by the chief administrator of her estate. The feeling is somewhat intensified perhaps by the recollection that the estate itself was built up through the successful management of a large mercantile enterprise which was generously patronized for over one-half of a century by the Catholics of this vicinity.

The argument that no one is questioned as to his religious convictions before being allowed to breathe the fresh air and enjoy the quiet restful shades of the splendid system of parks opened up under the Nicholls bequest, is hardly to the point, in spite of all your comments on the administration of the hospital founded under the same bequests, suggests to the mind of the reader some unsavory pages from a history now, happily, almost lost in the dim twilight of the past.

Nevertheless, let the good work go on, let the monument be erected by all means. If a little prudence is exercised in the choice of location, and the cost of the enterprise is borne by those who were the special objects of the tender solicitude of the testatrix when dictating her last will and testament, no old wounds will be reopened.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,
Yours,
A CATHOLIC.

PETERBORO' MAN SHOT LARGE MOOSE

Mr. L. Hall Returns After Four Months Trip to the Pacific Coast

Mr. Llewellyn Hall, returned last night after a four months' trip to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Hall left Peterborough on July 1st, travelling through the Canadian West and British Columbia, visiting all the principal towns and cities. Returning home by way of the Crow's Nest Pass, Mr. Hall visited the Rainy River district, where he spent a few days hunting and he brought home a fine souvenir of his trip. When only out a few hours he shot a large moose, the head of which is on exhibition in Mr. Hall's store. Mr. Hall states that moose are as thick up there as deer are in Peterborough county. It has horns of immense dimensions and the head is a monster.

ANNUAL MEETING HELD YESTERDAY

Local W.C.T.U. Has Had a Successful Year---Officers Elected for the Year

The city union W.C.T.U. met Friday afternoon for the election of officers, and reception of reports.

At the conclusion of the devotional exercises the president showed the advance of the temperance movement since the organization of the first society, one hundred years ago, in Saratoga, United States, the pledge being, "No Member Shall Drink Wine, gin or rum, whiskey, or any distilled spirits, except at public dinners ,under the penalty of a 25 cent fine." This year two-thirds of the population of the United States and a large portion of our Dominion are living under prohibition; every province but one having adopted local option, which has carried in three hundred and twelve municipalities in Ontario, out of four hundred and 92 with one hundred towns to vote Jan. 1st, 1909.

Even Russia has moved forward in this line of reform. A commission appointed to look into the evils of the traffic with a view to correcting them, recommended that the imperial label used on liquor bottles should be discarded as it endorses what is bad. For its place the commission recommended that each bottle be labelled with skull and cross-bones, and beneath the death signature should be printed a warning, better not use the stuff at all, if used it should be in small quantities.

We note with deep gratitude the great advance in temperance reform in our city during the year, the decision having been recorded to submit the local option by-law, January, 1910.

As W.C.T.U. women, this cause demands the earnest efforts of our hearts, and urged by all motives that can prompt the heart to prayer, the brain and hand to act, let us make the power of united Christian womenhood, tell for God and home, and native land;

"Lo! the right is about to conquer.
Clear the way!
With this right shall many more,
Enter smiling at the door,
With the giant wrong shall fall,
Many others, great and small.
That for ages long have held us.
In their prey.
Christian women, clear the way."

The treasurer's report showed a paid membership of 42 and honorary members' receipts for the year. $75.78, disbursements $63.46, leaving a creditable balance of $12.32.

Before proceeding to the election of officers, the president Mrs. Lewis tendered her resignation.

The newly elected officers are;—
Hon. President—Mrs. Kenner.
President—Mrs. Morrison.
1st Vice-Pres—Mrs. E. D. Lewis.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Of nervous prostration we hear much nowadays, and it is comforting to know that there are places specially equipped and located for combating this phase of modern life. On the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway System, at St. Catharines, Ontario, are located the ourasaline Springs, known as the "St. Catharines Well." Connected with the Springs is "The Welland," where tratments for nervous prostration, rheumatism, etc., are given by skilled attendants in charge of a resident physician.

St. Catharines is the mildest point in Canada during the winter months. For further information and particulars apply to agents G.T.R. System.

THEATRICAL

BESIDE THE BONNIE BRIER BUSH.

That fresh sweet play from the pen of Ian MacLaren, "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush," was the offering to two large Thanksgiving Day audiences at the Grand Opera House afternoon and evening. The play is so well known to Peterborough that a rehearsal of its plot is unnecessary. The cast that presented it was most acceptable, the most conspicuous member being Wm. G. Colvin as Archibald McKitterick, otherwise known as "Posty." Douglas A. Paterson was very good in the role of Lachlan Campbell, immortalized by the famous Stoddard. Alex. McKenzie was good as the staid shepherd boy. The feminine players of the company gave pleasing portrayals of their parts.

Lillie Roland and Minerva Wallace were cute and clever fairies. Sandy McPherson (James R. Muir) livened things up by his bagpipe numbers, and the Harvesters Four sang in good voice.

CURE IT IN ONE DAY

Coughs and Colds Disappear Like Magic When Hyomei is Used

If the thousands of people who suffer from hacking coughs and agonizing colds would arouse themselves sufficiently to follow this advice, they would cease to complain within 24 hours.

Here is the advice, if you take it and you are afterwards sorry that you did, it won't cost you a penny.

Go to Wm. Madill the druggist, and purchase from him a Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) outfit. It will only cost you $1.00. Take it home; use it according to directions and if it does not cure your cough or cold, take it back and he will refund the purchase price.

Mrs. I Coon, of John street, Acton, Ont says: "I had a swelling come near my eyes which was caused by the catarrhal conditions, I had to cough up the bad impurities that dropped into my throat and it felt as if a hard cold had attacked me, right in my head, nose and glands near. A week's treatment of Hyomei overcame my trouble. I am glad to endorse Hyomei."

When you use Hyomei you don't swallow nauseating drugs. You simply breathe in the soothing, pleasant and antiseptic Hyomei air through the little pocket inhaler that comes with each outfit. As this medicated air passes over the inflamed parts, relief comes almost at once and cure follows.

Hyomei is also guaranteed by Wm. Madill to cure catarrh, croup, grip and asthma. 0

RECORD EXPORTS FROM MONTREAL

Twenty Two and Half Million Bushels of Wheat Went Out in October

The exports from the port of Montreal during the month of October according to the statistics compiled by the Secretary of the Board of Trade indicate few changes from the general tendency in the month of September.

Exports of wheat, peas, barley, rye, buckwheat, butter and lard, show considerable increases over those of the corresponding month last year.

As will be noted in the figures given below, there was in October this year an increase of about 5,000 000 bushels in wheat exports. This can be readily accounted for by the fact that this year's Western crop is much heavier than last year's. The fact that the increase in wheat exports has evidenced itself so early in the autum is accounted for by the enlarged facilities for handling the western grain crop. The daily haulings of wheat this fall have broken all previous records.

Eggs continue to show an ominous decrease, the exports of October, falling short of those for the corresponding month last year by over ten thousand cases. Butter shows a slight increase, but cheese has suffered a further decline of nearly 200-000 boxes.

Cattle and dressed meat exports show slight decreases.

The following is a statement of the exports of leading commodities from this port during the past month, with comparisons with the exports of the corresponding months last year;

FORESTRY IS BEING TAUGHT

Two Canadian Universities Now Training Forest Engineers

There are few subjects of greater importance to-day in Canada than the preservation of the country's forest wealth. Never, probably, has the question been brought home to the people at large more emphatically than during the present season, marked as it unfortunately has been by a series of most destructive forest fires which have wrought so many millions of dollars' worth of damage. How to prevent such devastation in future how to preserve this great asset to the country and improve it it for future generations are questions of paramount importance. It is timely, therefore, that the study of the science and art of forestry should be encouraged and developed.

To this end a school of forestry was inaugurated a year ago in the University of Toronto under the principalship of Dr. B. E. Fernow, who is now assisted by a staff of two lecturers and one assistant.

Dr. Fernow is well equipped for his work, being a graduate of the Forest Academy at Muenden and having received additional training at the University of Koenigsberg, Germany, of which country he is a native. For twelve years (186-1898) he held the position of chief of the Division of Forestry in the United States Department of Agriculture, which he left to become head of the College of Forestry connected with Cornell University. Later, after several years passed as consulting forest engineer, he organized the forestry department of the Pennsylvania State College, leaving there last year to undertake the organization of the Faculty of Forestry at Toronto.

The University of Toronto confers the degree of Bachelor of Science (in Forestry (B.S.F.), obtainable after a four years' course, and there is a post-graduate degree of Forest Engineer (F.E). to obtain which a graduate of the forestry course must have two years' practical experience and submit an approved thesis to the faculty.

This fall the University of New Brunswick has inaugurated a four years' course in forestry, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Forestry (B.S.F.). The department has at its head Prof. R. B. Miller, M. A., M.F., a graduate of the Yale Forest School, one of the foremost schools of forestry in the United States.

A third school is about to be established in the Province of Quebec, and courses in forestry or preparatory thereto are offered in other universities and agricultural colleges.

IN SPITE OF BIG HANDICAP HOAGLAND AGAIN A WINNER

Walking Match Scheduled for Nine Hours Only Last 6 1-2 Hours—Hoagland Made Handicap of One Mile in That Time—Champion Averaged 6 1-13 Miles an Hour, Harrison 6 3-13 Miles.

The nine hour walking match between Hoagland and Harrison at the Brock street rink last night didn't go the limit. Harrison dropping out at a quarter to ten, Hoagland having gained the mile handicap he conceded the Peterborough walker at the beginning of the race. And at that there were two hours and a half to go. The men started at 2.15, walked till 5.45, retired an hour for supper, coming on again at 6.45 and walking until the time mentioned. By the facts given above, it will be seen that the match would not hav been concluded until 12.15 had it gone its full length but Hoagland gained his handicap exactly two hours and a half before time was up and Harrison was of the opinion that there was no use to continue longer, so he withdrew and the honors rested with the great American ped.

The public of Peterborough is noted for being most impartial and a worthy outside athlete always gets a large measure of appreciation and Hoagland, who is without a doubt the most popular out of town athlete who ever visited Peterborough, was accorded a great reception when he won. Harrison, who made a good walk against the champion was also roundly applauded and cheered for his showing.

From the start Hoagland set out to get away from Harrison. He knew by seeing the Peterborough man walk in Port Hope that he had an opponent who was not to be considered lightly and took no chances with him. Harrison jumped right in after the champion apparently determined to stay with the pace which, however, proved a little too hot for him, 7 miles being covered in the remarkably good time of 61 minutes. This establishes a record distance for the time in Peterborough. The second mile was done in about 8 minutes and 10 sec. and some others right up close to that time. It was evident in the afternoon that if Hoagland could keep up his speedy going the race was his, for 5.45 when the walkers adjourned for refreshments, he had made up six laps, thus having seven to make in the remaining five and a half hours. There are 13 laps to the mile on the track the men walked on.

In the afternoon Hoagland's gains were rapid, but at the re-commencement of the walk after tea, Harrison fought hard and walked in great style. His opponent however, pulled up on him and it was apparent to the spectators that accidents barred, he would quite handily make up his handicap. The audience handed him out much encouragement also recognizing the Auburn pedestrian. On a half a dozen occasions or so they became quite enthusiastic when the pair of walkers stepped along the stretch in a pretty sprint. As a rule though Harrison's gait was a fast and steady one while Hoagland walked a rapid gait all the time, varying his gait by sensational dashes. Frequently he made quite a reduction in his handicap on one of these spectacular legs.

While Harrison was defeated he did splendidly and gave the fastest exhibition of walking he has yet done in Peterborough and his performance walken, Hoagland gaining a lap dnd a half. By two hours he had obtained five and from then on pulled away steadily.

At the conclusion of the race, Harrison in a short speech, admitted Hoagland was too much for him and the latter paid a tribute to the local man's ability. Both walkers were given an attentive hearing and their remarks were warmly applauded.

Hoagland gave an exhibition sprint of a couple of laps.

Mr Dick Baker of the West End YMCA Toronto, acted as referee and judge and his work was most satisfactory. A section of the 57th Regimental Band was present during the walk.

JIM HARRISON

Averaged Over 6 Miles an Hour and is Undoubtedly One of the Best Distance Men in the Game.

does him great credit. He made 39 miles and 6 laps in the six and a half hours of walking which is 6 1-13 mile an hour while Hoagland negotiated in the same time, 40 miles and 6 laps, making his average an hour, 6 2-3 miles. About 700 saw the race during the afternoon and evening.

DETAILS OF THE RACE.

The match commenced at 2.15. Hoagland made the first lap in 45 minutes, the second in 1 hour and 15 minutes, the third in 1 hour, 31 minutes, the fourth in 1 hour 45 minutes, the 5th in 2 hours, the 6th in 2 hours 22 minutes. At 5.45 the walkers retired for tea, taking the race up again at 6.45. At 7.05 Hoagland gained his 7th lap, at 7.26 his 8th, at 7.50 his ninth, at 8.18 his tenth, at 8.53 his 11th, at 9.25 his 12th, at 9.45 his 13th and last lap.

T.C.S. PROVED TOO STRONG FOR THE P.C.I. FOURTEEN

On Saturday the Collegiate rugby team with a few supporters journeyed to Port Hope to play the TCS of that town. The boys realized from the start that they were going to be up against it, nevertheless they displayed to perfection their usual gameness and speed in a somewhat one-sided game. The Port Hope aggregation are the strongest of their class in the province and they certainly played the game for all it was worth to pile up a big score against the local boys. The ball was kicked off at 2.15 and with the wind, the College secured a big handicap from the start by repeated rushes and kicks, and at the end of the first quarter the score was 19-0.

The ball was almost entirely in P.C.I. territory for the first 15 minutes, but during the rest of the game things were a little more evenly divided and the TCS soon became aware that although they had the weight all on their side they could not teach their younger opponents anything about tackling or about the science of the game.

In the next quarter the Collegiate put up a beautiful fight to score and a splendid run to within a few yards of the line seemed to be all that was required.

Port Hope however, were equally determined that the score should remain zero for the "Petes" and used their weight to great advantage, finally succeeding in getting the ball on a fumble. In this quarter the TCS could not secure a point and at half time the score was still the same, 19-0.

In the third quarter the College were again with the wind and they set out as if determined to double their own score. Campbell, however was the only man to get over the Peterborough line with a touch and this together with Taylor's rouge, gave them 7 points more to the good.

During this quarter Gibson and Geale got in some very effective tackling. These two boys are the favorites among the Peterborough juvenile rugby enthusiasts and they certainly held their reputation good on Saturday. Drummond, the 214 pound scrimmage man tried repeated bucks and hit the PCI line every time like a ton of brick but it was no go. Gibson always got him and what he left "Sliver" Geale invariably brought down.

In the last 15 minutes the Collegiate played in their old time style and the way they bucked the big fellows all over the field was a credit to them and also to their coach, Dr. Macpherson. The College, however succeeded in getting another touch, a kick over the dead line, and 2 rouges before the whistle blew, making the final score 37-0.

It was rather a bad beating for the local boys who went in to hold the score down as much as possible but they were up against the team that Port Hope High School 88-0, St. Andrew's 29-0, Ridley College 28-7, and Upper Canada College 14-4. so when these facts are considered it must be admitted that the boys made a very creditable showing.

SECOND PLACE FOR SIMPSON IN HAMILTON HERALD RACE

Peterborough Indian 3 Minutes and 12 Seconds Behind the Winner, Hans Holmer of Halifax—A Magnificent Race Against a Large and Clever Field.

Hamilton, Nov. 9.—Through the mud and water Fred Simpson, the Peterborough Indian splashed in a good second 3 minutes and 12 seconds behind Hans Holmer, of Halifax. With such a big and fast field to compete against Simpson made a grand showing and is looked upon as one of the greatest distance men in America. He trained very faithfully for the race and his powers of speed and endurance were well developed. The redman's fine running met with pouplar approval and he was loudly cheered by the crowd as he stepped to the tape. He was accompanied by Corney Burns, manager of the Peterborough Ball Club.

Hans Holmer, who holds the one mile record, won the Herald road race, a distance of 19 miles and 168 yards, in 1 hour 56 min. and 16 sec., which is 2 min. 33 sec. behind the record of Sammy Mellor in 1904, and almost 2 minutes behind Longboat's time in 1906. Holmer was looked after by Longboat. Out of 34 who entered 20 started, and the first nine to finish were:

Hans Holmer, Halifax, in 1.51.16.
Fred Simpson, I.C.A.C., Peterborough, 1.53.28.
Harold Parsons, Neepawa, Manitoba, 1.54.23.
Tom Coley.
Charles Cook, Hamilton.
Roy H. Potter, Hamilton.
Ernie Wood, I.C.A.C., Toronto.
John Row, Toronto.
Frank Mason, Uxbridge.

Holmer finished fresh and strong and looked to be good for twice the distance. After finishing he wrenched out his mouth and pushed his way through the crowd to sit for his photograph. This was his first attempt at long distance running, and as good as 20 to 1 were laid against him, although just before the race 4 to 1 was the best that was offered.

Simpson was the first Irish Canadian to finish, and he did so in second position, the same place he got last year, though hardly in as good time by about one minute. With proper handling he might have won as five miles from the finish he was in sixth place, and appeared to be just warming up. He mowed down his opponents one by one in easy style and looked to be after Holmer's scalp.

Parson, who was third, ran unplaced in this race on a previous occasion, but this year was a strong favorite, less than even money being offered. He won the Winnipeg Telegram race.

FRED SIMPSON

Bertram Cross Winner of the Junior Five Mile Run—Time of the Senior Event Was 58 Mins. 55 Secs.

The senior and junior Examiner road races, held yesterday morning, were won by J. H. Adams, of the Collegiate Institute staff, and Bertram Cross, of the Knox Church Boys' Club. Adams' time in the ten mile run was 58 mins., 55 seconds; while Cross did the five miles in 31 mins. 7 sec.

Both events created a great deal of interest, George street all along the finish of the course, being lined with an immense throng of people. Some complaint was made that at the finish of the senior race the crowd again this year blocked the course. The people gathered so thickly around the runners that they had to run wide of the tape line and to vehicles being in the way, were compelled to run off to the side of it. The first three were pretty close together and had it not been for the above mentioned blocade, it would have been a grand finish. The course should be roped off to give the runners a good clear track.

The roads were exceedingly heavy yesterday, accounting for the time made in each event to be slower than last year. Ernie Wilson's time in the senior race, a year ago was 55 mins. 16 secs., and the time of the junior run was 29 minutes, 30 secs. With the exception of the muddy roads yesterday, the day was an ideal one for running.

The senior contestants were started from Lakefield at 10.34; Dr. A. W. McPherson, acting as starter. The judges at the finish were Messrs. C. E. Sisson, Jas. Picard and R. M. Roy.

The first four to finish in the senior event were; J. H. Adams, Charles Thorpe, Ernest Wilson and Hanlon Howard.

The first four in the juniors were; Bertram Cross, Garnet Tovey, Jimmy McMartin and Harry Nellist.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rambling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

ECHOES FROM THE COUNTRY.

Me'n maw are home again;
  We wus two weeks away.
Great snakes! what a time we had
  At the Fair Grounds every day.
We had a ride on that finnicky thing
  That swings you 'round and 'round,
Until your stomach feels, oh! so queer
  'N your heart begins to pound.

We got aboard a rickety boat,
  'N they drawed us up a hill;
Then down we went with an awful splash.
  Maw said her heart stood still.
Lan' sakes! I can't begin to tell
  You all the things we saw,
But I know I felt so nervous
  That I clung to my old maw.

You city folks have lots of things
  That we'uns never see.
But then I guess you've never been
  To a good old huskin' bee.
We husk the corn, 'n then we dance
  Upon the old barn floor.
Come out to see both me 'n maw,
  'N then I'll tell you more.

GREAT NAMES OF WEST.

Capt James Cook Is One of Canada's Forgotten Pioneers.

Many great names are associated with the Canadian West, and some of them, it is gratifying to note, are preserved in our geography—such as Vancouver, Mackenzie and Fraser. Back of these is the name of another great man of whom it is, perhaps, not too much to say that he began the work of painting the map red—a work which in our own day has been carried on by such men as Kitchener and Roberts. That man was Captain James Cook, one of Britain's greatest navigators. It is just one hundred and thirty years this summer since he coasted the western shores of what is now British Columbia, going as far north as Icy Cape on the inside of Behring Strait. Captain Cook's origin was humble enough. He was the son of a Yorkshire farm laborer and at the age of thirteen was apprenticed to a haberdasher in a small village near Whitby. But he soon escaped from behind the counter and went to sea. In 1775, the year in which began the war that led to the conquest of Canada, and the year in which the British force led by Braddock and Washington was almost annihilated by the French at the spot where Pittsburg, Pa., now stands, Cook entered the royal navy as "an able seaman," but four years later he was a master. During the next ten years he was engaged in surveying about the Lower St. Lawrence and the shores of Newfoundland, and the results of his work as embodied in his sailing directory are of value even at the present time. Then he was sent into a broader field, circumnavigated the globe, explored the South Pacific, and coasted along the western shores of British North America. That was in 1778. In the following January he took his ships to the Sandwich Islands. There a small boat belonging to one of his ships was stolen by natives and when Cook, with a small party of sailors, landed to recover it, they were set upon by natives and Cook was clubbed and stabbed to death. Part of his body was recovered and buried, and in 1874 a monument was erected where he felled.

Eugene Soper, of Vienna village, has been committed for trial at St Thomas on a charge of shooting his wife in the knee.

CHAPTER XXVII.

FEELING the way forward, the cruiser was soon caught in a maze of cross currents. Hither and thither she was borne, a creature bereft of volition. Order followed order like the rattle of quick fire and was obeyed with something more than the Wolverine's customary smartness. From the bridge Captain Parkinson himself directed his ship. His face was placid, his bearing steady and confident. This in itself was sufficient earnest that the cruiser was in ticklish case, for it was an axiom of the men who sailed under Parkinson that the calmer that nervous man grew the more cause was there for nervousness on the part of others.

The approach was from the south, but suspicious aspects of the water had fended the cruiser out and around, until now she stood prow on to a bold headland at the northwest corner of the island. Above this headland lay a dark pall of vapor. In the shifting breeze it swayed sluggishly, heavily, as if riding at anchor like a logy ship of the air. Only once did it show any marked movement.

"It's spreading out toward us," said Barnett to his fellow officers, gathered aft.

"Time to move, then," grunted Trendon.

The others looked at him inquiringly.

"About as healthful as prussic acid, those volcanic gases," explained the surgeon.

The ship edged on and inward. Presently the singsong of the leadsman sounded in measured distinctness through the silence. Then a sudden activity and bustle forward, the rattle of chains, and the Wolverine was at anchor. The captain came down from the bridge.

"What do you think, Dr. Trendon?" he asked.

More explicit inquiry was not necessary.

The surgeon understood what was in his superior's mind.

"Never can tell about volcanoes, sir," he said.

"Of course," agreed the captain. "But—well, do you recognize any of the symptoms?"

"Want me to diagnose a case of earthquake, sir?" grinned Trendon. "She might go off today or she might behave herself for a century."

"Well, it's all chance," said the other cheerfully. "The man might be alive. At any rate we must do our best on that theory. What do you make of that cloud on the peak?"

"Poisonous vapors, I suppose. Thought we'd have a chance to make sure just now. Seemed to be coming right for us. Wind's shifted it since."

"There couldn't be anything alive up there?"

"Not so much as a bug," replied the doctor positively.

"Yet I thought when the vapor lifted a bit that I saw something moving."

"When was that, sir?"

"Ten or fifteen minutes back."

"We'll see soon enough, sir," put in Forsythe. "The wind is driving it down to the south'ard."

Sullenly, reluctantly, the forbidding mass moved across the headland. All glasses were bent upon it. Without taking his binocular from his eyes Trendon began to ruminate aloud.

"If he could have got to the beach. No vapor there. Signal, though. Perhaps he hadn't time. And I'd hate to risk good men on that caldron. Just as much risk here perhaps. Only it seems"—

"There it is!" cried Forsythe. "Look! The highest point!"

Dull gray wisps of murk, the afterguard of the gaseous cloud, were twisting and spiraling in a witch dance across the landscape, and, seen by snatches and glimpses through it, something flapped darkly in the breeze. Suddenly the veil parted and fled. A flag stood forth in the sharp gust, rigid and appalling. It was black.

"The Jolly Roger, by God! They've come back!" exclaimed Forsythe.

"And set up the sign of their shop," added Barnett.

"If they stuck to their flag—goodby," observed Trendon grimly.

"Dr. Trendon," said Captain Parkinson, "you will arm yourself and go with me in the gig to make a landing."

"Yes, sir," responded the surgeon.

"Mr. Barnett."

"Yes, sir."

"Should we be overtaken by the vapor while on the highland and be unable to get back to the beach, you are to send no rescuing party up there until the air has cleared."

"But, sir, may we not"—

"Do you understand?"

"Yes, sir."

"In case of an attack you will at once send in another boat with a howitzer."

"Yes, sir."

"Dr. Trendon, will you see Mr. Slade and inquire of him the best point for landing?"

Trendon hesitated.

"I suppose it would hardly do to take him with us?" pursued the commanding officer.

"If he is roused now, even for a moment, I won't answer for the consequences, sir," said the surgeon bluntly.

"Surely you can have him point out a landing place," said the captain.

"On your responsibility," returned the other obstinately. "He's under opiate now."

"Be it so," said Captain Parkinson after a time.

Going in, they saw no sign of life along the shore. Even the birds had deserted it. For the time the volcano seemed to have pretermitted its activity. Now and again there was a spurtle of smoke from the cone, followed by subterranean growlings, but, on the whole, the conditions were reassuring.

"Penny-pop-pinwheel of a volcano, anyhow," remarked Trendon disparagingly. "Real man size eruption would have wiped the whole thing off the map first whack."

As they drew in it became apparent that they must scale the cliff from the boat. Farther to the south opened out a wide cove that suggested easy beaching, but over it hung a cloud of steam.

"Lava pouring down," said Trendon.

Fortunately at the point where the cliff looked easiest the seas ran low. Ropes had been brought. After some dainty maneuvering two of the sailors gained foothold and slung the ropes so that the remainder of the disembarkation was simple. Nor was the ascent of the cliff a harsh task. Half an hour after the landing the exploring party stood on the summit of the hill, where the black flag waved over a scene of utter desolation. The vegetation was withered to pallid rags; even the tiniest weedling in the rock crevices had been poisoned by the devastating blast.

In the midst of that deathly scene the flag seemed instinct with a sinister liveliness. Whoever had set it there had accurately chosen the highest available point on that side of the island, the spot of all others where it would make good its signal to the eye of any chance farer upon those shipless seas. For the staff a ten foot sapling, finely polished, served. A mound of rock slabs supported it firmly. Upon the cloth itself was no design. It was of a dull black, the hue of soot. Captain Parkinson, standing a few yards off, viewed it with disfavor.

"Furl that flag," he ordered.

Congdon, the cockswain of the gig, stepped forward and began to work at the fastenings. Presently he turned a grinning face to the captain, who was scanning the landscape through his glass.

"Beggin' your pardon, sir," he said.

"Well, what is it?" demanded Captain Parkinson.

"Beggin' your pardon, sir, that ain't rightly no flag. That's what you might rightly call a garment, sir. It's an undershirt, beggin' your pardon."

"Black undershirt's a new one to me," muttered Trendon.

"No, sir; it ain't rightly black. Look."

Wrenching the object from its fastenings, he flapped it violently. A cloud of sooty dust, beaten out, spread about his face. With a strangled cry the sailor cast the shirt from him and rolled in agony upon the ground.

"You fool!" cried Trendon. "Stand back, all of you."

Opening his medicine case, he bent over the racked sufferer. Presently the man sat up, pale and abashed.

"That's how poisonous volcanic gas is," said the surgeon to his commanding officer. "Only inhaled remnants of the dust too."

"An ill outlook for the man we're seeking," the captain mused.

"Dead if he's anywhere on this highland," declared Trendon. "Let's look at his flagpole."

He examined the staff. "Came from the beach," he pronounced. "Water worn. H'm! Maybe he ain't so dead either."

"I don't quite follow you, Dr. Trendon."

"Why, I guess our man has figured this thing all out. Brought this pole up from the beach to plant it here. Why? Because this was the best observation point. No good as a permanent residence, though. Planted the flag and went back."

"Why didn't we see him on the beach, then?"

"Did you notice a cave around to the north? Good refuge in case of fumes."

"It's worth trying," said the captain, putting up his glass.

"Hold on, sir! What's this? Here's something. Look here."

Trendon pointed to a small bit of wood rather neatly carved to the shape of an indicatory finger and lashed to the staff at the height of a man's face. The others clustered around.

"Oh, the devil!" cried Trendon. "It must have got twisted. It's pointing straight down."

"Strange performance," said the captain. "However, since it points that way, heave aside those rocks, men."

The first slab lifted brought to light a corner of cardboard. This on closer examination proved to be the cover of a book. The rocks rolled right and left, and as the flagstaff, deprived of its support, tottered and fell the trove was dragged forth and handed to the captain. While the ground jarred with occasional tremors and the mountain puffed forth its vaporous threats he and the surgeon, seated on a rock, gave themselves with complete absorption to the reading.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

OUTWARDLY the book accorded ill with its surroundings. In that place of desolation and death it typified the petty neatness of office processes. Properly placed it should have been found on a desk, with pens, rulers and other paraphernalia forming exact angles or parallels to it. It was a quarto, bound in marbled paper, with black leather over the hinges. No external label suggested its ownership or uses, but through one corner, blackened and formidable in its contrast to the peaceful purposes of the volume, a hole had been bored. The agency of perforation was obvious. A bullet had made it.

"Seen something of life, I reckon," said Trendon as the captain turned the volume about slowly in his hands.

"And of death," returned Captain Parkinson solemnly. "Do you know, Trendon, I almost dread to open this?"

"Pshaw!" returned the other. "What is it to us?"

He threw the cover back. Neatly lettered on the inside, in the fine and slightly angular writing characteristic of the Teutonic scholar, was the legend, "Karl Augustus Schermerhorn, 1409½ Spruce street, Philadelphia, Pa."

The opposite page was blank. Captain Parkinson turned half a dozen leaves.

"German!" he cried in a note of disappointment. "Can you read German script?"

"After a fashion," replied the other. "Let's see. Es wonnte sechs—und—dreissig unterjacke," he said. "Why, blast it, was the man running a haberdashery? What have three dozen undershirts to do with this?"

"A memorandum for outfitting probably," suggested the captain. "Try here."

"Chemical formulae," said Trendon. "Pages of 'em. The devil! Can't make a thing of it."

"Well, here's something in English."

"Good," said the other. "By combining the hypersulphate of iridium with the fumes arising from oxide of copper heated to 1000 C. and combining with picric acid in the proportions described in formula x 18, a reaction, the nature of which I have not fully determined, follows. This must be performed with extreme care owing to the unstable nature of the benzene compounds."

"Picric acid? Benzene compounds? Those are high explosives," said Captain Parkinson. "We should have Barnett go over this."

"Here's a name under the formula—Dr. A. Mardenter, Ann Arbor, Mich. That explains its being in English. Probably copied from a letter."

"This must have been one of the experiments in the valley that Slade told us of," said the captain thoughtfully. "Why, see here," he cried, with something like exultation, "that's what Dr. Schermerhorn was doing here. He has the clew to some explosive so terrific that he goes far out of the world to experiment with its manufacture. For companions he chooses a gang of cutthroats that the world would never miss in case anything went wrong. Possibly it was some trial of the finished product that started the eruption even. Do you see?"

"Don't explain enough," grunted Trendon. "Deserted ship, Billy Edwards, mysterious lights, Slade and his story—any explosives in those? Good enough far as it goes. Don't go far enough."

"It certainly leaves gaps," admitted the other.

He turned over a few more pages.

"Formulae, formulae, formulae. What's this? Here are some marginal annotations."

"Unbehasslich," read Trendon. "Let's see, that means 'highly unsatisfactory,' or words to that effect. Hi! Here's where the old man loses his temper. Listen! 'May the devil take Carroll and Crum for careless'—h'm—well, 'pig dogs.' Now, where do Carroll and Crum come in?"

"They're a firm of analytical chemists in Washington," said the captain. "When I was on the ordnance board I used to get their circulars."

"Fits in. What? More English? Worse than the German this is."

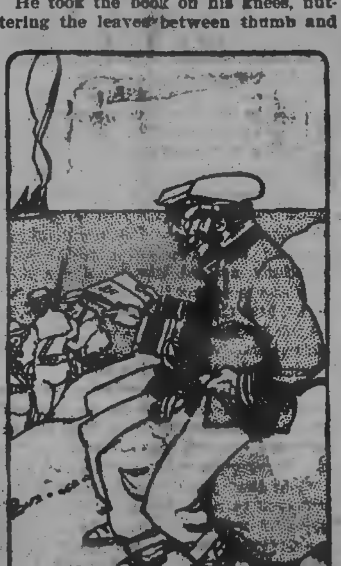
The writing, beginning evenly enough at the top of a page, ran along for a line or two, then fell, sprawling in huge, ragged characters the full length. Trendon stumbled among them indignantly.

"'June 1, 1904,'" he read. "It is done. Triumph (German word.) Eureka. Es ist gefullt. From the (can't make out that word) of the inspiration—God-like power—solution of the world problems.' Why, the old fool is crazy! And his writing is crazier. Can't make head or tail of it."

The captain turned several more pages. They were blank. "At any rate, it seems to be the end," he said.

"I should hope so," returned the other disgustedly.

He took the book on his knees, fluttering the leaves between thumb and finger. Suddenly he checked, cast back and threw the book wide open.



"Here beginneth a new chapter," said he quietly.

"Here beginneth a new chapter," said he quietly.

No imaginable chirography could have struck the eye with more of contrast to the professor's small and nervous hand. Large, rounded and rambling, it filled the page with few and careless words.

June 2, 1904.—On this date I find myself sole occupant and absolute monarch of this valuable island. This morning I was a member of a community, interesting if not precisely peaceful. Tonight I am the last leaf. "All his lovely companions are faded and gone," the sprightly Solomon, the psychic nigger, the amiable Thrackles, the cheerful Perdosa, the genial Puls and the high minded Eagen. Undoubtedly the social atmosphere has cleared; moreover, I am for the first time in my life a landed proprietor. Item, several square miles of grass land; item, several dozen head of sheep; item, a cove full of fish; item, a handsomely decorated cave; item, a sportive though somewhat unruly volcano. At times, it may be, I shall feel the lack of company. The sea gulls alone are not distrustful of me. Undoubtedly the sea gull is an estimable creature, but he leaves something to be desired in the way of companionship; hence this diary, the inevitable refuge of the empty minded. Materially I shall do well enough, though I face one tragic circumstance. My cigarette material, I find, is short. Upon counting up—

THE COMMON APPLE A GREAT SOURCE OF HEALTH

The Juice of the Ordinary Apple Is One of the Best Things in the World For Keeping the Blood Pure.

Few people there are but enjoy a ripe, juicy apple. But how many realize that it is a medicine as well as a treat?

Apple juice has a very marked effect on the kidneys, increasing their power to throw off the waste products of the body, called urea, and thus prevent Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, and similar troubles that come from poisoned blood.

Similarly, other fruits stimulate the action of the liver and bowels—others of the skin. Combined, they keep the blood pure—the body clean and healthy.

To get this effect, however, one must eat a great deal of fruit, or better, eat a little fruit and take "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" are tablets in which the juices of ripe fruits, with their medicinal value intensified, are combined with valuable tonics. They act directly on Bowels, Kidneys and Skin and put them in perfect condition — thus ensuring the thorough elimination of all waste matter and poisons from the body. Trial box 25c. Regular size 50c.—6 boxes for $2.50. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

DONNED MAN'S GARB.

Canadian Woman Found Struggle Too Had In Female Clothes.

Dressed in a dark suit and wearing a slouch hat set rakishly on a thatch of black hair, showing gray about the temples, Frank Woodhull, fifty years old and a native of Canada, walked up the broad entrance to the immigration station on Ellis Island, New York, a few days ago. An hour after he left the private room of one of the matrons in a state of agitation, shorn of the name of Frank Woodhull. The passenger was, in fact, Mary Johnson, an English-Canadian woman, who had adopted men's dress. She confessed that she had so disguised herself to have a better chance in the world and because of a moustache which nature had unfortunately bestowed on her.

Standing before the immigration officials she told a pitiable story of her life, which, she declared, had been blameless.

"My life," she said, "has always been a struggle. I come of an English-Canadian family and have had most of my fight to make all alone. Thirty years ago, when I was twenty, my father died and I was thrown entirely on my own resources. I came to this country a young girl and went west to make my way. For fifteen years I struggled on. The hair on my face was a misfortune. It was often the subject of rude jest and caused me endless embarrassment. The struggle was awful, but I had to live somehow and so I went on.

"Then came a time, fifteen years ago, when I got desperate. I had been told that I looked like a man, and I knew that in Canada some women have put on men's clothes to do men's work.

"I was in California at the time. I bought men's clothes and began to wear them. Then things changed. I had prospects. I have sold books, lightning rods and worked in stores. Most of the time I have been in California, but now I am going to New Orleans, where there are chances of employment."

ALASKA WHEAT A FAKE.

Many Experts Have Set Seal of Disapproval on It.

Alaska wheat, trailed to its lair by a farm machinery man, has been pronounced unworthy of the attention of the farmers of the northwest who may have become interested in it through its extensive advertising east and west.

A thresher manufacturing firm has received a letter from one of its northwestern representatives.

Neither traveler nor company has the slightest interest in the Alaska wheat other than that they are in the business of selling farm implements and machinery, are dependent upon farmers for patronage, and do not wish to see their patrons take up the new cereal in expectation of results that, they feel, cannot be realized.

First interest in the wheat was aroused by an article in The Saturday Evening Post some time ago by Oscar F. G. Day of Minneapolis, in which statements were made that Alaska wheat will yield up to 22 bushels to the acre and will grade No. 1 hard. The impression made by the article was that the world was on the eve of revolution with reference to food supplies. The wheat, as seed, at a fancy price, was offered by Abraham Adams of Juliaetta, Idaho, and by a local firm which had an exhibit at the fair.

Mr. Travis, in his letter, says that on one 700-acre field of this Alaska wheat, the best yield was thirty-six bushels, while club wheat in adjoining fields went forty and fifty bushels to the acre. The wheat, he says, is well known, has been known for years, has little value for flour making, and is a great deceiver.

Every milling and grain journal in the country has pronounced Alaska wheat a fake, and the Government experts from Washington have put their ban upon it. The letter from Mr. Travis to Mr. Lewellen is the indorsement of these adverse opinions by grain men.

Canadian Male Beauty.

An English paper says a Canadian won second prize in a recent Beauty contest at Folkestone. Discribing the competition the paper says:

"Folkestone Pier was crammed in every part recently to gaze on over fifty men who presented themselves as "beauties," to compete for various prizes. When the candidates presented themselves for inspection some onlookers indulged in more or less facetious remarks, but good humor always prevailed. The fact of some competitors entering at all could only be regarded as a joke, but there were several foreign aspirants for awards, including a Red Indian. There was also one veteran of over eighty, who relied largely for votes upon his flowing locks. The ladies present were supplied with voting papers, each being allowed three votes. The competitors were not allowed to derive any advantage by reason of superior dress. Each in turn had to look through a gold frame, and as the face of each appeared there was loud applause or derisive laughter.

"The first prize, a Raleigh bicycle, was won by Mr. W. Weatherhead, a Folkestone lifeboatman; the second prize went to Mr. Brant Sero, of Ontario; and the third to Mr. Whitacre, a comedian, of Manchester."

"Ontario" seems to the editor to be sufficient address for Mr. Sero.

Immigration Decreases.

The total immigration into Canada from January to August was 117,533, as compared with 216,772 for the same period last year, a decrease of 46 per cent. Immigration at ocean ports was 74,569, as compared with 175,816, showing a decrease of 99,247 for the eight months. From United States immigration was 40,964, as compared with 40,956 for the same period las year, an increase of eight persons. From April of this year until August, 342 immigrants were refused admission to Canada at ocean ports and 1,366 were refused admission from United States for the same period.

A MAGISTRATE'S EVIDENCE IN FAVOR OF ZAM-BUK

MR. PERRY J.P.

Zam-Buk wins favor wherever tried! The Magistrate whose words are quoted below tried it thoroughly and now tells the result. If you suffer from any skin disease or injury mark well his words!

The Pavilion, Gold Fields, B.C.
After a very fair trial I have proved Zam-Buk eminently satisfactory. It cured me of a skin rash of five years standing which no doctor had been able to do any good for. I do certainly encourage any person to keep Zam-Buk in their homes. It truly does more than you claim for it. Yours very truly,

Flag Upside Down

A rather peculiar incident occurred yesterday morning. The caretaker of the East City school on raising the flag in the morning hoisted it upside down and there it was flying with the coat of arms at the bottom instead of at the top. A passerby noticed it and went and took it down putting it up right, but didn't raise it quite to the top, so it looked as if it was at half mast.

LINDSAY GETS THE DISTRICT

lindsay lindsay

The YMCA team of this city were defeated in Lindsay on Saturday by 13-3 The game was a good one, and as the score would indicate the play was close. Lindsay should make a good bid for the Junior ORFU championship.

ROUGH RIDERS WON BY 3-2

Rough Riders and TASAC met in the closest kind of game on Saturday afternoon at Riverside park, the former winning by 3-2. TAS started the scoring and got the first two points. At half time it was 2-2.

Neither team scored in the third quarter. Rough Riders got the only point made in the last quarter.

All the scores were obtained on rouges. TAS worked several effective bucks at one time almost had a touch down when the time for the quarter was called.

The gmae was not rough, only a couple of penalties being inflicted by Dr. Macpherson who refereed in his usual capable way. Alex. Mulhern made a satisfactory umpire.

For the winners, Laing played a splendid game, his punting being splendid. Giroux and Porter also showed up to advantage, the former doing some neat tackling. Cahill, at full, did spectacular and effective work.

Larkin at centre half, was the star for TAS. Denoon, McGill and Fitzgerald, also played well.

The teams;

TASAC—Full, Mallory; halves, Larkin, Galvin, Denoon; quarter, Fitzgerald; scrimmage, Coughlin, Collins, O'Brien; wings, Henry, Foley, Kenneally, Cranfield, Hayes, McGill.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO

What Booth's Kidney Pills are Doing for Peterborough People.

All the blood in the body passes through the Kidneys every three minutes.

The Kidneys filter the blood.

They work night and day to daily remove about 500 grains of impure matter. If they fail, some part of this impure matter is left in the blood, bringing on pain in the back, headache, dizziness, irregular heart, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gravel, dropsy, deposits in the urine. Booth's Kidney Pills make the filtering right and overcome Kidney trouble. Hundreds of Peterborough County residents have found this out.

Mrs. John Wallace, of 323 Water street, Peterborough, Ont., says: "I had suffered with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble for over two years and could find nothing that would benefit my condition. My back was weak and a dull, heavy pain settled across the small of it extending to my kidneys and into my sides and shoulders. I could not sleep at nights as the kidney secretions were so frequent and irregular that I would have to leave my bed a number of times. I was dizzy and weak and would usually awake with a dull headache. Booth's Kidney Pills produced at McDermid & Jury's Drug Store cured me when all else failed. I am stronger and feel better generally. I can conscientiously recommend Booth's Kidney Pills and I would not be without a box in the house.

C. P. R. Baggage.

The magnitude of the baggage department of a big railway, as well as the many curious items it covers, was well illustrated by a statement recently issued by the baggage officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway, showing their business for the past year. Seven million six hundred and thirty thousand one hundred and thirty-nine pieces of baggage were handled during the year. This is an increase of 1,305,008 pieces over the record of last year. For this service the company received excess baggage charges, storage charges, special delivery, etc., amounting to $339,178. It was noticeable in the report that there were large increases in every line of baggage business except bicycles, showing that the passenger business has not suffered anything like the decline that has marked the goods department of railroad work during the past six months. During the year the C.P.R. baggage department handled 16,003 bicycles, 12,427 dogs, and 8,153 baby carriages among other matters. The bicycle traffic dropped by over a thousand from the previous year, everything else, however, showing an increase, dogs going up from 11,198 to 12,427, and baby carriages almost doubling in number.

If some men were compelled to pay as they go they would stay.

ROBERT FULTON AS A LAD.

Incidents Illustrating the Young Man's Interest in Mechanics.

There are several anecdotes which relate to Robert Fulton's early interest in mechanics—the first steps of progress toward his later skill. In 1773, when he was eight years old, his mother, having previously taught him to read and write, sent him to a school kept by Mr. Caleb Johnson, a Quaker gentleman of pronounced Tory principles—so pronounced, in fact, that he narrowly escaped with his life during the Revolution. But Robert Fulton did not care for books, and he began at a very early age to search for problems never mastered and bound in print. This greatly distressed the Quaker teacher, who spared not the rod, and it is said that in administering such discipline on the hand of Robert Fulton he one day testily exclaimed, "There, that will make you do something!" to which Robert, with folded arms, replied, "Sir, I came to have something beaten into my brains and not into my knuckles." Without doubt he was a trial to his teacher.

He entered school one day very late, and when the master inquired the reason Robert, with frank interest, replied that he had been at Nicholas Miller's shop pounding out lead for a pencil. "It is the very best I ever had, sir," he affirmed as he displayed his product. The master, after an examination of the pencil, pronounced it excellent. When Robert's mother, who had been distressed by his lack of application to his studies, expressed to his teacher her pleasure at signs of improvement the latter confided to her that Robert had said to him, "My head is so full of original notions that there is no vacant chamber to stow away the contents of dusty books."

These incidents to the contrary, it is nevertheless true that Robert Fulton did absorb a good knowledge of the rudiments of education.—Century Magazine.

THE TRAPPED THIEF.

A Midnight Adventure With South American Desperadoes.

In describing certain experiences among the outlaws and desperadoes of South America an English traveler tells the following grisly story:

"One night a farmer was roused from sleep by hearing unusual and stealthy noises about the place. He got quietly out of bed and, after listening attentively, discovered that some people outside were cutting a hole through the door close to the bolt by which it was held.

"It did not require any great amount of detective talent to guess the object of the operation, and the best way to foil it was suggested by a thong of rawhide with a loop on it which hung from a hook on the inside of the door. Noiselessly removing the thong, he slipped the end of it through the loop, and there he stood armed with an impromptu lasso, ready for action.

"It was an anxious time while the farmer stood watching the hole in the door grow larger and larger until at last it was of sufficient size to effect the purpose for which it was made.

"The supreme moment arrived, and a hand was stealthily inserted not only through the hole, but also through the loop of the little lasso which hung skillfully around it. With a sudden jerk the loop was tightened around the wrist and the hand dragged in as far as the aperture would allow, while the thong was securely fastened to the hook on the back of the door.

"The robber was perfectly helpless. His companions came to his aid and, having ineffectually dragged at the imprisoned arm till they were tired, gave up the struggle and prepared to depart.

"But they were prudent men, and it occurred to them to save himself their companion might betray them. Dead men, they thought, tell no tales, so they killed him."—New York Mail.

A Maharajah's Revenge.

A maharanee of Nepaul committed suicide in horror at the disfigurement which an attack of smallpox had caused in her features. The maharajah, who was passionately attached to her, first wreaked his vengeance on the physicians who had attended her in her illness. Then he flew at higher game. Out of the great temple he brought the idols, placed loaded cannon before them and bade gunners fire. In terror at the proposed blasphemy, they refused. Thereupon the maharajah hanged several of them. The survivors then submitted, and the guns were fired and the idols blown to pieces.—Leipsic Missionsblatt.

The Coveted Hand.

The young man had gone to the heiress' father—always a ticklish job—but he took his courage with an iron grip.

"Sir," he blurted out, "I want to ask you for your daughter's hand."

The old man, not in the least disconcerted, said:

"Which hand? The one she signs checks with, I suppose?"

Hit Him Hard.

"I presume," said the lodger icily at the conclusion of the little dispute with his landlady—"I presume that you will allow me to take my belongings away with me?"

"I am sorry," was the icy reply, "but your other collar has not yet come home from the laundry."—Kansas City Independent.

The Way He Lost.

The McSkinner—Twa shillin' to gang to Holborn! Nay, nay. But—weel, I'll toss ye, double or quits. Sporting Cabby—Well, I'm goin' that way any'ow, so 'ere goes! 'Eads! The McSkinner—Heads? Weel, ye've won. So I'll jist hae to walk!—Punch.

Harold Patterson, shot at Longueuil, was "murdered by some person unknown," the coroner's jury found.

HOUSE WORK

Thousands of American women in our homes are daily sacrificing their lives to duty.

In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo. A female weakness or displacement is often brought on and they suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these faithful women that comes as a boon and a blessing, as it did to Mrs. W. Barrett, of 602 Moreau St., Montreal, who writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

"For years I was a great sufferer from female weakness, and despite every remedy given me by doctors for this trouble, I grew worse.

"One day a friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and am thankful to say that it made me strong and well."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Advice From a Victorian.

"Try H—" is the pithy and rather profane suggestion which possibly some indignant and certainly some sarcastic resident of Victoria, B.C., has appended to the Englishman's intimation that this climate was not quite hot enough to suit him, in the register of the Tourist Association. "Would it were hotter," was his reflection, which was probably excited by the prior memorandum of a gentleman from Greenwood, B.C., who wrote in the visitors' book of the Tourist Association, "Glad I am in a warmer climate."

REVOLUTIONISTS KILLED DETECTIVES IN THE STREET

Calcutta, Nov. 11.—The City of Calcutta is terrorized by an outbreak of political crimes.

The daring but unsuccessful attempt made three days ago on the life of Sir Andrew H. L. Fraser, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, was followed by a murder Monday evening. A Bengali detective who had been active in trailing the revolutionists was shot down on a crowded street by three men.

The people fear to give information concerning the criminals lest vengeance be visited upon them. The police are powerless. One of the two natives who was found guilty of murdering a man named Gossans last summer was hanged yesterday. All the police reserves of the city have been ordered on duty to prevent sympathetic demonstrations.

In the course of a trial at Midnapur, Bengal, in connection with a discovery of arms and explosives, a police informer testified that one of the accused had told him that many cases of rifles and revolvers had been shipped from America to Bombay under the guise of sewing machines and cotton goods.

TELLER IN JAIL NOW

And Will Have to Face Trial.

D. C. McCallum of the Farmers' Bank, in Serious Trouble—Will Likely Plead Guilty.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Donald Cameron McCallum was handed over to Detective Harry Twigg by Superintendent W. H. Welsh of the Canadian Detective Bureau at his office yesterday afternoon. He was locked up on a warrant sworn out by Charles R. Hill, manager of the head office of the Farmers' Bank, charging him with theft of $16,495. Of this sum $5,083 has been recovered in undisposed assets of McCallum.

The loss of the balance, $11,412, will fall upon the Fidelity Guarantee Co.

It was stated last night by one who has been on the inside track from the start, that no one else is implicated in the confession made by McCallum, but that any help he received in working his schemes was innocently given in the regular course of bank business.

McCallum will appear in the Police Court this morning, and, should his counsel arrive from Owen Sound, will likely plead guilty without further delay.

Bank officials say that their action in taking out the warrant was not hurried by the crown, but was intended from the start.

No effort was made last night to secure bail.

INTHON BIBLE CLASS

The Inthons gathered as usual in the George street church parlor on Sunday afternoon.

A report on the convention held in Orillia some time ago, by the teacher, Rev. E. A. Pearson, and a report on the thousand men banquet held in Toronto last Tuesday night, by Assistant Secretary Briggs, were given in place of the regular lesson.

At the close of the lesson Mr. C. C. Robinson, secretary of the State of Maine, for the Y.M.C.A., addressed the school. Mr. Robinson is a splendid speaker.

After the regular friendly handshake the Inthons dismissed. Some of the fellows went to the Conservatory of Music and will give a report on the splendid addresses they heard.

Mr. F. A. Sisson, the class artist, had a very pretty design, illustrating the lesson on the black-board.

Let's see you with us next Sunday.—Com.

Delegates from Constantinople have been chosen for the new Turkish Parliament.

THE KAISER IS UNDEFENDED AND GENERALLY CONDEMNED

He Finds no Friendly Voice in His Own Reichstag—Members of Every Shade of Politics Unite to Condemn Emperor of Germany for His Indiscreet Interview.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Emperor William never has been so severely judged by his Parliament as he was yesterday during the debate in the Reichstag on the interpellations concerning the conversations published with the permission of the Emperor in The London Daily Telegraph on Oct. 28.

The criticisms of His Majesty's court, his Ministers, and His Majesty's treatment of the constitution, as well as of his freedom of speech, went to lengths that astonished observers acquainted with the traditional caution of the Chamber in dealing with the personality of the sovereign. And the Emperor seemed to have no defenders.

Chancellor Von Buelow made an address lasting fifteen minutes, but he lacked his usual spirit and a person high in his confidence is authority for the statement that he had also told the Emperor that neither himself nor his successors could remain in office unless His Majesty was more reserved.

The House received Von Buelow's explanation in icy silence. The Conservatives, representing largely the landed nobility, were almost as relentless as the Socialists, the Radicals, and the National-Liberals, and yesterday's proceedings are regarded by the extreme Liberals as the beginning of a long contest between the crown and Parliament, that may end in Germany having a ministry responsible to Parliament and not to the crown alone.

Prince Von Buelow spoke earnestly in reply to the criticism of the Government and the Emperor. He said, in part:

"I must weigh my words because of the effect they will have abroad. I do not wish to add fresh prejudice to the damage already caused by the publication in The Daily Telegraph. I assume that the details given therein are not all correct, and I am certain that the story about a detailed plan of campaign to end the Boer War is not right. This plan consisted merely of some academic ideas concerning the conduct of war in general, which the Emperor conveyed to Queen Victoria in the course of their correspondence, and it was without practical significance for the operations then going on or for the end of the war.

"The recognition by His Majesty of the unjustified misunderstanding of his utterances that the reference to Great Britain and the excitement and regret aroused thereby in Germany will, I am convinced, lead the Emperor in future private conversations to exercise that reserve which in the interest of a uniform policy and the authority of the crown is indispensable. If this proves not to be so, neither I nor any one of my successors could take the responsibility. I accepted the blame for the publication of the article in The Daily Telegraph and offered my resignation, and it was the most difficult task in my political life to resolve to remain in office. How long I will continue I do not know, but I consider it my duty at this difficult period to continue to serve the Emperor and the nation."

Herr Von Heidebrandt and Prince Hatzfeldt, Conservatives, and Baron Von Hertling, a member of the Centre party, took part in the debate and energetically protested against the personal element being injected into foreign politics.

Herr Liebermann Von Sonnenberg, the agrarian and anti-semite, surprised the House by the vehemence of his utterances. He declared that the monarchists, with heavy hearts, found themselves compelled to protest firmly against the Emperor's statements. The nation's confidence, he said, has sunk to zero.

"We do not believe," he continued, "that the chancellor can take the responsibility, or that the future will bring any real improvement. The improvement will last only until the next time. Evidence exists that there is further material in foreign hands for use when the occasion calls."

The House adjourned to meet today, and when the chancellor departed the crowds outside the doors heard and hooted him.

TWO LADIES CHASED BY AN UNKNOWN YOUNG MAN

Two Ashburnham young ladies were accosted last evening while returning from the city, by some one unknown fellow, who persisted in following them to their homes. It was about six o'clock in the evening. The streets were quite dark, but there were many persons going from their work and on this account the ladies did not feel alarmed. However, the thug walked along a few steps behind them, making insulting remarks to them.

The women stepped into a store in the hope that their pursuer would continue on his way and they would lose him. But it was not so. When they came out he was there waiting for them and pursued them right to the house.

The residents of Ashburnham would like to have a policeman on duty at night, over there, and thus prevent such behaviour on the part of some young men.

The revenue from this source last year was $5,202.45, there being a slight increase during this year.

COLLECTION WAS RARE ONE

Valuable Plants Disposed of by a Peterborough Man

Probably the finest collection of cactus plants in Canada was shipped from Peterborough to the Cataraqui Cemetery Company, near Kingston, Ont. They were sold to the cemetery company by Mr. J. H. Callendar, of Hunter street, Ashburnham. The collection contained many valuable plants, the collection being made up of specimens secured from all parts of the tropical world. Mr. Callendar was forced to sell the collection on account of being unable to secure a house in Peterborough with a suitable conservatory.

The Cemetery Company will use the plants in connection with the burying ground.

PULLING OUT LOGS

From Bed of Otonabee River

Above the Waterworks Dam—Have the "Stamp" of by Gone Days.

Men are at work pulling logs out of the bottom of the Otonabee river above the waterworks dam getting them high and dry on the Douro shore The logs, many of them at least, have been lying in the river for years, but could not be secured before as they were always under water. It is different at present, however, as the low condition of the water makes it a comparatively easy matter to sight the logs and get them up on the bank with the aid of a horse and a rope.

Pine, basswood, ash, oak logs are being secured. The majority of them are in good preservation and some of them are being cut up into fire wood.

Some of the logs have been lying in the river for many years as the "brands" upon some of them have not been in use for a long time. Some of the stamps are "33," PL," and "EZ."

The Review was informed that basswood logs which have been in the water for a long time are of no value for canoe building purposes.

Dr. Stratton has recently returned from a trip to the Old Country, where he was entertained by Prof. E. W. Maunder, professor of solar physics at Greenwich observatory. Dr. Stratton learned and saw many interesting things at the big observatory and will deal with them in his paper before the local astronomers. It is being looked forward to with much interest.

The public are cordially invited to the meeting. There will be no admission fee.

FAST TIME MADE DIGGING TRENCH

A record for digging trenches was established the past week by the Water Commissioners, who have a gang at work on the Patterson street line. The main is 1,900 feet long, and will average a depth of about 5 1-2 feet. Thirty men were put to work and they threw the dirt out on the whole distance in three days. This is a record which it will be hard to beat. The commissioners are rushing this job so as to get it completed before there is too much danger from frost. The sewer has also to be laid on Patterson street, and it was hoped that it would be done this fall, too.

THE EVIDENCE IS STARTLING

Quebec, Nov. 10.—The investigation into the management of the Quebec agency of the Marine and Fisheries Department was resumed this morning at the criminal chamber of the Quebec Court House, in the presence of a large number of spectators, which included Quebec's prominent citizens. The evidence adduced today was startling in the extreme, and at times the amount of moneys recounted by the witnesses to the former agent of the department, Mr. J. U. Gregory, fairly amazed the listeners.—The Toronto Globe.

THE REVELATIONS CONTINUE IN THE MARINE INQUIRY

A. Davie of Davie Wrecking Co., Says He Gave Gregory $500 a Year for Eleven Years—Several Others Testify to Giving the Five Per Cent. Graft.

Quebec, Nov. 11.—The investigation into the management of the Quebec agency of the Marine and Fisheries Department was resumed yesterday morning at the criminal chamber of the Quebec Court House in the presence of a large number of spectators, which included Quebec's prominent citizens. The evidence adduced yesterday was startling in the extreme, and at times the amount of moneys recounted by the witnesses to the former agent of the Department, Mr. J. U. Gregory, fairly amazed the listeners. One of the witnesses, Mr. A. Davie, a member of the Davie shipwrecking firm, deposed that he paid to Mr. Gregory $5,500 in installments of $500 per annum during the past eleven years, and in addition gave him another $400 to proceed to New York with on a matter of private business.

Yesterday afternoon several witnesses admitted paying the former Government agent five per cent. on the amount of their accounts with the Department, and Mr. H. C. Schmidt, inspector of Government steamboats, admitted receiving money to the amount of $1,000 from the firm of F. X. Drolet, foundrymen and machinists. Judging from rumors, the worst features of the immoral transactions have not yet been fully elucidated.

The first witness examined when the court convened yesterday morning was Mr. James Holliday of Holliday Bros., steamship owners, who have had their steamer Aranmore under hire with the Marine and Fisheries Department for the last three years. He was not detained long in the witness box. He deposed that he had done business with the Department amounting to $45,000 in three years. Mr. Watson expects to elicit startling information from this witness later when he produces his books and papers.

A WOMAN HURLS DYNAMITE AN ATTEMPT TO BLACKMAIL

Denver, Colo., Nov. 11.—Mrs. Genevieve Chandler Phipps, divorced wife of Lawrence Phipps, a Pittsburg millionaire, narrowly escaped death by dynamite at the hands of a woman, who for two days had haunted the Phipps' home and had at last got hold of Mrs. Phipps and demanded $30,000 under penalty of death, immediate and horrible.

She was identified yesterday as Mrs. Allen Reed, the wife of a druggist of this city. Mrs. Reed returned recently from Springfield, Mass., whither she had gone to attend the funeral of her father, whose name has not yet been learned. She is believed to be insane.

When foiled in her attempt the woman cast dynamite at detectives from Mrs. Phipps' automobile, in which she had forced her intended victim to drive her to a bank to procure the money. An explosion was prevented because the dynamite struck a cushion of the automobile. The woman was quickly placed under control.

The woman persistently refused to give her name, and insisted that she was under the influence of a hypnotist and that this explained her attempt to blackmail Mrs. Phipps.

BOUND HIM OVER TO KEEP THE PEACE

Well Known Resident in Police Court for Ill-Treating His Wife

A well known resident of this city was bound over to keep the peace for one year, at the police court this morning, he having to give bonds for $400, two sureties of two hundred dollars. He was charged with ill-treating and abusing his wife. Mr A. P. Poussette appeared on behalf of the defendant and pleaded not guilty.

The accused's wife and sister told of how the prisoner had continuously during the past three weeks come home intoxicated and by his ugly disposition terrorized his family and made life for them very disagreeable.

The wife stated that she was afraid of her husband, he having last night caught her by the throat and choked her, leaving her neck swollen and very sore.

His worship bound the accused over to keep the peace, he having to remain in gaol until the sureties were procured.

KINGSTON PRESS ENTHUSIASTIC

About the Fine Work of the Cameron Opera Company—A Splendid Organization

Large audiences attended the production of "Little Dolly Dimples," at the Grand Opera House on Monday afternoon and evening. The Cameron Opera Company is forty strong, and is presenting some excellent musical comedies. This company is headed by Daisy Cameron and Harry Bewley, who hold a high rank in comic roles. Miss Cameron as "Dolly Dimples" was more than adequate to her difficult part, and made things hum. She sang "The Naughty Kid Song," in her own inimitable way. "Good Bye, Old Home," she rendered most effectively. Harry Bewley put abundance of life into his role of "Hiram," and showed himself ot be a crackerjack of a comedian. He reeled off comic songs by the yard, for the gallery quickly became very much in love with him. His "Parodies," was very much enjoyed. Phoebe Cardownie made a capable "Aunt Matilda Green."

Features of the performance were the Hungarian and Russian dances by Emma King, throat whistling by Eva W. Speer, and the Shubert string quartette, consisting of Messrs. Clidence, Honk, Powell and Reed. All of these are artists in their presentations and received hearty applause.

The whole support was good. A strong and well-balanced chorus gives strength to the company. The chorus girls have unusually good voices. A better costumed company has not been seen here in a long time. The staging was very fine.

The company will be here for two more days. This evening it will produce another excellent musical play entitled "Mlle Julie," and on Wednesday evening "The Hindoo" will be given. The people have a chance to see fine musical comedies presented at half the prices charged by companies playing one night stands.—Kingston Whig.

STEAMER WRECKED

And Five Met Their Death.

Boiler Blew up While Boat Was Approaching Landing Near Mattawa.

North Bay, Nov. 11.—A terrible disaster occurred between 5 and 6 o'clock last evening on Lake Temiskaming, accompanied by loss of life and injuries.

The steamer Temiskaming of the Temiskaming Navigation Co. was approaching Temiskaming landing on her regular trip from New Liskeard with passengers and freight when, without any warning, her boiler exploded, wrecking the steamer and throwing the passengers and crew into a panic, several being cast into the lake by the sudden shock.

Details are lacking, owing to the remoteness of the scene, Temiskaming Landing being on a branch of the C.P.R. running north from Mattawa.

Five met death from the explosion and drowning, while many are injured.

A special train left Mattawa to bring the injured to that place for treatment.

So far the casualty list includes: McBride and Hunter from the United States, missing; J. Menard, fireman.

The dead: Fireman Bergounhan.

McBride is supposed to be drowned. Two men, names unknown, will likely die. Six are badly burned.

His latest effort is a step higher in architecture and he has just completed a model store and dwelling on the corner of Park and Sherbrooke streets, that has more good features crowded into its four walls than will often be found in many much larger and more pretentious premises.

The store has a large open front of three big plate glass sections, and its fittings throughout are modern in every way. WOMANHOOD SUFFRAGE

To say something anent this perplexing question is not by any means to be forehanded in that particular. Christabel Pankhurst is the Moses of the new movement but then if our early training serves us right, Moses did not reach the promised land. The arguments against woman's suffrage are understood to be biblical or scriptural. Of these we do not pretend to speak. If women are not forbidden by God to receive and exercise the franchise, then we may to grant them their rights in this regard. The old idea that woman is not man's equal needs qualifying. If she is not his equal it is, we fear, because she is his superior, not otherwise. Women may have less conscience than men sometimes, or rather some women may have less conscience than some men (we doubt it) but some men also have less conscience than some women and some women have more conscience than most men. We embrace the new proposal and all that it includes heartily. The movement has lagged. Women themselves did not understand it. Like those long immured, they did not realise what the light meant. If they are qualified to exercise the franchise which they at present exercise, why not then, to a greater degree. If in the concerns of a municipality they are fit and qualified to act on a par with the worst men in that municipality, why not in Parliamentary elections? That they are so lucky as to be married is not sufficient to debar them from greater good fortune. The idea that husband and wife might quarrel over it presumes that they do not quarrel now or that they have the same ideas on everything but this. It is true that we are accustomed to regard women as children of a slightly larger growth, but they won't have it that way any more. What are we going to do about it?

MUCK RAKING

The Laurier Government will be made the target of further GTP. demands. The cost to Canada of the road from Winnipeg to Moncton is increased by many millions over the estimate given to the country in 1904. The same course will be pursued by the GTP. management for the rest of the road. There will be a "revision of the contract," a wholly improper and unjustifiable position to take. All signs past and present point that way. It will be a contemplated capitulation to the capitalists, the greatest swindle perpetrated upon Canada since Confederation and that is saying a good deal. The lid is now off in the "departmental inquiry" business. The conspirators' cavern appears in all its hitherto undiscoverable horror. What has taken place at Quebec will take place at many another where. Yet there are some people fatuous enough to lament the efforts which finally resulted in discovery. Such people are callous or crooked one or the other. Their inability to rise to the occasion is due to a seared conscience not to a sensitive one. Contempt for the muckraker is old. It began in the days of Jeremiah. His diatribes against wickedness were looked upon with less than pity. Christ Himself was rejected of men because He was a muckraker. Muckrakers are regarded with a shudder but it is wholly because of the muck and at whose door does that fault lie? We need not a little, but a good deal of wholesome oldfashioned commonsense in Canada. There are too many fads. Under the so-called "benign influences," business integrity is on the wane. Bank presidents break their trusts in an increasing proportion, sport is the subject of suspicion—in fact we can assure the clergy that even many of them are looked upon as fakes and it is largely their own fault. They have contributed as Dr. Symonds of Montreal is now contributing a lot of "optimism," which is simply an inability to see what is in the forefront of nearly every proceeding in Canada. We do not refer to Peterborough. In Peterborough we have, we may be allowed to say, a very able and sincere body of clergymen. Perhaps we would be justified in saying that almost, if not quite all attend strictly to the work of saving souls and of caring for those who will not enter the fold. They shun "advertising" the well known poster badge of modern moral, mental and kindred weaknesses. Above all things they revere and practise reverence for the holy, purity of ideals and quiet firmness of purpose. It is not of these that we have ventured to speak. But the betterment of conditions is not secured by lamenting. Take stock and move forward is an old and valued maxim. Let us give up theorizing and look at things as they are as Kipling says, lest we become the victims of a universal lie. Recent events in Peterborough have fairly amazed the onlooker. A complete disregard of the most elementary qualities of honor has secured the prompt co-operation of the like-minded. Hypocrisy has been pushed to its farthest limit. It is possible that even the names of some of those most concerned will excite surprise. Certainly their conduct will. But some people regard it as a fashion to be followed and even gloried in. What people!

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Taft has often said he was willing that women should have the full vote, if they wanted it, and now the National Women's Suffrage Association are planning a monster petition to ask him for it.

A Fifeshire golfer happened to be caught by his minister at a time when the latter thought he was most likely to be by the bedside of his sick mother. Naturally conjecturing some improvement in the invalid's condition, the clergyman interrupted him in his game with the remark: "And how's your mother to-day, John?" "She's no' verra weel, but we're fower doon wi' five tae play, and that's faur waur!" was the staggering response.

Hereditary titles are without reasonable excuse at any time in Canada. That a great man should receive a title is simply the marking off by a nation of its great men, as examples. But that a fool should receive a title is not reasonable, which while it may be arguing in a circle is, nevertheless, true enough. At the same time we should be careful that our great men do not, as some have done, abroad, buy their way to greatness. That is both the danger and the farce of this fatuous age. Yet even that has its merits for even the silliest of title worshippers, who by the way, are usually those who have farthest to climb, must in time recognize that a title that is not deserved is a badge of dishonor.

RECOMMENDS THIS HOME MIXTURE

Noted Authority Gives Simple Remedy for Kidney and Bladder Trouble

This is a simple home recipe now being made known in all the larger cities through the newspapers. It is intended to check the many cases of rheumatism, bladder and kidney trouble which have made so many cripples and invalids and weaklings of some of our brightest and strongest people.

The druggists here have been notified to supply themselves with the ingredients, and the sufferer will have no trouble to obtain them. The prescription is as follows: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; and Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Recent experiments prove this simple mixture effective in rheumatism, because of its positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It compels these most vital organs to filter from the blood and system the waste impurities and uric acid which are the cause of rheumatism. It cleanses the kidneys strengthens them and removes quickly such symptoms as backache, blood disorders, bladder weakness, frequent urination, painful scalding and discolored urine. It acts as a powerful stimulant to the entire kidney and bladder structure.

Those who suffer and are accustomed to purchase a bottle of medicine should not let a little inconvenience interfere with making this up.

Kitty, Sam and the Peacemaker.

By COLIN S. COLLINS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

When it has been "Sam" and "Kitty" from babyhood it is rather difficult to pass suddenly to the "Mr. Hastings" and "Miss Norwood" stage. Both Sam and Kitty felt the strain, though each took mental obligation to do nothing that in any way might be construed into an overture of friendship.

It had all started innocently enough. Kitty on her way to the postoffice encountered Jim Saunders. She regarded Saunders as a persistent pest, but she could not very well refuse his suggestion that they stop in at the drug store and have a glass of soda.

Then it happened that they turned into Belding street in animated conversation, and Sam could not know they had met just around the corner.

Of all the summer visitors to Auburnville Sam disliked Saunders the most, and Kitty knew it. It looked to him as though she had deliberately accepted Saunders' attentions to punish him for a trivial quarrel of the night before.

Kitty was just finishing the last tiny lump of ice cream from the bottom of the tall glass when Sam entered the store with Belle Paulding, Kitty's dearest enemy.

He had bowed stiffly in salutation, and Kitty had responded with a "Good morning, Mr. Hastings," emphasizing the name as sweetly and as coldly as the frozen delicacy she had just consumed.

That had been the start of the trouble, but the end had been slow in coming. That afternoon Kitty went motoring with Saunders, though she hated motor cars, and Belle went buggy riding with Sam to punish Saunders for his imagined disloyalty.

Saunders and Miss Paulding had quickly patched their quarrel up, but Kitty was unyielding, and there was a squareness to Sam's chin that did not argue in favor of pliability of personality.

With ceremonious politeness each strove to show the other how little it mattered, but Kitty cried herself to sleep night after night, and Sam swore softly, but fervently, at what he was pleased to term the foolishness of womankind.

So matters stood when the excursion of the Auburnville cornet band was announced. The boys needed new uniforms, and Dick Potts had promised to learn the euphonium if they would buy him one.

All public spirited citizens purchased tickets. Sam bought two through force of habit and then viciously tore them up, whereby the band profited another 50 cents, for Sam was determined to go on that excursion if only to show that he could go without Kitty.

He had never gone on an excursion alone save once, when Kitty was spending a week with her aunt over in Cadyville, and he had had a miserable time. Now he did not look for enjoyment, but Kitty needn't think he could not go alone if he wanted to.

Much the same sentiment animated Kitty, though she arranged to go with a married sister, and it so happened that they passed over the gangplank together, with the formal greeting that was now customary.

The picnic was held on Paddle island, out in the lake, a favorite picnic ground. A narrow strip of land connected two rough oval extremities that by an abuse of the imagination might be said to resemble a paddle. Bobby Seaton, who was in the primary class, aptly, if improperly, described it as "a peninsula with an island at each end."

As soon as lunch was disposed of the elders settled themselves near the baskets, while the young folk wandered off to either end of the island, followed by a fusillade of injunctions to hurry back the moment the first whistle sounded.

Sam and Kitty followed suit, but Sam made certain that Kitty was headed for the southern blade of the paddle before he started north. It was dreary work sitting all alone on the point, and presently the fresh air and the soft bed of pine needles combined to bring sleep to the worried brain.

It seemed to Sam that he had enjoyed only a brief nap, but by the time he had hunted up the cabin some of the boys had built for use in the duck season and had borrowed the bathing trunks he found there he was in the cool water a few minutes when the warning whistle blew.

Madly he dashed from the water into the hut to find that in that brief interval some one had "chawed" his clothes. His underwear was as full of knots as a snake that had been lunching off a full set of pool balls, his trousers were tied into a true lover's knot that suggested anything but sentiment, and the laces of his shoes offered a good ten minutes of unpicking. Sam was still surveying the damage when the second whistle sounded.

"Blow, durn ye!" he cried savagely as he attacked the knots. "If you can't wait for a fellow I'll swim for it. I'm not goin' to make my dee-bu in this."

He cast a glance of scorn at the infinitesimal swimming trunks and attacked the knots with a haste that verified the old adage as to speed. The boat was a good half mile from shore as he burst through the bushes that grew about the rude landing and shook his fist at the departing steamer.

He was still expressing his opinion of things when there was a rustle in the bushes, and Sam turned to face Kitty, who walked with a limp and carried a stick in her hand.

"Has the boat gone?" she cried in despair. "I started up so quickly that I wrenched my ankle. I called for help, but no one seemed to hear."

"I was at the other end of the island," explained Sam, who seemed to think that the reproach was directed against him. "I took a nap and didn't realize how long I slept. I took a swim after that, and some kids 'chawed' my clothes. I just got here myself. They'll miss us at the dock and send back for us. Can I fix your ankle?"

"I'm afraid I shall have to ask your assistance, Mr. Hastings," said Kitty, suddenly mindful of the fact that she was speaking to Sam.

He helped her to a rock and carefully cut away the shoe. Then with the sleeves of his shirt he improvised a bandage that brought relief and noted with satisfaction that the sprain seemed to be slight, since there was little swelling.

"That will have to do until we can get to town," he said as he rose to his feet. "Does it feel any easier, Miss Norwood?"

"Very much, thank you, Mr. Hastings."

Sam gritted his teeth and mentally assured himself that when a fellow takes the trouble to bind up a girl's ankle and sacrifices his very newest and handsomest shirt for a bandage the least she might do would be to call him "Sam," as of old. He moved stiffly away and took a seat on a bowlder behind her. If she was lonesome she could call him.

But Kitty, though she was dreadfully lonesome and a little bit afraid, was too proud to call. Even the faint scent of tobacco that now and then drifted past her on some vagrant breeze was comforting, since it was an indication of Sam's presence, but she would not speak.

Sam gloomily regarded her eloquent shoulders and longed to take her in his arms and comfort her, but he assured himself that it was her place to make the overture. It looked as though the deadlock would continue unbroken when the serpent entered this lonesome Eden.

It was only a tiny gartersnake scarcely twelve inches long, and it was hurrying away from the human intruders as rapidly as possible when Sam spied it. With a long switch he turned its course and headed it past the rock where Kitty was sitting.

The rustling in the grass caught her attention, and, looking down, she spied the wriggling length of green.

With a shrill scream of "Sam!" she struggled to her feet and the next instant was sobbing in her terror, with her arms about his neck.

With cruel ingratitude Sam dispatched his benefactor and lifted the girl in his arms.

"We'll go sit on the dock, Kitty," he suggested. "There are no snakes there. Pretty soon, if help doesn't come, I'll swim over to shore and get a small boat somewhere."

"Some one will come, Sam," she declared. "Anyhow, it's nice here—for awhile."

"You bet it is, Kitty," assented Sam as the girl crept close to the protecting circle of his arm.

Then in a torrent of words they had their explanation. It cleared the air wonderfully, and presently Kitty patted the hand that clasped her waist.

"You say you didn't like to take Belle riding," she whispered, "just as though you had all the trouble. I bet you wouldn't like it any better to let Mr. Saunders pretend to make love to you."

"No, I wouldn't," assented Sam honestly as he bent his head to claim another kiss. "Kitty, I'm sorry I killed that snake."

"But it was a snake," explained Kitty, as though that were sufficient reason, even though it was very nice—for a snake.

Didn't Lose Any Sleep.

Jenner, the famous English physician, was essentially a strong and self reliant man. He attended the prince consort through his fatal illness, he was the Prince of Wales' doctor when the heir to the British throne had so narrow an escape in 1872, and he also went to Darmstadt and remained in attendance upon the Princess Alice till she died. To practice medicine in "the fierce light that beats upon a throne" is not calculated to lessen the physician's anxieties, and one who knew Jenner well once questioned him on this point and hinted that his responsibilities must sometimes be sufficient to render sleep or rest impossible.

"Sleep," replied Jenner in his characteristic way, "I don't think that anxiety about a patient ever kept me awake five minutes in my life. I go to a bedside. I do my best. What more can I do? Why should I not sleep?"

Hamlet's Bowl of Gruel.

George Melville, an old English actor, was fond of telling a funny story at his own expense. He was acting Hamlet in Bristol. It was the actor's rule to take a bowl of gruel in the course of the evening, and his landlady sent over the usual refreshment from the lodgings in Queen square. She happened to have a "new" servant girl, who was explicitly directed to get to the stage door by the entrance from Bank street and then carry the gruel into the greenroom. She arrived at a moment when Mr. Melville was "on." Being unused to the ways of the theater, she asked a man at the wings where Mr. Melville was.

"There," said the super, pointing to the stage.

The actor was in the middle of the soliloquy "To be or not to be" when the girl advanced toward him, bearing the bowl, and said, "If you please, Mr. Melville, sir, here is your gruel."

The business section of Killiher, Sask., was destroyed by fire on Friday [illegible]

KAISER DIDN'T FLY.

Papers Said He Accompanied Zeppelin—Crowds Mistook Prince For Him.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—It was erroneously reported here yesterday that Emperor William had made a successful ascension in the Zeppelin airship in the afternoon and the evening editions of the local papers carried detailed descriptions of the reported flight to his Majesty.

Prince Von Fuerstenberg, who did make an ascension with Count Zeppelin, was mistaken by the cheering crowds for His Majesty. The prince has been the Emperor's traveling companion lately and yesterday was clad in the same style of hunting dress that the Emperor has been wearing.

When the count returned from his short flight with Prince Von Fuerstenberg he was met by the Emperor, who personally conferred upon him the Order of the Black Eagle. His Majesty hung the chain of the order around the neck of the count and kissed him three times amid the cheering of the assembled crowds.

Halifax, Nov. 11.—With the Government and the Opposition each holding eighteen seats, Newfoundland is now confronted with a situation probably unparalleled in the annals of British political history.

Whether Sir Robert Bond will resign and Sir Edward Morris be entrusted with the task of forming a new Administration, or whether he will endeavor to carry on the Government by electing an Opposition member as Speaker, or whether he will go to the country again are still moot questions.

A Common Mistake About Glasses

Many persons think themselves afflicted with some disease of the eye—believe their eyes need medical or surgical treatment—because they are conscious of physical pain or some impairment of the vision, when their whole visual trouble is caused by some error of refraction than can be remedied by proper glasses. No medicine or operation can relieve such cases. Being prejudiced against wearing glasses, even rapidly failing vision sometimes fails to convince them of the truth until too late. How often we hear the remark, "I won't wear glasses as long as I can see without." Just such a vow has ruined many a pair of good eyes. Don't be foolish—IF YOU NEED GLASSES, GET THEM.

WORK OF WORLD'S Y.W.C.A.

The World's YWCA is like like a large family with members scattered in almost every country of the globe. Some are young and weak, some older and stronger, but all are one in love object to spread the kingdom of Christ.

If all the Associations observed the week of prayer, we should be uniting with women in about 7500 different centres. A week of such united, definite, intelligent intercession should nad need each others help for the one increase and deepen the prayer life of every Association member.

The oneness of our Association movement comes with special force as we think of the world's week of prayer.

On Monday our interest centred on Africa, Egypt, Cape Colony, Natal, Transvaal, Gulf Coast Colony, and British East Africa.

Cairo in Egypt is a great city, crowded and costly to live in. The YWCA. has had a flat there for years, and that has meant the only bit of Christian home life to hundreds of girls of many nationalities, the only place of actual safety to many who were friendless, strangers there. But many must be turned away and Cairo must have a roomy house where those who so need it, may come and stay.

It is still in Africa, but far away in the south at Johannesburg, there is the same call. In the Gold Reef City, alas, the baser things in humanity are strong, but girls press into the city in search of employment, and find life is hard, and one says, "No one here cares what becomes of us." But some do care and Johannesburg will soon have a large Y.W.CA. home instead of the present cramped though useful rooms.

Our sister in India, the home of some of the fairest and noblest and some of the saddest and darkest things on earth. There are 144,000,000 women scattered over an area of 1,776,000 square miles. India takes her place as one of the neediest sisters in the family circle. Pray for our associations in Allahabad, Bangalore, Bombay, Calcutta, Colombo, Lahore, Rangoon, Madras and other branches.

The YWCA has four secrataries in China, but China pleads for eight more to live and teach the Gospel of Christ among the school girls and students.

For six years our national secretaries have been at work in Japan, and today hundreds of the best and brightest of the Japanese girls are members of the YWCA. and learning what Christ can do through women who love Him. But there are millions still to reach, and as more and more girls come into school and college the need for the Association will go on growing.

Miss Caroline MacDonald, the national secretary, in Tokio is supported by the Canadian Associations.

During this week of prayer we make our annual offering for Miss MacDonald's work. Will every member of the Peterborough Association not have some share in this great work being done among the girls of Japan.

Miss McCalla, secretary of the YW. CA. will be glad to receive contributions this week for Miss MacDonald's work and we earnestly ask you to join with us in daily prayer.

On Wednesday afternoon, at 3.30, there will be a prayer service at the YWCA. and also on Friday evening, from 9 to 9.30.—Com.

OYSTER SUPPER HELD AT BETHEL

Was Most Enjoyable Event—Debate Was One of the Features

Bethel, Emily, Nov. 10.—On Thursday evening, Nov. 5th, an oyster supper was held at Bethel under the auspices of L.O.L. No. 294. The evening was clear, the moon shone her brightest light, and although the north-western blasts blew steadily, the hall was unable to comfortably accommodate all those who attended. Bethel's far-renowned oyster supper. It would be useless to attempt to describe the active part the young ladies of the community rendered towards the dining room. The tables ere prettily decorated and arranged, and also the young ladies. At half eight o'clock a splendid programme was opened by the singing of "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name." Mrs. Young and Mr. Campbell of Smith, each rendered two excellent songs, and also gave a duet. Their singing was very much appreciated by all. An important part on the programme, was the debate entitled, "Resolved, that married life is more conducive to happiness than single life." Mr. Frederick Reeds took the affirmative, while Mr. William Howden had the negative. Both phases were ably discussed, and after a consideration by the judges, Rev. Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Campbell, it was decided that married life was the best. The many friends of Fred hope he will soon be able to enjoy that happy, happy life he so vividly described, and "Willie" can it be possible that the girls must think that Willie will be an old bachelor. Rev. Mr. McKenzie gave an excellent address, and the remaining part of the programme consisted of the following:—

Recitation.—Willie Winkie.
Solo.—Miss Olive Switzer.
Recitation.—Master Walter Herd.
Instrumental duet.—Messrs. Eugene Switzer and Harold McConnell.
Recitation.—Violet McBain.
Trio.—Mrs. Pudry, Olive Switzer and Ira Switzer.
Violin selection.—Mr. Faulkner.

After singing the National Anthem the happy assembly dispersed vowing inwardly that when Bethel's next oyster supper should come off, they would not fail to be present.

The anniversary services of the church here were held last Sunday and large congregations were present at both services. Rev. Mr. Reel, pastor of Queen street church, Lindsay, who is an eloquent speaker, delivered two addresses, which were very much enjoyed by all.

Friends are pleased to learn of the recovery of Mr. William Irwin, jr., who has been suffering from a broken leg.

We are sorry to learn of the serious illness of Mr. Christopher Lowes. His many friends hope that he will soon recover.

Mrs. Robert Guthrie has returned from an extended visit to western points.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD

Mi-o-na Has Reached a Gold Standard, Says Harry Ellis of Fergus, For Stomach Trouble

Harry Ellis, of Fergus, Ont., says; "I believe that Mi-o-na for the cure of stomach trouble, is worth its weight in gold. It cured me from a stomach difficulty that seemed to puzzle all other prescriptions and remedies. I was unable to eat, the food would ferment and form gas and make a serious pressure on my heart. There were terrible pains in the pit of my stomach, I became weak, drowsy, discouraged and later I got nervous and could not sleep or rest. This disease makes one feel like not wanting to see any human being and produces melancholy and forebodings. I was told to try Mi-o-na,, and when I commenced on the first box I had hardly any faith in it, but the first two days' treatment made the pain in my stomach cease, and to make a long story short, the upshot of my using Mi-o-na was that it cured me wholly, and I now can eat what I like and when I am hungry. I am an ardent advocate of the use of Mi-o-na."

Wm. Madill, druggist, sells Mi-o-na Tablets, the dyspepsia remedy that is making such surprising cures throughout Canada, for 50 cents a box, guarantees them to cure, or money back.

THEATRICAL

LITTLE DOLLY DIMPLES

C. Herbert Kerr will present his latest musical operatic drama, "Little Dollie Dimples," with a cast of 40 people, headed by the well known, dainty comic opera star and jolly comedienne, Daisy Cameron, as "Little Dollie Dimples," at the Grand next Friday and Saturday with special matinee. The cast supporting Miss Cameron is one of the best ever got together in comic opera, among its members being such well known people as Wm. Russell in the famous musical act, the Shubert Musical Four, the Elm City quartette, and thirty others. The entire production is carried by the company and is considered to be one of the best and prettiest of the season. The play is in two acts, the scenes located in and about New York City. The musical numbers are very strong and tuneful and are whistled by many people on the streets after the performance. The author has certainly done himself proud in the many high class numbers rendered in this production.

Some of the musical numbers are "Bobby," "I'm an Awful Bore," "Coaching song" by chorus, "The Girl that I'd call Mine," "Good Bye Dear Old Home," "The Little Maid from Gay Paree," "I'm So Shy," "The Language of the Flowers," by Miss Cameron and chorus, the famous mimic Harry Rawley will give some of the many facial expressions from his repertoire of a hundred faces, as "Hi Skinner," the country kid.

Plan opens tomorrow morning.

The water in Crowe river is very low at present and the wheel at the power house is only partly covered. It is said that the water has been going down three inches every day and never rises any. The water in Round Lake has gone down a lot, and you can drive out with a horse in the lake, one hundred yards, and it will not take the horse over its knees. The lights became no use at all and on Friday night they were turned out altogether, and were not missed and the citizens of town have been forced to go back to coal oil. The lights were very poor in the churches on Sunday as lamps are very scarce in town just now.

DOESN'T LIKE CANADA.

Englishman Objects to Yankees on Alberta Government Farm.

A discontented Englishman in Alberta has given the following view of Canada in a letter to a London paper:

Sir,—I am anxious to warn my fellow workers against emigrating to Canada, as they will find they have to work hard all the daylight hours, Sundays included, in the summer months on the farms for nothing, and then go to the towns in the winter and starve. To anyone who does not heed this warning I should like at least to give a hint not to take on with any American farmer, because he is certain to hurt their feelings. The American farmer will tell you that the Englishman has no brains, and won't forget to talk about American "independence." If the emigrant is a true Briton he will certainly not relish this. Last Fourth of July, when I was working on a Government farm in Canada, the foreman came out of his cottage and fired three shots from his revolver, and shouted hooray for American independence. This man is still getting his living out of the British Government. When the winter comes round these are the men who tell you to quit. But they keep their own friends and relations on the farm at the Government expense, while the poor Englishman has to take up his bundle and go.

THE KINGMAKER.

Earl of Warwick, a Heroic Figure in English History.

The Earl of Warwick, commonly called the "kingmaker," from the faculty with which he created and deposed monarchs during the contest between the house of York and Lancaster, lived in style of magnificence and hospitality of which no period perhaps furnishes an example. No less than 30,000 persons are said to have lived at his board in the different manors and castles which he possessed, and the military, allured by his hospitality as well as his bravery, were strongly attached to his interests. This distinguished warrior fell at the battle of Barnet in 1471, when, owing to the mistake of one part of his army falling upon the other during a fog, he was defeated by Edward IV.

In former battles Warwick had always fought on horseback, that he might at once ride along the line and perceive the particulars of the action, but on this occasion he determined to fight on foot, that his soldiers might see that he was resolved to share with them the dangers of the day. After having exerted himself as an officer and a hero in fruitless attempts to turn the tide of fortune in his favor he rushed into the hottest part of the battle and fell covered with wounds. His brother, Montacute, in endeavoring to save him met a similar fate.

SKIMMILK PAINT.

A Cheap, Quick Drying Coating That Will Wear Well.

The following formula for making skimmilk paint will be of interest to all who desire a cheap paint that will wear well:

Stir into a gallon of skimmilk three pounds of portland cement, adding at the same time any paint in dry form that will give the color you desire. The milk will hold the paint in suspension, but the cement, being heavy, will sink; therefore it will be necessary to keep the mixture well stirred with a paddle. Mix only enough at a time for one day's use. If the mixture is not thoroughly stirred as you use it, it will get thicker and thicker and it will be necessary to thin it by adding more milk. Six hours after applying this paint it will be dry. It is not affected by weather.

Carbolic acid or any other disinfectant can be added, thus making it very effective for use in poultry houses and the stable. It makes an excellent paint for fences when colored drab by the addition of a little lampblack or a dull green by adding ocher and a small quantity of prussian blue.—E. B. Rexford in Outing Magazine.

His Enforced Trip.

One New York matron was discussing with another New York matron the misfortune which she considered had befallen the husband of a third New York matron.

"You see," she said, "he went down to the steamer with a friend who was going abroad and became so interested talking in the friend's cabin that he never noticed the warning whistle, and the steamer sailed with him on board. However, he sent a wireless to his wife so she wouldn't worry. I dare say he's been kicking himself about the ship ever since."

"Perhaps—and perhaps not," replied the second matron. "The fact is, he told my husband in confidence ten days ago that he intended to be carried off to Europe 'accidentally,' because it was the only way he could go without taking his wife along. But, for heaven's sake, don't mention the matter, my dear, because he told my husband in the strictest confidence."

The Even Spirit.

"I keep an even spirit in this life," says a Georgia philosopher. "In bright weather I open the life windows and sun my soul, and in the stormy days I think of all the sunshine I have had and shout hallelujah!"—Atlanta Constitution.

HOAGLAND LEFT CITY TO-DAY; WILL RACE IN TRENTON, N.J.

Hoagland left this morning for renton, N.J., to walk Ed. Weire a n mile race. Weire will be given a ndicap of one quarter of a mile. e two met a few days ago in Aurn, N.Y., in the same race, Weire nning out by about 50 yards. Hoagnd told the Review last night that he didn't think he could beat Weire at that distance, with the handicap mentioned, but M. A. Reilly, a prominent sporting promoter of Trenton, wanted the men to race there and liberal inducements to do so were made to the champion.

He anticipates a busy season this year.

FOUR TEAMS ALREADY FOR THE CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE

A church hockey league was ornised on Monday night, and aldy four churches have signified ir intention to entering a team ., George street Methodist, St. drew's Presbyterian, Park street tist and Knox Presbyterian.

he athletic committee of the rge street Young Men's Society, lled a meeting on Thanksgiving ht, and the organization resulted is expected that two or three of other church clubs will join. The difficulty in the way is the lack ice. The Brock street rink will ly be all taken up and the George street boys want to get it for one night a week. Park street boys expect to have a large open air rink and Knox may have one. It is believed that another large skating rink would pay well, as the Brock street rink is pretty well engaged.

The boys would also be glad to receive a trophy from some individual or firm who have an interest in the athletic side of church life. With a couple more clubs in the church league the season should be a very good one, and the trophy donor would have reason to be proud of his gift.

THE BROWNIES MADE GREAT SHOWING AGAINST LONDON'S FAST BASKETBALL TEAM

he Brownies basketball team of terborough played in London on nksgiving night and in a close remarkably good game was defeated by the crack London YMCA m by the score of 35-28. Basketl as played in the Forest City is ch more strenuous than the style in this part of the province. many things went in the match t would not have passed at the l gymnasium. The lack of end ches at the ends of the gymnasi- puzzled the Brownies considera- and it took them some time to accustomed to the floor. The e was played in quarters of ten utes duration and this is an in- ation as it has generally been ed in halves.

he local players were up against all star five and gave the crack doners spirited opposition as is wn by the fact that the winners were able to get away on their floor with a majority of 7 tal Strodel one of the London comes from the fast Buf- Germans. Wood, the other for- , from Syracuse. Both are ex- ingly good men. The other players of the team play fast the quintette only being defeat- the fast Hamilton professional etballers in Hamilton by three ts.

ncerning the game between Lon- and the Brownies the London Press says:

night the local YMCA basket- with several new men on succeeded in defeating the rough Brownies, three years champion junior basket ball of Canada. The game was mark exceedingly bad, close checking local team succeeded in in under the basket better Brownies, and led all the final score being, London erborough 28.

rborough has a heavy team: have been playing together for years, have developed some fast combination. London, however succeeded in keeping the Petrborough forwards out from the basket, so that they had to shoot from long range. London on the other hand, worked in close to the basket and shot with greater accuracy.

Fitzpatrick, the big centre man of the Peterborough team, played a splendid game. Creasman only missed one foul shot all night, though he had a large number. Brock and Strodel played strong games for London.

The teams were:

Peterborough: Creasman and Miller, forwards; Fitzpatrick, centre; Darling and Hall, defence.

London: Strodel and Wood, forwards; E George, centre; Jepson and Brock defence.

HOCKEY

Bruce Ridpath, the Toronto pro and formerly of Lakefield, has received a handsome offer to play with the Montreal Hockey Club this winter and may accept. He will go to Pittsburg this month for the league games.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Professional Hockey League will be held at the Mutual street rink on Friday night, when the schedule for the season will be arranged. It is expected to have clubs in Toronto, Berlin, Brantford and Guelph, the same as last year, and possibly in Galt and St. Catharines. The news from Guelph to-day that the townspeople are sore on the pros. isn't taken seriously here by the magnates. It is intended to play a double schedule, the same as last year.

The Toronto team, it is claimed, will be about the same as last year, and therefore better than the others.

Prince Edward Island's provincial election is on Nov. 18.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CITY LEAGUE NEXT WEEK

All of Last Year's Teams the Chieftains and Some Other Sevens Expected to Enter—Outlook is Most Encouraging.

Things look bright for the City Hockey League this winter. From all prospects the best city hockey ever furnished here will be seen this winter and there promises to be a larger representation of clubs in the league than there has been since its organisation.

It is practically certain that High Lifes, Strathconas, Norwood, Lakefield and Bridgenorth, who were in the league last year, will again be members this year and the captains also intend to make a bid for the trophy. The Chieftains play as fast and pretty hockey as any boys who have ever performed on local ice and with their additional experience and weight, should make all of the other aggregations go at their fastest clip. Besides the teams mentioned there are others that are thinking of entering. The annual meeting of the league will be held next week.

The president, Mr. F. A. Clarke, in conversation with the Review this morning, stated that it would do the game a world of good if a junior city league were formed. There is plenty of material for such a league and the only difficulty is securing the rink. If the rink could be obtained between the hours of 6.30 and 7.30, the junior division would become a possibility.

LINDSAY WARDER ON THE GAME BETWEEN LINDSAY AND Y.M.C.A.

Peterborough's aspirations pennantwards in the junior O.R.F.U., were given a knock-out blow Saturday, when the Y.M.C.A. rugby team of that city, were defeated by the Lindsay Knights of the Grid by the decisive score of 13-3. The Y.M.C.A. outfit held the locals down to a 9-6 score in Peterborough and came back to town strong in the hope of retrieving lost laurels. It was not to be, however, and the Lindsay team are district champions.

The field at the agricultural park was covered with snow in spots and very soft. The ball was wet and the backs had some heavy kicking to do. Considering the conditions the class of rugby put up was good. A high wind was blowing and this too, bothered the backs. The crowd was about the size of the bunch who attend the games of a tail-end baseball team, towards the close of the season.

The score can be taken as a good criterion of the relative strength of the teams. Peterborough fought hard for the first half and then faded away, the superior condition of the locals telling in the second half. The teams were evenly balanced in weight, but there was a decided difference in staying powers. Once, indeed, the visitors were a point ahead, but soon after Boyd Sylvester slipped through an opening in the right wing of the enemy and got over for a try. So neatly was the trick pulled off that the Peterbormen did not know what had happened.

For the first half the play was even and decidedly interesting. The locals are generally at their worst on the get-away and gain confidence as the game progresses and this is just what occurred on Saturday. The Peterborough line held within a half a dozen feet of the enemy's touchline and then rushed matters and at the end of that act were close to the Lindsay citadel. Peterborough had three points, made on rouges to Lindsay's two, when the whistle tooted for half time.

In the second half Lindsay got down to business and after repeated attacks on Peterborough's weakest wing, Boyd Sylvester slipped through an opening and got over for a try, which a high wind kept from being converted. "Duke" Cotton dropped a field goal between the goal posts adding considerable to the Lindsay score thereby. Rouges made up the remainder of the thirteen points, and the game ended with Lindsay on the aggressive.

Kelly was again the star of the visitors, and he was hampered by the home team getting through the Peterborough lines, persistently. Sylvester and Cotton were in the calcium light for the homsters and McHugh's following up ame saved many yards.

The score:

Peterborough—3 rouges.

Lindsay—1 try (unconverted), 1 field goal, 6 rouges.

PRESS ON SIMPSON'S SHOWING

Chasing Holmer into town was a chap bred on Manitoba No. 1 hard—Harold Parsons, of Neepawa, the Prairie Province champion—but, just as the goal was in sight, Fred Simpson, the Irish-Canadian's Hiawatha Indian—Tommy Longboat's successor—came tearing down the trail like one of his wild ancestors on a scalp hunting excursion, ran over top of the tiring prairie wolf, and scared Holmer out of a year's growth. Another mile and Simpson would have been scratching dust into the Nova Scotian's face, for Holmer was tiring.

SIMPSON'S USUAL.

'Twas ever thus with Simpson!

A slow beginner, he wakes up after ten miles, and makes them all look like woolly worms coming home from a banquet. If some one would take after Simpson with a blacksnake whip for the first mile he would show them that Tom Longboat wasn't the only redskin remarkable for his alacrity.

SEE HIM GO.

Galloped—yes, galloped!

That's it!

The way that big bronze boy tore up that road was a picture for the man who likes to see human beings in stern competition. He came along in a little cloud of dust—running strong and revelling in his very strength.

He smashed by his club mate, Sellen, like a quarter-miler out for a jaunt, and went after the prairie wolf.

Parsons was half a mile away—would he get him?

AFTER PRASONS.

Nothing daunted, he went right at him. Simpson's attendant had lost his wheel in a collison, but Claude Pearce, who was with Percy Sellen went on with his clubmate when Sellen quit. He just whooped the red boy into the village.

How that redskin gobbled up Parson's lead!

Every bound brought him closer to the faltering Manitobian.

Up the famous Valley Inn hill, where so many grand runners have died, went the Indian without a halt. It looked like level ground to him.

Over the crest he sighted Parsons.

"Whoop-ee," he shouted in his glee, and down York street he tore like relentless fate. He caught Parsons a mile from home and sailed after the Bluenose out in front like a wild man. He couldn't get Holmer, but he crowded his lead down to a third of a mile and finished fresh.—Toronto Star.

Fred Simpson, the Indian, who ran second, was second in the race last year, and was sent to England last year as a member of the Canadian Olympic team. He belongs to the Chippewa tribe, and his home is in Hiawatha, near Peterborough. He is 27 years old and stands 5 feet 11 inches in height. For two years Simpson's great ambition has been to win the Herald race, and after he won second prize last year he named his son Herald Simpson, in honor of the great event. Simpson lacks the ability to follow the early pace, but he is a great finisher. He covered the last part of the journey much faster than any other runner, and he did the same thing last year, when he came from behind at a terrific clip and passed several men in his effort to win.—Hamilton Herald.

QUARTETTE OF RED RACERS

If another meet is held here on some holiday in connection with the programme of sports for the day, Mr. Dan Whetung, jr., of Chemong, has offered a good suggestion and that is that a race be arranged between Jim George, the Georgina Island Indian, Nangishkong, (Hughie Benson), of Orillia, H. Howard of Hiawatha, and Albert Smoke, of Chemong, for the question of supremacy between these four young Indian runners.

With the four young redmen stalwarts in a race great interest would be taken in the event and the liveliest kind of struggle would be sure to result.

TREMBLAY WILL HAVE TO GO

To Beat Cyclone Mac the Great Little Irish Wrestler

What is looked upon as the most important match of Eugene Tremblay's career, will take place at Sohmer Park, Montreal, on Friday, when he will meet Cyclone Mac, the champion of Ireland. Mac has 300 victories to his credit and many authorities pick him as the coming lightweight champion of the world. At present that title is held by Tremblay.

RUNNING

Dorando to Meet Hayes.

New York, Nov. 11.—John J. Hayes, winner of the Marathon race at the Olympic games in London last summer, has signed a contract, it is announced, to meet Pietri Dorando, the Italian runner, who was half carried and half pushed across the tape in front of the American and was disqualified because of his assistance. The agreement which Hayes has signed calls for practically a re-running of the event in Madison Square Garden, this city, on Wednesday, Nov. 25, Thanksgiving Eve. It is stipulated that the full Marathan distance—26 miles, 385 yards—be run.

A REAPER RACE.

The Feat That Made William N. Whiteley Famous.

In the early days of the exploitation of various reaping machines a field demonstration, usually competitive, was a necessary occurrence. H. N. Casson in "The Romance of the Reaper" tells the following story of William N. Whiteley, "the Charlemagne of the harvest field:"

He was as tall as a sapling and as strong as a tree. As a professor in the great school of agriculture he has never been surpassed. He could outtalk, outwork and generally outwit the men who were sent against him. He was a whole exhibition in himself.

"I've seen Bill Whiteley racing his horses through the grain and leaning over with his long arms to pick the mice's nests from just in front of the knife," said an old Ohio settler.

The feat that first made Whiteley famous was performed at Jamestown, O., in 1867. His competitor was doing as good work as he was, whereupon he sprang from his seat, unhitched one horse and finished his course with a single surprised steed pulling the heavy machine.

His competitor followed suit and succeeded fully as well.

This enraged Whiteley, who at that time was as powerful as a young Hercules.

"I can pull that reaper myself!" he shouted, turning his second horse loose and yoking his big shoulders into the harness.

Such a thing had never been done before and has never been done since, but it is true that in the passion of the moment Whiteley was filled with such strength that he ran the reaper from one side of the field to the other, cutting a full swath, a deed that, had he done it in ancient Greece, would have placed him among the immortals.

That ten minutes in a horse collar made $2,000,000 for Whiteley. His antagonist, Benjamin H. Warder, was filled with admiration for Whiteley's prowess and at once proposed that they should quit fighting and work in harmony.

"Give me the right to make your reaper, and I'll pay you $5 apiece for all I can sell," said Warder.

"It's a bargain," responded Whiteley. And so there arose the first consolidation in the harvester business.

TUMULT IN THE SEA.

Terrific Force of a Marine Upheaval Off Cape Horn.

A sailing ship rounding Cape Horn was caught in a dead calm, something almost unprecedented in that stormy latitude. The sky was filmed with a light haze, and the sea was flat and lead colored. About 10 o'clock on the morning of the second day the ship began to shake violently, the masts whipped and bent like fish poles, and everything movable above and below came down with a clatter. It was like striking a rock, only the shock was less pronounced at first, but increased in violence during the thirty seconds it lasted. The sea heaved in oily swells with a strange, hoarse murmur, and it continued to be agitated after the tremors ceased.

Half an hour later fish by the thousands began to rise to the surface until it was covered with them. Forty-seven whales were counted, many cowfish fully eight feet across, sharks without number and seals by the hundreds. They were evidently stunned with the force of some terrific marine upheaval, and when struck with a pole by one of the sailors showed only faint signs of life. In twenty minutes after the first fish arose to the surface they began to drop out of sight like pieces of lead. Whether they were stunned and, on recovering, immediately dived beneath the waves in a panic, seeking safety in the depths, or whether they died from the shock and, instead of floating as dead fish do, were drawn under by some submarine whirlpool, were scientific questions too deep for the skipper, but half a dozen of the smaller fish hauled aboard by the cook for dinner were quite dead when examined. The calm continued twenty-four hours longer before the ocean resumed its usual aspect and a wind from the southeast permitted the ship to continue its course.

Behind the Times.

Four artillerymen were looking around the picture gallery in the Metropolitan museum the other day, but they did not seem particularly interested. When they got to Meissonier's "Friedland—1807" two of them, one a sergeant, paused for a second look. The sergeant went close to the canvas and gazed intently at the Old Guard in the background.

"Those guys are carrying old fashioned Springfield rifles," was the only comment he made.

The Boiler's Reasons.

Mother—Don't tease me, Johnnie. Can't you see I'm in a lot of trouble? The boiler has sprung a leak. Johnnie—What makes it leak? Mother—Because it's my day at home, your father has asked two men to dinner, the cook has left, and the butcher hasn't come with the meat. Now run and play.

THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

COPYRIGHT. 1907. BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

"Hang his cigarettes!" cried the surgeon. "This must be Darrow. Finicky beast! Let's see if it's signed."

He whirled the leaves over to the last sheet, glanced at it and sprang to his feet. There, sprawled in tremulous characters, as by a hand shaken with agony or terror, was written:

Look for me in the cave.
PERCY DARROW.

The bullet hole in the corner furnished a sinister period to the signature.

Trendon handed the ledger back to the captain, who took one quick look, closed it and handed it to Congdon.

"Wrap that up and carry it carefully," he said.

"Aye, aye, sir," said the cockswain, swathing it in his jacket and tucking it under his arm.

"Now to find that cave," said Captain Parkinson to the surgeon.

"The cave in the cliff, of course," said Trendon. "Noticed it coming in, you know."

"Where?"

"On the north shore, about a mile to the east of here."

"Then we'll cut directly across."

"Beg your pardon, sir," put in Congdon, "but I don't think we can make it from this side, sir."

"Why not?"

"No beach, sir, and the cliff's like the side of a ship. Looks to be deep water right into the cave's mouth."

"Back to the boat, then. Bring that flag along."

The descent was swift, at times reckless, but the party embarked without accident. Soon they were forging through the water at racing speed, the boat leaping to the impulsion of the sailorman's strongest motives, curiosity and the hope of saving a life.

CHAPTER XXIX.

WITHIN half an hour the gig had reached the mouth of the cave. As the cockswain had predicted, the seas ran into the lofty entrance. Elsewhere the surf fell whitely, but through the arch the waves rolled unbroken into a heavy stillness. Only as the boat hovered for a moment at the face of the cliff could the exploring party hear, far within, the hollow boom that told of breakers on a distant subterranean beach.

"Run her in easy," came the captain's order. "Keep a sharp lookout for hidden rocks."

To the whispering plash of the oars they moved from sunlight into twilight, from twilight into darkness. Of a sudden the oars jerked convulsively. A great roar had broken upon the ears of the sailors. The invisible roof above them, the water heaving beneath them, the walls that hemmed them in, called with a multiplication of resonance upon the name of Darrow. The boat quivered with the start of its occupants. Then one or two laughed weakly as they realized that what they had heard was no supernatural voice. It was the captain hailing for the marooned man.

No vocal answer came, but an indeterminable space away they could hear a low splash, followed by a second and a third. Something coughed weakly in front and to the right. Trendon's hand went to his revolver. The men sat stiffened. One of them swore in a whisper.

"Silence in the boat," said the captain in such buoyant tones that the men braced themselves against the expected peril.

"Light the lantern and pass it to me," came the order. "Keep below the gunwale, men."

As the match spluttered, "Do you see something a few rods to port?" asked the captain in Trendon's ear.

"Pair of green lights," said Trendon. "Eyes. Seals!"

"Seals! Seals! Seals!" shouted the walls, for the surgeon had suddenly released his voice. And as the mockery boomed the green lights disappeared, and there was more splashing from the distance. The crew sat up again.

The lantern spread its radiance. It was reflected from battlements of fairy beauty. Everywhere the walls were set, as with gems, in broad wales of varied and vivid hues. Dazzled at first, the explorers soon were able to discern the general nature of the subterranean world which they had entered. In most places the walls rose sheer and unscalable from the water. In others turreted rocks thrust their gleaming crags upward. Over to starboard a little beach shone with Quaker grayness in that spectacular display. The end of the cavern was still beyond the area of light.

"Must have been a swimmer to get in here," commented Trendon, glancing at the walls.

"Unless he had a boat," said the captain. "But why doesn't he answer?"

"Better try again. No telling how much more there is of this."

The surgeon raised his ponderous bellow, and the cave roared again with the summons. Silence, formidable and unbroken, succeeded.

"House to house search is now in order," he said. "Must be in here somewhere unless the seals got him."

Cautiously the boat moved forward. Once she grazed on a half submerged rock. Again a tiny islet loomed before her. Scattered bones glistened on the rocky shore, but they were not human relics. Occasionally beaches tempted a landing, but all of these led back to precipitous cliffs except one, from the side of which opened two small caves. Into the first the lantern cast its glare, revealing emptiness, for the arch was wide and the cave shallow. The entrance to the other was so narrow as to send a visitor to his knees. But inside it seemed to open out. Moreover, there were fish bones at the entrance. The captain, the surgeon and Congdon, the cockswain, landed. Captain Parkinson reached the spot first. Stooping, he thrust his head in at the orifice. A sharp exclamation broke from him. He rose to his feet, turning a contorted face to the others.

"Poisonous," he cried.

"More volcano," said Trendon. He bent to the black hole and sniffed cautiously.

"I'll go in, sir," volunteered Congdon. "I've had fire practice."

"My business," said Trendon briefly. "Decomposition; unpleasant, but not dangerous."

Pushing the lantern before him, he wormed his way until the light was blotted out. Presently it shone forth from the funnel, showing that the explorer had reached the inner open space. Captain Parkinson dropped down and peered in, but the evil odor was too much for him. He retired, gagging and coughing. Trendon was gone for what seemed an interminable time. His superior officer fidgeted uneasily. At last he could stand it no longer.

"Dr. Trendon, are you all right?" he shouted.

"Yup," answered a choked voice. "Cubbing oud dow."

Again the funnel was darkened. A pair of feet appeared; then the surgeon's chunky trunk, his head and the lantern. Once, twice and thrice he inhaled deeply.

"Phew!" he gasped. "Thought I was tough, but phee-ee-ee-ew!"

"Did you find"—

"No, sir. Not Darrow. Only a poor devil of a seal that crawled in there to die."

The exploration continued. Half a mile, as they estimated, from the open they reached a narrow beach shut off by a perpendicular wall of rock. Skirting this, they returned on the other side, minutely examining every possible crevice. When they again reached the light of day they had arrived at the certain conclusion that no living man was within those walls.

"Would a corpse rise to the surface soon in waters such as these, Dr. Trendon?" asked the captain.

"Might, sir. Might not. No telling that."

The captain ruminated. Then he beat his fist on his knee.

"The other cave!"

"What other cave?" asked the surgeon.

"The cave where they killed the seals."

"Surely!" exclaimed Trendon. "Wait, though. Didn't Slade say it was between here and the point?"

"Yes. Beyond the small beach."

"No cave there," declared the surgeon positively.

"There must be. Congdon, did you see an opening anywhere in the cliff as we came along?"

"No, sir. This is the only one, sir."

"We'll see about that," said the captain grimly. "Head her about. Skirt the shore as near the breakers as you safely can."

The gig retraced its journey.

"There's the beach, as Slade described it," said Captain Parkinson as they came abreast of the little reach of sand.

"And what are those two bird roosts on it?" asked Trendon. "See 'em? Dead against that patch of shore weed."

"Bits of wreckage fixed in the sand."

"Don't think so, sir. Too well matched."

"We have no time to settle the matter now," said the captain impatiently. "We must find that cave if it is to be found."

Hovering just outside the final drag of the surf, under the skillful guidance of Congdon, the boat moved slowly along the line of beach to the line of cliff. All was open as the day. The blazing sun picked out each detail of jut and hollow. Evidently the poisonous vapors from the volcano had not spread their blight here, for the face of the precipice was bright with many flowers. So close in moved the boat that its occupants could even see butterflies fluttering above the bloom. But that which their eager eyes sought was still denied them. No opening offered in that smiling cliffside. Not by so much as would admit a terrier did the mass of rock and rubble gape.

"And Slade described the cave as big enough to ram the Wolverine into," muttered Trendon.

Up to the point of the headland and back passed the boat. Blank disappointment was the result.

"What is your opinion now, Dr. Trendon?" asked the captain of the older man.

"Don't know, sir," answered the surgeon hopelessly. "Looks as if the cave might have been a hallucination."

"I shall have something to say to Mr. Slade on our return," said the captain crisply. "If the cave was a hallucination, as you suggest, the seal murder was fiction."

"Looks so," agreed the other.

"And the murder of the captain. How about that?"

"And the mutiny of the men," added the surgeon.

"And the killing of the doctor. Your patient seems to be a romantic genius."

"And the escape of Darrow. Hold hard," quoth Trendon. "Darrow's no romance. Nothing fictional about the flag and ledger."

"True enough," said the captain and fell to consideration.

"Anyway," said Trendon vigorously, "I'd like to have a look at those bird roosts. Mighty like sign posts to my mind."

"Very well," said the captain. "It'll cost us only a wetting. Run her in, Congdon."

With all the cockswain's skill and the oarsmen's technique, the passage of the surf was a lively one, and little driblets of water marked the trail of the officers as they shuffled up the beach.

The two slabs stood less than fifty yards beyond high water tide. Nearing them, the visitors saw that each marked a mound, but not until they were close up could they read the neat carving on the first. It ran as follows:

Here lies
SOLOMON ANDERSON
alias
HANDY SOLOMON
who murdered his employer, his captain and his shipmates and was found dead of his deserts on these shores, June 5, 1904.
This slab is erected as a memento of admiring esteem by the last of his victims.

"And you can kiss the book on that."

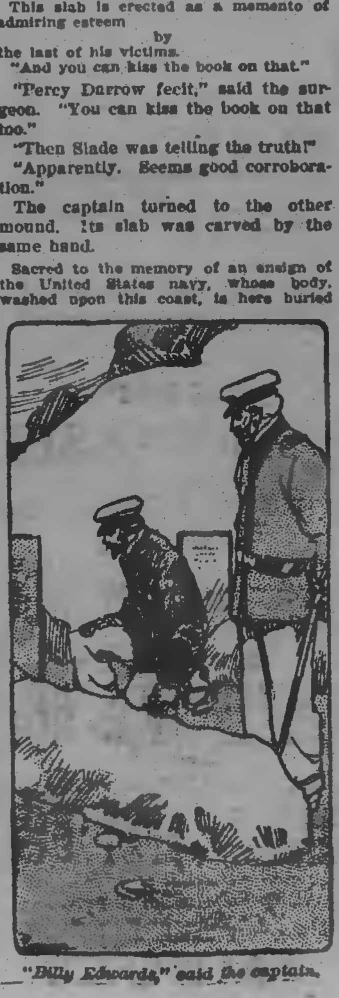
"Percy Darrow fecit," said the surgeon. "You can kiss the book on that too."

"Then Slade was telling the truth!"

"Apparently. Seems good corroboration."

The captain turned to the other mound. Its slab was carved by the same hand.

Sacred to the memory of an ensign of the United States navy, whose body, washed upon this coast, is here buried with all reverence, by strange hands; whose soul may God rest. "The seas shall sing his requiem." June the sixth, MXMIV.



"Billy Edwards," said the captain.

"Billy Edwards," said the captain, very low.

He uncovered. The surgeon did likewise. So for a space they stood with bared heads between the twin graves.

CHAPTER XXX.

THE surgeon spoke first.

"Another point," said he. "Darrow was alive within a few days."

Captain Parkinson turned slowly away from the grave. "You are right," he said, with an effort. "Our business is with the living now. The dead must wait."

"Hide and seek," growled Trendon. "If he's here why don't he show himself?"

The other shook his head.

"Place is all trampled up with footprints," said Trendon. "He's plodded back and forth like a prisoner in a cell."

"The ledger," said the captain. "I'd forgotten it. That grave drove everything else out of my mind."

"Bring the book here," called Trendon.

Congdon unwrapped it from his jacket and handed it to him. The sailors cast curious glances at the two headstones.

"Mount guard over Mr. Edwards' grave," commanded the captain.

The cockswain saluted and gave an order. One of the sailors stepped forward to the first mound.

"Not that one," rasped the officer, "the other."

The man saluted and moved on.

"With your permission, sir," said Trendon.

On a nod from his superior officer he opened the ledger and took up Darrow's record.

"Here it is. Entry of June 3."

"Everything lovely. Schooner lost to sight. Query—to memory dear? Not exactly. Though I shouldn't mind having her under orders for a few days. Queer glow in the sky last night; if they've been investigating, they may have got what's coming to them. Volcano exhibiting fits of temper. Spouted out considerable fire about 9 o'clock. Quite spectacular, but no harm done. Can foresee short rations of tobacco. Lava in valley still too hot for comfort. No sign of Dr. Schermerhorn. Still sleep on beach."

"Not much there," sniffed Trendon.

"Go on," said the captain.

"June 3, Evening.—Thick and squally weather again. Local atmospheric conditions seem upset. Volcano still leading strenuous life. Climbed the headland this afternoon. Wind very shifty. Got an occasional whiff of volcanic output. One in particular would have sent a skunk to the camphor bottle. No living on the headland. Will explore cave tomorrow with a view to domicile. Have come down to an allowance of seven cigarettes per diem.

"June 4.—Explored cave today. Full of dead seals. Not only dead, but all bitten and cut to pieces. Must have been lively doings in Seal Town. Not much choice between air in the cave and vapors from the volcano. Barring seals, everything suitable for light housekeeping, such as mine. Undertook to clean house. Dragged late lamented out into the water. Some sank and were swept away by the sea puss. Others, I regret to say, floated. Found trickle of fresh water in depth of cave and little sand ledge to sleep on. So far, so good; we may be 'appy yet. If only I had my cigarette supply. Once heard a botanist say that leaves of the white shore willow made fair substitute for tobacco. Fair substitute for nux vomica. Would like to interview said botanist.

PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

A WOMAN LINGUIST.

Miss Elizabeth Colton Speaks Six Languages Fluently.

Miss Elizabeth S. Colton, a New England girl, has just returned from India with the reputation of being the greatest woman linguist in the world.

Before going to India she was a student in the classes of the leading orientalists of the University of Berlin, and before that she learned all that Harvard and Yale had to give of instruction in the languages of the east.

Her early education was musical, modern languages being taken up as so many tools in her musical education. But her family objected to her chosen career of a concert singer, and to console herself she took up the study of oriental languages.

Miss Colton first took up Semitic tongues and graduated with certificates from the American Institute of Sacred Literature in Hebrew, Arabic and Assyrian. Then for two years she read classical Arabic and Assyrian inscriptions with Professor Sanders of Yale university. Four years ago she entered Radcliffe college as a special student and because there were no classes in the woman's college suited to her needs recited with the men at Harvard in Arabic, Pali and Sanskrit classes.

In an interview she is quoted as saying:

"I have studied fifty-four languages carefully and fifteen critically. Six I speak fluently, if you will. I took conversation lessons at Benares in Sanskrit, but no one could speak Sanskrit with less than twelve years of practice.

"There are very many more languages whose literature I read with ease, whose script I have learned to write and in which I could make myself understood. But to speak fluently is quite another thing. I did receive calls in Persian and entertained a prince at afternoon tea in that language while I was at Peshawar. But it would be absurd to claim that I can speak Persian as well as Italian or French or German or the others of which I really am mistress."

BORAX FOR ICEBOX.

Cold Water Preferable to Hot in Refrigerators.

Borax is an invaluable aid to the woman who wishes to keep her icebox immaculate. It is especially desirable for use in small refrigerators, where little food is kept, where the ice is on hand more for the purpose of preserving butter and milk and keeping bottled waters cool, but it is excellent for all iceboxes.

Cold water with plenty of pure borax is preferable to hot water to use in wiping off the walls of the refrigerator. It doesn't heat the box, and, being a germ killer, it purifies everything it touches. It may also be put in the corners of the refrigerator.

Its best use of all is perhaps in keeping the receptacle for the ice itself and the outlet tube in pure and sanitary condition. It may be sprinkled freely over the bottom of the icebox proper and on the rack holding the ice. As the ice melts and runs away, no matter how impure it may be, the borax is melted in with it, killing the germs and keeping the bottom of the box clean and sweet smelling and also the escape pipes. Just before adding fresh ice it is a good plan to pour a pint of water slowly on the bottom of the icebox, over the rack, and let it run out, the fluid flushing the escape pipes, which are easily clogged. Then sprinkle fresh borax over the rack and put in the ice.

This treatment beats hot water and soap every time and is more easily applied.

HOUSEWIFE HINTS.

Black silk may be cleaned by sponging the dirty parts with the water in which potatoes have been boiled.

If anything boils over on your stove and begins to smoke and cause an unpleasant odor throw a handful of salt on it. This removes the objectionable smell.

To clean gold lace get some rock ammonia from a chemist, pound it and apply the powder to the lace with a flannel cloth, rubbing briskly. Finally brush the lace, and it will look like new.

To prevent rust dissolve india rubber in naphtha to the consistency of cream and brush this over the metal to be protected from rust. When necessary this coating can easily be rubbed off.

Holes in plaster walls may be stopped with a mixture of sand and plaster of paris mixed into a paste with water. When dry, cover with a piece of paper to match the wall.

To clean windows try this method: Take two or three pieces of lump starch, dissolve them in a quart of water and with this wash the windows. Let the glass dry, then polish with a dry cloth.

To clean tan shoes wipe all dust from them with a dry cloth. Soap a woolen rag with white soap, rub lather over shoes, wash with clear water, wipe partly dry, place where air and sun will dry quickly. This cleans and preserves leather.

The colors of the wall paper and the carpet should harmonize. The dyes of oriental rugs are less likely to be out of harmony with walls and furniture than any other floor coverings. Since Japan sends us cotton and pile rugs that are inexpensive any room may be made to look pretty.

A practical coat hanger made by a child for an older relative is covered with raffia crocheted over the nickel foundation. The wide open parts of the top of the hanger are filled in with Mexican drawnwork "spiders" made of the raffia. A set of such hangers would be an acceptable gift for a summer hostess from a departing guest.

A Story From Nechaco.

A man and his wife have traveled on foot the whole distance of three hundred and fifty miles from Ashcroft, B.C., to the Nechaco valley, pushing before them a small express wagon containing their child and all their worldly goods. They were determined to take advantage of the Government's policy in closing the Nechaco lands to the speculator and reserving them for the pre-emptor. They had no money to spend on any less arduous form of transit. These people are clearly possessed of the spirit and grit that go to the making of good settlers, and it is pleasant to hear that the farm they have taken up is in a section which bears a local reputation of being first-class agricultural land. There is therefore a likelihood that their pluck and resolution will meet with an adequate reward.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rambling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

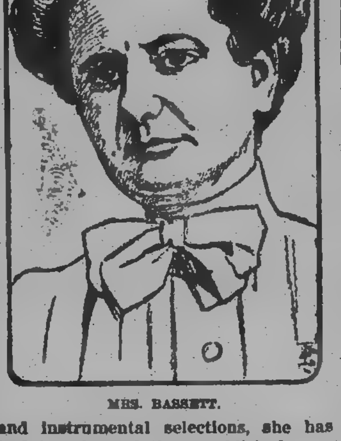
TAFT CAMPAIGN SONG.

Verse and Music Written by Wife of a Pennsylvania Doctor.

"Our Good and Honest Taft," a campaign song which has been officially approved by William H. Taft and Chairman Frank Hitchcock of the Republican campaign committee, was written by Mrs. Anne R. Waln Bassett, wife of a prominent physician of Norwood, Pa.

Mrs. Bassett was, before her marriage to Dr. Bassett, a resident of Philadelphia. She was graduated from the School of Industrial Art in that city and is a proficient artist and musician. Despite the fact that she has written more than a hundred songs and instrumental selections, she has had but few of them published, preferring to keep them for her home.



MRS. BASSETT.

"I first got the idea of writing the song," said Mrs. Bassett, "while I was reading one of Mr. Taft's speeches. His words, 'Although I'm slated president, I'm just a plain man still,' struck me as being a fine campaign slogan, and I determined to put it to music."

Have a Hobby.

A writer in an exchange, discussing the success of women now that they are in the midst of everything, urges them to have a hobby as the necessary adjunct to their well being.

This writer says: Man has been in control in the world for a long time. He has learned many things about life which women have had no chance to learn, being out of the full current of human affairs. Now that woman is very much in the middle of everything she really needs more advice from men than she has ever needed before. And if she is a trifle slow about asking it—thinking it not wise, perhaps, to confess her conscious inexperience—it will do her no harm to observe man all the closes, to see exactly how he uses his long possessed opportunities.

Men are the workers of the world. They have been at it ever since Adam delved. They know the drudgery of work, its long pulls, its depression, its breakdowns, and they have found out by intimate acquaintance with their own powers that a hobby is a valuable auxiliary in any worker's life. Find a great worker among men and he almost always has a hobby. Perhaps it is a quiet fireside one, perhaps a passion for big game—what does it matter? He changes off and rides it now and then. The result is a renewed mind and a rested body. The hobby is a race, a root idea. No one man has worked it out, but men of all time have tested it and found it invaluable.

Very few women, so far, have hobbies. If they have they ride them apologetically. They feel called upon to explain that they do not neglect John or the children, but only take photographs at odd moments. They hesitate to spend money on their gardens or take a day in the city to see pictures or hunt up genealogical books. But a hobby, as men know well enough, should be ridden boldly. It is only a hobby. It is not a serious life work. It does not in the least need to be justified or explained. It is there to ride when a ride is a relief and refreshment.

The only hobby most women indulge in is a pet charity. But that is really almost too serious for a hobby. It does not relax the mind, and it pulls too heavily upon the heart. Men who take up charity have a hobby besides if they are wise. Woman should observe the ways of man, profit by his well considered conclusions and mount and ride, without apology, the hobby that invites her soul and sends her back refreshed to her work.

"Too Sure."

"Don't let a man be too sure of you. Never tell him the whole truth about how much you care for him. You'll be lots happier so."

That is the advice given the Women's Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians by a wise man, a man with a fine, stern profile and a twinkle in his eye—Father O'Toole of Wellsboro, a priest who is blessed with a great love for human nature and a vast comprehension of it.

He talked to his feminine audience of the one subject in which perhaps women are most interested—husbands. He gave them some excellent advice as to how to get good husbands and how to keep them. And this is what he said:

"Don't do the courting yourself.

"Don't let your courtship end with marriage. Don't let the honeymoon end at all.

"Don't do all the work and let your husband have all the fun. Share and share alike is a pretty good sort of rule.

"Don't wear your heart on your sleeve so that your lover can see his name placarded there.

"Be a bride all your life.

"And never let a man be too sure of you."

It is evidently human and sensible, such advice as this. It might almost be called practical. It soars to no heights of triumphant self effacement, plumbs no depths of passionate devotion. It has to do with no primrose path of love and exaltation and surrender. It treats in all sanity of everyday happiness and contentment. It throws upon the workaday existence of all of us the searchlight of simple common sense.

And, curiously enough, it is not easy advice, this of Father O'Toole's, to follow. For the woman who is, as the gossips say, "very much in love" the predominant desire of life seems to be to let the man she loves know "how much she cares." She doesn't realize—and neither, most likely, does the man—how her very sweetness, her gay little way of doing all sorts of foolish and unnecessary and delightful things for her lover, is going to lessen through some pitiless intricacy of the masculine mind her value in his eyes.

The wise woman realizes that she is to be won not easily and that won she is to be cherished.

In all phases of our complex existence it is what a man works for that he values. It is what he must keep on working for that holds his interest and his devotion and his loyalty.

A Mexican Recipe.

Travelers who have been to Mexico will recall this popular Mexican dish, which if carefully prepared is said to be delicious. It is the "chili reinas," or stuffed peppers:

Cut chili peppers lengthwise down the sides, remove the seeds and carefully roast in hot ashes, after which the outer skin can be thoroughly wiped off. Grate dry cheese and stuff the peppers full of this, press the two sides together and fasten. According to the number of peppers prepared, take enough eggs for a liberal dressing, beat the whites and yolks separately to a light froth and then mix them.

Have ready a frying pan, with sufficient boiling lard to cover the peppers. Dip each pod into the frothy egg for a moment, then drop into the boiling lard, pouring over each more of the egg while the frying peppers are turned. Serve with a chili sauce to which have been added a few chopped green walnuts.

The Wish Book.

An ingenious woman who is fond of music and art has made an interesting wish book, which she calls "The Moonbeam." Its plan is based on the superstition that wishes made when seeing the new moon will be granted.

It is a charming little conceit and has just that symbolic touch that every person wishes. It is got up in an artistic way, with a number of illustrations representing scenes in which the moon appears.

Each page has a border illustrated with fanciful and symbolic designs. In fact, the spirit of superstition is brought into play on every page of the book.

On the pages are spaces for each day of the year, in which wishers are to write their most precious desires, signing their names beneath. There are also pages for common everyday wishes.

Bridget's Beatitudes.

Blessed is the pinch of salt added to the rhubarb.

Blessed is the teaspoonful of vanilla added to the smaller, cheaper quality of prunes.

Blessed is the bit of butter rubbed along the top of the vessel in which chocolate is boiled. It will prevent boiling over.

Blessed is the puff paste which is allowed to remain on ice an hour before rolling into crust.

Blessed is the tablespoon, butter and a little hot water kept hot on the stove for basting fowl or roast which lacks juice.

Blessed is the alum used on wash day to prevent the colored clothes from "running." Use in the proportion of one tablespoonful of powdered alum to a gallon of cold water. Let the clothes soak in this and then wash in the usual way.

Dainty Doilies.

Take little pieces of linen left from your fancy work and mark a circle with a pencil, using a tumbler as a guide. Stitch this mark on the machine, then buttonhole. After this is done, using a fine steel hook, crochet a pattern around of sixty crochet cotton. You will have a set of doilies that couldn't be bought for $2.50 and the cost will be less than 20 cents.

A Salad Shaker.

A wire basket, known as a salad shaker or drainer, is used to dry greens after they have been thoroughly washed. The leaves of lettuce often hold the water, even after a good shaking. Each leaf should be wiped off with a piece of cheesecloth. If not thoroughly dry the dressing will not be evenly distributed.

A Sanitary Crib.

Something that will interest all mothers is the infant's sanitary crib, chair and walker combined. The crib is built of polished wood, trimmed with aluminium corner pieces and furnished with a white drill body. The canvas body is so designed that it holds the baby securely, yet comfortably, and with freedom.

A DYING RACE.

Effort Is Being Made to Help Newfoundland Micmacs.

In a report to the Colonial Office, Sir Wm. MacGregor, Governor of Newfoundland, gives an interesting account of a visit he paid recently to the settlement of Micmacs, who are held by ethnologists to be a branch of the Algonquin Indians, at Bay d'Espoir, on the south of the island. There are only 23 families living on the reservation, consisting of 131 persons, and although Sir William doubts whether there is a single pure-blooded Micmac on the island, he is of opinion that the community in question is not likely to be absorbed in the European population for several generations. He therefore suggests that something should be done for the inhabitants.

The Micmacs are hunters and trappers, and are ignorant alike of agriculture, seamanship, and fishing. On the visit of the governor there were only two miserable cows in the settlement, and a few extremely wretched sheep, and he saw but one fowl and a "tame wild goose." The food consisted chiefly of flour, a few potatoes and cabbage, and caribou meat, while the majority of the people were in rags. Notwithstanding these obvious hardships, the inhabitants are generally healthy, the oldest woman was 90 years of age, and the oldest man about 80. The men are described as of good size and strongly built, clearly of mixed descent, and many being nearly like Europeans. The children, who are bright and clever, have all, without exception, very dark, soft eyes, straight black hair, and the nose much more prominent than in the Esquimaux of Labrador. Intoxicating drink is practically unknown in the settlement.

In religion the Micmacs are Roman Catholics, and they have a small church, which is decently well built and kept. Oddly enough, there is a large inscription over the entrance stating that spitting in the church is totally prohibited. The parish priest visits the community once a month, and in his absence one of the natives reads the service on Sunday. The last statement suggests a certain amount of education among these Indians. They have, in fact, a small school, carried on in a room 12 feet by 15 feet, with a stove and two little windows. There are 34 children on the roll, and the teacher, a woman of mixed race, who depends upon a small allowance from the priest and such fees as she can collect, was congratulated by Sir William on what she had been able to accomplish under the circumstances. Sir William MacGregor proposes to help the community by providing a more suitable location, supply seed potatoes and a few animals, and adding especially a good school for the young.

McGILLICUDDY IS GUILTY JUDGE BECK FINES HIM

Hundred Dollar Fine Imposed.

Judge in Delivering Judgment Roasts Editor Edwards of Eye-Opener.

Calgary, Nov. 12.—The jury in the McGillicuddy criminal libel case were out for near four hours and gave a verdict finding the accused guilty of libel; and that the plea of justification was not sustained.

The following rider was added: "We believe the contents of the letter published in The News too drastic to meet the requirements of the case, but as citizens of Calgary we desire to place on record our disapproval of obscene and suggestive articles and illustrations which appear in The Eye-Opener and we respectfully request your lordship to caution the prosecutor against publishing any more such articles; and if persisted in, they should be suppressed."

Judge Beck sentenced McGillicuddy to pay a fine of $100, or in default to two months' hard labor, execution of judgement to be stayed until Dec. 15. Meanwhile McGillicuddy is out on $200 on his own recognition. Each party is to pay his own costs.

Judge Beck in giving judgment said it often struck him that the paper (The Eye Opener) could have been of great value, but that it had exercised a demoralizing influence on the public. The editor was worthy of very little consideration. He said it was only fair to say that counsel for the defendant agreed that it was not the intention to charge Edwards with the abominable crimes suggested.

In the afternoon Mr. Nolan, counsel for private prosecutor Edwards, delivered a powerful and logical address to the jury, occupying an hour. He delivered a seathing and clever arrangement of the defendant and the libellous article.

Judge Beck's address to the jury occupied 40 minutes. He told the jury they must find McGillicuddy guilty on the whole charge if he was guilty of libel in any part, but he added that they could find McGillicuddy justified if they thought so. The jury went out at 4.10.

P. Davis, K.C., counsel for McGillicuddy, made his address to the jury yesterday morning, entirely ignoring the evidence which had been put in for the defence.

Mr. Davis confined himself to a discussion of various copies of The Eye-Opener, from which he read extracts. He claimed that Edwards was a degenerate on account of the publication of The Eye-Opener and because of his drunken habits.

Davis said that the defence wished to kill The Eye-Opener.

He insisted that this was the trial of Edwards and not the trial of McGillicuddy, and he called upon the jury to suppress The Eye-Opener by their verdict.

The judge intimated that he should direct the jury to find a verdict of guilty as regards the matter being libellous, but that he should leave them to consider as to whether or not the plea of justification had been established. The court then adjourned.

Hon. Mr. Cushing, Minister of Public Works for Alberta, was examined in behalf of the defence regarding an article appearing in The Eye-Opener last September relative to a deal, when Cushing bought certain lands at Lethbridge from Howard Douglas for Government purposes. Cushing said there was nothing in the deal. Further, he said he thought the article in The Eye-Opener cast discredit on his honesty. He had known Edwards for some years and knew nothing against him personally.

Dr. Mason, Edward's physician, called by the defence, testified that he did not consider Edwards either a dissolute, a depraved or a degenerate person. During the past year he had not attended Edwards. Previous to that he had attended him for about five years, off and on. He considered Edwards a respectable member of the community, whose only failing was that he drank now and then. He did not believe he was a dope fiend.

SENT TO THE PEN

McCallum of Farmers' Bank Given Four Years.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—For theft of $16,495 from his former employers, the Farmers' Bank, Duncan Cameron McCallum was sentenced to four years in Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate Kingsford yesterday afternoon.

He pleaded guilty and was given his sentence. He was then led away to be photographed, and measured and was at last taken to the jail awaiting transfer to Kingston.

In delivering sentence the magistrate said that it was but one more instance of the pernicious influence of stock gambling and horse race betting.

The shortage was placed at $16,495. Of this $5,063 was covered by assets of McCallum, recovered from various sources. The Fidelity Guarantee Co. bond covers $5,000, and friends have made up the remaining $6,400.

It is understood that McCallum's heaviest losses were on the horses, and that most of his stock ventures, particularly his Cobalt deals, yielded considerable returns.

Special to the Review.

Buffalo, Nov. 12.—Six Chinamen are dead and four are under arrest as the result of an attempt to smuggle ten celestials into Buffalo early this morning. The ten Chinese were coming across the harbor end of the lake in two boats, a launch and a clinker boat. A heavy sea was running and the boats were dashed up against the stone breakwater and wrecked.

THE DEATH OF MR. GEORGE REDDING

Former Peterborough Man Passed Away at Hamilton

Mr. George Redding, formerly of Peterborough, died last evening at the residence of his son-in-law, James Wharton, 95 Elgin Street, aged 67 years. He was a member of L.O.L. No. 779 and was widely known and highly respected in this city and Peterborough. A service will be conducted at the house at 7.30 o'clock to-night and the remains will be sent via the C.P.R. to Peterborough to-morrow.

Two sons, Alexander and Charles Redding, and one daughter, Mrs. Jas. Wharton, survive him.—Hamilton Times.

REPORT OF BORDEN RETIRING IS GIVEN LITTLE CREDENCE

Movement Said to be on Foot to Have Leader of Opposition Take Solicitorship of C.P.R. and Let Vancouver Knight Assume Chieftainship of the Party.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—A despatch from Ottawa to The Evening Telegram last night said:

"It is understood that a movement has been started among certain sections of the Conservative party here to attempt to depose R. L. Borden from the party leadership and replace him by Sir Charles Tupper.

"Those who are behind the movement state that Mr. Borden himself is weary of the political game, and that he would not object to be provided for by the C.P.R., from which it is said he has a standing offer of one of their solicitorships. The plan is to seat Sir Hibbert in Carleton County, which Borden will vacate, and after a decent show of service perhaps for the coming session, allow him to be deposed in favor of the knight from Vancouver. There are, of course, objections to the plan from the wing of the party."

Montreal, Nov. 12.—The news that there is a possibility of Sir Hibbert Tupper running in Carleton has been heard here, but his possible succession to the Conservative leadership is not discussed, and, in fact, the Carleton movement is not taken here as indicating a possibility of a change near, though it may be. The French-Canadians always admired the Tuppers. One thing, however, they cannot understand, and that is why Sir Hibbert backed out of the Pictou contest.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 12.—Conservatives of Nova Scotia would warmly resent any movement to supplant Mr. Borden, but if Mr. Borden of his own motion really desires to give up the leadership, they would no doubt look with more favor upon Sir Hibbert as his successor than upon any one else in sight.

Vancouver, Nov. 12.—Sir C. H. Tupper says he is still out of politics and has no present intention of running.

RULING OF POLICE MAGISTRATE UPSET BY HIS HONOR JUDGE WELLER IN APPEAL CASE

Cornelius Ryan Fined Ten Dollars and Costs for Being Drunk While on the "Black List"---Magistrate Dumble Had Dismissed Charge Against Him---Ruling of Judge an Important One

A ruling of much importance was made by His Honor Judge Weller yesterday, when he reversed the decision of His Worship Dumble given in connection with a charge against Cornelius Ryan, over two months ago.

Ryan, it will be remembered, was charged with being drunk, although he was on the "blacklist." The charge against him was made by License Inspector Joseph Stewart, and the case came up in the police court before Magistrate Dumble. The charge was dismissed by the Magistrate, Mr. Dumble maintaining that the Ontario Legislature had no authority to enact legislation of the nature under which the charge against Ryan was laid. His opinion, as stated at the time, was that a person on the "blacklist" found drunk could not be convicted unless he were found on the premises of a place licensed to sell liquor. Mr. Dumble ruled in the same manner in three cases of this kind that were brought before him.

After Mr. Dumble's ruling in the Ryan case, Mr. Stewart determined to make a test case in order to settle the matter for all time. He consulted with the Attorney-General's department at Toronto, and was advised to appeal against the Police Magistrate's ruling. This was done and the appeal was heard by His Honor Judge Weller at the Court House yesterday afternoon. Mr. Bayley, of the Attorney-General's department, and Mr. W. H. Moore, K. C., appeared in support of the appeal, and Mr. Dumble was present to support his decision.

Mr. Bayley and Mr. Moore showed that the law would be practically useless if those on the blacklist could not be brought to account when found drunk, except on the premises of a licensed hotelman. They could get whiskey and go off and drink it in their homes, on the street and in public places without being liable to conviction.

Mr. Dumble maintained that the Ontario Legislature had no authority to enact legislation of this kind it being ultra vires.

His Honor Judge Weller said he was convinced that the arguments of Mr. Bayley and Mr. Moore were sound and based on the provincial statutes. He therefore reversed Magistrate Dumble's decision and imposed a fine of $10 and costs upon Ryan. This is the minimum fine in connection with the offence. His Honor stated that under the code he could sentence Ryan to one month's imprisonment, but that he would not do it at the present time.

Judge Weller's decision is of provincial as well as local interest.

LIBEL CHARGE LAID AGAINST HAMILTON SPORTING EDITOR

Hamilton, Nov. 11.—This afternoon information was laid by F. C. Mills against M. M. Robinson, of the Spectator staff, charging him with defamatory libel in connection with an article which appeared in that paper one week ago to-day about a boxing bout in Brantford. As the Crown Attorney will be out of the city for the rest of the week, the case will not be called till next Monday. It will be heard at the police court, the case being a criminal one.

Although solicitors for Mills have been after the Spectator people since Thursday for a correction and the name of the writer, the name of the author was not divulged till yesterday afternoon. No correction has yet been made and a suit for damages against the company will be pressed.

BUSY AT ARMOURY

Chief Architect Here Last Week

In Connection With Interior Furnishings.--Lockers Decided Upon

Arrangements are being made at the present time for the interior furnishing of the new armouries.

Chief Architect Fuller, of the Public Works department, Ottawa, was in the city last Saturday and conferred with the officers of the regiment at a meeting held on Saturday night. Mr. Fuller had with him plans of the several types of armoury lockers, and after looking them over the officers picked upon a steel locker that has many good points to recommend it. Each company room will be fitted with forty-two lockers and a writing desk, the band room will have about forty lockers, the bugle band room about thirty, the signalling corps and ambulance corps armouries sixteen each. The band room will also be provided with chairs, a large music rack and compartments for storing the drums.

The lecture room will be provided with fifty chairs, blackboard, etc., and the recreation room with about fifty chairs and several tables.

Splendid progress is being made on the armouries and the interior furnishings will be installed in the near future.

PARCELS FLEW OUT INTO MUD

In Runaway on Charlotte St. This Morning---A Lively Dash

With the roads so bad this is no time for a runaway but a frisky horse this afternoon took it in its head to make things lively and proceeded to do so in a most spectacular manner, on Charlotte street. The horse was standing in front of a grocery store and was frightened by a spatter of slush from the top of the building. Three or four parcels of merchandise were spilled out onto the road, among them being a large quantity of cotton batten which was ruined by falling in the mud.

The horse continued its gallop along the street.

SPECIAL TRAIN MAY BE PUT ON

There is some talk of running a special train from Peterborough to Kingston on Saturday to enable local enthusiasts to see the final game for the Interprovincial championship between Hamilton Tigers and Ottawas. The matter is now being looked into, and it is understood that a big crowd will take in the trip if satisfactory arrangements are made.

MANY LICENSES IN TWO LOCAL TOWNSHIPS TWENTY YEARS AGO

Mr. John Duff, who recently disposed of his general store and grain business at Indian River, to Kidd Bros., of Warsaw, is now residing in Peterborough, having purchased a residence at 839 Water street. Mr. Duff had been in business in Indian River for twenty years. He also had charge of the Postoffice there, being appointed postmaster when it was opened 18 years ago.

Mr. Duff informed a Review representative to-day that when he commenced business at Indian River there were fifteen licensed hotels in Douro township and eighteen in Otonabee. Now there is not a licensed hotel in either township.

MAN GAVE BACK THE GRAFT ASHAMED OF RECEIVING IT

Quebec, Nov. 12.—A sick witness was examined at his own house yesterday afternoon in the Marine Department enquiry. This was Mr. Audibert, bookkeeper for Mr. Drolet, through whose hands all the money passed which was said to have been paid out for Mr. Drolet in presents to the 28 officials recently suspended because of Drolet's evidence.

Mr. Audibert declared that except for possible slight errors, which may have crept in during his work at night, in preparing the statement for Mr. Drolet, the amounts paid out as mentioned in that statement were correct. He went minutely into the figures and being cross-examined, by Mr. O'Farrell's counsel positively denied the existence of any plot between him and other parties to destroy Mr. O'Farrell.

Of the amounts he had paid the latter, O'Farrell returned him $100 because he had made a remark that he was always paying out and never receiving. It was O'Farrell who had asked for the favors in gifts of money. The request, he said, had been made in his own office. The other developments of the day were not less interesting.

CITY TO HAVE NATURAL GAS SUPPLY, IF GAS EXISTS HERE

American Capitalists Securing Leases of Land in North Monaghan and Smith Townships, and Will Commence Boring Soon---Agreement Made With the City Council

If there is natural gas in the vicinity of Peterborough and it can be located by a complete test it is going to be utilized for commercial purposes. A number of American capitalists have been looking into the matter for some time and at last night's meeting of the city council an agreement was entered into giving the company the right to lay their pipes in the streets of the city under certain conditions and to furnish Peterborough with natural gas.

The syndicate of American capitalists is headed by Mr. Chas. E. Dittman, of Waynesburg, Pa., and he has been here for several weeks. He is securing leases on land in the vicinity of Peterborough and when a block of 12,500 acres or thereabouts is secured test wells will be sunk to ascertain if natural gas exists. In securing leases of property Mr. Dittman has been assisted by Mr. R. H. Leary, who is well acquainted with the farmers of the county and who has been of great help in promoting the natural gas proposition.

The Americans do not ask the city for one cent. They are willing to spend up to [illegible] of their own money to ascertain if there is natural gas in the vicinity of Peterborough. If they make a "strike" the city gives them the right to dispose of the gas and do business in Peterborough.

Before starting test wells the syndicate want leases of all property in the first four concessions of Smith and North Monaghan townships lying immediately west of the city. There are about 12,500 acres in the block. Of this area, the company already have leases of 3,500 acres.

TERMS OF LEASE.

The main features of the lease entered into with the farmers are as follows:

"In consideration of the agreements herein contained, the Lessor does hereby grant and lease unto the Lessee for the term of twenty-one years, and so long thereafter as oil, gas or other minerals is produced from the land leased in paying quantities, the exclusive right to drill for and produce petroleum, natural gas and other minerals and to conduct all operations necessary for the production, storage and transportation of oil, or natural gas, and to lay lines on the premises for the purpose of transporting oil or gas from any wells of the second party on this or other properties.

"No wells will be drilled within three hundred feet of main buildings without Lessor's consent.

"The Lessee to deliver to the Lessor on the premises, free of cost, the one-tenth part of all petroleum and other minerals produced and saved from the premises, and to pay fifty dollars per annum for each gas well from which the gas is marketed.

"If the Lessor shall request it, the Lessee shall bury all oil or gas pipes below plow depth.

"Lessee to pay any actual damage to crops or improvements caused by operations, to keep all gates closed and fences as found, and to pay all taxes rated on any property or effects he may place thereon.

"This lease to be null and void and no longer binding on either party if a well is not commenced on the premises within one year from this date, unless the Lessee shall thereafter pay yearly to Lessor twenty-five cents per acre per year for delay.

"Part or all of said rental money can be paid at any time within said term of agreement.

"All money falling due under the terms of this lease may be paid direct to the Lessor or to his credit at the .... bank, ...

"It is further agreed by the party of the first part with the parties of the second part, that in case of the failure on the part of the parties of the second part to comply with the conditions, or to pay the cash considerations herein mentioned, in

Looks as if Some People Were Stung by a Slick Gent With a Scheme

Hastings, Nov. 12.—About six weeks ago a slick fake was worked through Northumberland and Peterborough Counties in this vicinity and they are just now coming to light.

A man representing himself as an agent of a clothing company of Montreal went through this district taking orders for ladies and gents tailor-made clothing. He carried a grand bunch of samples and a grand bunch of talk, which took in several well-known residents. He showed his samples, taking the customers measure in more ways than one, and also accepted a deposit on the suits which were to be delivered in twenty days. The twenty days have gone and enquiries at Montreal seem to bring one to the conclusion that the clothing company is a myth. It looks very much as though it pays to deal at home with those who have a reputation to sustain instead of with peddlers and green goods men.

Three Others Will Likely Die.

Seven Men Are Seriously Injured As Result of Tuesday's Explosion.

North Bay, Nov. 12.—The explosion on the steamer Temiskaming Tuesday evening was an event full of horror and painful incidents. Five deaths resulted and three of the injured will likely die. The dead are:

John Menard, fireman, aged 22, of Temiskaming, died after reaching landing.

John Bergounhan, aged 40, Ville Marie, Que., fireman, instantly killed, leaves wife and six children.

J. McBride, Columbus, Ohio, missing.

E. Chartier, Gatineau Point, died at hospital.

Unknown man missing, supposed to be drowned.

The injured are:

S. F. Laurent, Maissonenve, seriously burned.

P. Roy, Montreal, terribly injured, condition very critical, very low last evening, and not likely to recover.

James Morrison, Liverpool, England, badly burned, may die.

C. Ryan, Ottawa, scalded, little hope of recovery.

Fred Laverdure, Levis, Que., engineer, face and hands burned, not serious.

Joseph Therrien, Hull, Que., hands and head scalded.

James Keenan, Mattawa, condition serious.

Morrison, Ryan and Roy are so badly scalded that they can hardly recover.

The steamer left Haileybury at 8 in the morning with passengers and freight for Temiskaming Station, 38 miles north of Mattawa.

About twenty-five persons were on board, including three women, the cook and two waitresses. Most of the passengers were men from the lumber camps. As the chill of the northern evening settled down on the lake the passengers gathered in the centre of the boat close to the boilers, which accounts for the number scalded.

Within four miles of the steamer's destination an explosion occurred, followed by a rush of hot, scalding steam to all parts of the boat, filling the cabins, which were closed in.

Instantly all was confusion. Mingled with the roar of escaping steam rose the frightful cries of the injured, while the passengers rushed blindly to and fro in the clouds of steam which obscured everything.

Capt. L. E. Jones was in the wheelhouse and immediately threw the wheel and headed the ill-fated boat for the shore, which, fortunately, afforded an ideal place to beach the craft, which was under sufficient headway to reach the shore.

As soon as the nose of the boat ran upon the bank those who were able scrambled ashore, with the exception of Capt. Jones, J. A. Larochelle, managing director of the Temiskaming Navigation Co., and one or two more, who remained behind to rescue the injured. Mrs. Keenan, the cook, and two waitresses were imprisoned in the after cabin and were dragged out of the windows up the side of the boat to the hurricane deck, and thence to the shore.

When the accident happened, J. McBride of Columbus, O.; A. Hunter and C. Ryan of Ottawa jumped into the lake and began to swim to shore. Ryan, though terribly burned, kept afloat for 20 minutes, until rescued by a rowboat. McBride has not been seen since and is undoubtedly drowned. Passengers also state that an unknown man who was on the boat has not been seen since the accident. P. Roy was sleeping on the deck immediately over the boiler, and the explosion forced the planks on which he was lying upward, precipitating him into the hold, which was a furnace of hissing, roaring steam and flying coal. Fifteen tons of coal, piled at one end of the boiler, acted as a buffer and prevented the entire bow being blown from the boat.

Capt. Jones, Mr. Larochelle and two passengers placed the injured in two lifeboats and rowed to Temiskaming Landing, four miles away, while those able walked.

Ryan, with the flesh hanging in strips from his legs, walked the entire distance. At Temiskaming the injured, who were all suffering from burns and scalds, were bandaged up after the wounds were covered with lard, which was the only available material for temporary relief.

The native purity and delicious flavor of "Salada" Tea are preserved by the use of sealed lead packets. Never sold in bulk. It is richer, more fragrant and stronger than other teas.

PENNY CABLE APPROVED OF BY THE LONDON NEWSPAPERS

London, Nov. 12.—The Times says to-day: The widespread interest aroused by the penny cablegram proposals is sufficient proof that it is an object which all are eager to see advanced.

The Times is glad to see that Canada, which has led the way, shows no remission of zeal in regard to the all-red girdle of telegraphs.

The Standard says that nowhere is there stronger evidence that barriers of ignorance and local prejudice are built of false impressions and garbled news than in Canada, whose news comes through United States sources and is not infrequently colored en route. Cheaper cable rates within the Empire would remedy this unfortunate state of things.

Premier Deakin of Australia states that every rate-lowering proposal in connection with the cables would be most cordially welcomed. The Australia Herald says it would be well worth Australia's while to join in liberally subsidizing the service.

The Standard publishes articles with the object of removing misconceptions respecting the Repatriation Act and admits regretfully how large a proportion of unsuitable emigrants are English.

"Why," asks The Standard, "should not Canada have its own fleet, as well as Argentine or Chili? Against some loss of strategic efficiency might be set an immeasurable political gain. Separate navies with a common general staff is the basis of the new naval confederacy."

HOOLIGANISM

Hooligan is the name applied to a species of youthful rough in London who cares for nothing but his own bodily pleasure. The easiest way to accomplish his object is by direct violence. No cruelty is too great in the gaining of his ends. He is a brute of the most sinister kind. Like the English hooligan, only of a more dreaded because more cunning type is the Apache of Paris, so named from the American Indian, whose barbarity he exaggerates. In New York these creatures are called bandits. They are all the lineal descendants of the distinguished gentleman who is described by Milton;

"From morn till noon, from noon till dewy eve he fell."

There are two characteristics that distinguish these blackguards from the ordinary burglar, highwayman, etc. One is that they hunt in bands. The other is their extreme emotionalism. But this emotion is not that of pity or kindness but of the extremest lust and extremest hate. Outside these two demoniac tendencies they are indistinguishable from the ordinary ruffian except for their needless and ferocious cruelty. If there is any one thing that the reader could fancy more horrible than another it belongs to the Apache.

They are female as well as male. They perpetuate their species and threaten to overflow the nation. Desperate beyond belief, heartless and without redeeming feature, they threaten the well-being of the state. They thrive largely too, as did the bravoes of old on the help and employment given them by prominent citizens—men and women of similar tendencies. If outrage is to be committed, robbery or wholesale electoral corruption, they are appealed to and the end is accomplished. It is being continually urged by those who know, that the "christian, civilized world," is a mere crust upon the surface of a lake of hell. Usually even the most ferocious of wild beasts have pity or love for their young, but the Apaches simply lust to destroy. Civilization in its broadest sense is changing but not improving. That is the general opinion of observers. What it has taken years to build up is destroyed even as a cat destroys her young, in a moment of inexplicable madness.

THE CANKER'S GROWTH

Montreal Star; "The success of the Cassels inquiry suggests the wisdom of extending its labors to other departments. Why should we not put every man who does business with any Government department on the stand, and ask him if he has felt it prudent to make presents to Government employees or to let them discount his claims for payment. We might learn some astonishing things. If we found that such a system exists elsewhere, the discovery would be worth many times the cost of the inquiry to the public and we should be even well repaid by being assured that our other departments are trustworthy. Let us know the worst while we are at it, and then we can build better for the future."

The Toronto Globe quotes the above extract from the Montreal Star, doubtless as reflecting its own opinion. The truth is that political life in Canada as a whole is simply awful and men of alleged respectability will continue to profit by it just so long as their own cynical lee finds response in the hearts of an apathetic if not beduped people. Presently it will be no crime to do anything that can be done without the shedding of innocent blood and thereafter that will follow as it has done in Kentucky or Tennessee.

ENGLAND AND LACROSSE

While a most strenuous game, in fact too strenuous for all but athletes, the beauty of lacrosse is its underlying strategy. It is the most strategic of games. There are fifty ladies' clubs playing Canadian lacrosse in England. There are many times that number of men's clubs playing the same game. Since its introduction thirty years ago by Canadians, Englishmen have become wonderfully proficient in it. They are now the equals of Canadians. We may look for some fine inter-imperial contests in future.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Globe publishes a rumor that Hon. W. J. Hanna may go to Ottawa. There is no abler man in Canada than Hon. W. J. Hanna.

"In the face of the firm attitude of England the Kaiser will think twice before provoking France to declare war.—La Patrie.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has recovered from the fatigues of the campaign and is once more attending to official business.

Lord Northcliffe asserts that Canada is better known in Britain than Britain in Canada. There will be nothing left to "patronize" us with if this sort of thing keeps up.

Hamilton has covered itself with glory in the way it "accommodated" the Sheffield choir. Is it any wonder that as the little Greek boy said, "Moder cried when I started for wild Canada."

Laurier's work, as illustrated by the grafting in the Department of Marinne, was more extensive even than was believed. And the majority of the people of Canada, with their eyes open, voted that it should go on. The country is getting as good government as it deserved.—Montreal Gazette.

The Rev. Dr. Carman, in Toronto, says; "The political atmosphere is reeking with the stench of slander, men in high places are debauching the young men of Canada by the recklessness with which the standards of political and social morality are being lowered.

Papa was about to apply the strap.

"Father," said Willie firmly, "unless that instrument has been properly sterilised I desire to protest."

This gave the old man pause.

"Moreover," continued Willie, "the germs that might be released by the violent impact of leather upon a porous textile fabric but lately exposed to the dust of the streets would be apt to affect you deleteriously."

As the strap fell from a nerveless hand Willie sloped. — Philadelphia Ledger.

This objection might very well be taken into consideration by our Board of school Trustees.

"The charges of corruption that have been so falsely made must be so refuted that they recoil upon the head of the accuser; those that have truth in them must be sifted to the bottom, and the guilty ones relegated to obscurity. In all the years I have stood in this pulpit I have never made a partisan utterance, and I shall not begin now. But surely we feel that the question of uprightness in public matters and decency in private life is neither a Liberal nor a Conservative Question. It goes deeper than any political creed, and concerns the good name of this whole Dominion."—Rev. W. T. Herridge.

PRETTY WORK AT HAMILTON

Hamilton, Nov. 11.—If the members of the Sheffield Choir have good reason to remember Hamilton for the enthusiastic reception received here, they will have better cause to remember it for the inconvenience they had in securing hotel accommodation. Local people who looked after their comfort to-day roasted the officials in charge of the Canadian tour. After the concert last night many of them had to shift for accommodation, and at midnight a large section of the male contingent had been unable to get into the hotels, and were obliged to see lodgings in private houses.

In a number of cases the girls were packed seven and eight in a room, and many of them were obliged to sleep on the floor.

At one of the hotels two married couples were obliged to sleep in one room with only a screen between them.

It was intended that all the male members of the choir and those accompanying it should attend the Hamilton Club luncheon after the concert.

"Through stupidity on the part of those in charge," said an officer of the club, "only fifty guests were present."

There was a storm of indignation over the arrangements at the Drill Hall last night. Many of the choristers had to force their way through the crowd.

OF INTEREST

One morning, says a writer in Suburban Life, I gathered a few black ants and a number of their small, brown egg-shaped cocoons, from an ant hill in my yard and placed them in a shallow glass box, an artificial nest, where I watched their behavior.

No long after this I discovered a winged black queen promenading under the apple tree—very likely a blood sister of the others, for when I placed her with the others she was not attacked, as was a large ant with a red thorax that later I introduced among them.

Strange how ants recognise both friends and enemies through the sense of smell rather than by the sense of sight. No sooner do two ants meet than they cross noses so to speak in order to ascertain who is who. If the insects find that they belong to different communities war is at once declared.

This was the case when the ant with the red thorax was confined with the black ants. How vicious both species were, how they snapped at and bit each other. One black ant succeeded in grabbing an antenna, or feeler, of her antagonist to which she held as the big red ant dragged her from place to place.

Another black smelled her opportunity and caught the hind leg of the enemy who was thus greatly handicapped in her movements. Still she succeeded in killing both black ants, although she could not free herself from their death grip, until I came to her assistance.

The queen had remained inactive during the conflict and had taken no part in cleaning up the nest; when all was again in order a worker ant approached her and after short antenna conversation began to tug at her wings. Apparently this was to give the royal sister to understand that she must discard them and assume the responsibility of egg laying the work for which she had been most carefully reared.

The young queen was not inclined to give up her gauzy appendages, however, so presently the worker renewed her efforts to loosen them, but with no show of animosity. Failing to accomplish her purpose, she next caught the queen by her antennas and led her gently about the nest and then held her in a corner for at least twenty minutes.

During this time the other ants came and touched her caressingly with their antennae, and one went so far as to offer her food from its mouth. It was a clear case of coaxing. They wanted this queen mother to deposit eggs and found a new colony. I do not know what arguments finally overcame the queen's reluctance to give up her freedom. The next day I saw that she had yielded to the entreaties of her sisters. She was wingless and depositing very minute eggs.

The black ants have what appears to be good natured wrestling matches among themselves. They are constantly on the move, doing something, carrying the unwieldy cocoons from one place to another, regurgitating food for a companion, or making elaborate toilets.

SCALDED BY BOILING FAT

Couldn't Use Hand for a Month---Zam-Buk Gave Instant Relief

An accident in a Toronto home might have had very serious consequences had it not been for Zam-Buk. Miss Martha Green, of 8 Claremont street in taking a pan of boiling fat from the oven spilt it over her right hand. "The boiling fat ran into the palm of my hand," she says, "and over all my fingers. I was almost wild with pain. The hand became swollen and large blisters formed all over the palm and along the fingers. For over a month it was unable to use the hand at all. I tried several kinds of salves and liniments, but the wound seemed apparently no better. It was altogether too severe for these preparations to heal.

"About this time I was advised to try Zam-Buk. I stopped using all other preparations and applied it instead. The very first application soothed my hand and seemed to draw out the fire and inflammation; and as I kept on using Zam-Buk the blisters gradually dried up and disappeared. In a very short time the wound was healed completely."

This is but one instance of the uses to which Zam-Buk can be so advantageously applied. It is equally effective for burns, cuts, bruises, abrasions, sprains and stiffness. It also cures eczema, ulcers, sores blood poisoning, ringworm, scalp sores, chronic wounds, blackheads, pimples, cold sores, chapped hands, and all skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well on to the chest in cases of cold, it relieves the aching and tightness and applied as an embrocation it cures rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto for receipt of price. 3 boxes for $1.25.

THE HOOK

From Cleveland Leader.

Electio day has come and went;
The ballots has been threw.
And homeward, well or ill content
The voters has withdrew.
The campaign bard no more can croak—
His lyre is broke, they say;
And other liars is also broke,
Than bet the other way.
The People's voice has spoke again
Their country's flag to save.
The suffrage of our countrymen;
A final choice has gave.
The ship of state, with manly stride.
Rolls proudly towards the light—
May them that holds the helm now guide.
Her faltering steps aright.

LABRADOR'S DEVIL-DOGS

FIERCE BRUTES WILL READILY ATTACK HUMAN BEINGS.

Animals Used to Pull Sledges Are Wolf-Like Creatures and Amply Deserve Their Name—Have Been Known to Kill a Man and Children Are Frequent Victims — Whole Family Eaten—Rabies Not Known.

The desolate coast of Labrador, five hundred miles in an air line from Belle Isle to Hudson Strait, peopled by four thousand whites and fifteen hundred Esquimaux, and frequented every summer by twenty-five thousand Newfoundlanders for the cod fishery, is absolutely without roads or any other public utilities; is guiltless of charts, lights or beacons; knew neither mission nor medical aid until Dr. Grenfell established himself there sixteen years ago, and even today all communication in summer is by boat across the waters and in winter by dog teams over the snow-clad wastes. These "devil dogs," as they are frequently called, really deserve that name in many instances, for they often attack and sometimes kill and devour human beings. There are numerous cases of this on record, the most notable being Dr. Grenfell's own narrow escape from the fangs of the venomous brutes in the early part of the present year, which was fully told in the daily newspapers at the time.

These Esquimaux dogs are half wolf in species and will attack any creature they think they can overcome. So dangerous are they to man and beast that their importation into Newfoundland is now forbidden. Dr. Grenfell says that it is no uncommon occurrence in the northern areas, where wolves are plentiful, for these dogs to have pups by wolves, which hover around the fishing stations, and he himself has often seen the wolfish offspring, though one observes but little difference between them and the ordinary dog.

Dillon Wallace, the explorer, describes how, in his winter journey from Ungava to Bradore, a huge gray wolf journeyed with his party for a long stretch, keeping its distance by day, but running in with his pack at night. So savage are these creatures that they have been known to attack and kill a strong, husky man. On April 13, 1908, Robert Cumby, 35 years old, residing near Battle Harbor, started with his dog team, in company with other men, for Lewis Bay to procure firewood. The dogs were vicious, and two men usually went with them.

After crossing the bay on the ice Cumby branched off from the other men, but they had not been separated long when his dogs began fighting. While he was attempting to clear the dogs his feet became entangled among the traces and he fell in the midst of the pack, which turned on him. He fought desperately with an axe, killing two dogs and almost severing the head from another and wounding several, but their number overcame him, and he was literally torn to pieces. A brother of the unfortunate man went to his rescue and narrowly escaped a similar fate. It was only after much time had elapsed and neighbors gathered that the mutilated corpse was rescued. In the same manner the captain of the mail boat brought to St. John's news of the finding of the skeletons of James Lane, his wife and their little boy, who were eaten by dogs the previous December while going from Harrison to the Moravian Mission station at Nain for the Christmas festivities. A severe storm raged, and it is supposed that the man, having pitched his tent, unharnessed the dogs which drew his komatik, when they fell upon and tore him to pieces, his wife and boy meeting the same fate. The dogs, after an absence of ten days, returned without their owner, and, being fat and sleek, the people suspected what had occurred and shot them at once.

While virtually every resident of Labrador has been bitten once or more by these "devil dogs," there has never been a case of hydrophobia. This fact is attested by Dr. Grenfell, who in sixteen years on the coast has come in contact with every settler, even in the remotest parts, and has treated all of them. The dogs are excessively quarrelsome and, wolf-like, hunt in packs and always attack the weaker among themselves, devouring them as they kill them. All seem anxious to take part in a fray, but peace is usually restored, even if twenty or more are engaged in combat, by the application of the dreaded Esquimaux whip used by the settlers. Only the unceasing application of the lash keeps them in subjection. The dog whip consists of a handle about eighteen inches long and a plaited whip of walrus hide about twenty feet long, and with it an expert driver can hit any part of the leading dog he chooses. In the coves and creeks along the seaboard, where the settlers live, no man ventures abroad without his whip. Every woman carries a stout club. It is death to a child to get among the dogs. In the more isolated settlements no visitor dare land without carrying a revolver.

Medicine Hat Cattle Trade.

Reports from the Medicine Hat district give an excellent account of the conditions of the cattle trade there. The season is described as the best that has ever been experienced. The past winter was so mild that the stock lost little weight, and picked up very rapidly in the ensuing spring. Shipments will in consequence be marketed much earlier than last year, and the beef will present a much better appearance. Prices are high, and great satisfaction prevails among the cattlemen. Few if any cattle will go from the district to Chicago this year. Last season over half the output went to that market. This fact may have had some influence on the increased prices offered by Canadian buyers, and also on the more encouraging sentiment now enjoyed by shippers.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Leave Victims to Die.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 12.—Although the deer-hunting season did not open until yesterday, a score of hunters already have been killed and two-score wounded in Wisconsin woods this fall.

In two cases it is reported that men shot in mistake for deer were left to bleed to death, the careless hunter preferring to run away and leave his victim rather than pay the fine for hunting in the closed season.

Earthquake Scare.

San Bernardino, Cal., Nov. 12.—Death Valley and the surrounding country are in the throes of a series of earthquakes, which began three weeks ago, and the most violent of which occurred Wednesday, causing consternation. Many miners and prospectors have fled from the region.

Trolleys Crash.

New Brunswick, N.J., Nov. 12.—Louis Sayre, a motorman, was killed, and several persons injured, in a head-on collision between two trolley cars, due to a misreading of signals on account of the dense fog.

Illegal Sale of Drugs.

China Will Fight Japan.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 12.—Declaring that the youth of China, the younger and more progressive element in the nation, would in a great revolution overthrow the present dynasty, Rev. William Christie, a missionary at the Christian and Mission Alliance, stated that great disturbances were about due in the celestial empire, and also that a war with Japan was in contemplation. Mr. Christie said:

"The object of the revolutionary movement is the overthrow of the present dynasty, which is hated for its conservatism and feared for its power. The unrest is being fostered by the student element.

"China is not afraid of Japan. The Government is working night and day in the training of men for the war with the Japanese, that eventually will come."

Close In Prince Albert.

Prince Albert, Sask., Nov. 12.—Though the full returns of Tuesday's election in Prince Albert will not be in for some days, a Liberal victory is probable, from present appearances. With 65 polls heard from the Liberals claim 37 majority for Ruttan, while the Conservatives claim 12 majority for McKay.

Watterson's Son Killed.

New York, Nov. 12.—Harvey Watterson, a lawyer, son of Henry Watterson, the editor, of Louisville, Ky., fell from a window in his office on the 19th floor of a Wall street building yesterday, landing on the roof of an adjoining building, nine storeys below, and was instantly killed.

Wholesale Bribery.

Chatham, Nov. 12.—Eight charges of corrupt practice will be brought against one of the Liberal workers in the recent Clements-McCoig election. This man, it is said, will be charged with wholesale bribery of English immigrants.

Accidentally Killed.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—Jos. Lepine, aged 40, foreman for the E. B. Eddy Lumber Co., accidentally shot himself last Friday near his camp, about 80 miles above Des Joachims. His body was brought to Ottawa yesterday.

Pleads Conspiracy.

Owen Sound, Nov. 12.—Frank Arkles, who has been running the Pacific Hotel since Oct. 1, was found guilty of selling whisky and ordered to pay a fine of $100 and costs or three months' imprisonment.

He said he was the victim of a conspiracy, as he had never sold a drop of whisky since he took over the hotel. He had had trouble with C.P.R. boarders, and has dismissed sixty of them and now some of these men had got him into this trouble.

Fatally Burned.

Winnipeg, Nov. 12.—J. Hetherington, C.N.R. employe, whose clothes were soaked with gasoline, hung them wet to dry last evening. Later, his wife passed with a candle and her garments caught fire, and the woman was enveloped in flames. Her husband was also badly burned. Both were removed to St. Boniface Hospital, where the woman is dying, but the man is expected to recover.

Yardman Goes to Trial.

Brantford, Nov. 12.—Jos. Maguire, late Grand Trunk yardman, who was held by the company as partially responsible for the recent wreck in which one Brantfordite and two Londoners were killed, was yesterday committed for trial at the next high court Assizes on the charge of manslaughter.

His counsel made an effort to have the charge reduced to neglect.

Gift to Dr. Herridge.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—The congregation of St. Andrew's Church gathered last night to honor Rev. Dr. W. T. Herridge, who has just completed a quarter of a century as pastor of the church. Dr. Herridge was presented with a purse containing $1,700 in gold and a gown and cassock.

Drover Killed.

Kincardine, Nov. 12.—D. Campbell, a drover, died early yesterday morning from the effects of a fall from his buggy, which hit a hydrant in the street Tuesday night.

SARDOU IS BURIED.

Great French Dramatist Mourned by Thousands.

Paris, Nov. 12.—Victorien Sardou, the French author and dramatist who died Nov. 8, was buried in this city yesterday.

He would have been gladly accorded a state funeral had it not been for his expressed wish that he be buried without pomp or ceremony. He was, however, given the military honors always accorded those who have received the grand cross of the Legion of Honor.

Telegrams and letters of condolence continued to pour in on the family of M. Sardou from all parts of the world. King Edward and Queen Amelie, mother of King Emanual of Portugal, sent personal messages, and almost every dramatist and theatrical organization in Europe has paid homage to the famous Frenchman.

Sarah Bernhadt sent the following telegram from Cairo, Egypt: "France loses one of its glories, half Paris a friend, all the unhappy a protector, and we artists our beloved master, Victorien Sardou."

Bryan as Evangelist.

Burlington, Kansas, Nov. 12.—Rev. French E. Oliver, who is holding a revival meeting here, has issued an open letter to W. J. Bryan, urging the Nebraskan to become an evangelist and predicting that Mr. Bryan would become the equal of the Apostle Paul.

"Who knows? Perhaps God has withheld the Presidency from you in order that you may become more to your country than President. I am firmly convinced that one ambassador of Christ of your calibre is worth more to this nation than ten thousand Presidents," writes Dr. Oliver.

Slavery Still In Florida.

New York, Nov. 12.—What was asserted to be the practical marooning of 3,000 on the wild and inaccessible regions of Florida, and their detention there under hard labor for a period of several months, was dealt with at length before Judge Hough and a jury in the United States Circuit Court, in the course of the trial of the Government's case against employers and agents of the Florida East Coast Railway Co., for alleged violation of the statute prohibiting "peonage, slavery and enforced servitude."

Andree's Body Found.

Copenhagen, Nov. 12.—There is reason to believe that the body of Prof. S. A. Andree, the Arctic explorer, who in 1897 made an attempt to reach the North Pole in a balloon, has been found on the coast of Labrador.

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 12.—No report of the finding of a body thought to be that of Andree in Labrador has reached St. John's. Little credence is placed here in the report of the Danish captain.

Protest In Ottawa.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—There is a possibility that the Ottawa Conservatives may protest the election of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and H. B. McGiverin. It is understood that evidence of irregularities have been furnished the executive, which has referred the matter to a committee to look into.

Immigrants Stranded.

Chatham, Nov. 12.—Chatham faces the serious problem of how to keep 100 immigrants, Englishmen and their families, during the coming winter. Nearly all of them are out of work and none of them have any money.

EX-ACTRESS CHARGED.

Madame St. Andre of Montreal on Trial For Attempted Murder.

Montreal, Nov. 12.—Madame St. Andre, who had already been convicted of poisoning a horse, was up yesterday to stand a second trial on a charge of attempted murder.

The ex-actress is alleged to have fired a shot at Leon Duchesne, the owner of a saloon on Rachel street, with intent to kill.

Mr. Duchesne himself was the first witness. According to his evidence, he was entering the side door of his place of business on April 21 last, at noon, when he heard a shot fired and a bullet crashed through the plate glass window of the saloon. He ran in front and saw a cab disappear, but of the occupant's identity he was ignorant.

Questioning revealed that on the night previous to the shooting he met Mme. St. Andre in the Nouveautes Cafe, and during the interview she had threatened to kill him, he said. He left the cafe and walked along St. Catherine street to St. Denis, and following in the rear he descried the figure of the lady he had just left. He became frightened, and applied to a constable for protection.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rambling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

QUEBEC ROBBER CAUGHT.

G. W. Monroe, Alias Portland Fatty, Will Answer Burglary Charge.

New York, Nov. 12.—When several Central Office detectives at once were strolling through Chinatown the other night looking for suspicious characters, they took into custody a party of four men because they had recognized two of them as safe-blowers. One of the strangers, who described himself as George W. Monroe of Cumberland, Maine, made a plea for freedom, saying he knew nothing of the men in whose company he had been found.

Yesterday, Monroe, or as the police say he is better known as "Portland Fatty," is in a cell awaiting the call of Canadian officials, who wish to take him across the border to tell what he knows of the robbery of a bank in Quebec. In the pockets of the prisoner the police found a number of certificates marked "Labanque, Province St. Raphael, Quebec, Canada." Enquiry developed that the bank was robbed Oct. 23.

Clumsy Forger.

St. Catharines, Nov. 12.—The police made a speedy capture of a clumsy forger yesterday. The man gave his name as Robert Collins and said he was from New York. On the prisoner were found other checks in favor of George F. Beaver for $9.40 and $9.45, signed by William H. Bunting in pencil. On the check for $9.40 the prisoner had got whisky worth $1.50 from J. Donnelly of the Geneva Hotel.

WONDERFUL PERFORMANCE ON CYCLES

Reckless Recklaw's Clever Work at the Roller Rink Last Night

It was a large and appreciative audience that again last night witnessed the special performances at the Auditorium roller rink. Reckless Recklaw does one of the best trick bicycle "stunts" ever put on in this city. His feats on the cycle are marvellous, exceedingly clever and furnish excellent entertainment. His acts are done with ease and alacrity and the audience hold their breath while he is going through some of his sensational turns. Reckless Recklaw is assisted in his performance by Miss Fanny Leigh who is an expert roller skater. She glides along the floor, waltzing and doing some difficult steps, easy and gracefully.

Tonight will be their last appearance in Peterborough. In addition to the cycle riding and roller skating by the artists, a race between Reckless Recklaw on his bicycle and Prof Genno on rollers will be given, for a purse of one hundred ollars.

A Common Mistake About Glasses

Many persons think themselves afflicted with some disease of the eye—believe their eyes need medical or surgical treatment—because they are conscious of physical pain or some impairment of the vision, when their whole visual trouble is caused by some error of refraction than can be remedied by proper glasses. No medicine or operation can relieve such cases. Being prejudiced against wearing glasses, even rapidly failing vision sometimes fails to convince them of the truth until too late. How often we hear the remark, "I won't wear glasses as long as I can see without." Just such a vow has ruined many a pair of good eyes. Don't be foolish—IF YOU NEED GLASSES, GET THEM.

Reeve Jordan appeared for the defendant, for whom he entered a plea of "not guilty."

DELEGATES' REPORT HEARD AT KNOX CHURCH LAST NIGHT

A very enthusiastic meeting was held in Knox Presbyterian church last night to hear the report from the delegates to the Laymen's missionary movement convention held in Toronto. After the opening exercises Mr. H. McCannon one of the delegates gave an interesting account of the convention and of the work done. He then described the banquet at which 1000 men were present given at the Excelsior rink being the largest one given in Toronto, closing his address with an appeal to the men of the church to take up the work.

A quartette composed of Messrs. Galley, Barr, Davenport and R. Common gave a fine selection after which Mr R Clifford gave an address on the great call and the practical work done among the Laymen of Canada. A missionary committee was then chosen to carry on the work among the men of Knox church. It was as follows; Messrs. H McCannon, R Clifford, Carruthers and Mr. A. McKenzie.

ADJT. FORKINSON GAVE AN ADDRESS

On His Work Among the Indians of British Columbia at S. A. Barracks Last Evening

There was a large attendance at the Salvation Army barracks last evening, the special feature of the meeting being an address by Adjutant Forkinson of Sundowel, BC. Adjutant Forkinson has been ten years in British Columbia, engaged in mission work among the Indians. His lecture was decidedly interesting. In the street parade last night two members of the local corps were dressed in the garbs of Indians, the costumes and a number of curios being shown by the missionary adjutant.

Staff Captain Goodwin and Captain Meisey retiring from the local corps leave for their new work in Montreal tonight. The new officials, Staff Captain Walton, wife and family, will arrive this evening on the C.P.R. local. They will be met at the train by the band and escorted to the barracks.

STRAIGHT CASE OF DISHONESTY

On the Cobourg Market—"Rank Roguery" Newspaper Calls it

A straight case of dishonesty was reported on the market on Saturday. A well-known local householder while passing hurriedly through the market building, purchased a quantity of butter and eggs, his domestic supply for the week—from a farmers wife—to whom he paid the price asked. As he had no basket with him, he told the woman to keep the butter and eggs while he went out to get a basket. When he returned shortly afterwards, he found that the woman had skidoed and left not an egg behind. The week before, a lady paid a man for some apples at the market, but neither man nor apples have been seen since. This rank roguery will soon ruin the market if it is not put a stop to. —Sentinel-Star.

OBITUARY

JOHN W. BRENNAN.

One of the best known citizens of Peterborough passed away this morning in the person of Mr. John W. Brennan, at his late residence, 589 Alymer street. The late Mr. Brennan had been ailing for some weeks from liver trouble. The news of his death was received throughout the city this morning with the profoundest regret. He was forty-two years of age and before removing to Peterborough was a resident of Belleville. For some time he had charge of the retail store of Alex. Elliott & Co. He was widely known and popular among a large circle of friends and acquaintances. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and one son, who will have the sympathy of a host of friends in their sad bereavement.

Two brothers also survive, Thos., of Wellman's Corners, and William, of Cookstown, Ont.

The funeral will take place on Saturday morning at seven o'clock from the family residence, Alymer street, to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the G.T.R. station, where the remains will be sent to Belleville for interment.

The death occurred last night of Mrs. Robert Armstrong at her late residence, 295 Bethune street after a short illness. She was thirty-three years of age. Her maiden name was Annie E. Sandy, she being a daughter of Mr. Henry Sandy of Manvers. She was married a year ago to her now surviving husband who with one child only a week old is left to mourn her loss.

The remains were shipped to Manvers this morning and interment will take place there on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

CITY TO HAVE NATURAL GAS

the time and manner agreed, then and in that event this lease is to be null and void and not binding on either party, the Lessor to give one month's notice to the Lessee, pointing out the default complained of, so it can be removed before declaring the lease void.

"It is understood between the parties to the agreement that all the conditions between the parties hereunto shall extend to their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns.

"If gas is found on the premises, Lessor to have free use of gas for dwelling house situated on same premises, used by economical appliances, and during said term.

Farmers should have no apprehension as to giving leases as the matter is perfectly legitimate. There is no "catch" about it in any way, the terms of the lease being plain and simple.

The gentlemen associated with Mr. Dittman are all reputable business men residing in the vicinity of Waynesburg, Pa. They control the natural gas company in that town and are interested in several companies in the State of Pennsylvania. They have plenty of capital and are willing to spend a large sum to ascertain if there is natural gas in this locality.

AGREEMENT PASSED.

At the meeting of the city council last night at which Mayor Rush presided, an agreement was entered into between the city and the syndicate the text of which is given below. It was prepared by City Solicitor Hall and was passed by the council after careful consideration of each clause.

If natural gas is found in sufficient quantities it will be supplied to the citizens for domestic purposes (lighting and heating), and for manufacturing purposes within the next two years. Operations must be begun before January 1st next.

This should be great news to all Peterborough. Many know how convenient manufactured gas is for cooking purposes. They will realise what natural gas would mean for heating, cooking and lighting, and especially when it will be furnished for 50 cts. per 1,000 cubic feet or less. It means doing away largely with the handling of fuel. There will be no more ashes or dirt, and once the gas is lit it requires no more attention except to regulate the amount of heat.

In connection with the securing of leases it is essential that the syndicate secures a solid block of land. It would not do to jump one farm for if gas is found near it speculators would then start to come in and those who had spent their money to ascertain if there was natural gas would be "held up." This would manifestly be unfair to them.

Four test wells will be put down as soon as the leases are secured. A six inch shaft will be sunk to the depth of 2,000 feet if necessary. These will be put down at four points. The land will not be injured. Operations will be commenced as soon as all the leases are secured.

Those present at last night's meeting of the city council were Mayor Rush, Ald. Johnston, Tovey, Elliott, Morgan, Buller, Bradburn, Gillespie, Neill, McIntyre and Phelan.

THE AGREEMENT.

The agreement between the city and the promoters of the gas proposition, passed at last night's meeting of the City Council is as follows:

Agreement between the Corporation of the City of Peterborough and Charles E. Dittman, of Waynesborg, Pa., who with his associates propose to make tests and borings in the vicinity of Peterborough for the purpose of ascertaining if sufficient natural gas can be obtained to enable them to supply the inhabitants of the city with the same for domestic and manufacturing purposes. They have requested the Council to agree that if natural gas should be found in sufficient quantities, to grant him or his company to be hereafter formed the right to use the streets and public lanes for laying pipes for supplying gas to the consumer. In the opinion of the Council it is desirable and in the public interests to grant such a request, subject to the terms hereinafter mentioned.

The agreement is that Mr. Dittman and his associates, will, as soon as possible, and not later than January, 1909, commence boring operations and spend at least $6,000 on same, and take such other action as may be necessary to ascertain if a sufficient supply of gas can be obtained in the vicinity of Peterborough.

That if such natural gas be found within two years from the date thereof Mr. Dittman and his company shall in that time lay the necessary pipes from the source of the gas to the city and do other necessary work, and will supply the inhabitants of the said city with the same.

That the pressure of such natural gas shall be not less than four ounces per square inch to the meter of the consumer and the price to be charged therefor shall not exceed 50 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for domestic use, and 25 cents per 1,000 for manufacturing purposes.

That at all times a good and efficient service shall be furnished to the citizens desiring to use it, so long as there is a sufficient supply.

In case Mr. Dittman and his associates fail to furnish the natural gas and instal the system in the time specified, or fail to operate same at any time after such installation, except in case of strike, accidents, etc., or should they form a combine or amalgamate with or sell to any other person or company doing a like business in the city, then the rights to use the streets shall cease, or in case of the breach of any of the terms after notice has been given by the corporation of the default and the same has not been remedied within two months.

That before Mr. Dittman or his associates shall lay, relay or change any pipes for the distribution of gas, an application accompanied by a plan and profile shall be furnished the city engineer, and shall be subjected to his approval. Such application must be made before the first of April in any year, or else the express consent of the Council must be secured.

All the work must be done under the control and to the satisfaction of the city engineer and the company shall not do unnecessary damage or obstruct traffic while the work is in progress, and the streets and lanes must be kept in as good condition as before the work was started.

That the company shall indemnify and keep indemnified the city from all claim or damages, etc., arising by reason of the work, and shall pay all persons or firms or corporation such damages that may be sustained.

The city reserves the right to appoint the street commissioner or other person to superintend the work, and the company shall pay the reasonable expense of such superintendence.

The city agrees that for twenty years from Jan. 1st, 1909, to allow Mr. Dittman and his associates to use such streets or public lanes as may be required for their purposes, but the city has still full control of the streets and lanes.

The city also agrees that for the first ten years of the twenty years the city will not grant or allow any other person, firm, or corporation the use of the streets or public lanes for the purpose of laying pipes for the supply of natural gas.

OF INTEREST

A project to harmonize the beauties of nature upon the heights fronting on the Ottawa and to build a driveway upon the top of the cliff from the new hotel at Major's Hill Park down to Earnscliffe, was explained to the Citizen recently by a prominent member of the Ottawa Improvement commission. It is felt by many interested in the beautification of the capital that any such work is incomplete without the utilization of the striking landscape effect presented by the noble rise of Parliament hill and Nepean and the other elevations along the Ottawa. Rudyard Kipling, during his recent visit to the city, was particularly impressed with this feature of the local scenery and exclaimed in his enthusiasm, "This is a new St. Petersburg!" Their Excellencies Earl and Countess Grey, whose suggestions have been of great value to the Improvement commission so far, are particularly interested in this new feature of the work. It is not improbable that the $100,000 which the Grand Trunk railway will pay next year for the land upon Major's Hill Park where their hotel is to be erected, will be used for this ppurpose.

Should this new scheme be carried out, no spot of natural beauty along the river bank would be despoiled. The present lovers' walk would remain untouched. Perhaps the main featur eof the driveway would be the stretch leading along the brow of the hill from the new hotel to Earnscliffe. This driveway would divide two sections at the hotel, one road leading by on either side. A subway over the road leading into the Interprovincial bridge has been proposed to overcome that obstacle, while, for the passage of the point in the cliff where the Government mint now stands, the engineer states that breatsworks such as have already been used at Rockliffe, could be utilised to overcome the difficulty arising from the mint's proximity to the edg eof the cliff.

The stretch of the driveway from the hotel to Earnscliffe would be well lighted and a band stand would be built close by. As a public promenade, this would be unequalled by any in the world. A good number of seats would be placed along the side and the beautiful view from the top of the cliff would be open before the promenaders. Compared with the Ottawa esplanade, the one at Quebec would fad einto insignificance.

Lord Milner, recently the city's honored guest, was much impressed with Ottawa's present beauty and her possibilities along this line. At the conclusion of the Canadian Club luncheon on Saturday he was driven to Rockcliffe, and there planted two trees, a beautiful maple and a rock elm, in the grounds of the National Park, just off the driveway.

Sir,—As a taxpayer and a Catholic I feel that the resolution of the City Council to put up a monument to the late Mrs. Nicholls is unfair. WANTED TO HAVE MATCH HERE

Rogers Manager Was Desirous of Matching Westergaardt and the Yankee—Westergaardt Injured

A despatch from Montreal says;—

The match between the big Turk, Yussiff Mahmout, and Jess Westergaardt, which was to have been the card at Sohmer Park, was declared off during the week, as the latter had his shoulder put out of business by Jim Parr last Friday night, when he defeated Parr in two and eight minutes, and he has been obliged to lay up for two or three weeks. As soon as he is in proper shape he will meet the Turk in this city.

W. B. Naylor, 11 McKay street, the manager of Yankee Rogers, wanted to get a match on between Westergaardt and Rogers, the bout to be held in Peterborough, but no arrangements were made on account of Westergaardt's injuries.

JAP WANTS TO MEET SHRUBB

Jujiro Wade Would Like to Take on Englishman at any Distance From 25 to 50 Miles

Vancouver, Nov. 11.—Jujiro Wada, the famous Japanese musher and long distance runner, has been heard from again From away in the wilds of the far north, up near the Arctic circle, where he has been since last spring, the long-distance champion of Alaska has written to his former manager, S. B. Johnston, of this city, asking that a match be arranged with Alfred Shrubb, the English long-distance world's champion.

Wada, who holds the long-distance championship of Alaska and the far north at all distances from 15 miles up to 50, would like to meet Shrubb in a race of from 25 to 50 miles at the A.Y.P. Fair at Seattle next spring.

Wada has won two 35-mile races, one 25-mile event and one 50-mile event, all in Nome. One of these netted him a purse of $2,000 and the championship of the north.

Wada specified that the race with Shrubb must not be over a lesser distance than 25 miles—and he would rather make it 50. Wada is the idol of the sporting men in the north, and they would back him to their last cent in such a match even against such a noted runner as Shrubb.

RED LAMONT IN CALGARY

George Benjamin, the former secretary-treasurer of the old Toronto Rugby Football Club, is now located at Calgary, and writes as follows to The Toronto Star about Rugby in Alberta;

"Red Lamont and myself are now humble spectators at the great Rugby games in this most energetic and thriving metropolis. Red played one game, but he did not show class, and drew the big blue envelope.

"We have a big three-team league out here, namely, the Tigers (minus their claws), the Y.M.C.A. (and heap much cursing), and least, but well in the last, the 'illcrest and 'ornets, a club composed of the "by Jove outfit, who play rugger, you know."

"So far the Y.M.C.A. have it on them all, and they play great ball; just the same as Hamilton, 12.22.34, quarter through the middle, wing, and if the play does not go, same signal, and play it over again, unless the wind is blowing about 9,000 miles an hour, when they will kick. The Tigers play the same sort of game, but not quite so well, and as for the 'illcrest 'ornets' "they do beastly fine if they could get the bally ball out of the scrim, old chap, but it won't come out, you know."

"So far the attendance on fine days to matches runs about 4,000,000, but in real cash does not exceed $13 u.t. (For your information u.t. stands for useless tinsel.")

Red Lamont is well known in Peterborough having been a conspicuous member of the local baseball team a few years ago.

IS ANXIOUS FOR THE RACE

Shrubb Wants to Meet Longboat as Soon as Possible—Flanagan Ready for 20 Miles

Boston, Nov. 11.—Alfred Shrubb claims that he can beat Dorando, Hayes, Longboat or Deerfoot or anybody else, but he is dead set on racing Longboat. He says he expected to be accommodated with a race when Tom turned pro., but he sees no apparent desire on the part of Flanagan to hitch up the two.

"I will run Longboat 15 miles, and bet any amount from $100 to $5,000 that I will beat him, and I will go to Toronto and do it right at his own doors if I can get him into a match," said Shrubb.

FLANAGAN IS READY.

When the above despatch was shown to Tom Flanagan, he said Shrubb could have a twenty mile race any old time he wanted it, but not at fifteen miles. The Englishman wouldn't have any trouble having his money covered in Toronto at that distance either.

TOM GOES VISITING.

Deseronto, Nov. 11.—Tom Longboat is here visiting the Mohawk Reservation, which he visited a short time ago. He was welcomed by a number of Deseronto young men.

DEERFOOT AT BUFFALO.

Buffalo, Nov. 11.—Matthew Deerfoot, the Colorado long-distance runner, arrived here yesterday from Chicago. He is on his way to New York where he hopes to arrange matches with Dorando.

Deerfoot is well educated having attended educational institutions on the Pacific coast.

He wants to meet Longboat in a five or ten mile race, but is trying to meet Dorando first in New York and would back himself for $5,000 for the race.

RUGBY

George Mara, middle wing of T. A.A.C., is playing in his brilliant old-time form. In all his four games this year he has done two men's work. Last year a bad ankle made it impossible for him to do justice to himself.—Mail and Empire.

THE RING

San Francisco, Nov. 10.—All doubt as to the date for the Burns-Johnson fight at Sydney, Australia, was ended last night by the receipt of a cablegram from Hugh McIntosh, the Antipodean fight promoter, who will stage the world's heavyweight championship battle. McIntosh, in his message, declared that the fight would take place December 26th, at at 11 o'clock in the morning. December 1 and December 26 had been mentioned as the date for the battle.

RUNNING

Simpson Should Have Won

Holmer cut loose going home and rounding into York street he had the race safe, with Fred Simpson coming like a whirlwind for second place, which he eventually got catching Parsons before the finish was in sight. The Manitoba boy tired badly in the run home and Simpson finishing very strong looked good for first place had the race been a mile farther. In fact the Indian was the freshest man in the race and simply lost first place through the fact that he expected Coley to be the man to beat, and stuck to him until it was too late to catch Holmer. Had Simpson set sail earlier in the race he would have been a sure enough winner as he had all the speed and was in grand shape at the finish.—Hamilton Spectator.

LINDSAY WOULD TAKE WELL TO A GOOD AMATEUR PLAY

The Lindsay Warder says;

Mr. Irving Beers, a well known actor, was in town yesterday for a few hours and called on the Warder. Mr. Beers has been identified with the amateur production of "All the Comforts of Home," which was presented in Peterborough last week by Peterborough talent. Mr. Beers is the manager of the company and instructs the actors as to their respective parts. He carries with him all the costumes worn in the play, which by the way, is a well written four act comedy. It took well in Peterborough and Mr. Beers visited Lindsay with the intention of organizing the Lindsay amateurs with a view to putting on the play or some other play, in Lindsay in about five weeks time.

The production was presented in Peterborough under the auspices of the Peterborough Hockey Club, and if staged in Lindsay will likely be as a benefit for the Lindsay rugby club, which is deserving of the support of the citizens.

It is the intention of Mr. Beers to bring the Peterborough company to Lindsay about the end of the coming week, and then commence and work up the same play or a new play for the Lindsay amateurs.

Amateur productions have taken well in the past and no doubt Lindsay theatre-goers will welcome the coming attraction.

Mr. Beers returned to Peterborough last evening and will return at the end of the week to make arrangements for the presentment of "All the Comforts of Home."

A good dramatic club would take well in Lindsay and this would probably result in the organization of the Lindsay Dramatic Club. Other towns and cities support such clubs and even some of the small villages in this vicinity boast of dramatic clubs. Therefore the introduction of an amateur play at the present season of the year might lead to the organization of such a club.

PLANS ON FOOT FOR NEW DAM FOR WATERWORKS SYSTEM

And Also a New Pump House—Water Commissioners Have Report from Engineers on the Matter—Council Approves the Action.

Plans are in hand for the construction of a new dam and pump house for the waterworks system in Peterborough. A competent engineer, Mr Kennedy, of Montreal, has made a report on the matter and it is likely that the proposition will be carried out. The Water Commissioners were present at last night's meeting of the city council. They have had the matter under consideration for several months. Several engineers have looked over the situation and made reports.

Mr O'Keefe, of Montreal, recommended that a new dam at $75,000 in 1904 be built, but this did not seem satisfactory as it was thought it would be cheaper to build a short distance below the present dam. Recently the water commission decided to communicate with Mr. Kennedy of Montreal, an engineer well known in Canada and especially in the Ottawa Valley. Mr Kennedy asked for certain soundings and measurements and has made a report. This report Mr. Matthews stated the commissioners thought would be better to lay before the council before anything further was done towards placing a bylaw before the people to raise the required money. Mr. Matthews then read the letter from Mr. Kennedy and also his report.

After reading the report Mr. Matthews stated that the commissioners thought it would be advisable to go further into the matter and secure full details and put themselves in a position to decide what to do. He would like the council to sanction the commissioners' action at tonight's meeting.

Ald. Butler suggested that the power committee and the water commissioners have a joint meeting and take the matter up at once. He stated that he understood the power committee was working along similar lines.

It was moved by Ald. Johnston and Ald. Phelan that the city council approve of the plan of the water commissioners in securing the preliminary plans from Mr. Kennedy, jr. of Montreal, of the waterworks property.—Carried.

HOAGLAND READY FOR RACE WITH WOLFF, OF MONTREAL

Has Written to Montreal Star, Accepting Wolff's Defi—Chris. Graham Looking After Champion's Interests—Match Must Be for $250.00 or More

The Montreal Star says;—Hoagland, writing from Peterborough, dated Nov. 9th, says in part:—I have a walking contest in this city, today against Mr. Jim Harrison, of this city. I allow him one mile in nine hours. I must return to my home at the conclusion of this race, but would glady return and walk Mr. Wolff in your city, and will make a match with him if he will post a forfeit for a race of any distance he may name, but the match must be for $250 or more. Mr. Wolff's address, he says, is 346 Lagachediere street west, Montreal. He can communicate with Mr. C. G. Graham, of Peterborough, who will attend to details for me. Trusting Mr. Wolff means business.

I remain, yours truly,
W. A. HOAGLAND,

BRUCE RIDPATH FOR PITTSBURG

Will Play Hockey There Until Ontario Pro. Season Opens

"Cop." Corbeau, the cover-point of the Toronto professional team; Ken. Mallen, the left wing of the Montreals, and Jack Mallen, his brother, who was with the Pittsburg Lyceums last season, left Toronto for Pittsburg on Saturday night.

"Newsy" Lalonde, Bruce Ridpath, and Walter Mercer, the Toronto's forward, will go down. The Toronto men will only stay until the Ontario pro. season opens. The Pittsburg season opens to-night. The Toronto men should be in good shape when they come back.—Toronto Star.

CORKERY THE FIND OF THE SEASON

Peterborough Boy Putting up Great Game for Ottawa College

The Ottawa Citizen says;

McGill and Ottawa College are old rivals and the game here on Saturday undoubtedly will be a hummer. The College team will be the same as that which played at Queen's although Fleming, who made a good showing against Ottawas may catch a place on the line. Corkery, who is one of the sensations of the season in the Intercollegiate will be kept at right half.

Corkery's playing has been marvelous for a youth of his age and weigh, but the boy has speed and football brains to burn and Father Stanton thinks that he will make 'em all sit up and take notice.

SPORTING TALK

The YMCA boxing class will be held Friday night instead of tonight.

Father Stanton thinks young Corkery is the makings of one of the finest half backs in the game. —Ottawa Citizen

The Central YMCA. basket ball team wants a game with the locals. The Toronto aggregation will probably be accommodated.

A YMCA. boxing and wrestling tournament will probably be held when members of the classes become more proficient and if it is the public will have an opportunity of witnessing clever and interesting sport.

As will be seen in another item on the sporting page, Hoagland has accepted the challenge of Wolfe, the Montreal walker, who threw down the gauntlet to any Canadian pedestrian for a race for any distance from 40 miles up. If Harrison had won from Hoagland he would have taken up the Montrealer's challenge.

Great headway is being made at the boxing and wrestling classes at the YMCA under the painstaking and thorough instructions. Mr. C. G. Graham, who is looking after the boxers, and Mr. S. W Collings, who is instructing the wrestlers. Their pupils are picking up the points of the games very quickly and some of them promise to develop into fast men.

AMERICAN GAME IS DANGEROUS

Eight Deaths and a Many Injuries so Far This Year

Buffalo, Nov. 11.—Although the "new" game of football has undoubtedly done away with the old mass play to a certain extent, the fact still remains that the deaths and injuries from football are piling up as usual this season. Football is, without question, the most strenuous of all sports, and so long as the game is played, accidents are bound to result. So far this fall, with the season little more than half over, eight deaths, seventeen injuries involving broken limbs and seven miscellaneous injuries are recorded on the list of gridiron accidents. It is a noticeable fact, however, that in nearly every instance the fatalities or injury, as the case may be, can be traced directly to the undertrained condition of the players.

EIGHT DEATHS SO FAR.

Of the eight deaths that have resulted from football this fall, each fatality has been caused by different injuries. Internal, head and spinal column injuries, aggravated heart failure, dislocation of the neck and concussion of the brain have been the cause of death. In addition to the broken limbs, which are the most serious of the non-fatal hurts, minor injuries too numerous to attempt to record are occurring daily on the different gridirons. Sprained ankles, and twisted legs, strained wrists and necks and "charley horses" are results of the great fall game that the traiers have to care for intermittently.

VARSITY MEN SUFFER.

Many of the big five elevens have been handicapped this fall by injuries to Varsity men and especially to captains. Burch and Burr, the Yale and Harvard leaders, are out of the game in all probability until these teams meet. Eddie Dillon, of Princeton, and Bell Hollenbach, of Pennsylvania, have been absent from the line-up many times this season. Many injuries also result when an undertrained big university team plays a well-conditioned eleven from a small college in an early season game.

BASEBALL IS AS BAD.

It is an interesting fact, however, that, while football is generally regarded with horror by persons unfamiliar with the game, by reason of the many accidents, baseball the past season claimed seventeen deaths and 250 injuries. This proves the statement that, although football is unquestionably the most strenuous of all sport, if the players are properly trained accidents are less liable to occur than in the great national game.

LONGBOAT BEAT RELAY

Kingston, Nov. 11 —Tom Longboat made his first appearance as a professional at the Kingston roller rink this evening. His manager, Tom Flanagan, arrived at noon, but the Indian did not arrive till 5 o'clock coming down from Deseronto behind a spanking team of greys, in company with an Indian girl from the reserve. Mr. Flanagan said that if the weather conditions were favorable he might keep Longboat here a while to train.

At 9 o'clock twelve hundred people were assembled to see Tom do five miles in the rink. That track was laid out around the outside edge of the skating surface. Thirteen laps around made a mile. Three of Kingston's best runners went after the Indian.

Longboat took the lead after the first five laps and never lost it. He covered the distance in about 28 minutes. T. T Thompson, physical director of the YMCA; P. McMaster, and Private Billedeau, RCHA. were the Kingston men running, the first two men doing two miles each.

DOCTOR IN THE ARCTIC.

English Medical Man Goes to Work Among the Esquimaux.

Dr. James F. Rymer, who is a native of Croydon, and graduated at the Royal College of Surgeons in 1887 will shortly gain the distinction of being the first fully-qualified English medical man to take up permanent residence and carry on professional work within the Arctic Circle. After serving eight years as medical officer at the Carthusian Monastery in Sussex, Dr. Rymer went to Canada, and for the past six months has lived at Edmonton, Alberta. A few days ago he left there on a lonely journey of 1,300 miles along the Athabasca and Mackenzie rivers, his destination being Fort Good Hope, which is about 100 miles within the Arctic Circle. He has sufficient medicine in concentrated forms to last a year, and has arranged for more to be forwarded later. His clients for medical and surgical treatment will be the Indians and Esquimaux in the vicinity of Fort Good Hope and Fort Macpherson. Several forms of disease and fevers often break out among these natives, and as they have had no skilled attention in the past the loss of life has been enormous. Dr. Rymer will endeavor to persuade them to better obey the laws of health, and will care for them when sick. He can speak French, which is the only language other than their own that the Indians understand, and intends at once studying the language of Indians and Esquimaux as soon as he arrives. At his headquarters he will not have more than five white companions, these being connected with a Roman Catholic mission and a trading post. Dr. Rymer's hobby will be photography, and as opportunity offers he proposes to go prospecting in some of the districts of the Far North hitherto unexplored.

WHAT GREAT MEN ATE.

Venison Was Favorite Meat of Sir Walter Scott.

Peter the Great consumed baked goose stuffed with apples, and considered it a fine dish.

Frederick the Great made a satisfactory meal on salt beef or pork and cabbage.

Henry VIII. could always eat himself into a condition of sleepiness on a haunch of venison.

Alexander the Great, when on a campaign, ate the rations of a common soldier.

Pius IX., during most of his pontificate, ate only an egg and bit of toast for breakfast.

Macaulay said that no man need ask for better food than plain roast beef and baked potatoes.

Fielding said that tarts made with currant jelly were "heaven's own food."

Kaulbach enjoyed sauerkraut and pork beyond all other kinds of food. He once said that "cabbage and German go well together."

Rare Ben Johnson asked no better treat than a pork pie with an abundance of Canary wine.

Locke considered that the proper breakfast for a studious man was a bit of fish and a piece of bread.

Michael Angelo, during the most part of his life, lived plainly on the food of an Italian peasant.

Famous Essex Church.

Essex is rich in ecclesiastical architectural beauties, and Benfleet contains one of the most ancient in the county. Some portions date back several centuries, and there is a particularly beautiful carved porch over the principal doorway. Another feature is the ancient western doorway leading to the tower, which, with the stone steps in the wall, formerly leading to the loft, is one of the oldest pieces of the structure. A brass inscription records the splendid work of a former vicar in the following terms: "To the memory of John Arthur Cook, vicar and rural dean, died 1856. Always unwearied in the discharge of his sacred duties when this parish was terribly visited by cholera, A.D. 1854. He devoted himself night and day to the care of the sick, nursing them himself, and with his own hands performing the most servile and menial offices, and discharging his priestly functions in the intervals of their suffering. Forty persons died of the pestilence in one month, and for seven days and nights he never went to his bed, and his own house received one of the sufferers from the roadside. Acting with like devotion during a visitation of fever he laid down his life with and for the suffering members of Christ."

What the Officer Saw.

A certain regiment was on the march from Dover to Aldershot. It was the rule to march by companies, with a few minutes' interval between each, and to keep each other in sight, the band and drums leading.

Starting off at a good pace and not taking notice of the regulation halt, the band soon got a long way ahead of the others. On reaching a bend in one of the hills they halted for a fey minutes to have a rest. Presently up galloped a mounted officer in hot haste and shouted for the band sergeant.

"What do you mean," he said, "by getting out of sight of the leading company?"

"We were not out of sight, sir," answered the sergeant.

"What do you mean by telling me that?" exclaimed the officer, in a rage. "You were out of sight. I saw you myself."

The Largest Reptile.

The largest existent reptile is the man-eating salt water crocodile of southern Asia and Australia, which, when full grown, measures thirty feet in length from end of nose to tip of tail. One man makes hardly more than a mouthful for this fearsome creature. Prof. Koch's novel theory that the bite of the crocodile is responsible for the strange malady known as sleeping sickness has a kind of grim humor when one thinks of this monster. Its bite usually produces a sleep that knows no earthly waking.—London Graphic.

No liquor licenses have ever been issued in the Mormon settlement in Alberta.

UNIQUENESS WANTED.

Where is the out of town resort
Where men are so extremely short—
Or scarce? I'd like a true report—
Authentic information.
I'd like to know where maidens fair
Find that condition hard to bear.
I'd like to save them from despair
Through my two weeks' vacation.

The only pebble on the beach,
I'd be extremely nice to each;
I'd take them out to row and teach
Them all the art of swimming.
Impartially with all I'd spoon,
With all admire the lovely moon.
My cup of joy at such a boon
Would be quite overbrimming.

For generally, I admit,
I do not seem to make a hit;
The girls seem bored a little bit
Whenever I go near them.
But if they really had no choice
My manly form and manly voice
Might make their lonely hearts rejoice.
I'd love to go and cheer them.

Giving Him Encouragement.

Emulation.

The Proving.

By GRANT OWEN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"I don't just know how to explain it," said Margaret West.

She turned her eyes from the cool, blue stretches of the lake and looked thoughtfully at Graham, who, perched on the rail of the boathouse, was absently pulling at the fingers of the gauntlets in his hands.

The young man stiffened, and a slow smile, in which there was a hint of grimness, curved the corners of his mouth.

"I rather think I understand," he said quietly. "You are disappointed in me. Isn't that it?"

She was silent for a moment.

"Yes, that is it," she said at length, and at something in her voice his face hardened.

"Then you wanted me to enter that road race Thursday?" he asked.

"Yes," she said simply.

"And because I won't"—

She turned to him quickly.

"It isn't that I'm tremendously interested in that race," she interrupted him, "nor that I care a snap whether or not you win it. The point is—the point is"—

She paused; her brows drew together in a little frown; her fingers toyed nervously with a bit of wisteria she had broken from the vine that covered the porch.

"I wanted you to be in it—to go over the course. That would be sufficient," she finished.

"I see," he said. "You wanted me to disprove these stories that are going the rounds about my lack of nerve. Is that it?"

"Yes," she said again.

He drew himself up. His shoulders were squared. His attitude was that of a man summoning to his aid all his moral courage.

"The stories they have told you are quite correct," he said, somewhat huskily.

"Oh!" she said, and in her voice there was something of pain and something, too, of weariness, as if she had been expecting this very thing and yet was unwilling, even in her preparedness, to hear it.

"They are perfectly right in what they say of me," he went on calmly. "I have lost my nerve. There's nothing would tempt me to take up road racing again."

"Nothing?" she questioned.

"Nothing," he repeated inexorably. "I am not in the habit of offering an explanation nor any excuses for my position in the matter. But I would like you to know the circumstances. Would you care to listen to them?"

"If you choose to tell me," she said dully.

"You remember that race three years ago over the Meadow island course?" said he. "Well, it was then it happened. Stanley was with me. He and I had a good lead. We were tearing past the curve at the old church, letting out the car for all there was in her. As we swung that turn I saw a child just in front of us not twenty feet away, it seemed.

"How she got past the ropes that held the crowd back I can't say, but there she was right in the course and not a ghost of a show apparently of escaping us. I don't know to this day what saved her. I only know there was a great gasping sigh from Stanley and a groan from the crowd. I tried to swing out for her, but there was so little time. Anyway, it was some sort of a special Providence that saved her. We shot past her, so close that I shut my eyes."

The girl saw a nervous tremor shake the big shoulders. Her eyes narrowed.

"But the child wasn't hurt, you say?" she asked.

"Not in the least. But those few seconds were enough for me. I couldn't stand them again. That is why I am out of the game—a quitter, if you choose to put it that way."

The girl said nothing. She sat looking out at the sparkling lake with troubled eyes.

At length Graham arose.

"I don't blame you in the least for thinking of me as you do," said he, "nor for being disappointed. Goodby."

He slid from the rail and went down the steps to the big road car standing in the driveway. He had pulled on his gauntlets and was just climbing into the car when around the corner of the boathouse came a wild eyed, disheveled gardener from one of the houses down the street.

"Mr. Graham, sir," he panted, "will you be gettin' the doctor, quick! Tim Comley's fell from the stagin' on the stables where they're paintin' an' he's hurted bad, sir. 'Tis dead he'll be in ten minutes if the doctor's not fetched before that. Hurry! For God's sake, hurry!"

"I'll have him here in five," Graham called, and opened up the big car.

It sprang forward like a thing alive and went tearing down the driveway in a great cloud of dust.

Margaret, who had run to the edge of the veranda, saw him swing into the roadway beyond, and the drifting dust which rose high above the poplars told of the terrific pace he was setting.

It was four minutes later, after a nervous pacing of the veranda, that she heard the whir of the approaching car again. She ran down the steps and hurried along the drive to the roadway. Up the hill, with honking horn, came a dull, black streak. She could see Graham bending low over the steering wheel and the doctor, hatless and begrimed with dust, clinging desperately to the seat beside him.

Then out of the crossroad just below where she stood and directly in the path of the coming cyclone came a rattling farm wagon, driven by old Mrs. Clark, who was as deaf as a post. The girl covered her eyes and screamed. There were a wild yell, the sound of splintered wood and a terrific grinding crash.

When Margaret looked again the wagon alone was in the road. The automobile, turned on its side, lay against the shattered fence. In the field beyond lay two huddled figures.

In a moment the girl was running in that direction with all the speed she could summon. As she reached the scene of the accident one of the two figures scrambled limply to his feet. The other painfully propped itself upon an elbow. Then she saw that the man who stood erect was the doctor.

Even as she came running into the field she heard Graham's voice, rather faint, it is true, but perfectly calm.

"How badly are you hurt, doc?" it inquired.

"Only a bit," was the response, "a few bruises and a scratch or two."

"Then get up to the Copley place as fast as you can."

"But you?" the doctor demurred.

"I'm all right. Never mind me. I'll be fresh as a lark when you get back. Hurry on now."

Margaret ran to his side and, kneeling down, began to wipe the blood from his face. Already the doctor was making a hurried examination, while Graham fumed and fretted and bade him hurry to Tim Conley.

"H'm!" said the doctor at length. "Pretty badly smashed up, but we're lucky, both of us, to get out of it as well as we did. Talk about your nerve! By Jove, the way he swung that car out of the way was magnificent. Never a thought for himself nor me either, I'm convinced," he ended.

He pulled a roll of bandages from his case and handed them to the girl. "Just do up his head and stop the flow of blood as best you can, if you will, Miss West," he commanded. "I'll go up to Copley's and fix Tim up. Then I'll come back here and set Graham's fractures."

He went limping up the road, and the girl bent closer to Graham.

"It was splendid!" she cried, her eyes shining.

"That?" said Graham. "Oh, that was nothing. I had to do that, you see. It was a question of killing the old lady or getting a bit banged up myself."

Her face was very close to his. Something warm and moist struck his cheek.

"Those wicked stories they told about you"— she began.

"They're true," he declared. have lost my nerve. I couldn't go into a road race to save my life. This was different, you see. This was something that had to be done."

Two warm lips were pressed to his grimy, blood stained forehead.

"Had to be done!" she repeated meaningly. "Oh, you delicious simpleton!"

The doctor, limping back a few moments later, discreetly screened himself behind a tree.

"There are times it is better to wait before reducing fractures," he meditated.

THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

"The fellow is a tobacco maniac," growled Trendon, feeling in his breast pocket. "The devil!" he cried, bringing forth an empty hand.

Silently the captain handed him a cigar. "Thank you, sir," he said, lighted it and continued reading:

"June 5.—Had a caller today. Climbed the headland this morning. Found volcano taking a day off. Looking for sign of Laughing Lass, noticed something heliographing to me from the waves beyond the reef. Seemed to be metal. I guessed a tin can. Caught in the swirl, it rounded the cape, and I came down to the shore to meet it. Halfway down the cliff I had a better view. I saw it was not a tin can. There was a dark body under it, which the waves were tossing about, and as the metal moved with the body it glinted in the sun. Suddenly it was borne in upon me that an arm was doing the signaling, waving to me with a sprightly, even a jocular, friendliness. Then I saw what it really was. It was Handy Solomon and his steel hook. He was riding quite high. Every now and again he would bow and wave. He grounded gently on the sand beach. I planted him promptly. First, however, I removed a bag of tobacco from his pocket. Poor stuff and water soaked, but still tobacco. Spent a quiet afternoon carving a headstone for the dear departed. Pity it were that virtues so shining should be uncommemorated. Idle as the speculation is, I wonder who my next visitor will be. Thrackles, I hope. Evidently some of them have been playing the part of Pandora. Spent last night in the cave. Air quite fresh.

"June 6.—Saw the glow again last night."

The surgeon paused in his reading. "That would be the night of the 5th, the night before we picked her up empty."

"Yes," agreed Captain Parkinson. "That was the night Billy Edwards—Go on."

"Saw the glow again last night. Don't understand it. Once should have been enough for them. This matter of hoarding tobacco may be a sad error. If Old Spitfire keeps on the way she has today, I shan't need much more. It would be a raw jest to be burned or swallowed up with a month's supply of unsmoked cigarettes on one. Cave getting shaky. Still, I think I'll stick there. As between being burned alive and buried alive, I'm for the respectable and time honored fashion of interment. Bombardment was mostly to the east today, but no telling when it may shift.

"June 7.—This morning I found a body rolling in the surf. It was the body of a young man, large and strongly built, dressed in the uniform of an ensign of our navy. Surely a strange visitor to these shores! There was no mark of identification upon him except a cigarette case graven with an undecipherable monogram in Tiffany's most illegible style of arrowheaded inscription. This I buried with him and staked the grave with a headboard. An officer and a gentleman, a youth of friendly ways and kindly living, if one may judge by the face of the dead, and he comes by the same end to the same goal as Handy Solomon. Why not? And why should one philosophize in a book that will never be read? Hold on! Perhaps—just perhaps—it may be read. The officer was not long dead. Ensigns of the United States navy do not wander about untraversed waters alone. There must be a warship somewhere in the vicinity. But why, then, an unburied officer floating on the ocean? I will smoke upon this luxuriously and plentifully. (Later.) No use. I can't solve it. But one thing I do. I put up a signal pole on the headland and cache this record under it this afternoon. From day to day, with the kindly permission of the volcano, I will add to it. Bad doings by Old Spitfire. The cloud is coming down on me. Also seems to be moving along the cliff. I will retire hastily to my private estate in the cave.

"That's all, except the scrawl on the last page," said Trendon. "Some action of the volcano scared him off. He had just time to scrawl that last message and drop the book into the cache. The question is, Did he get back alive?"

"Slade is the solution," said the captain. "We must ask him."

They put back to the ship. Barnett was anxiously awaiting them.

"Your patient has been in a bad way, Dr. Trendon," he said.

"What's wrong?" asked Trendon, frowning.

"He came up on deck, wild eyed and staggering. There was a sheet of paper in his hand which seemed to have some bearing on his trouble. When he found you had gone to the island without him he began to rage like a maniac. I had to have him carried down by force. In the rumpus the paper disappeared. I assumed the responsibility of giving him an opiate."

"Quite right," approved Trendon. "I'll go down. Will you come with me, sir?" he said to the captain.

They found Slade in profound slumber.

"Won't do to wake him now," growled Trendon. "Hello, what's here?"

Lying in the hollow of the sick man's right hand, where it had been crushed to a ball, was a crumpled mass of tracing paper. Trendon smoothed it out, peered at it and passed it to the captain.

"It's a sketch of an Indian arrowhead," he exclaimed in surprise at the first glance. "What are all these marks?"

"Map of the island," barked Trendon. "Look here."

The drawing was a fairly careful one, showing such geographical points as had been of concern to the two year inhabitants. There was the large cavern, indicated as they had found it, and at a point between it and the headland the legend, "Seal Cave."

"But it's wrong," cried Captain Parkinson, setting finger to the spot. "We passed there twice. There's no opening."

"No guarantee that there may not have been," returned the other. "This island has been considerably shaken up lately. Entrance may have been closed by a landslide down the cliff. Noticed signs myself, but didn't think of it in connection with the cave."

"That's work for Barnett, then," said the captain, brightening. "We'll blow up the whole face of the cliff if necessary, but we'll get at that cave."

He hurried out. Order followed order, and soon the gig, with the captain, Trendon and the torpedo expert, was driving for the point marked "Seal Cave" on the map over which they were bent.

CHAPTER XXXI.

"YOU say the last entry is June 7?" asked Barnett as the boat entered the light surf.

Trendon nodded.

"That was the night we saw the last glow and the big burst from the volcano, wasn't it?"

"Right."

"The island would have been badly shaken up."

"Not so violently but that the flagpole stood," said the captain.

"That's true, sir. But there's been a good deal of volcanic gas going. The man's been penned up for four days."

"Give the fellow a chance," growled Trendon. "Air may be all right in the cave. Good water there too. Says so himself. By Slade's account he's a pretty capable citizen when it comes to looking after himself. Wouldn't wonder if we'd find him fit as a fiddle."

"There was no clew to Ives and McGuire?" asked Barnett presently.

"None." It was the captain who answered.

The gig grated, and, the tide being high, they waded to the base of the cliff, Barnett carrying his precious explosives aloft in his arms.

"Here's the spot," said the captain. "See where the water goes in through those crevices."

"Opening at the top, too," said Trendon.

He let out his bellow, roaring Darrow's name.

"I doubt if you could project your voice far into a cave thus blocked," said Captain Parkinson. "We'll try this."

He drew his revolver and fired. The men listened at the crevices of the rock. No sound came from within.

"Your enterprise, Mr. Barnett," said the commander, with a gesture which turned over the conduct of the affair to the torpedo expert.

Barnett examined the rocks with enthusiasm.

"Looks like moderately easy stuff," he observed. "See how the veins run. You could almost blow a design to order in that."

"Yes, but how about bringing down the whole cave?"

"Oh, of course there's always an element of uncertainty when you're dealing with high explosives," admitted the expert. "But unless I'm mistaken we can chop this out as neat as with an ax."

Dropping his load of cartridges carelessly upon a flat rock which projected from the water, he busied himself in a search along the face of the cliff. Presently, with an "Ah!" of satisfaction, he climbed toward a hand's breadth of platform where grew a patch of purple flowers.

"Throw me up a knife, somebody," he called.

"Take notice," said Trendon good naturedly, "that I'm the botanist of this expedition."

"Oh, you can have the flowers! All I want is what they grow in."

Loosening a handful of the dry soil, he brought it down and laid it with the explosives. Next he called one of the sailors to "boost" him and was soon perched on the flat slant of a huge rock which formed, as it were, the keystone to the blockade.

"Let's see," he ruminated. "We want a slow charge for this, one that will exert a widespread pressure without much shattering force; the No. 3, I think."

"How is that, Mr. Barnett?" asked the captain, with lively interest.

"You see, sir," returned the demonstrator, perched high like a sculptor at work on some heroic masterpiece, "what we want is to split off this rock." He patted the flank of the huge slab. "There's a lovely vein running at an angle inward from where I sit. Split that through, and the rock should roll of its own weight away from the entrance. It's held only by the upper projection that runs under the arch here."

"Neat programme," commented Trendon, with sardonic skepticism.

"Wait and see," retorted Barnett blithely, for he was in his element now. "I'll appoint you my assistant. Just toss me up that cartridge, the third one on the left."

The surgeon recoiled.

"Supposing you don't catch it?"

"Well, supposing I don't?"

"It's dynamite, isn't it?"

"Something of the same nature. Joveite, it's called."

Still the surgeon stared at him. Barnett laughed.

"Oh, you've got the high explosives superstition," he said lightly. "Dynamite don't go off as easy as people think. You could drop that stuff from the cliff head without danger. Have I got to come down for it?"

With a wry face Trendon tossed up the package. It was deftly caught.

"Now wet that dirt well. Put it in the canvas bag yonder and send one of the men up with it. I'm going to make a mud pie."

Breaking the package open, he spread the yellow powder in a slightly curving line along the rock. With the mud he capped this over, forming a little arched roof.

"To keep it from blowing away," surmised Trendon.

"No. To make it blow down instead of blowing up."

"Oh, rot!" returned the downright surgeon. "That pound of dirt won't make a shadow of a feather's difference."

"Won't it!" retorted the other. "Curious thing about high explosives. A mud cap will hold down the force as well as a ton of rock. Wait and see what happens to the rock beneath."

He slid off his perch into the ankle deep water and waded out to the boat. Here he burrowed for a moment, presently emerging with a box. This he carried gingerly to a convenient rock and opened. First he lifted out some soft padding. A small tin box honeycombed inside came to light. With infinite precaution Barnett picked out an object that looked like a 22 caliber short cartridge, wadded some cotton batten in his hand, set the thing in the wadding, laid it on the rock, carefully returned the small box to the large box and the large box to the boat, took up the cartridge again and waded back to the cliff. They watched him in silence.

"This is the little devil," he said, indicating his delicate burden. "Fulminate of mercury. This is the stuff that'll remove your hand with neatness and dispatch. It's the quickest tempered little article in the business. Just give it one hard look and it's off."

"Here," said Trendon, "I resign. From now on I'm a spectator."

Barnett swung the fulminate in his handkerchief and gave it to a sailor to hold. The man dandled it like a newborn infant. Back to his rock went Barnett. Producing some cord he let down an end.

"Tie the handkerchief on and get out of the way," he directed.

With painful slowness the man carried out the first part of the order. The latter half he obeyed with sprightly alacrity. Very slowly, very delicately, the expert drew in his dangerous burden. Once a current of air puffed it against the face of the rock, and the operator's head was hastily withdrawn. Nothing happened. Another minute and he had the tiny shell in hand. A fuse was fixed to it and it was shoved under the mud cap. Barnett stood up.

"Will you kindly order the boat ready, Captain Parkinson?" he called.

The order was given.

"As soon as I light the fuse I will come down and we'll pull out fifty yards. Leave the rest of the Joveite where it is. All ready? Here goes."

He touched a match to the fuse. It caught. For a moment he watched it.

"Going all right," he reported as he struck the water. "Plenty of time."

Some seventy yards out they rested on their oars. They waited and waited and waited.

"It's out," grunted Trendon.

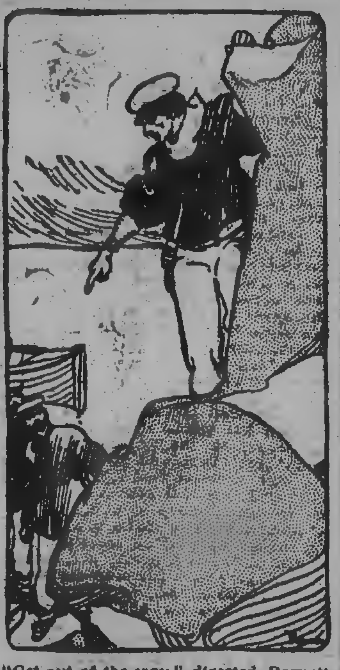
From the face of the cliff puffed a cloud of dust. A thudding report boomed over the water. Just a wisp of whitish gray smoke arose, and beneath it the great rock with a gaping seam across its top rolled majestically outward, sending a shower of spray on all sides and opening to their eager view a black chasm into the heart of the headland. The experiment had worked out with the accuracy of a geometric problem.

"THE NIGGER IN THE WOOD-PILE"

Thousands of people go through life feeling more or less miserable without ever knowing the reason. They suffer from headaches, indigestion, pains in the back, and at the slightest chill get rheumatism or neuralgia.

They try to cure these separate outbreaks, never suspecting that the root of the whole trouble is the failure of the bowels to move regularly, and in many cases the sluggish action of kidneys and skin. The result, of course, is that the whole system gets clogged with impurities, which soon turn to poison, and show their presence in various ways.

"Fruit-a-tives"—or fruit juice tablets—promptly stir up the sluggish liver, regulate the bowels, and stimulate the kidneys and skin to do their work properly. Thus they cure all these troubles by removing the cause, and make it possible to really enjoy life. 50c a box—6 boxes for $2.50. Trial size 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.



"Get out of the way," directed Barnett.

"That's all, sir," Barnett reported officially.

"Magic! Modern magic!" said the captain. He stared at the open door. For the moment the object of the undertaking was forgotten in the wonder of its exact accomplishment.

"Darrow'll think an earthquake's come after him," remarked Trendon.

"Give way," ordered the captain.

The boat grated on the sand. Captain Parkinson would have entered, but Barnett restrained him.

"It's best to wait a minute or two," he advised. "Occasionally slides follow an explosion tardily, and the gases don't always dissipate quickly."

Where they stood they could see but a short way into the cave. Trendon squatted and funneled his hands to one eye.

"There's a fire inside," he said.

In a moment they all saw it, a single pin point glow far back in the blackness, a cyclopean eye that swayed as it approached. Alternately it waned and brightened. Suddenly it illuminated the dim lineaments of a face. The face neared them. It joined itself to reality by a very solid pair of shoulders, and a man sauntered into the twilit mouth of the cavern, removed a cigarette from his lips and gave them greeting.

"Sorry not to have met you at the door," he said courteously. "It was you that knocked, was it not? Yes? It roused me from my siesta."

They stared at him in silence. He blinked in the light with unaccustomed eyes.

"You will pardon me for not asking you in at once. Past circumstances have rendered me—well—perhaps suspicious is not too strong a word."

They noticed that he held a revolver in his hand.

Captain Parkinson came forward a step. The host half raised his weapon. Then he dropped it abruptly.

"Navy men!" he said in an altered voice. "I beg your pardon. I could not see at first. My name is Percy Darrow."

"I am Captain Parkinson of the United States cruiser Wolverine," said the commander. "This is Mr. Barnett, Mr. Darrow. Dr. Trendon, Mr. Darrow."

They shook hands all around.

"Like some silly afternoon tea," Trendon said later in retailing it to the mess. A pause followed.

"Won't you step in, gentlemen?" said Darrow. "May I offer you the makings of a cigarette?"

"Wouldn't you be robbing yourself?" inquired the captain, with a twinkle.

"Oh, you found the diary, then?" said Darrow easily. "Rather silly of me to complain so. But really in conditions like these tobacco becomes a serious problem."

"So one might imagine," said Trendon drily. He looked closely at Darrow. The man's eyes were light and dancing. From the nostrils two livid lines ran diagonally. Such lines one might make with a hard blue pencil pressed strongly into the flesh. The surgeon moved a little nearer.

"Can you give me any news of my friend Thrackles?" asked Darrow lightly. "Or the esteemed Pulz? Or the scholarly and urbane Robinson of Ethiopian extraction?"

Young Folks

MY LADY'S TOILET.

Any Number of Players May Join In This Game.

Here is a game that will give boys and girls no end of fun. It requires no materials except a wooden plate or a circular tray. Indeed, any circular object will do that may be twirled around on the floor and is not easily broken. Any number of boys and girls may play it. Each player takes the name of some article belonging to a lady's toilet, as hairbrush, hat brush, comb, hairpin, gloves, etc.

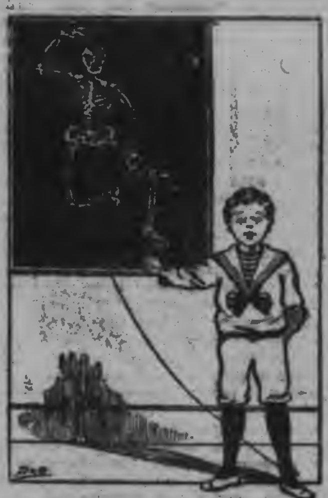
The players take seats around the sides of the room, and the one who has been selected to start the game goes to the center and twirls the plate on the floor as hard as he can. As the plate begins to spin he speaks some sentence in which he uses the name of one of the toilet articles, and the player who has that name must leave his seat and try to catch the plate before it stops twirling. If he fails he pays a forfeit and takes the twirler's place. If he succeeds he takes the place without paying a forfeit.

The plate spinner generally speaks a sentence like this: "My lady is going out, and she wants her gloves." The player whose name is "gloves" then runs to the plate and tries to catch it. The spinner has a right at any time to call out the single word "Toilet!" and when he does all the players have to change seats. The one that does not get a seat—the spinner, of course, always gets one—must then take the plate and pay a forfeit. Forfeits may be redeemed at the end of the game, and this gives a chance for still more fun.

AN AMUSING TRICK.

Supposed Picture on Slate Turned Into a Dancing Figure.

The trick here described is certain to cause much astonishment if well arranged beforehand. Get a piece of board about the size of a large school slate and have it painted black. The paint should be what is known as a dead color, without gloss or brightness. Sketch out the figure of a skeleton on a piece of cardboard and arrange it after the manner of a jumping jack, so that by holding the figure by the head in one hand and pulling a string with the other the figure will throw up its legs and arms in a most ludicrous manner. Make the connection of the arms and legs with black string and let the pulling string be also black. Then tack the skeleton by the head to the blackboard. The figure having been cut out, it must be painted black to match the board.



MANIPULATING THE FIGURE.

Now to perform. Produce the board. Show only the side upon which there is nothing. Request that the lights may be lowered slightly and take up your position a little way from the audience. With a piece of white chalk make one or two attempts to draw a figure. Rub out your work as being unsatisfactory and turn the slate round. The black figure will not be perceived on account of the board being the same color. Rapidly touch the edges of the cardboard figure with chalk, filling up the ribs, etc., at leisure, taking great care that nothing moves while the drawing is progressing. Then manipulate your fingers in front of the drawing and command it to become animated, when by secretly pulling the string attached to the skeleton with your foot it will, of course, kick up its legs and throw its arms about, to the astonishment of the company. A little soft music from the piano will greatly assist the illusion.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Overheard in the Wood Shed.

"I hear you are quite a sportsman," said the shovel to the coal.

"Never handled a gun in my life," said the coal.

"Why, I'm certain I overheard some one say that he'd seen the coal shute."

"Oh, please stop poking me!" said the fire to the poker. "You tickle."

"Our master's house is beautiful upstairs," said the furnace to the poker. "The flues are going up there all the time, and they told me all about it."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Harry's Funny Answer.

When Harry was four years old his grandmother was trying to teach him to count and asked:

"How many legs have you?"

He answered promptly, "Two."

"How many legs has Brownie?"

Looking at the dog for a moment, he replied, "Brownie has one on each corner."

The steel work on the new Legislative building of Alberta at Edmonton will be finished next month.

INTERESTING EPISTLE FROM CHINESE MISSION FIELD

Former Peterborough Lady Now a Missionary in China Tells of Conditions Existing There—Great Need is More Native Helpers—Work is Hard, But Much Encouragement is Given the Missionaries to Labor for Conversion of Souls.

Wuhu, China.
September 1, 1908.

My Dear Friends.—The summer is almost over and if I am to write the letter that has been in my mind for weeks, I must set about it at once. It has been a very hot summer, now, however, the heat has moderated and the weather is pleasant, although everything is parched for want of rain.

I left my station the last Monday in June as it was so hot and damp in the Chinese house, we could not stay longer. At that time it rained almost incessantly, and the walls were green with mould. Sometimes it rained so hard down through our "heavenly wells" into the room where we conducted our services that we could hardly hear our voices for the noise of the dashing water on the stones, but since then it has scarcely rained any and now the drought is getting very serious, especially where cholera is raging.

I spent most of my vacation in Kuling, on the mountain top, and even there, it was warmer than in Ontario, but of course no one suffered. I had a very profitable time. Mr. Goforth of Honan, well known to many of you as a missionary of the Presbyterian church, held a week's meetings with us and they were a great blessing to those who were hungry and thirsty. God has set him apart as an evangelist and some of you will have heard of the mighty revivals in Manchuria, that he has been used in. We were glad to sit at his feet and let the Spirit search our hearts, as he faithfully opened up God's Word to us, and our faith received a mighty impetus as we heard of what God was doing in other places. Just now I am back in Wuhu, waiting for our Conference which begins next Sunday. I am looking forward to much blessing then and to returning to my work equipped as never before by the Holy Spirit.

We are being constantly reminded these days that life is uncertain and our opportunities may soon be over. Death is busy and many useful lives are being suddenly cut off. Just three days ago a friend called on us here. He had just returned from Kuling full of life, and seemingly perfectly well, hearty and happy. He stayed for supper and seemed to enjoy everything. He expected to return next afternoon to service but instead we received a note from the doctor, saying that Mr. Bratton was down with cholera, and serious, and asking us to pray. We did pray, but God saw fit to take him home and early next day we stood by his grave, only thirty-six hours from the time we had chatted and visited with him at our table. I don't know that anything has ever seemed so solemn to us, or made us feel the uncertainty of life so much. Just before leaving Kuling there was another sad thing happened. A missionary who helped in the famine last year, worked too hard, and contracted lung trouble. The physicians hoped to send him home to England where his wife was superintending the education of their sons, but a few weeks ago they saw he would not recover, so called for her to come instead. How he watched for her and how we all prayed that if it were possible he might live till she arrived, especially at the last. The steamer seemed to run slowly up the river. A kind friend was waiting with chair coolies to start up the mountains immediately on her arrival and although it was midnight and dark the trip was undertaken. It takes five hours in daylight. She got there at six, but her husband had gone to heaven at quarter to two. These are some of the tragedies of the mission field and sorrows that only the Comforter can heal.

Well for those who can truly say, "I know that all things are working together for good to them who love God," in such an hour, otherwise it would be unbearable.

Then previous to this incident by a few days we were all startled and saddened by receiving a telegram that Dr. Li had passed away. Dr Li was a Chinese young man, of remarkable piety and gifts, whom God was marvellously using, not only amongst native christians but amongst missionaries in the deepening of spiritual life. None like him. Wholly yielded to God, was trusting Him only for support and everything. He had a meek and lowly spirit, and was a living witness indeed, of the Lord he loved so well. He was the son of a Christian, and educated in Tien-tsin, where he consecrated his life to Christ. Very few people in the world, I believe, lived with Christ and for Him as did Dr. Li, and very few were used as he was. Mr. Goforth told us of a missionary in Szchuan who said to him, when trying to arrange for special services, that he thought and thought and the only man he could think of who would do was Dr. Li. He was a member of our mission, though he worked independently as an evangelist, and last year he was at our conference, when we all humbly sat at his feet and counted it a great privilege to do so. I shall never forget his heaven-lit face, and how the tears rained down his cheeks as he spoke of his coldness in his love to his Saviour. I received a copy of a letter this week from a friend who is one of the most useful missionaries in China, who refers to his death thus: "He gave, and He has seen fit to take away, blessed be His Holy name. How you will feel a personal loss! I do too, and how many will, besides his own dear wife and children. But oh the glory for him! I always feel like Bunyan, that when the gates are open one wishes or is just tempted to wish one was going inside too, but not now, if He will permit us to tell others and tell of His great love and use every power for Him."

We were looking forward to having him with us at our conference. He is in a better one. It seems like a great loss to China. God can raise up others and we trust He will, and it may be people were getting to look to him too much.

Well, I promised in my last letter to tell you more about our work in Tsingyang. About fifty Chinese miles away is the famous sacred mountain "Kin Hua," where thousands of pilgrims repair yearly to worship. I think I referred to this in my last letter. Just at the foot of the mountain lives a carpenter and farmer, who a few years ago received from a friend a copy of the Gospel, which was used in bringing to him a desire to know more. Regularly he attended services in Tsing-yang, a distance of 35 li, until he found Jesus as his Saviour. His neighbors became interested also, and several really seem sincerely seeking light. The missionary sometimes visited them, but the distance was so great that the women could not attend at all and they were also interested. Occasionally a few came and spent a week or so in the chapel. For some time Mr. Smith, my predecessor, had in his mind to open an outstation in a busy town a few miles away, which would be a centre of a large district, but after visiting the place and much prayer, I decided to open our work, where the Christians were, so the women with their little feet, could attend. On reaching this decision God graciously led, and soon we had rented a convenient tea shop, newly built, with plenty of room for us to make it a temporary home, as well as meeting place, on the banks of a pretty stream near the village where the pilgrims usually rest for the night. It seems a very favorable location and so far each Sunday there are between thirty and forty worshippers come that title is held by tremblay, together for the services, which are conducted just the same as in the city. In my last letter I spoke of the evangelist failing in his duty. He had to be dismissed, and another one came to take his place. He is not a strong man, and as he is only one man he cannot conduct services in two places at once, so several of the tried church members take turns in going in twos to the outstation. During the hot weather they start Friday night and reach the place early Saturday morning and return Monday morning. It is five or six hours' walk. It has been a great joy to me to see their zeal in this, as they are busy business men, I appreciate their willingness to give so much of their time and strength. I want very much to buy donkeys to make it easier travelling for them. The evangelist cannot walk, as he is delicate, and it is expensive hiring a chair so often. The rent and furnishing has been provided by our Tsing-Yang church, supplemented by a few dollars from the native brethren of the mission. Our church members also do almost all the street preaching, and our chapel is usually filled several evenings during the week as well as Sunday nights.

Our greatest need is more native helpers. I could employ several with real advantage. We need a man and a woman, too, to work amongst the pilgrims. There is a very interesting work among the women in the outstation, several of whom are learning the catechism, and some men come 17 li from another district, where there is still another opening, and just as far as we can see, the "fields are white unto harvest." I am sure you will stand with me for these needs, and pray for God to raise us up helpers whom we can trust. The road to Rishentien is beautiful. I think where it winds through a magnificent bamboo grove that it is the prettiest I have ever seen. Another bit takes us through a woods, where I startled a young deer as I gathered flowers. It is a pleasure to go anywhere in the neighborhood of our station, the scenery is so charming, the mountain streams, trees and flowers and deep blue skies make a beautiful picture, and a feast to our eyes when we can get out to see it.

We have just had an opportunity to buy a very desirable property, with the highest house in the city, for a ridiculous price. The only extra building we would need would be a foreign residence, all for $500.00 in gold. When we think of the comfort of living in a house where we could have windows that we could see out of, and through which the breezes could come, and where we could be quiet, we can't help but desire property of our own, although we are thankful to live anywhere in China. Yet our lives would naturally be prolonged and more useful under better conditions, and how easy it could be brought about did all God's stewards feel as we do about it, for He is rich in houses and lands. I am looking forward with great joy to returning to my work in a few weeks now and trust you will stand with me in faith and prayer for a larger ingathering of souls than we have even seen.

"I believe God answers prayer,
I am sure God answers prayer,
I have proved God answers prayer,
"Glory to His name."

With love to all who love me, and rejoicing in hope. I am,

Yours sincerely,
MARGARET QUINN.

NEW SEWING BAGS.

Silk Bandannas Are Made Up Into Pretty Effects.

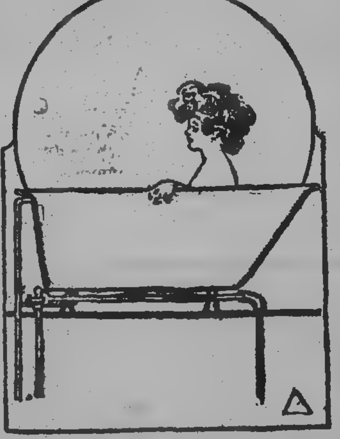
Pretty new sewing bags are made of silk bandannas, finished at the top with a wooden stick which is run through a casing. These sticks are flat like those used in window shades, and the bag made with them is far easier to keep in order than are those pulled up by the aid of ribbons. Of course, ribbons are used on these new bags, but they are run through bone rings which are sewed to the top of the casing.

These bone rings are a great improvement over those of brass which were formerly used. The latter always became rusty at the seashore and never were neat and pretty like the bone ones. The bone rings may be purchased for about 8 cents a dozen, while the sticks may be procured for little or nothing. Have a hole punched at each end of the stick, through which it may be tacked in place to the material, and then when the bag goes to the laundry the stitches may be ripped, the stick pulled out, and no harm will be done in the washing.

UNIQUE HEATING DEVICE.

Plenty of Hot Water by Means of a Gas Stove Under the Bathtub.

In winter, when the demand for hot water for baths exceeds the capacity of the hot water boiler, the unique heating device shown here would be welcomed. This novel means of furnishing an abundant supply of hot water is the invention of a Missouri man. Its undoubted usefulness will be apparent at a glance. In combination with the tub a burner tube is disposed under the tub with holes for discharging the flame. These openings are placed at distances increasing from one end of the tube to the other, the openings adjacent where the water enters the tub being closer together than at the opposite end. The common practice of heating extra water in large vessels on the stove can thus be done away with. The inconvenience of carrying the water upstairs after heating is also eliminated, together with the danger of injury from falling.



THE NEW BATHTUB.

Homemade Mouse Trap.

The mouse trap, the one which garrotes without killing as well as that which keeps the small depredator imprisoned in fear and trembling, is a barbarism which may be favorably supplanted by the following simple, quick and sure death device:

Take a stone crock at least a foot high, fill it with water and tie it up across the opening, preserve jar fashion, with pig's bladder or parchment, in which when tightly stretched you cut with a sharp knife a cross cut. Stand this crock near shelf, curtain, jars or something which will provide a foothold opportunity for the mouse. Sprinkle near the cross cut bits of cheese or bacon. The mouse will scent the goodies, will climb up on the crock after them and will slip through the cut in the parchment and drown in the water in the crock. The stiff points of the parchment will immediately spring back in position and be ready for more victims.

For the Good of Your Health.

Conquer your moods. Don't let your moods conquer you. People who give way to moods never amount to much because they are never masters of themselves. They never know in the morning whether they are going to do a good day's work or not, whether they are going to be a cheering or a depressing influence on the people around them. If they feel like being good tempered they will be. If they feel like "snapping" at everybody they will snap.

People who suffer from moods should be careful about their habits. They should be regular about meals, sleep, exercise and work. The condition of the health has much to do with moods, and there is nothing that contributes so much to health as absolute regularity.

The Care of the Eyes.

A great many of the mysterious headaches with which women are afflicted must be put down to overstrained eyes, and this kind of headache can only be cured by giving the eyes a thorough rest, and when a cure has been effected great care in the use of the eyes in future is indispensable. Reading, writing or sewing in a dim and flickering light must be given up, and the common practice of attempting to read in a jolting train or omnibus must also be discarded. The eyes should never be used too long at a time, and when much eye work is necessary brief rests and bathings in hot water should be resorted to if the dreaded headache is to be kept at a distance.

Standing room for the Sheffield Choir concert to-night is selling at fifty cents per foot or one dollar for both feet.

Canary In "Death Row."

In front of the "death cells," in Montreal jail is a hall, where the prisoners are allowed to walk during the day, and while they are always in company of a guard, they have also another companion; a little canary bird that warbles most of the time.

When Hanson, the last murderer hanged in Montreal, seven years ago, was nearing his doom, he made a request for a canary bird as the companion of his last hours. Mrs. Vallee, wife of the governor of the jail, granted his prayer, and since then the bird has remained in "murderers' row," where he is fed daily by the prisoners. "Crooked Neck" Smith, sentenced to death for slaying his pal a short time ago, who did not seem to have anything on earth he ever cared for, has taken a liking to the bird, and gives it some of the delicacies he receives at the jail from his friends, and the bird goes on singing all day long; it sings the song of life to the man who is doomed to die on Nov. 27.

VOL. LVII., No. 113. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1908 [illegible] CENTS PER WEEK

A WELL-KNOWN METHODIST DIVINE HAS PASSED AWAY

Was Editor of S. S. Publications.

Death of Rev. Dr. Withrow at Toronto---Had Large Place in Literature.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—Rev. Dr. W. H. Withrow, F.R.S.C., editor of the Methodist Sunday School periodicals, died at his residence, 244 Jarvis street, at 11.40 last night, after lingering in an unconscious condition since Thursday evening last, when he was stricken with hemorrhage of the brain.

Dr. Withrow's children and grandchildren were with him when he passed away.

The late Rev. Dr. Withrow was born in Toronto on Aug. 6, 1839. He was a graduate of Victoria Methodist University, Cobourg, and of Toronto University. For a few years he had charge of various circuits in the Hamilton conference. In 1874 he was elected editor of the Sunday school publications of the Methodists General Conference and has been re-elected at each successive meeting of that body. When first appointed he had charge of three publications with a circulation of 46,500. This increased under his direction to ten publications with a circulation of over 400,000.

THE LATE DR. W. H. WITHROW.

Dr. Withrow was a great lover of travel, and devoted to literature. These traits were manifested in his researches at the catacombs of Rome, which he embodied in a book by that name before he was thirty years of age. This work is still regarded as one of the standard authoritive works upon the catacombs and is much used as a guide book by visitors. Dr. Withrow's History of Canada is well known. The excellence of his literary work was so widely known that no less an authority than the late Hon. Wm. Ewart Gladstone wrote him a personal letter of appreciation.

He received the degree of D.D. from Victoria University in 1882. He was a fellow of the English literature section of the Royal Society of Canada and an honorary member of the Woman's Canadian Historical Society.

The surviving members of the family are two sons, William J. and Frederick D. of Ottawa, and two daughters, Mrs. Stafford and Miss Florence Withrow, B.A.

Arrangements have not been made for the funeral.

THE SHEFFIELD CHOIR AT PETERBOROUGH

THE BEST IN CANADA

To one of the members of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the visit of the Sheffield Choir to Peterborough, Dr. Coward, the conductor of the choir, stated last night that the members of the choir and himself were highly pleased with their reception in this city. Dr. Coward said that the arrangements for their visit to Peterborough were better than in any other city they had visited. Nothing had been overlooked and every detail was arranged perfectly.

On behalf of the choir, Dr. Coward thanked the members of the committee and the citizens of Peterborough generally for the many courtesies shown.

The greatest event in the musical history of Peterborough was the appearance here last night of the famous Sheffield choir. They were greeted by an immense audience at the Grand Opera House, and the enthusiasm of the fifteen hundred persons present knew no bounds. The citizens of Peterborough are indebted to the committee who succeded in bringing the choir to Peterborough and who worked so hard to make the appearance of the English vocalists here a success. And a genuine success it was.

The choir arrived here shortly after five o'clock on a special train from Lindsay, where they sang to a large audience in the afternoon. They had tea at the Oriental, Snowden and National hotels, and were well pleased with the arrangements made here for their reception.

The audience last night included many from Belleville, Cobourg, Port Hope, Campbellford, and other towns and villages in the district. It was one of the largest and most fashionable audiences ever seen in the opera house.

From the first appearance of the Sheffield Choir in the capacious Arena in Montreal to their one and only appearance across the line in Buffalo, enormous and enthusiastic audiences have greeted them on every occasion, and if their flying trip has been a strenuous one (and it is now generally admitted that these ladies and gentlemen have been worked to an unreasonable limit) it will at least show them how deeply the musical people of this country appreciated their coming, and how welcome their friendly invasion has been. In Toronto, the very citadel of choral singing on this continent, they were met with open arms, and Dr. Vogt, the popular conductor of the Mendelssohn Choir, was one of the first to recognise the importance of their visit and acclaim the excellent educational value of this famous body of choristers.

The programme opened with "O Canada," which was enthusiastically received. Then came the majestic Hallelujah chorus during the singing of which the audience stood. "King Arthur Had Two Sons," "A Berkshire Tragedy," "Gladsome Light," "Moonlight," "An Indian Lullaby," by Vogt, "Awake," "'You' Stole my Love,'" and "The Demon's Chorus" (from the Dream of Gerontius), comprised the choral numbers which were all beautifully sung.

To attempt individual criticism of these various selections is unnecessary as it has already been thoroughly done by the best musical critics in Toronto and elsewhere. Needless to say, the singing of the Sheffield Choir was a revelation of technique, tone and expression. Their enunciation was all that we were led to expect, and every word could be easily followed. The whole performance was one of beauty and brilliancy, the rich mellow voices being inspried with the spirit of song.

Words fail to express the admiration that Dr. Coward creates. Under such excellent discipline and training are his two hundred choristers, that to him they are as one magnificent organ upon which he plays with confidence and the power of genius. Dr. Coward is undoubtedly the master chorus master, and richly deserves the splendid reputation that he enjoys throughout the civilized world.

The soloists were Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, a beautiful contralto; Miss Emily Breare, who is the possessor of a splendid soprano voice; Mr. Robert Charlesworth, basso, and Mr. Henry Brearley. Miss Breare sang "Coolan Dhee," by Leoni, and responded with an encore. Miss Lonsdale also appeared twice and made a splendid impression. Her singing of the beautiful ballad "Daddy," was greatly enjoyed. Mr. Charlesworth sang, "Blow, Blow ye Wind," from King Lear, and for an encore gave a pretty selection of a lighter nature. Mr. Brearley gave a beautiful rendition of Sullivan's "Sailor's Grave," and for an

DARING ATTEMPT

To Hold Up Mail Man at Lindsay — Was Not Successful

Lindsay, Nov. 12.—An attempt was made to rob his Majesty's mails last night while en route from the post-office to the G.T.R. depot. The effort of the would-be robber or robbers was fruitless, however, chiefly because the mail driver, Mr. Herb. Workman, was on the alert. Had the hold-up man's plans been successful a bag of registered mail would have been carried off, and the postoffice would be the loser to the extent of a good many dollars.

The driver of the mail waggon was taking a heavy load of mail from the post-office to the eight o'clock train when the attempt was made. He was driving through Maunder's hotel yard, following the lane that runs back of the post-office. The and the lane is seldom frequented at night, so that the time was most opportune for an attempt of such nature.

A thick-set man jumped out from the shadows in the western section of the yards belonging to the hotel and made a dive for the rig containing the mail. He had his hands almost on the largest of the bags, the one containing the registered letters, and placed just behind the driver on the rig, when Herb. Workman noticed him.

Herb. had his whip between his knees and without an instant's hesitation grased it by the middle and squarely over the face with the butt. A shout at the horse followed and the driver didn't check the animal's speed till he reached the depot. The man who attempted the robbery, Mr. Workman says, was well-built and wore a soft hat. Otherwise he was unable to distinguish his features or anything that would lead to his identification later. He thinks that the man must have been knocked down by the force of the blow because the whip was brought down on his face with terrific force.

Standing in British Columbia Now 5-2 Against the Government.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 13.—The deferred elections for the House of Commons in Yale-Cariboo and Kootenay were held yesterday.

Conservatives won both seats by overwhelming majorities.

In Kootenay the latest returns give Goodever, Conservative, 924 majority over Smith Curtis, Liberal.

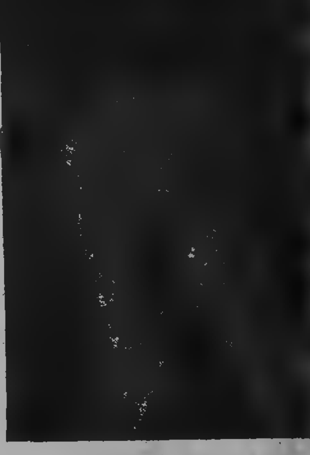
In Yale-Cariboo, Burrill, Conservative, has 767 majority over Duncan Ross, Liberal.

This makes the representation from British Columbia stand as follows:

Conservatives 5
Liberals 2

In the last Parliament all the seats were held by the Liberals.

Winnipeg, Nov. 13.—It is rumored here that either Hon. T. Mayne Daly, who was defeated by Hon. Clifford Sifton in Brandon or Hugh Armstrong, member for Portage la Prairie, will be taken into the Provincial Cabinet to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. J. H. Agnew, Provincial Treasurer.



DUNCAN ROSS,
The Defeated Member For Yale-Cariboo.

Prince Albert, Nov. 13.—The majority of Ruttan (Lib.) in 120 out of 129 polls is 191. It will be a week before the remaining polls are in. There was a celebration last night by the Liberals.

Winnipeg, Nov. 13.—The grand jury yesterday morning brought in a true bill against John W. Dafoe, editor of The Winnipeg Free Press, on a charge of criminal libel. The case arose out of the Dominion elections. The Free Press accusing C. R. McLaghlan, an ex-Winnipeg policeman, of organizing a gang to create a disturbance at a political meeting.

SAID HE NEEDED THE MONEY EXPLANATION OF ONE AGENT

Produces Letters to Prove That Authorities at Ottawa Told Him Not to Bother About Economy---Admits Receiving Money and Thinks He Was Entitled to It.

Quebec, Nov. 13.—J. A. Gregory, the suspended agent of the Marine and Fisheries Department here, took the stand yesterday, his examination taking up the greater part of the afternoon. The examination furnished a number of quite interesting incidents and a few dramatic situations.

Senator Choquette exacted the promise from the crown counsel that none of the evidence elicited in the examination would be used against Mr. Gregory, in the event of criminal proceedings being taken against him.

Witness deposed that he had had charge of the local agency of the Department since Confederation, though his nomination was only made official in 1869.

He admitted the receipt of the various amounts paid him by Mr. Davie of Levis. He was in need of money, having made many advances, and lost a good deal of interest through his advances to the Government, and in his predicament thought that the most honest man and the best friend of his acquaintance was Geo. T. Davie, and to him he went.

Asked whether he deposited these amounts to his own credit, he replied that they went into the general account. To the question if anyone was present when he received the moneys in question, he said it was not very likely.

Witness produced a number of documents, including correspondence, with officials at Ottawa, some of which proved decidedly interesting, and one of which did not get to the public at all. This latter is well understood to have been a private note to Mr. Gregory, telling him not to bother himself at all about the instructions contained in an official communication of the same date from the Department.

Another was a letter signed by Col. F. Gourdeau, Deputy Minister, confirming a telegram previously produced in the case, authorizing Mr. Gregory to secure $10,000 on the best terms possible for the immediate use of his agency, seeing that the extra appropriations were not then voted.

One message from Ottawa which he produced read, "Please make best arrangements possible for the payment of wages." Witness said he did so, but absolutely denied that he charged the men anything for the advances so made them. Neither did he receive any return from the Government. He could not even get the bank interest paid. He asked for it, but was told that there was no vote for the payment of interest and that it could not be recognized.

Regarding the amount paid him by Mr. Davie he said that he had rendered service to the firm by sending them orders as far as possible from ship masters among his friends and others. The money he borrowed from the bank was on his personal responsibility. Witness admitted that all the money he had advanced to employes of the Department in Ottawa had been returned, and said that the Government, which was the largest debtor, was the most ungrateful.

The correspondence between the Department at Ottawa and the witness simply brimmed over with complaints against the Quebec agency, but most of them were taken very complacently by the witness.

Some of the Department communications complained of the holding back of accounts that should have been promptly forwarded from the Quebec Agency to Ottawa.

"It is not true," declared the witness.

One letter spoke of an account of $4,000 having been kept back for more than a year," being only one more instance of the grave irregularities of the Quebec agency." Other letters explained that if certain accounts had been promptly sent in they would have been promptly paid. It was stated that one of Mr. Holliday's accounts for $20,000 was kept over without payment from Oct 31 to the following June. On the other hand payments had been made within three days of the receipt of the accounts at Ottawa.

Witness was asked if it was not his duty to have forwarded the accounts to Ottawa promptly, but there was no answer.

THREE HUNDRED MINERS LOSE LIVES IN GERMANY

Hamm, Westphalia, Germany, Nov. 13.—The greatest mine disaster in many years in Germany occurred yesterday morning at the Redbod mine, three miles from here. There was a heavy explosion in the mine about four o'clock, and almost immediately the mine took fire. Of 380 miners only six escaped without injury. Thirty-five were taken out badly injured, and 37 bodies were brought out. The remaining 302 have been given up for lost. The explosion destroyed one of the shafts, which had to be partly repaired before the rescue work was begun.

Heartrending scenes were enacted at the mine when the dead and wounded were brought to the surface, and there were similar scenes in the town when the injured were transported through the streets to the hospitals.

Finally the fire had made such great headway that it was decided that any further attempts to rescue the entombed men were vain, owing to the impossibility of entering the galleries. At the same time an order was issued to flood the mine. First reports indicated that the accident was the result of an explosion of coal dust, but the statements of the injured men render this impossible.

"ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME" LIKELY TO BE PRODUCED AGAIN

There have been many requests for another production of "All the Comforts of Home," the four-act comedy that made such a big hit when presented at the Grand Opera House on November 3rd and 4th. Many people were unable to see the production on the night it was given and would like an opportunity to see the local amateurs perform.

It is very probable that "All the Comforts of Home" will be given some night next week at the opera house, probably on Friday evening. It should draw a full house.

STOREY PARTY GOT SIX DEER

Returned Last Evening After Ten Days' Hunting at Sequn Falls

The Storey hunting party, consisting of Messrs. J. A. Storey, R. A. Elliott, Rev. J. H. Teeney, Jas. Sherwood and Wylie, Omemee; Barnard, of Hamilton, and F. Turner and George Montgomery, of Cobourg, returned from Sequin Falls, near Parr Sound, last evening. They had been away ten days and were fortunate in securing six fine deer, five of which each weighed over two hundred pounds. They had good sport and were well satisfied with the result of their hunt. They experienced beautiful weather and no accidents occurred to mar the pleasure of their outing.

SIX-YEAR-OLD CHILD DIED FROM RESULT OF BURNS

The whole community of Gilmour, near Madoc, was shocked on Thursday last by the sad news that the little six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Sprackett had succumbed to wounds received during the afternoon from having her clothes take fire. Her father was engaged in burning brush heaps, and the little daughter, anxious to see the sights was taken along with him. When Mr. Sprackett had started one of the fires he went a short distance away, but was attracted by the screams of the little one whose clothes had caught fire, and she was severely burned before it could be extinguished, death following the same evening. Widespread sympathy is expressed for Mr. and Mrs. Sprackett in their sad affliction.

LARGE DOE KILLED WITH AXE IN OPS TOWNSHIP

Lindsay, Nov. 12.—James Hall, who is in the employ of a farmer in the vicinity of Hill Head, south-east Ops, about five miles from this town, met with a rather exciting experience one day last week. He experienced all the thrills felt by the ardent hunter of venison without having to incur the expense of fatigue attached to a trip to the northern wilds.

It happened this way: Mr. Long had been busy for several days in a swamp some distance from his employer's house, and on going to his work the morning in question, axe in hand, to his great amazement, axe sa whefore him a large doe and two yearling fawns. The mother was lying down, but on his approach she staggered to her feet, but fell again, and Lee, leaping forward, dealt her a terrific blow with the blade of his keen-edged axe, almost severing her neck. He then turned on the fawns, but they had taken alarm and were out of sight.

An examination disclosed that the deer had been shot by some hunter, probably the day prevvious, as the blood was caked on the skin, and had run until completely exhausted.

The incident recalls the statement ment made last season by Emily Creek farmers to Mr. Joe McConnell, of the Royal Hotel, that five deer were wintering in the huge swamp that extends from Sturgeon Lake to Manvers township. The deer were twice seen by Mr. McConnell last winter, but being a thorough sport, he spared them, hoping that others would do likewise.

SHOOTING ACCIDENT

Ten Year Old Boy Killed in Harvey Township

Word was received in the city to-day of the tragic death of a ten year old boy, Battiste Ayotte, in Harvey township yesterday afternoon. Full particulars of the sad affair are not yet to hand, but it appears that the boy had a gun out hunting and accidentally shot himself.

Coroner Gray was notified of the boy's death, and is making an investigation. From what has been learnd, however, it appears as if the boy's death was accidental.

DESERTED BY SMUGGLERS, SIX CHINAMEN MET DEATH

Three Whites and Ten Orientals Seeking Entry Into United States in Small Boats at Buffalo Are Swamped by Wave and Six Chinese Are Dashed Against Break-Wall.

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 13.—Two boats containing ten Chinamen were wrecked against the break-wall about half a mile east of Michigan street early yesterday. Six of the Chinamen were dashed against the rocks and wedged in, while four were rescued and are locked up at the West Seneca street station. All of the six, wedged in the works, died apparently of fractured skulls, while the four who were saved have scalp wounds.

That the Chinamen were deserted by the trio of white smugglers and left to battle for their lives was revealed yesterday afternoon in a statement made at the West Seneca street police station by Mock Quong, the oldest of the Celestials.

Quong said that the boat loads were made up of Celestials and three white men. He said he and his countrymen came from Toronto to Hamilton.

Quong stated that the boats were running on a high sea close to the break-wall when a terrific gust of wind swamped both crafts. He said the white men managed to scramble up the rocks. The Chinamen appealed to them for assistance, but only one responded.

The rescued men gave the names of Mock Quong, Pong Sing, Chin Jing and Chin Tom.

Two of the dead Chinamen are believed to be Mark Moon of Yonge street, Toronto, and Tem Kee, also thought to be from Toronto.

TUNNEL IS ELECTRIFIED CELEBRATION WAS HELD

Sarnia, Nov. 13.—Just how long it will take to electrify the steam railroads of the world no one can exactly say, but the first step towards this end was signalized yesterday by the proceedings celebrating the electrification of the St. Clair Tunnel.

The work was completed by the Westinghouse Electric Co. and the traffic run under their superintendency since May 17 last, but the Grand Trunk Railway yesterday took over the new electrical system and the tunnel, its yards and approaches will henceforth be run as an independent division of the road. The western division will deliver its trains at the Port Huron yard to the tunnel division, which redelivers them to the eastern division on the Sarnia side and vice-versa.

The importance of the occasion was adequately marked by the company and appreciated by a large contingent of visitors and guests.

The luncheon was a brilliant function at the Hotel Vendome here and Third Vice-President Fitzhugh took the chair. H. G. Kelly proposed the health of Joseph Hobson, who is regarded as the genius of the tunnel. Wm. McNab proposed B. J. Arnold's health, who responding, gave some account of similar undertakings elsewhere. He paid a high tribute to the Westinghouse Co. for its work, and was proud to turn it over to such capital men as Messrs. Hobson, Hayes, Fitshugh, Robb, Jones, McGrath and Hall of the G.T.R. Messrs. Sheppard, Graven, Stover, Wilson and Kilburn of the Westinghouse Co. were specially mentioned by Mr. Fitzhugh.

Another banquet was held last evening at the Hotel Harrington, Port Huron, when the speeches were equally cordial. The royal and presidential toasts were honored on both occasions.

THE GLOBE'S ATTACK

The Globe's attack on Hon. J. J. Foy's department is too savage by half. The instances of breaking the license law may be true enough and no doubt are, unfortunately. But we have heard contractors say that men working in the open will have liquor. The kind they prefer is not good, wholesome liquor, but vile decoctions that "bite" as they say, and made by putting a few drops of certain poisonous mixtures or compounds into a barrel or so of water. The intoxicating fluid is made in a moment and is very cheap. No law can put this practice down. The manufacture of it is in the first place a trade secret. Then the manufacturer is usually a transcient trader who is here to-day and gone to-morrow. It will take an army of inspectors to keep the wild districts within the law. We believe, however, something must be done. The horrors of "the woods" in Northern Michigan, which exceeded the power of tongue or pen, may be repeated in our own north if we are not watchful. The law must be enforced. Apologies will not suffice although we believe Mr. Foy is doing all that mortal man can do and of his desire in that respect no one for a moment will have a doubt.

THE SENTINEL

The following is a clipping from the Sentinel;

"The Kingston Standard describes the Sentinel's doctrines as un-Conservative. It is immaterial to the Sentinel whether its doctrines are Conservative or Liberal, it stands by its principles. In some contests we find the Liberal party fighting for the principles which the Orange Association supports. In other contests we find the Conservatives favorable to the Orange attitude. It thus happens that the Sentinel has been on both sides of politics at different time, but always adhering to on eset of principles.

In the contest that has just closed the Sentinel desired more than anything else to punish the authors of the Autonomy Bills. Having advocated that course, and having criticized Sir Wilfrid Laurier during the last three or four years for his action in forcing Separate schools upon the two new provinces, it is perhaps natural for a paper like the Kingston Standard to give the Sentinel a Conservative classification.

We are quite content to have the Conservative party repudiate the Sentinel because the Sentinel has no connection with the Conservative party or any other party. It is the organ of the Orange Association. It supports and defends a definite, clear-cut set of principles, and wherever this duty leads us we will go regardless of what party is hurt or what politicians may say or think about us.

The Kingston Standard evidently is entirely in accord with Mr. Borden's policy of abandoning the one issue upon which he had any hope of election. We presume that is the policy of the Conservative party. But we submit that no set of politicians have any right to expect the Sentinel to support a policy which is at variance with the principles of the Order. The Standard makes a serious mistake when it says that the Sentinel was expressing opinions which it described as Conservative. Quite the contrary was the fact. In unequivocal language we declared our dissatisfaction with the supineness of the Conservative policy. We were preaching the doctrine of the Orange Association. We propose to continue doing that, while we presume the Standard will continue to follow the lead of Mr. Monk and the handful of French-Canadians who dictate the policy of the Conservative party in Canada."—The Sentinel.

SIR HIBBERT TUPPER

The Toronto News would welcome Sir Hibbert Tupper to the House of Commons as a lieutenant of Mr. Borden, the great Conservative leader. Our advice is for Sir Hibbert to remain out of it. Let by-gones be by-gones. The Conservative rank and file, or the country generally in this district, at any rate, is not hungering and thirsting for Sir Hibbert Tupper.

THE REAL MODERNIST

The impatience which a certain class of men is showing towards the "useless hindrances of civilization and Christianity" recalls the continual tendency to re-action. The real modernist is not he who tests all truth for himself and reserves the right so to do, not the thinly-veneered savage who regards all thought as so much rubbish, and his gratification is the only thing with a vestige of sense in it. The savage is merely a higher form of developed animal. Restraint he regards as wholly abominable and unendurable. The modern savage is the real modernist. The introduction of new methods of thought he regards with all the impatience of his ancient prototype. But the modern savage or the savage modernist cannot be judged by his professions. Strange to say, he is sometimes, as the old man said of his potheen, "the very best." He belongs to churches, and even wears the clerical robe. In short he wants money and in the immortal language of the former American president, "he doesn't care a damn how he gets it." Electoral corruption, the corruption of girlhood of manhood, or of corruption itself, he regards the shortest means to the longest end. "What is morals in comparison with money? What are men but puppets for other men?" What are women but their playthings, alas! and even children, too? The devil is a modernist. He is the true modernist. His attributes were correctly painted. He, too, sees to it that he wants for nothing. His badge is the badge of hate. His smile, as Edward Blake once said, "a lecherous leer." But let us again remember that he prefers high places to preach from and as a vantage-ground.

ENGLISH SINGING

From Hamilton Herald.

It is a singular fact that, while the English people have produced only two or three creative musical geniuses of high rank, England has for centuries been distinguished for excellence in choral singing. In no other European country could the massive choruses of Handel's oratories have been produced as they were produced by English singers in Handel's time. Two centuries before, part-singing was very popular in England and "the common people" were proficient in it, as may be gathered from many allusions in Shakespeare's plays. Even three or four hundred years before the Elizabethan age, the English people were famed for their excellent choral singing. That learned churchman Geraldus Cambrensis, archdeacon afterwards bishop of St. David's who lived in the twelfth century, bears testimony to it. "The Britons," he wrote, "do not sing their tunes in unison, like the inhabitants of other countries, but in different parts; so that when a company of singers meet to sing, as is usual in this country, as many different parts are heard as there are singers, who all finally unite in consonance and organic melody. In the northern parts of Britain, beyond the Humber, and on the borders of Yorkshire, the inhabitants make use of a similar kind of symphonious harmony in singing, but with only two differences or varieties of tone and voice, the one murmuring the under part, the other singing the upper in a manner equally soft and pleasing. This they do, not so much by art as by a habit peculiar to themselves, which long practice has made almost natural."

It will be seen, therefore that the proficiency of the English people of today in the art of choral singing is, in part at least a matter of heredity. In the superb work of the Sheffield choir "the choir invisible" was represented —singers innumerable, long dead and forgotten the ancestors of the actual singers

But hereditary aptitude could not account for the facility of the Sheffield choir singers in reading music at sight—an accomplishment which enables them to master new music quickly and with little trouble. This they owe in large measure to early training in the Tonic Sol-Fa system. Their accomplished conductor, Dr. Coward, bears testimony to this. He told a Herald reporter that nine-tenths of his singers were trained in childhood in Tonic Sol-Fa and to this fact he attributes their facility in reading music.

Two or three years ago the Hamilton board of education abolished Sol-Fa instruction in the Hamilton public schools and did so in spite of the protests of most of the experienced musicians of the city. The Herald believed at that time that the board committed a blunder, and there is no reason to alter that opinion.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The collapse of the Springfield, Ill. prosecutions shows conclusively that the negro has no place in U.S.

Rev. W. T. Herridge of Ottawa, is one of the great preachers of Canada. He is intelligent and bold. Some of us are honest enough perhaps, but we lack brains.

A fierce attack is being made upon the comic supplement in the American newspaper world. It is justified. The taste is of the most primitive that suggests it and reminds one of the primitive simplicity of the Doukhobors.

So when Gregory didn't get his rake-off Laurier Government creditors didn't get paid. This is a great country. "We're right down to business, we are."

We extend our rural congratulations to our big cotem, the Montreal Star, on the beknighting of its owner, Sir Hugh Graham. He didn't give us much support this time but he was fair so far as he went.

To those who "ran the risk," of bringing the Sheffield Choir to the city, the thanks of the citizens are due. It is understood that a handsome sum will be netted to the Children's Aid and kindred societies. As a success d' estime the concert was, also, unexceptionable.

A circulating Knighthood is the thing the Press needs. It would never be allowed to rust, and it would produce a greater crop of loyalty than even a royal visit.— Globe.

We do not like the sneer at loyalty involved in this remark of the Globe's. Whatever we may think of the rest of it to speak of a "crop of loyalty" is to sneer.

It will be interesting to mathematical students to learn that in a recent discussion upon the mentality involved in mathematical studies it was shown that imbeciles have occasionally demonstrated unusual facility in the science of numbers, mental arithmetic being their forte. One of these unfortunates could reduce any period of time to minutes with the utmost speed. On the other hand a noted British investigator offers these studies as tests of mentality.

GRANT AND A. T. STEWART

Nomination of the Merchant For Secretary of the Treasury.

It was not unnatural that in the absolute absence of political experience President Grant should not only have had much to learn concerning the nature and conduct of civil government, but that he should also have had much to unlearn of the mental habits and the ways of thinking he had acquired in the exercise of large—indeed, almost unlimited — military command. This was strikingly illustrated by some remarkable incidents.

As usual, the nominations made by the president for cabinet offices were promptly ratified by the senate without being referred to any committee. But after this had been done it was remembered and reported to President Grant that one of the nominees so confirmed, A. T. Stewart of New York, whom President Grant had selected for the secretaryship of the treasury as a person engaged in commerce was disqualified by one of the oldest laws on the statute book—in fact, the act of Sept. 2, 1789, establishing the treasury department. That this law, which provided that the treasury department, having the administration of the custom houses under its control, should not have at its head a merchant or importer in active business, was entirely proper—indeed, a necessary one—had never been questioned. The next morning, March 6, I had occasion to call upon President Grant for the purpose of presenting to him a congratulatory message from certain citizens of St. Louis. I found him alone engaged in writing something on a half sheet of note paper. "Mr. President," I said, "I see you are busy, and I do not wish to interrupt you. My business can wait." "Never mind," he answered, "I am only writing a message to the senate." My business was quickly disposed of, and I withdrew.

In the course of that day's session of the senate a message from the president was brought in in which, after quoting the statute of Sept. 2, 1789, the president asked that Mr. Stewart be exempted by joint resolution of the two houses of congress from the operation of the law which stood in Mr. Stewart's way. There were some signs of surprise among senators when the message was read, and Mr. Sherman at once asked unanimous consent to introduce a bill in accordance with the president's wish. But Mr. Sumner objected to the immediate consideration thereof because of its great importance. This stopped further proceedings, and the bill was laid on the table, never to be heard of again.—Carl Schurz's Reminiscences in McClure's.

FIRST CHEAP WATCH

The Story of the Famous Old Long Winding Waterbury.

SCHEME OF AN OLD COBBLER

How the Connecticut Shoemaker's Idea Was Taken Up and Worked Out—A Timepiece That Came to Be Known All Over the World.

In a small country town in Connecticut lived a cobbler. He was a poor man and a peculiar one. The boys called him a "gene," and some thought him crazy. But he kept on in the even tenor of his way, living his own life and thinking his own thoughts. One of these thoughts was that he could make a watch that would have only three wheels.

A watchmaker out of a job heard of the cobbler and called at his little shop. This was the beginning of the famous Waterbury watch, which was the first cheap watch to be manufactured. It is now a thing of the past. But its cheap price and its remarkably long "wind" (it was a stem winder) were known around the world.

The Waterbury was named for the town where it was made. It had more than the three wheels that the cobbler had planned, but the little old shoemaker's idea was the original germ from which was evolved the successful cheap watch.

Having got the idea, the purchaser of the cobbler's rights found that the first difficulty in his path was lack of money. He looked about for a man with money enough, nerve enough and imagination enough to lead him to render the financial aid without which no first step could be taken. He was found, because it was a Yankee with an indomitable will that was looking for him.

"How much money will it take and how long a time do you want before you can begin to make your watches in sufficient quantities to make the thing a success," he inquired.

"I will be frank with you," replied the inventor. "It will require $25,000, and I shall need eight months for preparation."

"Go ahead," said the daring capitalist.

He went ahead. He met unexpected difficulties and had spent $250,000 and used up twenty-eight months before he turned out a single watch. But the capitalist never faltered. Then the factory, for which every piece of machinery had to be invented and specially made, turned out its first thousand watches.

Not one of them would go! Among other things, it was found that the sheets of brass out of which were stamped the wheels of the watch had a grain somewhat like wood. The wheels cut out round would not stay round.

This difficulty being remedied, a second thousand watches were made. A large number of these went, but the percentage of "stoppers" (watches that refused to go) was still too large.

New study, new experiments, however, finally perfected the cheap little timekeepers to the point of perfection that only about 10 per cent were stoppers. The good watches were tested in six positions—lying on the face, on the back and in four positions on the edge. The maker of each part stamped his mark on the part he made, so that if fault was found in that part he must make it right.

Then came the question of selling the watches, and over $800,000 was spent in the years of its vogue in advertising the Waterbury watch. Some of the methods used were interesting.

A negro minstrel troupe were paid to open their show by saying, "We have come from Waterbury, the land of eternal spring," referring to the long time required to wind the Waterbury watch.

One day the owner of one of these timepieces was winding it on the train. Across the aisle a traveler noted that his neighbor was winding his watch. It caused no thought until a second look and then a third showed the winding still under way. Then the astonished man spoke. "Excuse me, sir, but are you winding a watch?"

"Yes," said the winding owner, "and I'm tired of it. You wind awhile, will you?" This led to explanations and resulted in the ordering by the stranger, who had never before seen a Waterbury, of 50,000 watches for the use of his business house in its China trade.

The great business went on, and large sums of money were made in it. All over the world people were buying these watches, so cheap were they. All over the world people laughed at the "long wind." The old backer of the enterprise had died, and one of his successors felt indignant because his son in traveling in some remote part of Hungary was asked if the Waterbury he came from was the place where the watch with a long wind was made.

"And," said the man, "I don't want the product of my factory laughed about all over the earth." But his ambition led him to try to make a good watch. The new field he soon found was by this time occupied by most successful competitors, and after getting into hopeless indebtedness the old Waterbury Watch company died in the house of those who should have been its friends.—John F. Simmons in New York Tribune.

Multiplicity

gives Economy-on-Cost

Semi ready

Skill and experience develop rapidity in a given grade of work.

Rapidity is the result of concentration and practice—the making of some one thing over and over again—thousands of times by the same person.

Such rapidity is only possible where there is multiplicity enough to dissect the work into oft-repeated units.

It is not possible in Custom Tailoring where each workman completes a whole garment to order.

Semi-ready Tailoring

Semi-ready Clothes are made for 150 stores in one big workshop. Each coat in the making is contributed to by thirty-one tailors—each one of whom has grown skilled and rapid in the making of one particular part of that coat.

The completed garment is made quicker, better and cheaper than a Custom Tailor can make it. And a further result is great economy on cost. Systematic specialism is further protected by giving the wearer the benefit of that economy-on-cost—for the plain price mark is fixed by the Company.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Attacks Salvation Army.

Denver, Col., Nov. 13.—Addressing the convention of the A.F. & A.M., P. M. Draper, delegate from Canada, told of some of the work that the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress was trying to accomplish.

Mr. Draper was bitter against the Salvation Army, saying that it has been acting as an agent for the capitalist class in securing the emigration of large number of mechanics from England who came to Canada in times of strike and thus harmed the union men of the Dominion.

Third Victim.

Belleville, Nov. 13.—Robert Young, injured in rear-end collision near Bowmanville a week ago last night, died yesterday morning. He had been for many years in charge of the water service department in this division and was on the way to repair a water service at Bowmanville. He was 52 years of age and leaves a widow. He was for a quarter of a century employed on the Grand Trunk. He is the third victim of the wreck.

Somewhat Peculiar.

Calgary, Nov. 13.—The News, Dan McGillicuddy's paper, in an editorial last night republishes the plea of justification in the criminal libel case, and says: "The verdict of the jury is, to say the least, somewhat peculiar and as it has been appealed to the higher court, we will not comment upon it, but merely reproduce the verdict."

Big Steamer Launched.

Belfast, Nov. 13.—The steamer Minnewauska, the largest vessel in the fleet of the Atlantic Transport line, was successfully launched here yesterday. She is of 14,500 tons.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 13.—Crazed with liquor, Ludwig Chodura started to shoot his family Wednesday night. His wife was hit in the fleshy part of the thigh and then after a free-for-all the family broke and fled.

BANKERS ARE ANGRY.

They Say Burglars Have an Easy Mark Particularly In Quebec.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—At the annual meeting yesterday of the Canadian Bankers' Association, complaint was general among the 30 odd delegates that a decided improvement is desirable in the fashion in which the authorities tackel bank burglaries. Legislation will be sought in all the provinces to facilitate the apprehension and conviction of such criminals, although Quebec was the only province mentioned as being at fault. There, according to one banker, it is usually 24 hours after a bank is broken into before a provincial officer comes in, and he makes his enquiry very leisurely, while the burglar is getting across the border. Not only is there a loss of money, but frequently the lives of the staff are in danger. The quality of some of the police was also said to be poor.

Trip Has Drawbacks.

London, Nov. 13.—The Sheffield Choir sang before a delighted audience Wednesday night. The house was packed.

The members of the choir are complaining of the poor management of the trip, claiming it has been bungled. There would have been no accommodation at many cities had not private citizens come to the rescue.

Wednesday night the choir were entertained to a banquet tendered them by four private citizens, who took upon themselves the financial responsibility the council refused to assume.

Madison Garden Must Go.

New York, Nov. 13.—Madison Square Garden, the home of the horse show and kindred big enterprises, and probably the largest and most widely-known building in the country devoted exclusively to public entertainments, is likely to be lost to the city as a public amusement place.

The stockholders of the company which controls the garden have decided to place the entire block on the market. The decision was based on their belief that there is no prospect of the Garden in its present shape ever being a profitable venture.

Affinity Bride Not a Success.

New York, Nov. 13.—Ferdinand Pinney Earle, of "affinity" renown, is nursing a black eye at his castle-like home in Monroe, N.Y. He is also caring for a large bruised bump upon the same side of his head.

The marks of battle, he confided to a neighbor, were inflicted by Julia Kuttner Earle, his affinity-wife, whom he wedded early this year, after putting aside his first wife and his children last fall.

The affinity-wife, Earle told his neighbor, used a chair as her weapon.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market on Wednesday and Thursday, as reported by the railways, were 169 carloads, composed of 2578 cattle, 2207 hogs, 4343 sheep and lambs and 88 calves.

Exporters.

In the proper sense of the word there were no export steers on sale, and there were none sold at $5 or $5.25 either. A few cattle picked from amongst butchers' loads sold at $4.60 to $4.85, and bulls sold at $3.60 to $4.60.

Butchers.

George Rowntree, who bought 400 cattle for the Harris Abattoir Company reported butchers' cattle at $3.70 to $4.35; cows, $2.25 to $4; canners and butchers' bulls, $1 to $2.25. Mr. Rowntree also bought a few export steers and a few picked butchers' at $4.60 to $4.85, and we heard of one or two very select butchers' heifers at $4.90 per cwt., sold by Maybee & Wilson. As will be seen by sales given below, there were few cattle reached $4.50 in the comparison with the large number that did not reach $4 per cwt. But when the quality is considered prices were good.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report a fair trade in stockers and feeders this week, and prices about held their own with last week, with the exception of good feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs. each, which class were a little stronger. Messrs. Murby bought 400 head this week at following quotations: Best feeders, 950 to 1050 lbs. each, at $3.60 to $4; best feeders, 850 to 950 lbs. each, at $3.40 to $3.75; best stockers, 650 to 800 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.40; common and medium stockers, $2 to $2.75.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were moderately large. Trade for them was brisk at about steady prices. Good to choice cows sold from $45 to $65 each, with one or two at $70, and one, the best seen on the market in months, brought $78, but these $70 and $78 quotations are no criterions to go by, but we wanted to let our readers know that we were on the market and generally know what is going on in all departments of it.

Veal Calves.

The demand is not so great for veal these days, as poultry and lamb are so cheap. Calves sold at $3 to $6.25 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts were large, 4343 being on the market these last two days. Trade was dull with market slow in comparison with last week. Export ewes sold at $3.25 to $3.40; rams, $2 to $2.50; lambs, $4 to $4.60 per cwt., and it took select ewes and wethers to bring the latter price.

Hogs.

Receipts from all sources for the past two days only totaled 2207, which looks like higher quotations. Mr. Harris reports the market steady at $6 per cwt. for selects fed and watered, and $5.75 for lights.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rambling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Miles and the Reporter.

"General Nelson A. Miles always did like to have fun with new reporters," said an old newspaper man. "I remember some years ago he told an unfortunate Washington correspondent a long story about a new gun metal that some genius was supposed to have just discovered. It was a wonderful alloy which was as tough as steel and as light as aluminium. By its use, the general said, it would be possible to build guns which would weigh no more than the immense projectiles which they fired.

"The correspondent was delighted and went off and wrote a beautiful article, which produced spasms of laughter throughout the entire artillery service. You see, it doesn't require a very profound knowledge of ballistics to know that if a gun and projectile both weigh exactly the same amount they would fly in opposite directions with exactly the same velocity when the piece was fired."

City of Mexico Street Cars.

The street car system of the city of Mexico is a fine one, but here is one arbitrary rule that strangers must learn as soon as possible—that is, the cars do not stop except at certain points, where you will notice the electric light poles have a band of white painted on them. These stopping places are very close together in the crowded parts of the city, so you must look out for them. You are expected, too, to enter at the back and go out at the front door. Apart from this, the conductors will be found courteous, ever ready to tell you things and anxious to assist you.—Houston Post.

A PERILOUS FEAT.

Caging a Savage Hippopotamus In the London Zoo.

Many more little dramas are enacted at the zoo than the outside public wots of, says the London Standard. Behind the lion house there is a black leopardess which is implacably savage and tries to eat her keeper. Her neighbor is a great romping leopard which a lady reared in India. He comes out to play when the British public is represented by only a liveried zoo man. Sometimes the animals get out without the consent of their keepers. One which did so was Obash, the hippopotamus. He proved a savage indeed when the attempt was made to deprive him of his liberty. Happily the gardens were closed at the time. Try as they would, the keepers could not entice or coerce the monster in the direction of his den. At last the superintendent called up an assistant whom the hippopotamus hated. The chief put a bank note into the man's hand. "Scott," he said, "throw open the paddock gate, show yourself to Obash, then run for it." Scott did. The animal went for him, raging along the path and after him into the paddock. Scott climbed the railings just in time, and the hippopotamus on turning found the gate secured behind it. Presently a press representative arrived to investigate the story, which had somehow become known. "Hippopotamus escaped? Oh, dear no! Come and see him in his den," he was answered as they led him to where the monster was recaged.

A CHILD'S HEROISM.

The Story of a Visit to the Beautiful Glasnevin Cemetery.

A pathetic story of a child's heroism is told by a Dublin gentleman. Recently he proposed to drive with his wife to the beautiful Glasnevin cemetery. Calling his son, a bright little boy, some four years old, he told him to get ready to accompany them. The child's countenance fell, and the father said:

"Don't you want to go, Willie?"

The little lip quivered, but the child answered, "Yes, papa, if you wish."

The child was strangely silent during the drive, and when the carriage drove up to the entrance he clung to his mother's side and looked up in her face with pathetic wistfulness.

The party alighted and walked among the graves and along the tree shadowed avenues, looking at the inscriptions on the last resting places of the dwellers in the beautiful city of the dead. After an hour or so thus spent they returned to the carriage, and the father lifted his little son to his seat. The child looked surprised, drew a breath of relief and asked:

"Why, am I going back with you?"

"Of course you are. Why not?"

"I thought when they took little boys to the cemetery they left them there," said the child.

Many a man does not show the heroism in the face of death that this child evinced in what to him had evidently been a summons to leave the world.—London Telegraph.

Too Early! You say, to commence buying Xmas presents—perhaps you are right, but if you recall the rush you had last year and the previous years, getting your presents ready at the last minute and the big outlay too, about a week or two before Xmas, just when you would like to feel financially strong, you will think there is some truth in the statement "That the early purchasers get the most advantages". If you leave off buying until the last week, the result will be—you will not get what suits you, the service will not be nearly so good and your time will be limited. Think over what we say and see these gloves as good Xmas suggestions.

The eye is such a delicate organ that it should never be trifled with.

This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses, costing from $7.50 to $25 each. With this limited knowledg it is little wonder that so many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others who do not repaire them.

If you have eye trouble you should only consult an optician who has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the optical business.

OTTAWA BOYS PLEASED WITH CONVENTION

Delegates From the Capital Speak Well of Treatment Received Here

The Ottawa Journal says; — The delegates from Ottawa who went to the Boys' Conference of the Y.M.C.A. at Peterborough, have returned to the city. They report a most interesting gathering.

Over 150 boys, representing fifteen Associations, were present. One featur of the conference was the business-like way in which the boys conducted themselves at their meetings and also at the different places they visited.

The object of the conference was to discuss the affairs of the boys of the Y.M.C.A. with a view of improving them and placing within their reach advantages which will develop them spiritually, socially and intellectually.

The boys arrived in Peterborough early Saturday morning and were warmly welcomed at the station by a large crowd of Peterborough Y.M.C.A. boys. They were then billeted with friends of the Association.

Among the most important of the leaders of the boys' work present were Mr. F. T. H. Ritchie, boys secretary of Canada; Mr. C. C. Robinson, state secretary for Maine; Mr. R. A. White, international secretary, and Mr. C. M. Copeland, provincial secretary.

WHAT IS HAPPENING IN WESTERN PART OF CANADA

Special to the Review.

Winnipeg, Nov. 12—The Northwest Grain Growers' Association circular, issued in the past week, gives the following crop estimate for Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta:

Acreage in wheat, 6,055,600, yield 16.4 bushels to the acre. Oats, 2,607,000 acres, yield 34.6 per acre. Barley 855,650 acres, yield 24.4. The total estimate of wheat for 1908 is placed at 99,211,840 bushels; oats, 90,202,200 bushels and barley, 20,877,000 bushels. Up to Nov. 1, there has been inspected at Winnipeg, 25,453,000 bushels of this year's crop allowing for seed and for home milling purposes, 20,000,000 bushels, and that of 15,500,000 bushels in store at country points, leaves a balance held by farmers for export of about 38,000,000 bushels.

First Vice President D D Mann, of the Canadian Northern Railway, while in the city this week, stated that there has already been an increase of 150 per cent. in the grain deliveries of their road over that of 1906. Mr. Mann spoke very enthusiastically of the prosperity throughout Western Canada, and stated that work on the new union station under construction at Winnipeg would be proceeded with vigorously throughout the winter, and that in the specified time of contract the terminal buildings would be completed.

Municipal Improvements

The announcement of a twenty-five per cent reduction in water rates in Winnipeg by the civic council has been received with much satisfaction by manufacturers and householders, and the question of further reduction of fifteen per cent is probable in the very near future.

That Winnipeg is to have cheap electrical power for manufacturers is certain. With the municipal power project being proceeded with by the rapid completion of their tramway line to the bigs ite in the Winnipeg river where it is proposed to develop 50,000 hp, the Winnipeg Electric Railway has come forward in the past week with an offer to supply the city with electric power at $18.40 per hp.

There is no city in Canada that has greater possibilities for developing cheap power than has Winnipeg, and with an almost unlimited market for manufactured goods of all kinds, there is sufficient business in sight to justify any undertaking of this kind.

Cheerful Thanksgiving Day.

Thanksgiving Day in Winnipeg, brought with it the first fall of snow this season. Western Canada has much to be thankful for this year, as with the knowledge that up to Thanksgiving day there has passed through Winnipeg 27,000,000 bushels of the 1908 wheat crop and that there still remained in the country, over 55,000,000 bushels to be marketed, was substantial evidence for the business community west of the great lakes to feel cheerful and thankful for the return of such prosperity. With the big wheat movement might be coupled the fact that over 75,000 head of export steers and many thousand head of butchers cattle and hogs have been marketed. Bank clearings for the week ending November 5th, showed an increase of $3,162,745 over 1907, which is another index of trade conditions.

Generally speaking the tide of money that is flowing back into the country from the marketed produce of the farms has brought about regular and cheerful payments on land and merchants throughout the country report an all round healthy tone in business.

Winnipeg is to have the Canadian Amateur Athletic championship next year, and it is understood that the dates will correspond with those of the annual Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition to be held in July.

THE HOOK

People with weak hearts should not mix up in Newfoundland elections, where the suspense as to who has been elected lasts about three weeks.

A man can always flatter a woman by guessing her age at least ten years under what he really thinks it is.

Persons who are viewing the finish of W. J. Bryan and remarking on the loveliness of the corpse may or may not remember that they have wept and uttered funeral orations over the dear departed a couple of times before.

Some excuses are so thin that a blind man can see through them.

MAYOR JOHNSON CAUGHT WITH GOODS ON HIM

Admits He Was Heavily Interested in Pay-as-You-Enter System

Cleveland, Nov. 12.—Mayor Johnson refused to produce the books of the Pay-Entry Fare Box Company when required to do so yesterday, in the receiver's hearing of the Municipal Traction Company, before Special Master Belford, of the Federal Court.

Following the refusal of the Mayor to produce the desired books, attorneys for the Central Trust Company of New York, which is pressing the receivership proceedings, threatened to have the mayor cited for contempt. Attorney Cannon, representing the Trust Company, declared it was necessary to see the books of the Pay-Enter Company, in order to find out just where the latter company stood in relation to the Municipal Traction Company.

In the hearing late yesterday afternoon, Mayor Johnson admitted that he was President Dupont of the Traction Company and owned all the stock of the Pay-Enter Fare Box Co. The Municipal Company had met all the expenses of the fare box experiments, he said, and would have stood the loss if the Fare-Box Company had been a failure, but if it proved a big success, Johnson and Dupont were to get the profits, not the Municipal Company.

A Common Mistake About Glasses

Many persons think themselves afflicted with some disease of the eye—believe their eyes need medical or surgical treatment—because they are conscious of physical pain or some impairment of the vision, when their whole visual trouble is caused by some error of refraction than can be remedied by proper glasses. No medicine or operation can relieve such cases. Being prejudiced against wearing glasses, even rapidly failing vision sometimes fails to convince them of the truth until too late. How often we hear the remark, "I won't wear glasses as long as I can see without." Just such a vow has ruined many a pair of good eyes. Don't be foolish—IF YOU NEED GLASSES, GET THEM.

SHEFFIELD CHOIR AT PETERBORO'

encore [illegible] sang "Sally in Our Alley," giving it a very delightful interpretation.

The programme closed with the National Anthem, in which the audience joined.

ABOUT THE CHOIR

In connection with the trip of the Sheffield choir some facts may be of interest. In its own city it comprises, all told, about 500 voices, from which 200 were selected to make the trip. In addition the soloists were employed. Each member was required to put up 10 guineas (50.00) towards expenses, to give one month's time, receive nothing for it, and transportation and living expenses were to be paid without expense to the members. In addition many had to provide special wardrobe, which was a matter of personal expense.

The members, in the case of the men are all in business, or in situations and obtained leave of absence or took the time. It was purely a labor of love.

The Canadian committee handling the project, gave a guarantee of $30,000 and this supplemented by the $10,000 contributed by the members, was required to finance the undertaking.

Thirteen concerts were given, with probably another at Quebec this evening. It is understood that the soloists received only a nominal fee, relying on the advertising value of the trip for future engagements.

Speaking with members of the choir some dissatisfaction was expressed, that the hotel accommodation offered was not up to the standard as promised to the choir.

While carefully planned, some details will usually get out of joint, and the very hurried character of the trip, entailed an immense amount of discomfort and inconvenience.

To meet the guarantee the concerts must have netted over $2500 per stand. The four given in Toronto exceeded this figure materially, as those given elsewhere could not have returned proceeds equal to $2500 per concert.

"Grand" to-night, the big musical comedy success "Little Dolly Dimples". Special prices 25, 35, 50 and 75c. Matinee on Saturday "M'lle Julia", Adults 50c, Children 25c. Saturday night "M'lle Julia".

GOOD PROGRESS ON THE NEW DOCK

Which is Being Constructed at Lakefield

Lakefield, Nov. 12.—Work on the new government dock is progressing very favorably, and when completed will be a credit to the village. Reeve Moore is taking considerable interest in the work, and it was in a great measure through his exertions that the wharf is now being built. He is also making arrangements for a cement walk to be built through the hotel park, which will be a great convenience to passengers going from the trains to the boats.

TO-MORROW AND SUNDAY IN Y.M.C.A. WEEK OF PRAYER

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14.
The Army and Navy.

1. The Army and Navy has just completed its tenth year of organization. There are thirty-one Army Associations and eight Naval branches, besides the special work conducted during the encampments and fleet manoeuvres. Eight buildings for the Army and Navy have been erected, costing $1,300,000. Fifty-two secretaries are at work among the enlisted men. Officers and men are in deep sympathy with the movement and are lending their co-operation in the promotion of this work.

2. Pray that the means of financing new Associations may be discovered that the many Army and Naval stations which are urgently asking for immediate attention may be provided with secretary and buildings. That the special emphasis now being made upon the internal development of the physical, educational and religious work may be productive of increased efficiency.

3. Pray for the work in the Philippines, for the soldiers and sailors who are facing many temptations in their daily life among the natives, and for the secretaries who are there, that they may be wisely guided in the administration of their fields.

4. Pray for the special work in Alaska at the posts and stations along the Yukon River. That the the secretary and his wife, as they make their annual tour of visitation of 2,000 miles in a naphtha launch, may be a source of great blessing to those men who are so cut off from all forms of religious influence.

Physical Directors and Their Work

1. There are 430 physical directors and assistants. Last year 709 Associations conducted physical training and enrolled 187,110 members. There were 6,436 volunteer leaders aiding in physical work. Athletic teams enrolled 51,228 members. Work for 127,797 persons outside of the membership was reported by 165 Associations under 410 trained leaders.

2. The Association is continuing to adapt physical training to groups and classes outside of the membership, particularly among industrial workers and men and boys living in small towns and rural districts, and co-operation with other organizations which have to do with public health.

3. The Association includes in its propaganda not only the teaching of formal gymnastics and athletes, but the giving of instruction in personal hygiene, thus assisting young men to live lives of power and efficiency and by the alteration of physical habits to effect their morals.

4. Instruction is being attempted in Public Hygiene also, and members intelligently enlisted in municipal welfare such as the promotion of playgrounds, physical training in schools, the distribition of sterilized milk, etc.

5. Pray that the leadership in physical training, so vitally touching the lives of men and boys, may be Christian: that physical training may be related to Christian training, and that representative Christian young men may be led into the physical directorship.

Educational Directors and Their Work.

1. Seven million men and boys have had no privileges in American public schools. Fourteen million others left school before the age of 12 or 14. Each of these groups has specific educational needs. The special need is for help in lines of vocational training.

2. To supplement the public schools and help meet this need, 54 Associations employ educational directors and have fully organized educational directors and have fully organized educational departments; 293 others are giving some attention to the matter. The past year over 2,100 paid teachers gave instruction to 44,594 men in class work. 740 other leaders guided 14,100 men in club work, and 2,120 other helpers gave practical talks to 320,000 men and boys.

3. Pray for an appreciation of the place and value of Association educational work by Association officers and the friends of men and boys.

More wisdom on the part of secretaries, educational directors and committees in discovering and using leaders and teachers to accomplish results.

The presence of the Spirit of Christ in all activities, and the development of Christian manhood and altruistic character.

The Levant—Turkey, Asia Minor, Egypt.

The liberty recently granted to Turkey opens a wide opportunity for the Association in the Turkish Empire. A travelling secretary for Turkey has just been secured by the Foreign Department. The Association in Jerusalem is of growing importance. Associations are found in the leading colleges, such as Robert College, Syrian Protestant College at Beirut, and the United Presbyterian College on the Upper Nile at Assuit. In these and similar institutions an aggressive work is carried on, while villages Associations have sprang up spontaneously in many communities, particularly in Armenia.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 15.
Day of Thanksgiving and Evangelistic Endeavor.

1. Thanksgiving for the substantial growth during the past year, especially in Bible classes, local extension and other forms of religious activity, for the 20,000 young men who professed to enter the Christian life in connection with Association effort and for the increase of work by our members.

2. For the many new opportunities in this and other lands for bringing the Gospel into contact with men formerly inaccessible to religious movements.

3. For multiplying evidences of the power of the Gospel and the teachings of Jesus to meet the spiritual and moral needs of every man and to solve every fundamental social problem.

4. Pray for the discovery of new ways of getting men to hear the claims of Christ, for a year of evangelistic victory, for a great increase in the number of boys and men who confess Christ as Saviour and Lord.

5. Help to answer these prayers by planning to proclaim the Gospel to men to-day in the largest and best way. Make it a day to be remembered.

WERE DISORDERLY AND WERE FINED

Two Well Known Residents in Police Court--Had Mix-up in Hotel Yard

Two well-known residents appeared in police court this morning charged with being drunk and disorderly on Saturday afternoon last. One pleaded guilty and one not guilty. However, His Worship found them to be implicated in the disturbance equally as much, and imposed fines of two dollars and costs, amounting to $4.60. It appears that the two accused have had some differences for a considerable length of time, and on Saturday came together in a local hotel yard to settle them. As a result of the mix-up one of them had a face badly cut up.

At Hamilton Home for the Friendless 56 girls, 50 boys and 44 women were cared for during the year.

SPORTING NEWS

BURRIDGE AND FITZ WILL WRESTLE AT ROLLER RINK ON NOVEMBER 23 OR 24

The wrestling match between Harry Burridge and Ned Fitzpatrick will be pulled off on either November 23rd or 24th, at the roller rink. The roller rink is an ideal place for the bout. It has a compact seating capacity for 1,500 persons, is well heated and every spectator will be able to see the go to the best of advantage. A great deal of interest in Peterborough has been aroused over the match, as both boys have the confidence of the public and are certain to put up a most interesting argument. Fifty dollars a side will be the bet the boys will battle for and their forfeits of $10 are in the hands of Mr. R. M. Glover.

Since the articles were signed a couple of weeks ago the wrestlers have been working out hard, and are already in splendid shape for a hard argument. By the time for the bout they will step on to the mat in the best of condition. Burridge has been having some hard practice bouts with good men, and Fitzpatrick is having the benefit of the tuition of Young Hackenschmidt. The men will wrestle at catch weights.

YANKEE ROGERS WILL WRESTLE YOUSOUF MAHMOUT, THE TURK

A telegram received here this morning announces the acceptance of the challenge sent by Yankee Rogers to the new world-beater, Yousouf Mahmout, to a match at catch-as-catch-can style.

Yousouf is the man who landed in New York some few days ago, and sent out his challenge for the world's championship to Frank Gotch. A few days later press reports from New York said that the Turk claimed he had driven Gotch out of the country to evade meeting him. The Turk, who is accompanied by his manager, the world famous Antonio Pierri, who has been in the limelight for many years in England since his great match in Liverpool with Tom Cannon, is considered by good judges in England to be the best man yet brought over from the continent. Quite a number of Turks have wrestled in the big professional tournaments in London, but none appear to have caught the impressio nthat Yousouf did. Yankee Rogers is well known in Montreal and can always be depended upon to make an opponent hustle. He is in first class condition just now and fully appreciates the fact that this is his first match of international importance. Whether he will be able to do what the champions in England have failed to do, remains to be seen, but one thing is certain, the Turk will have to hustle to win.

Rogers and his manager leave for New York to-morrow to make final arrangements for the match, which will take place in New York City within the next ten days.

THE CHAMPION OF SOUTH AFRICA

Kid Batten, the Featherweight Champion, Arrives in Montreal

"Kid" Batten, the featherweight champion wrestler of South Africa, and a lad who has been in the game only about four years, is now in the city. Batten has a dandy little record of victories, and he comes to Canada with the intention of making his permanent residence here. He is most anxious to meet wrestlers of his class and will be prepared to meet all comers.

Batten has wrestled in all parts of South Africa and in many places through England, always improving his reputation as he went.

On December 9th, 1905, "Kid" won the championship of Natal in an open competition at 140 lbs. The following year and on the 18th day of February he won the featherweight championship of Natal. Among some of the rather well-known wrestlers who have been defeated by him are Chinasammy Naidoo, India; Khalashar, Afghanistan; Bob Ross, Joe Sheldrick, 156 lbs., and twice champion of Natal; Harry Baines, of Bristol, Eng.; Jack Jones, 140 lb. champion of Wales, and several others. On April 9th, 1906, Batten won the featherweight championship of the West of England, and with Knowlton, the ex-amateur welterweight champion of England, he went to a draw.

A Bristol paper, in describing the match between "Kid" Batten and Henry Rawle, wrestled in that city, says in part;

"One of the most exciting encounters a Bristol audience has ever been privileged to see took place on Monday last at the Old Liberal Club, Fishponds, between Kid Batten, the undefeated featherweight champion of South Africa, and Henry Rawle, the well-known featherweight of Mangotsfield. The match was for £10 per side and the featherweight championship of the West of England.

"The men took the mat looking fit and well; Rawle, if anything, looking the 'fitter' of the two. Rawle attacked from the first and won much applause by his aggressive tactics, but he was attacking a man who knows all the moves on the board and attack was met by counter moves on Batten's part, which repeatedly got his man in difficulties at unexpected times. At last after a prolonged bout of attack on the part of Rawle, Batten, quick to take advantage of the smallest opening, smartly brought Rawle over by a wrist roll, which, however, he broke by a smart counter move, but in attempting to break away Batten pounced upon him. Applying a bar hold on the waist Rawle was beaten just on the call of the forty-fourth minute.

"There was now only 16 minutes and a few seconds to go, and it was felt that Batten, having gained a fall, would be able to successfully defend himself for the remaining time, and so gain the referee's verdict. But Rawle, with a lightning-like movement buttocked his opponent and was trying hard for another fall, falling with him applied an armlock, thus gaining the first decision against against Batten that has been given since he started professional wrestling.

"The audience were not slow to recognize this, and Rawle was well cheered. With only four minutes and a few seconds to go to complete the hour, the men wrestled out time, and the match was declared a draw."

SPORTING TALK

RUNNING

Manager Tom Flanagan is out with his dictum on behalf of Tom Longboat to the other pro. runners. The terms are the same to them all, except Shrubb, and he insists on a real long-distance race for the Englishman—not less than 20 miles for any sum. The money is the same for Jujiro Waldo, the Jap; Dorando Hayes or Deerfoot, and any old distance for them from one to 30. A race with Shrubb over the Exhibition track or at the Woodbine next week is not improbable.

WRESTLING

"Trembley's sore knee fully recovered. Match with Edmunds definitely on for Riverdale rink, Nov. 20th." was the wire Manager Smith of the Riverdale Athletic Club, received from George Kennedy of Montreal, manager of Trembley, today. Trembley to throw Edmunds twice in an hour.

Speaking of the match between Yousouf Mahmout and ankee Rogers, which will take place in New York, Young Hackenschmidt said that it should be a great bottle. He stated Rogers was a more scientific wrestler, than the Turk, but the latter is the stronger and has a terrible scissors hold.

57th MAY PLAY INDOOR BASEBALL

Proposal to Organize a League--- Games to be Played in Armouries

It is proposed to have an indoor baseball league in Peterborough this year in connection with the 57th regiment the games to be played in the armouries. If the league is organized it is probable that each company in the battalion will be represented by a team. The proposition to form a league is coming in for enthusiastic discussion on the part of the members of the regiment.

Indoor baseball in spite of its wide-spread popularity, is unknwn to the Peterborough fans. The game is a most interesting one. It is played with seven men a team instead of nine, the pitcher, the catcher, basemen and two shortstops.

THE RING

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 12.—Al Kaufman, the man who aspires to fill the shoes of Jim Jeffries, didn't stack up against a cinch when he met Terry Mustaine here Tuesday night. Kaufman won in the fourteenth round, but before he put Mustaine away the latter was a hard proposition to solve.

Kaufman beat his man into a helpless state in the fourteenth round. Mustaine went down and out under a rain of blows. Kaufman was not in the best of condition. He came near going out himself in the eleventh round.

The fight was held at Jim Jeffries' Club. Kaufman was a favorite at 2 to 1.

BURNS NOT POPULAR

We are drawing near to the date for the Burns-Johnson bout, which is set for Australia next month, and inside of a few days gossip about the heavy-weights will hold the attention of sport lovers. In spite of the active programme scheduled for several lightweights, the heavier men will be those who will get the most attention.

There is something about a heavyweight contest that attracts attention as the lighter ones never do. This is undoubtedly because the average person realizes that the heavyweight "champ" is the man who represents the last word in boxing—the man who, in deed and fact, is really the champion of the world with the gloves. He is the man who, presumably can whip anybody of any weight and class in the squared circle.

In the present case it is Jack Johnson who challenges Burns' right to the title. For the first time in the history of the American ring a colored boxer will have a chance at the heavy-weight title of the world. Peter Jackson was always a claimant for the right to fight Sullivan, who was admittedly the title-holder of the day. But Sullivan always refused to meet a colored man.

Jeffries, it is true, met both Peter Jackson and Bob Armstrong, but it was before he became champion. So Johnson, in his way, will have the distinction of being the first black boxer ever to have a try at the American, which means the world's title. It is true that more than a century ago Molyneaux was sent over from a Virginia plantation to try for British honors. But those were in the bare-knuckle days and before there was such a thing as an American ring or title.

Johnson has the chance of a lifetime here. On account of some of Burns' performances I have heard doubt cast on the genuineness of this match. But when we consider the fortune at stake, I believe that it must be held on the level.

Burns will have to be conceded the championship at present, in view of the fact that there are no other competitors. It is true that he never met Jeffries, who has stuck to his determination to retire. It is also a fact that the bout on which he gained his present title was one which it had been previously agreed to "fake," with Jack O'Brien as the winner.

Facts surrounding his present position have made Burns unpopular. His championship crown is regarded by many as decidedly tarnished. When it leaked out that he paid the way of Bill Squires from London to Australia to secure a match before an Australian crowd, doubts were cast upon the honesty of the go, although no proof was offered that it was fixed. Certain it is that there was no lack of force behind the blows which sent Squires out. Spectators of the bout have told me that Squires hit the floor on each occasion with a thump that shook the ring and in a fashion to make the crowd seriously wonder if he was not seriously hurt.

If Burns can win a clean and honestly fought battle with Johnson, he will remove much of the taint which now hangs over his title. If Johnson wins, on the other hand, an immense fortune certainly awaits him. Johnson is still young and aggressive. He has a long career before him in the ring. If he is the first of his color to hold international honors he can make a tremendous hit abroad.

Canary In "Death Row."

In front of the "death cells," in Montreal jail is a hall, where the prisoners are allowed to walk during the day, and while they are always in company of a guard, they have also another companion; a little canary bird that warbles most of the time.

When Hanson, the last murderer hanged in Montreal, seven years ago, was nearing his doom, he made a request for a canary bird as the companion of his last hours. Mrs. Vallee, wife of the governor of the jail, granted his prayer, and since then the bird has remained in "murderers' row," where he is fed daily by the prisoners. "Crooked-Neck" Smith, sentenced to death for slaying his pal a short time ago, who did not seem to have anything on earth he ever cared for, has taken a liking to the bird, and gives it some of the delicacies he receives at the jail from his friends, and the bird goes on singing all day long; it sings the song of life to the man who is doomed to die on Nov. 27.

OF INTEREST

At the presentation which took place recently to Rev. James Barclay, D.D., LL.D. for twenty-five years pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church an announcement was made by Mr. Robert Meighen to the effect that Mrs. Robert Meighen, Lord Mount Stephen's sister, had received from his lordship securities representing $75,325 to be handed to Dr. Barclay as a personal gift, and later on in the evening this munificent testimonial of Lord Mount Stephen's appreciation and esteem for the pastor of St. Paul's church was conveyed by Mr. Robert Meighen to Dr. Barclay amid the loud applause of the gathering.

The letter which Mrs. Robert Meighen received from Lord Mount-Stephen was read in part by Mr. Meighen. It was dated 12th October last and said;

"I do not wish to interfere in any way with what the congregation may wish to do in regard to a testimonial to Rev. Dr. Barclay but I would like to do something personally. Will you see Dr. Barclay and if he does not object, use the authority I enclose and transfer to Dr. Barclay securities for $75,325."

In addition to this splendid gift, Rev. Dr. Barclay was made the recipient of an illuminated address and purse also with a cassock and gown from the ladies of the church, who also bestowed a purse on Mrs. Barclay, while advantage was taken of the opportunity to present Mr. Alexander Mitchell, vice chairman of the board of trustees with an illuminated address on completing his fiftieth year as an office bearer of the church.

The hall of the Sunday school of St. Paul's church was quite filled before the time arrived for the commencement of the meeting, which had been arranged to make the church's presentation to their pastor. Mr. James Croil, senior elder of the board of trustees, occupied the chair, in the centre of the tastefully decorated platform. On his right sat Rev. Dr. Barclay, with Judge Archibald on the left. Others present on the platform were Mr. Robert Meighen, Canon Ellegood, Principal Peterson, Principal Scrimger, Rev. Dr. Mowatt, Rev. Dr. Doudiet, Mr. Alexander Mitchell, Dr. Clark Murray, Mr. Jas. Cantlie, Rev. Hugh Pedley, Rev. Mr. Gordon, Rev. Dr. Dewey, Rev. Mr. Barnes, Rev. Dr. R. Campbell, Rev. Mr. Mackie, of Kingston, Rev. Mr. Cruikshank, Rev. Dr. Symonds, Rev. Dr. Wardrobe, Rev. Dr. Robt. Johnson, Rev. Dr. Fraser, Mr. T. H. Newman, Prof. McBride, Prof. Caldwell, Rev. Dr. Scott, editor of Recorder, Rev. Dr. Thompson, Chinese mission, Rev. Dr. Jas. Fleck, Rev. Dr. Herridge, Dr. Burgess and other church members and representatives from the Church of England, Roman Catholic, Methodist, Congregational, Baptist, Presbyterian church in Canada, American Presbyterian, the Church of Scotland, Unitarian churches, and the Salvation Army, and the Christian Scientists.

Apologies for non-attendance were received from Archbishop Bruchesi, Lord Strathcona, Rev. Dr. Hill, Rev. Robert Laing, Sir Hugh Graham and Mr. David Morrice.

After the singing of the hymn "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," the chairman said they were frequently in the habit of hearing of red-letter days. He thought the present occasion, this day set apart for national Thanksgiving, would be remembered by all of them, not only as a red-letter day, but as a day of days. He called upon Miss Greenshields, who was the granddaughter of the founder of St. Paul's, to make the presentation.

THE LADIES' GIFT.

Miss Greenshields, placing on the long table the elegant cassock and gown which formed the gift from the ladies of the congregation, then said:

"I am here tonight as my mother's representative, and must express her regret that she is unable to join the gathering and her appreciation of the feeling shown by the ladies of St. Paul's church, in asking her to speak for them, on an occasion so interesting to us all.

"As the oldest member of our church and the daughter of its founder, it is perhaps appropriate that the privilege of presenting this gown to our highly esteemed pastor, should be accorded to my mother, and in the circumstances I can do no less than try, however, unworthily, to fill her place.

"We have it on the highest authority that a certain mantle, in times past, endued the wearer with wonderful powers, and though for those robes we can claim nothing supernatural may we not hope that the same thoughtful and loyal devotion of the women of our church, finding expression in our gift, may be helpful and encouraging to our minister, whose work among us we appreciate more and more as the years pass.

"There are several organizations in our church specially for women's work and in all of these Dr. Barclay is keenly interested. As one of the past presidents of the Ladies' Aid Society, I can speak from experience of the never failing support we have received in the wise counsel and genial kindness that gave an impetus to our work, while week after week, Dr. Barclay's valuable time was spent that we might have the advantage of good reading during our meetings. His wide sympathies appeal strongly to all ages, and in one family at least, he is counted the friend of four generations.

"In asking your acceptance of our gift I must also beg that you will hand to Mrs. Barclay this little souvenir of your 25th anniversary among us. The work of the minister's wife is often not very clearly defined but we all know how difficult it is sometimes to overtake, and in this connection there is but one feeling among us, a feeling of love and admiration that prompts our earnest prayer that you may long be spared to each other and to St. Paul's church."

In the name of the congregation the chairman presented the illuminated address to Dr. Barclay.

In addition to the address he had also a purse to present, and he saw there was a further a small piece of paper which might be called a cheque.

THE ADDRESS.

The address which is a large and beautifully framed work of pictorial art, with centre lettering, was read by Mr. Alexander Mitchell.

The address, after referring to Dr. Barclay's long connection with St. Paul's, and which was signed by Lord Strathcona, chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Mr. James Croil, senior elder, contained the following paragraph;

"In now looking back over your long pastorate here, we are gratified to find that the confidence, which the congregation expressed by their call, has been fully justified. We refer especially to the pulpit ministerations with which the efficiency of a pastorate must always be associated, while your tender sympathy with the poor and suffering has brought comfort and consolation to very many.

"Your services have always been rendered ungrudgingly to the general welfare of the community. Your influence has always been felt in the Corporation of our University, as well as in our School Board, and the Presbyterian Church of Canada has benefited by your lectures in the Presbyterian College of Montreal.

Reference was also made to the good work accomplished by Mrs. Barclay.

LORD MOUNT STEPHEN'S GIFT.

Called upon by the chairman, Mr. Robert Meighen then stepped forward and made the announcement of the gift from Lord Mount Stephen.

"I hold in my hand, said Mr. Meighan, "a letter from our treasurer of trustees to Lord Mount Stephen, and also a cable from the treasurer to His Lordship. No doubt the treasurer was disappointed in not receiving a letter or cable in in reply, but no doubt too," went on Mr. Meighan, "he will be quite satisfied when I explain the reply which Lord Mount Stephen has given.

"I cannot do better than quote the letter Lord Mount Stephhen has written to his sister, my wife, dated 12th October." Mr. Meighan then read the letter has given above, adding that Mrs. Meighan has had the securities transferred in the name of Dr. Barclay, and he was now prepared to deliver the same to him. He had much pleasure, therefore, in handing Dr. Barclay the securities and wishing him long life and prosperity to enjoy the benefits from Lord Mount Stephen's gift.

The announcement was received with applause.

DR. BARCLAY'S REPLY.

Rev. Dr. Barclay, who came forward amid enthusiasm from the audience, spoke with much feeling and his customary eloquence. There were times, he said, when lips were not equal to frame words. He felt deeply grateful and honored. The twenty-five years had been full of thanksgiving, and whatever note of sadness there might have been about them, that was not the place to think of it. He did not know how to thank them for their too generous expressions. Both himself and Mrs. Barclay would prize them especially as a mark of their visible sympathy and appreciation.

In the discharge of his duties as a minister his lines had fallen in pleasant places. He had always received the kindest co-operation from the elders of the church, the wisest counsel, the greatest friendship, and from the congregation the best encouragement a minister could get. When he left Scotland and first came to Montreal he followed at St. Paul's a succession of able ministers. He made up his mind he would be a loyal subject, of Canada, a loyal minister and a loyal and useful member of the community. He felt how often he had fallen short.

He had been with them in their joys and in their sorrows and had formed true friendships, which he hoped nothing would separate. The success of their denominations was ever as welcome to him as his own and he trusted the same good spirit and common aim shared by him with others would continue to exist as long as he was in Montreal. He, specially thanked the ladies. His work would not have been so easy or his encouragement so great without the self-denying support he had always received from them. He would value the cassock and hood because of the source from which it came, and he hoped he would do nothing to disgrace these sacred symbols.

Dr. Barclay referred at length to the many events which had occurred in the passing of the twenty-five years, and specially to the fact that they were honoring another with him, Mr. Alexander Mitchell, whose unostentatious services he eulogized, also speaking of Mr. Croil in warmest tones of admiration, concluded by his sense of the high privilege he had enjoyed in having so long belonged to the church.

The chairman then made the presentation of the second illuminated address to Mr. Alexander Mitchell.

Mr. Mitchell having suitably replied and paid graceful compliments to Mr. Barclay, an anthem was sung by the choir, following which speeches were made by Rev. Dr. Herbert Symons, Rev. Principal Shaw, Rev. Hugh Pedley, Rev. Dr. Gordon, Canon Ellegood, Rev. Dr. Barnes, Rev. Dr. Mackie, Rev. Dr. Wardrobe and Principal Scrimger. "God Save the King," was then sung, and after the benediction had been pronounced refreshments were served by the ladies and the meeting came to an end.

DUSTING MADE EASY.

A New Brush For Cleaning the Radiator Pipes.

Brushes, as every good housewife knows, are an important part of the household care and the household economies. There must always be a sufficient supply of brushes on hand, and these must always be kept in good condition.

One of the newest and best inventions in the brush line is now on the market and is called a radiator brush. To the housewife who has tried to remove the surplus accumulation of dust from between the pipes of a steam radiator this brush will particularly appeal. The handle is long, and the brush part is narrow, allowing easy access to the dirt covered parts.

A new sink and window cleaner is a useful thing to possess. It is made with a brush on one side and a narrow strip of rubber on the other, which serves as a drier.

A good article to have near the sink resembles a small dustpan, and attached to it is a brush which is invaluable in cleaning the sink.

An imported brush for the cleansing of the sink has just arrived on the market and owing to its usefulness and cheapness bids fair to be the most popular of sink cleansers.

A new idea is being shown in the way of a furniture brush, the bristles being graduated in size, the center ones being the longest, which permits the user to remove the dust from the crevices and buttons of the furniture.

Feather dusters are as old as dust cloths, but are still considered by some persons as the most essential of dirt exterminators. New ideas are being worked into the manufacture of these dusters all the time. One of the many good points in their favor is the detachable handle.

Cuspidor brushes are a great boon to those whose lot it is to keep them in order. The brush part is about three inches square and made of the same bristly stuff as a scrubbing brush. The handle is long enough to reach the bottom of the deepest cuspidor.

The sanitary brush is one of the greatest of household conveniences. The handle is very long, being made of wire, and the bristles entirely cover one end of the brush. No bathroom should be without one of these brushes.

When one has in the kitchen a small plate cleaner the greasy pans and kettles are a minor consideration. The article mentioned has a small half circular piece of rubber which is held in place by a wire or heavy tin handle. After this is drawn over the dishes a few times all the surplus grease is removed.

A COMPLEXION HINT.

Simple Toilet Preparation That Can Be Made at Home.

The following face wash, now in almost universal use among Parisian women (and their matchless complexions attest its efficacy), will restore clearness of skin and delicacy of tint to the plainest of complexions if applied daily:

Obtain at your drug store rosewater, two ounces; cologne spirits, one ounce; eppotone (skin food), four ounces. Put the eppotone in a pint of hot water (not boiling) and when dissolved strain and let cool. Then add the rosewater and cologne spirits.

It is quite an easy matter to mix the ingredients according to above directions, and it can best be done at home. It costs little and accomplishes such a decided improvement on the skin that it should be a requisite on every lady's dressing table. If this wash is used the plainest complexion will take an immediate and decided change for the better, and the powder puff and rouge jar can be relegated to the closet.

Every woman who would like to have a pretty complexion (and unless feminine nature has changed mightily this may safely be said to include all daughters of Eve) cannot do better than give this preparation a trial. It is perfectly harmless, even to the most delicate skin.

THE MYSTERY

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE
And SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

COPYRIGHT. 1907. BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

"Dead," said the captain.

"Ah, a pity!" said the other. He put his hand to his forehead. "I had thought it probable." His face twitched. "Dead? Very good. In fact—really—er—amusing."

He began to laugh, quite to himself. It was not a pleasant laugh to hear. Trendon caught and shook him by the shoulder.

"Drop it!" he said.

Darrow seemed not to hear him. "Dead! All dead!" he repeated. "And I've outlasted 'em! I've outlasted 'em!" And his mirth broke forth in a strangely shocking spasm.

Trendon lifted a hand and struck him so powerfully between the shoulder blades that he all but plunged forward on his face.

"Quit it!" he ordered again. "Get hold of yourself."

Darrow turned and gripped him. The surgeon winced with the pain of the grasp. "I can't," gasped the maroon, between paroxysms. "I've been living in hell—a black, shaking, shivering hell, for God knows how long! What do you know? Have you ever been buried alive?" And again the agony of laughter shook him.

"This, then," muttered the doctor, and the hypodermic needle shot home.

During the return Darrow lay like a log in the bottom of the gig. The opiate had done its work. Consciousness was mercifully dead within him.

CHAPTER XXXII.

REST and good food quickly brought Percy Darrow back to his normal poise. One inspection satisfied Dr. Trendon that all was well with him. He asked to see the captain, and that gentleman came to Ives' room, which had been assigned to the rescued man.

"I hope you have been able to make yourself comfortable," said the commander courteously.

"It would be strange indeed if I could not," returned Darrow, smiling. "You forget that you have set a savage down in the midst of luxury."

"Make yourself free of Ives' things," invited Captain Parkinson. "Poor fellow! He will not use them again, I fear."

"One of your men lost?" asked Darrow. "Ah! The young officer whose body I found on the beach perhaps?"

"No. But we have to thank you for that burial," said the captain.

Darrow made a swift gesture. "Oh, if thanks are going," he cried, and paused in hopelessness of adequate expression.

"This has been a bitter cruise for us," continued the captain. He sighed and was silent for a moment. "There is much to tell and to be told," he resumed.

"Much," agreed the other gravely.

"You will want to see Slade first, I presume?" said the captain.

"One of your officers whom I have not yet had the pleasure of meeting?"

The captain stared. "Slade," he said. "Ralph Slade."

"Apparently there's a missing link. Or—I fear I was not wholly myself yesterday for a time. Possibly something occurred that I did not quite take in."

"Perhaps we'd better wait," said Captain Parkinson, with obvious misgiving. "You're not quite rested. You will feel more like"—

"If you don't mind," said Darrow composedly, "I'd like to get at this thing now. I'm in excellent understanding, I assure you."

"Very well. I am speaking of the man who acted as mate in the Laughing Lass. The journalist who— Good heavens! What arrant stupidity! I have to beg your pardon, Mr. Darrow. It has just occurred to me. He called himself Eagen with you."

"Eagen! What is this? Is Eagen alive?"

"And on this ship. We picked him up in an open boat."

"And you say he calls himself Slade?"

"He is Ralph Slade, adventurer and journalist. Mr. Barnett knows him and vouches for him."

"And he was on our island under an assumed name," said Darrow in tones that had the smoothness and the rasp of silk. "Rather annoying. Not good form quite, even for a pirate."

"Yet I believe he saved your life," suggested the captain.

Darrow looked up sharply. "Why, yes," he admitted, "so he did. I had hoped"— He checked himself. "I had thought that all of the crew went the same way. You didn't find any of the others?"

"None."

Darrow got to his feet. "I think I'd like to see Eagen—Slade—whatever he calls himself."

"I don't know," began the captain. "It might not be"— He hesitated and stopped.

Darrow drew back a little, misinterpreting the other's attitude. "Do I understand that I am under restraint?" he asked stiffly.

"Certainly not. Why should you be?"

"Well," remarked the other contemplatively, "it really might be regarded as a subject for investigation. Of course I know only a small part of it. But there have certainly been suspicious circumstances. Piracy there has been, no doubt of that; murder, too, if my intuitions are not at fault, or at least a disappearance to be accounted for. Robbery can't be denied. And there's a dead body or two to be properly accredited." He looked the captain in the eye.

"Well?"

"You'll find my story highly unsatisfactory in detail, I fancy. I merely want to know whether I'm to present it as a defense or only an explanation."

"We shall be glad to hear your story when you are ready to tell it—after you have seen Mr. Slade."

"Thank you," said Darrow simply. "You have heard his?"

"Yes. It needs filling in."

"When may I see him?"

"That's for Dr. Trendon to say. He came to us almost dead. I'll find out."

The surgeon reported Slade much better, but all a-quiver with excitement.

"Hate to put the strain on him," said he. "But he'll be in a fever till he gets this thing off his mind. Send Mr. Darrow to him."

After a moment's consideration Darrow said, "I should like to have you and Dr. Trendon present, Captain Parkinson, while I ask Eagen one or two questions."

"Understand one thing, Mr. Darrow," said Trendon briefly, "this is not to be an inquisition."

"Ah!" said Darrow, unmoved. "I'm to be neither defendant nor prosecutor."

"You are to respect the condition of Dr. Trendon's patient, sir," said Captain Parkinson, with emphasis. "Outside of that your attitude toward a man who has twice thought of your life before his own is for you to determine."

No little cynicism lurked in Darrow's tones as he said:

"You have confidence in Mr. Slade, alias Eagen?"

"Yes," replied Captain Parkinson in a tone that closed that topic.

"Still, I should be glad to have you gentlemen present if only for a moment," insisted Darrow presently.

"Perhaps it would be as well—on account of the patient," said the surgeon significantly.

"Very well," assented the captain.

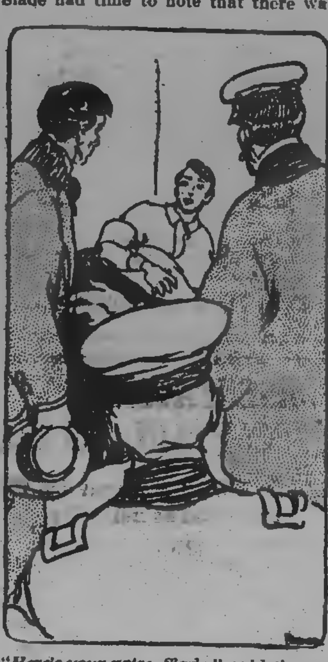
The three went to Slade's cabin. He was lying propped up in his bunk. Trendon entered first, followed by the captain, then Darrow.

"Here's your prize, Slade," said the surgeon.

Darrow halted just inside the door. With an eager light in his face Slade leaned forward and stretched out his hand.

"I couldn't believe it until I saw you, old man," he cried.

Darrow's eyebrows went up. Before Slade had time to note that there was no response to his outstretched hand the surgeon had jumped in and pushed him roughly back upon his pillow.



"Here's your prize, Slade," said the surgeon.

"What did you promise?" he growled. "You were to lie still, weren't you? And you'll do it or out we go."

"How are you, Eagen?" drawled Darrow.

"Not Eagen. I'm done with that. They've told you, haven't they?"

Darrow nodded. "Are you the only survivor?" he inquired.

"Except yourself."

"The nigger? Pulz? Thrackles! The captain? All drowned?"

"Not the captain. They murdered him."

"Ah," said Darrow softly. "And you—I beg your pardon—your—er—friends disposed of the doctor in the same way?"

"Handy Solomon," replied Slade with shaking lips. "Hell's got that fiend, if there's a hell for human fiends. They threw the doctor's body in the surf."

"You didn't notice whether there were any papers?"

"If there were they must have been destroyed with the body when the lava poured down the valley into the sea."

"The lava, of course," assented Darrow, with elaborate nonchalance. "Well, he was a kind old boy—a cheerful, simple, wise old child."

"I would have given my right hand to save him," cried Slade. "It was so sudden—so damnable"—

"Better to have saved him than me," said Darrow. He spoke with the first touch of feeling that he exhibited. "I have to thank you for my life. Eagen—I beg your pardon—Slade. It's hard to remember."

Dr. Trendon arose and Captain Parkinson with him.

"Give you two hours, Mr. Darrow," said the surgeon. "No more. If he seems exhausted give him one of these powders. I'll look in in an hour."

At the end of an hour he returned. Slade was lying back on his pillow. Darrow was talking eagerly, confidentially. In another hour he came out.

"The whole thing is clear," he said to Captain Parkinson. "I am ready to report to you."

"This evening," said the captain. "The mess will want to hear."

"Yes, they will want to hear," assented Darrow. "You've had Slade's story. I'll take up where he left off, and he'll check me. Mine's as incredible as—as Slade's was. And it's as true."

CHAPTER XXXIII.

AS they had gathered to hear Ralph Slade's tale, so now the depleted mess of the Wolverine grouped themselves for Percy Darrow's sequel. Slade himself sat directly across from the doctor's assistant. Before him lay a paper covered with jotted notes. Trendon slouched low in the chair on Slade's right. Captain Parkinson had the other side. Convenient to Darrow's hand lay the material for cigarettes. As he talked he rolled cylinder after cylinder and between sentences consumed them in long, satisfying puffs.

"First you will want to learn of the fate of your friends and shipmates," he began. "They are dead. One of them, Mr. Edwards, fell to my hands to bury, as you know. He lies beside Handy Solomon. The others we shall probably not see. Any one of a score of ocean currents may have swept them far away. The last great glow that you saw was the signal of their destruction. So the work of a great scientist, a potent benefactor of the race, a gentle and kindly old heart, has brought about the death of your friends and of my enemies. The innocent and the guilty, the murderer with his plunder, the officer following his duty, one and the same end—a paltry thing our vaunted science is in the face of such tangled fates." He spoke low and bitterly. Then he squared his shoulders, and his manner became businesslike.

"Interrupt me when any point needs clearing up," he said. "It's a blind trail at best. You've the right to see it as plain as I can make it—with Slade's help. Cut right in with your questions. There'll be plenty to answer, and some never will be answered. Now, let me get this thing laid out clearly in my own mind. You first saw the glow—let me see"—

"Night of June 2," said Barnett.

"June 2," agreed Darrow. "That was the end of Solomon, Thrackles & Co. A very surprising end to them if they had time to think," he added grimly.

"Surprising enough from the survivors' viewpoint," said Slade.

"Doubtless. They've had that story from you. I needn't go over it. This ship picked up the Laughing Lass, deserted, and put your first crew aboard. That night, was it not, you saw the second pillar of fire?"

Barnett nodded.

"So your men met their death. Then came the second finding of the empty schooner. Captain Parkinson, they must have been brave men who faced the unknown terrors of that prodigy."

"They volunteered, sir," said the captain, with simple pride.

Darrow bowed with a suggestion of reverence in the slow movement of his head. "And that night—or was it two nights later—you saw the last appearance of the portent? Well, I shall come to that. Slade has told you how they lived on the beach. With us in the valley it was different. Almost from the first I was alone. The doctor ceased to be a companion. He ceased to be human almost. A machine, that's what he was. His one human instinct was—well, distrust. His whole force of being was centered on his discovery. It was to make him the foremost scientist of the world; the foremost individual entity of his time—of all time possibly. Even to outline it to you would take too much time. Light, heat, motive power in incredible degrees and under such control as has never been known. These were to be the agencies at his call. The push of a button, the turn of a screw—oh, he was to be master of such power as no monarch ever wielded! Riches—pshaw! Riches were the least of it. He could create them practically. But they would be superfluous. Power! Unlimited, absolute power was his goal. With his end achieved, he could establish an autocracy, a dynasty of science—whatever he chose. Oh! It was a rich hued, golden, glowing dream, a dream such as men's souls don't formulate in these stale days—not our kind of men. The Teutonic mysticism—you understand. And it was all true. Oh, quite!"

"Do you mean us to understand that he had this power you describe?" asked Captain Parkinson.

"In his grasp. Then comes a practical gentleman with a steel hook. A follower of dreams, too, in his way. Conflicting interests—you know how it is. One well aimed blow from the more practical dreamer and the greater vision passes. I'm getting ahead of myself. Just a moment."

His cigarette glowed fiercely in the dimness before he took up his tale again.

"You all know who Dr. Schermerhorn was. None of you know—I don't know myself, though I've been his factotum for ten years—along how many varied lines of activity that mind played. One of them was the secret of energy—concentrated, resistless energy. Man's contrivances were too puny for him. The most powerful engines he regarded as tops. For a time high explosives claimed his attention. He wanted to harness them. Once he got to the point of practical experiment. You can see the ruins yet—a hole in southern New Jersey. Nobody ever understood how he escaped. But there he was on his feet across a ten foot fence in a plowed field—yes, he flew the fence—and running, running, furiously in the opposite direction when the dust cleared away. Some one stopped him finally. Told him the danger was over. 'Yet I will not return,' he said firmly and fainted away. That disgusted him with high explosives. What secrets he discovered he gave to the government. They were not without value, I believe."

"They were not, indeed," corroborated Barnett.

"Next his interest turned to the natural phenomena of high energy. He studied lightning in an open steel network laboratory, with few results save a succession of rheumatic attacks and an improved electric interrupter, since adopted by one of the great telegraph companies. The former obliged him to stop these experiments, and the invention he considered trivial. Probably the great problem of getting at the secret of energy led him into his attempts to study the mysterious electrical waves radiated by lightning flashes. At any rate, he was soon as deep into the subject of electrical science as his countryman, Hertz, had ever been. He used to tell me that he often wondered why he hadn't taken up this line before—the world of energy he now set out to explore, waves in that tremendous range between those we hear and those we see. It was natural that he should then come to the most prominent radio-active elements, uranium, thorium and radium. But, though his knowledge surpassed that of the much exploited authorities, he was never satisfied with any of his results.

"'Pitchblende, no!' he would exclaim. 'It has not the great power. The mines are not deep enough yet!'

"Then suddenly the great idea that was to bring him success and cost him his life came to him. The bowels of the earth must hold the secret. He took up volcanoes. Does all this sound foolish? It was not if you knew the man. He was a mighty enthusiast, a born martyr. Not cold blooded, like the rest of us. The fire was in his veins. A light, please. Thank you.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Of nervous prostration we hear much nowadays, and it is comforting to know that there are places specially equipped and located for combating this phase of modern life. On the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway System, at St. Catharines, Ontario, are located the curative saline Springs, known as the "St. Catharines Well." Connected with the Springs is "The Welland," where treatments for nervous prostration, rheumatism, etc., are given by skilled attendants in charge of a resident physician.

St. Catharines is the mildest point in Canada during the winter months. For further information and particulars apply to agents G.T.R. System.

HAM KEPT HIS HEAD.

C.P.R. Man Was Not Upset by Practical Joke.

Some of his newspaper friends put up a practical joke on George Ham, special agent of the C.P.R., a short time ago that is being told from coast to coast. Ham had been detailed to conduct a party of fifteen Canadian women journalists over the line to Vancouver and back. They traveled in a private car.

Soon after the party had started, some depraved persons in Montreal conceived the idea that it would be a great joke to send this telegram, purporting to come from L. O. Armstrong, the colonization agent, to the Mormon bishop at Lethbridge, Alberta, the centre of a large Mormon settlement:

"George Ham, rich Mormon from Wyoming, with fifteen wives in private car, will arrive Lethbridge, on Thursday, looking for new location. Advise that he be treated well in hope he may decide to settle. He would be most valuable acquisition to colony. L. O. Armstrong,
Colonization Agent, C.P.R.

When the train with the journalists' car attached arrived at Lethbridge, the entire Mormon population, attired in its Sunday clothes and headed by the bishop and the elders, was drawn up on the platform to receive the visiting brother and his fifteen wives. Ham was much perplexed by the unexpected warmth of his greeting.

Not until some of the brethren began to question him about his various marriages, desiring particularly to know just where and how he had managed to corral such an all-star connubial galaxy, did it dawn upon him that somebody had been trying to play a joke. But he was game. He carried out the role that had been thrust upon him and departed amid the affectionate adieus of the brethren, promising to return and buy some land after keeping an important engagement at Moose Jaw.

As for the lady journalists, being unenlightened regarding the incident, they resumed their journey unenraptured with the striking example of true western hospitality they had just witnessed. With such consummate diplomacy did Ham manage his charges that upon their return to Montreal they formed an organization, elected him an honorary member, and presented him with a gold-headed umbrella.

CANADA LOSES ISLAND.

Small Piece of Land In Passamaquoddy Bay Goes to U. S.

The dispute over the boundary about Passamaquoddy Bay, an arm of the ocean between Maine and New Brunswick, which has continued for 124 years, will be settled by papers found in Marietta, Ohio, recently in the Marietta College library. The boundary dispute had remained open since 1784, and the State Department at Washington, in seeking a settlement, called upon the college officials there for an examination of the records known to be among the archives in the library.

All the notes and maps made at the time of the survey of the boundary by Rufus Putnam were found. It is stated that the maps in the collection cover all disputed points, and show that Pope's Folly Island belongs to the United States. Copies will be at once forwarded to the State Department. It is believed that these papers and maps will settle the international boundary dispute which has heretofore caused an expense of hundreds of thousands of dollars in the attempt to reach an agreement.

Pope's Folly Island is a very small parcel of land. It is not marked on any map nor mentioned in any gazetteer.

Shoeing the Family.

Families of French-Canadian farmers often equally numerically those of the old New England settlers. Proof, if any is needed, is given by a writer in a magazine in the following copy of an order received by the proprietor of a Quebec store:

"You will put some shoe on my family like this, and send by Sam Jameson, the carrier: One man, Jean St. Jean (me), forty-two years; one woman, Sophie St. Jean (she), forty-one years; Hedmedes and Lenore, nineteen years; Honore, eighteen years; Celina, seventeen years; Narcisse, Octavia and Phyllis, sixteen years; Olivia, fourteen years; Philippa, thirteen years; Alexandre, twelve years; Rosina, eleven years; Bruno, ten years; Pierre, nine years; Eugene, we loss him; Edouard and Eliza, seven years; Adrien, six years; Camille, five years; Zoel, four years; Joseph, three years; Moise, two years, Muriel one years; Hillaire, he go barefoot. How much?"

Stowaway Found Dead.

The steamer Benedict, Capt. Roberts, arrived the other day from Liverpool, England, and Capt. Roberts reports that just before arriving, while the firemen were working on the coal in the ship's hold, they discovered the dead body of a stowaway. The body was badly decomposed and was buried at sea, the captain reading the burial service.

The identity of the man could not be made out beyond the fact that letters found on his person were addressed to Hunter R. Oldham. The deceased was apparently an American citizen, as one of the letters addressed to Oldham was from the United States consular agent at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Line to Skagway.

President Hays, of the Grand Trunk Pacific, announces in an interview that eventually the G. T. P. will have a branch built south to Victoria. He adds that there are some details yet to be worked out in connection with it, so that the exact plans of the company cannot be made public.

Hays says that he expects to be able to give a five-day service from Skagway to Chicago when the new line is completed. He expects next year at this time to be able to go up the Skeena river by his own railway.

The steel work on the new Legislative building of Alberta at Edmonton will be finished next month.

Canadian Engineers.

The building and maintenance of the Canadian Pacific Railway has presented so many engineering difficulties that some of the best known engineers on the American continent are now to be found on its staff. In locomotive construction, Mr. Vaughan, of the Angus shops at Montreal, has no equal. The solutions that the Canadian Pacific have found to many engineering problems have been taken as examples by other lines, not only in America, but also in Europe. Thus, for instance, on the new railway from Bergen to Christiania the Norwegian engineers have adopted Canadian Pacific models for their new snow sheds and snow plows. The Norwegians have to face an exceptionally severe winter, traffic in the mountain passes being almost impossible for eight months of the year.

A Bird of Paradise.

Four-year-old Frances is happy to be allowed to attend Sunday school at the graystone Episcopal church whose spire is visible from her home. When she returned after her first attendance she was asked by a kindly caller, "Where did you go this morning, Frances?"

"I don't know the name of the church," she replied after a little thought, "but it's the one with the great long beak."—Exchange.

Language of the Hair.

A man can tell a great deal about a woman by studying the manner in which she dresses her hair. One who makes too much observance of the exactness of fashion is apt to be a stickler for form and in consequence an uncomfortable person. It is the woman who is able to discern the beautiful mean who meets all complexities pleasingly.

FATHER O'SHEA AND FATHER McCREA

Ye might search the world's ends,
But ye'd find no such friends
As Father O'Shea an' Father McCrea,
Very caustic in wit
Was Father O'Shea,
But as droll every bit
Was Father McCrea;
An' O such a volley o' fun they were pokin'
The wan at the other, as good as a play,
Wid their ready replies an' their innocent jokin',
When Father O'Shea met Father McCrea,

Now, upon a March Sunday it came to pass
Good Father McCrea
Preached a very fine sermon, an' then after Mass,
Met Father O'Shea;
"'Twas a very appropriate sermon for Lent
Ye delivered this minute,
For the season o'fastin' 'twas very well meant—
I could find no meat in it,"
Said Father O'Shea.

Then quick as the laughter that gleamed in his eye,
Good Father McCrea
Raised a finger o'protest an' made his reply
To Father O'Shea;
'Faith, I'll have to be workin' a miracle next
To comply wid your wishes,
Dare you ask me for meat, my dear sir, when the text
Was 'the loaves an' the fishes!'"
Said Father McCrea.

Very caustic in wit
Was Father McCrea;
But as droll every bit
Was Father O'Shea,
Though ye'd search the world's ends
Ye would find no such friends
As Father O'Shea an' Father McCrea.

If it were not for the name we would think one of these gentlemen came from Downeyville.

OF INTEREST

A terrific fight between lions occurred at Messrs. Bostock's well-known menagerie, which is located for the winter in the National Eisteddfod pavilion at Mountain Ash, South Wales. The show is the same as that which appeared at Earl's Court when it was brought over from America. It appears that the chain holding the division bars between the compartments in which the beasts were caged became unhooked. No sooner had this happened than nine lions made their way into the cage of a big black maned African lion named Emperor, and with a roar that reverberated through the whole building a terrible combat began. The huge African beast stood his ground, and fought furiously. The night watchman realising the hopelessness of trying to separate them, summoned Mr. Miller, the manager. In the meantime, a regular battle royal was being waged, the lions gnashing and tearing each other madly. In about four minutes one of the lions got his jaws firmly fixed in the throat of the African lion and held on like grim death, until the latter succumbed. The dead beast is valued at $1250. The conquerors, however, did not escape unscathed, for they bore traces of the severity of the struggle.

When Mr. Miller arrived on the scene, the fight had almost finished and he experienced little difficulty in restoring order once more, and getting the animals to their respective cages. 'He fought gamely against the nine other lions," said Mr Miller, "and held his own for some time. It was a terrific encounter, and a fight between lions rarely ends until one has killed the other."

Just to prove the docility of the animals, Mr. Miller then walked round the yard, petting and patting the beasts and playing with them through the bars of the cage, when they appeared as calm and dignified as if nothing untoward had happened.

PRESENTATION TO CAPTAIN CONGER

Military Officer Honored by Old Comrades at Belleville

Belleville, Nov. 12.—There was a sound of revelry at the officers' quarters, Church street last night, when between 50 and 60 gentlemen —principally officers of the Fifteenth, gathered to participate in a "smoker," the object of which was to say good-bye to Capt. Conger, who leaves to-morrow for his new field of duty in Winnipeg. Among the guests present were Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Hon. Colonel of the 49th; J. W. Johnson, M.P.P.; Cols. Ponton and Lazier. Messrs. Bull and Moore of the Bank of Montreal staff. It was an evening of informal sociability, and those present enjoyed themselves. Several times during the evening the male quartette gave selections which were listened to with delight. During the evening Col. Stewart, who presided, presented Capt. Conger with a handsome signet ring, in the name of the Fifteenth's officers, and wished him bon voyage and Godspeed. Capt. Conger made a suitable reply, averring that he would never forget the days in the old Fifteenth.

A carload of scenery and effects is used in the production of "Little Dolly Dimples" at the "Grand" to night.

Every moment you are awake you use them steadily and those who read much or sew a great deal, or whose duties require close application of the eyes, are almost sure to stand in need of an Optician sooner or later

To wait until a more convenient time is an injustice, as the trouble is being increased every day. Decide right now to see us about the matter.
